PARTY LEADERS FAIL TO UNTIE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION KNOT

A FOLLETTE AND HIS PLATFORM ARE BOTH INDORSED BY THE PROGRESSIVES

Action Amounts Virtually to a Nomination of the Senator as a Candidate for the Presidency.

NAMING OF RUNNING MATE IS DEFERRED

Declaration of Principles Avoids Mention of Either the Ku Klux Klan or Prohibition Issues.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., July 5—In the same hall where the Republican National Convention three weeks ago hissed the name La Follette and derided the platform which he had sent there, another convention today indorsed him for the presidency, and adopted the platform as its own. There was no specific reference to prohibition or the Ku Klux Klan.

Many of the Wisconsin delegates who sat tight-lipped and silent, under the storm of jeers three weeks ago, were on the platform and in the audience today as the convention of the Conference for Progressive Political Action acclaimed them as pioneers of political progress, and pledged itself to follow their principles in a national campaign. Among them was Robert M. La Follette Jr., the Senator's son. It was the Wisconsin rooster's turn to crow.

The convention adjourned tonight, leaving the selection of a vice presidential nominee to the joint action of the National Committee and the La Follette-for-President Committee. It was stated that the convention did not have time to give mature consideration to the available candidates. Another reason, which was not stated, was that the leaders wanted to postpone making their choice until the Democrats have nominated a ticket at New York.

Business Rushed Through.

The convention had momentary outbursts of feeling today, but none comparable with that which greeted Senator La Follette's announcement of his candidacy on the preceding day. For the most part, it proceeded briskly with the business before it, listening to and adopting the report of the committee on organization and that on resolutions, the former containing the indorsement of La Follette's candidacy and the provision for the selection of his running mate, and the second setting for the platform and supplementary resolutions.

The indorsement was not unanimous, although that may have been due to the form in which the question was put. When Chairman Johnston offered the report of the organization committee, a delegate arose and declared that while he favored that part containing the indorsement of La Follette he was opposed to the clause postponing the nomination of a vice-presidential candidate, and would vote against the report unless the propositions were acted upon separately. Several other delegates indicated sympathy with this view.

However, the chair ruled that report must be acted upon as a whole, and there was a scattering of "noes" on the motion, although it was weak beside the tremendous chorus of "ayes" by which it was adopted. The platform, on the other hand, was accepted without a note of disapproval.

Communist Delegate Squelched.

In the closing moments of the session, a communist delegate who had attended the "outlaw" convention at St. Paul, made an effort to get the floor, and Sergeants-at-Arms gathered ominously around in anticipation of trouble, but Johnston gaveled him down firmly, and upon a motion by Congressman La Guardia of New York, the convention adjourned, after making provision for the calling of another convention for next January, at which the question of launching of a third party will be decided.

While most of the session was businesslike, it had moments of color. One of these was the appearance on the stage of the venerable poet, Edgar Markham, author of "The Man With the Hoe," who declared that the prophecy in his poem was about to be fulfilled. Another speaker was Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, daughter of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, one of the founders of the

PRESIDENT AT HOSPITAL DURING OPERATION ON SON

"We Accomplished All That We Expected," Says One of Six Physicians in Consultation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—An operation described as successful was performed upon Calvin Coolidge Jr., 16-year-old son of President and Mrs. Coolidge, at Walter Reed Hospital tonight in an attempt to arrest the course of an attack of septic poisoning.

One of the physicians said: "We accomplished all that we expected."

The President and Mrs. Coolidge were at the hospital during the operation, Mr. Coolidge going there when the operation was decided upon and the latter accompanying her son when he was removed this afternoon from the White House.

Parents at the Bedside.

They remained across the hall from the operating room during the ordeal, but as soon as it was over Mrs. Coolidge went to the bedside and a few minutes later the President joined her and stood by the bed for a few minutes.

They decided to remain at the hospital throughout the night, because the condition of their son was still critical.

The operation was decided upon at a consultation of physicians early this evening, the third of the day. It was their belief, it was said, that the poison in the system had centralized sufficiently to warrant an effort at draining it from the body before the youth's strength was further wasted in fighting the infection.

Inflammation of Bone Marrow.

The operation was said to have revealed osteomyelitis, or an infected inflammation of the bone marrow of the lower left leg. Blood poisoning set in from a broken blister of the right foot during a tennis match last Monday.

The infection is understood to have localized in part there and, notwithstanding the serious condition of the patient, he was said to be resting as well as could be expected after the operation. It is believed that a blood transfusion will not be necessary.

Six Physicians in Conference.

The physicians remained in conference for some time after the operation, those in attendance including Dr. John B. Deaver, Philadelphia surgeon, and Dr. John A. Kolmer, blood specialist, also of Philadelphia; Maj. James F. Coupal and Lieutenant-Commander Joel T. Boone, White House physicians; Dr. Charles W. Richardson of Washington and Col. W. L. Keller, commandant of the hospital.

The physicians came out of conference without issuing any formal statement and an hour after the operation most of them left.

Another physicians' consultation will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning and, pending it, no further statement was expected. President and Mrs. Coolidge had a room near the sick chamber and were in constant touch with the patient during the night.

Stands Ambulance Ride Well.

Young Coolidge stood the trip of four miles to the hospital in the army ambulance well. With him rode Lieutenant-Commander Boone and Maj. Coupal, who have been in constant attendance.

Undergoes Operation

CALVIN COOLIDGE, JR.

Until this afternoon Calvin Jr. had been treated in the boy's room at the executive mansion, which is on the northeast front of the second floor.

President Coolidge, silent, was noticed again today walking about the White House grounds, apparently seeking solace in the out of doors. He was at his offices this morning, where he met Secretary Wilbur, transacted some business, and gave orders that the lower portions of the White House, which are opened to visitors who are coming to Washington by the thousands this summer, should not be closed.

The President expressed the belief that it would not help his son's condition to shut the public out. Hundreds visited the White House today, many not knowing that a life was hanging in the balance in one of the historic chambers overhead. Other hundreds stopped by to inquire of the lad's condition and to add their sympathies and hopes to those arriving from all parts of the country and from the President's personal friends in Massachusetts and Vermont. Cabinet members went to the White House to ask if the crisis had been passed.

Illness Followed Blister.

None knows yet just what started the poison into the system. Calvin Jr. was wearing loose-fitting sneakers, without socks, when he played the tennis game with his brother, John, last Monday. He thought nothing of the blister, about the size of a quarter, which formed and broke on the top of his right foot near the toes. He wore his stockings later. He became ill Wednesday without warning and with virtually no severe swelling at the small wound.

It is generally commented that John Coolidge, who is more solid and two years his brother's senior, could throw off a severe illness much more readily than Calvin, who has grown rapidly in the last year or so, outstripping both his elder brother and his father. Though an athletic boy who has engaged in baseball and tennis, he is slim and apparently has shot upward too rapidly to retain his vitality.

MEXICAN VOTERS TODAY ELECT PRESIDENT AND LOWER HOUSE

One Senator From Each of 28 States and Federal Districts Also to Be Chosen.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, July 5.—Mexican voters will go to the polls tomorrow to express their preference for President between two candidates, Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles of Liberal, if not Radical tendencies, and Gen. Angel Flores, who denies the charge of his political opponents, of conservatism, but whose platform contains less advanced plans than that of his rival.

In addition to selecting their President for the 1924-1928 term, the voters of Mexico will elect a new House of Representatives and renew half of the membership of the Senate by electing one Senator for each of the 28 states and the Federal districts.

PASTOR KILLS SELF WITH RIFLE

Body of Lees Summit (Mo.) Clergyman Is Found by Daughter.

By the Associated Press.

LEES SUMMIT, Mo., July 5.—The Rev. Lester Clark, 60 years old, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, ended his life with a rifle bullet in the garage of his home today. The body of the minister was found by his daughter and only surviving relative, Miss Velma Clark, 18. Mr. Clark had been in poor health since last January and this fact was believed to have prompted the suicide. He came to Lees Summit two years ago from Webb City, Mo.

2000 ATHLETES FROM 45 NATIONS MARCH IN FRANCE

Colorful Scene as Leaders in Sport From All Over the Globe Parade in Colombes Stadium.

BIG CHEERS FOR THE 300 AMERICANS

Pershing and Prince of Wales Among 35,000 in Stands as Cannon Announce Games Begun.

By the Associated Press.

COLOMBES, France, July 5.—The eighth Olympic games of modern times were formally opened today in the magnificent Colombes Stadium, with one of the greatest and most colorful spectacles which has ever attended a gathering of nations from all parts of the world for the international athletic competition.

Guns booming from the batteries on Mount Valerian announced the arrival of President Doumergue of France, and all the immense throngs stood at attention, while four military bands played the "Marseillaise," which was later sung by French and also Czecho-Slovakian choruses. The big stadium presented a picturesque appearance as the Olympic flag was run up the mast.

Then the parade of the athletes began, the various delegations circling the stadium amid continuous cheering. Nearly 2000 of the finest specimens of manhood and womanhood ever gathered together circled the track before 35,000 spectators in the stadium, in which the actual competition for the track and field championships will begin tomorrow.

Pigeons Released.

The American athletes received a tremendous ovation, the appearance of none of the national delegations, unless Belgium were excepted, being greeted by such a vociferous outburst. It was estimated that at least 5000 persons from the United States were in the stands.

There were more than 300 Americans in the ranks of the marchers, the largest delegation of any of the 45 nations participating. The United States presented a number of athletes nearly equal to the total of the 17 nations which preceded it. Col. Robert M. Thompson, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, marching immediately behind Matt McGrath the standard bearer, and Pat McDonald, carrying the Stars and Stripes, came in for a special cheering of his own. France's delegation was the next largest.

The initial ceremony was brought to a dramatic conclusion when, on the echoes of the voice of President Doumergue of France, declaring the games officially opened, came the booming of a cannon. Hundreds of carrier pigeons were released while air planes zoomed overhead and four French military bands added their martial strains to the enthusiastic plaudits of the multitude.

Picturesque, too, was the formal taking of the Olympic oath on behalf of the entire body of athletes by the veteran French hurdler, Georges Andre, who voiced the ideals of the games and pledged the participants to sportsmanship and fair play.

For more than a half hour after the opening formalities when high Olympic officials and dignitaries of many nations occupied places in the official tribune and in the stands, the stalwart representatives of the various nations paraded about the stadium track to the strains of martial music. They made a striking spectacle in their multi-colored uniforms and with their national flags.

Continuous Applause.

The crowded stands maintained continuous applause with occasional greater outbursts of cheering as favorites marched by. The native costumes of the Indian representatives and the kilts of the Scotch Highlanders contrasted sharply with the brilliant military uniforms of the Italians and the plain outfit of blue coats and white trousers which perdominated in the American lineup.

WARSAW TO PARIS IN DAY

Airplane Service Between Two Capitals Inaugurated.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 5.—A Warsaw-to-Paris one-day air service was inaugurated today and the early riser in the Polish capital, according to the new line's schedule, may leave his home city at 4 o'clock in the morning and arrive in Paris at 5:15 o'clock in the afternoon. The schedule calls for an average of 130 kilometers an hour.

M'ADOO WILL NOT WITHDRAW, MANAGER SAYS

Rockwell Reserves Judgment When Asked If Leading Candidate Will Abide by Result.

NOT PUT UP FOR ELIMINATION PLAN

"We Have No Right to Sit Down and Eliminate," He Asserts; "Delegates Were Sent to Do That."

By the Associated Press.

MADISON SQUAGE GARDEN, NEW YORK, July 5.—William C McAdoo has no intention of withdrawing from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, David Ladd Rockwell, his campaign manager announced tonight after the preliminary meeting of officials of the convention to find ways and means of breaking the deadlock.

"It seems ludicrous," Rockwell said, "to suggest that the high man, who has been the high man from the first to the seventy-seventh ballot, should be asked to withdraw."

Rockwell's statement was supported by other of the McAdoo lieutenants who either will represent McAdoo at the conference or be chosen at hand for consultation.

"This conference was not put up to me as one for the elimination of candidates," Rockwell added. "The purpose is to lay down some broad principle of procedure that may offer some solution of what appears to be a deadlocked convention.

"We have no right to sit down and eliminate candidates. Likewise we are not meeting to deal out the nomination. The delegates were sent here to do that."

Rockwell said the McAdoo representatives would go into the conference with "an open mind" and without any "well-defined plan" to put forward.

Asked if McAdoo would be bound by any decision of the conference, Rockwell said judgment would have to be reserved on that question.

McAdoo's campaign manager said there could be no talk of one or the other of the leading candidates having a veto power in the convention until after there had been a "run-off" between Smith and McAdoo.

"There are candidates before the convention who have developed no appreciable strength," he said, "and yet they are holding away from McAdoo votes that will go to him. Until those votes are released, there can be no talk of the veto power."

38 FOWLS DIE AFTER EATING FRAGMENTS OF FIREWORKS

Poultry Killed When Remnants of "Sons of Guns" Become Mixed With Chicken Feed.

Thirty-eight chickens and ducks are dead today on the farm of John Schoreck, south of Edwardsville, Ill., as the result of a Fourth of July celebration by Schoreck's children.

They are victims of the supposedly harmless "son-of-a-gun," the wafer-shaped explosive which town children crush under heel on granitoid sidewalks. The extent of the noise created depends on the energy expended in the crushing.

The Schoreck children had "son-of-a-guns," but, unfortunately, no granitoid walk. But they had a corn grinder in which Schoreck prepared his chicken feed. The wafers run through the grinder, the children discovered, created a delightful noise, superior to the best of city sidewalks.

Yesterday morning Schoreck fed his poultry. In a few minutes, 6 ducks, 12 hens and 20 springers were dead. Schoreck believes that fragments of the wafers, left in the grinder, were crushed in the craws of the birds.

SIXTH INTERNATIONAL LABOR CONFERENCE ENDS SESSIONS

Meeting Is Closed With Resolutions Glorifying Name of Woodrow Wilson.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, July 5.—The sixth international labor conference closed tonight with the delegates standing reverentially while resolutions were read glorifying the name of Woodrow Wilson as symbolizing forever the ideal of peace and justice. A copy of these resolutions will be sent to Mrs. Wilson, together with an announcement that the organization intends to place a memorial to the late President in the new labor home in Geneva. This memorial is the outcome of the initiative of Julio Barbosa Carneiro, representing the Brazilian Government.

The conference proved a great success, having completed its entire program. It adopted a series of conventions calculated to contribute to the health and happiness of the world's workers and demonstrated the existing spirit of collaboration and conciliation between employers and workers, groups of which were represented at the conference.

Among the conventions adopted was one urging work in factories. This was voted after a minority report, favoring a recommendation to the Governments for abolition of such work, was defeated.

DOCTORS OF BEER DEGREES TO BE AWARDED IN BAVARIA

Steps Taken to Keep Munich Ahead of Rest of World as Brewery Center.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 5.—Bavaria is to have doctors of beer. Graduates of the Agriculture College of Weisenstephan, who take a special course in beer-making, designed to keep Munich ahead of the rest of the world as a brewery center, would be given a special decree which, literally translated, means: "Brewery director."

Hops are grown scientifically on the school farm, and a miniature brewery is maintained in which the students make a scientific study of all the processes of beer-making and compete for prizes offered for the contestants producing the best brews.

CHILD MISSING FOUR DAYS FOUND; HUNT FOR KIDNAPERS

Police Believe 4-Year-old New York Girl Was Stolen From Salvation Army Camp.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The hunt for Eleanor O'Connor, missing since noon Tuesday from the Salvation Army Camp, Fort Montgomery, two miles from Bear Mountain, ended at 9 o'clock this morning.

The 4-year-old child, suffering seriously from exposure, her throat racked with a bronchial cough, was found less than three-quarters of a mile from the camp site by Thomas Armstrong, a camper.

Immediately thereafter there began a second hunt for herpossible kidnapers.

Although the physician called to attend the child firmly believed she had spent the four nights and days wandering about lost in her excursion into the woods—the police theory was different. So today and tonight the terrain was combed for a man and a woman the Highland Falls police believe kidnapped the little girl and kept her prisoner in a nearby camp.

This camp, belonging to George Stanley, New Yorker, who uses it week-ends, was broken into during Stanley's absence. The camp is only a few hundred yards from the Salvation Army camp.

LANDING FIELD AT FORD PLANT

New Commercial Airplane Station Furnished as Civic Development.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., July 5.—Establishment of a commercial landing field for aircraft on a field approximately three-quarters of a mile square adjoining the new administration building of the Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn, was announced today by Henry and Edsel Ford. The announcement says that the field is being furnished "as a civic development and a national patriotic move, there being no intention on the part of the Ford Motor Co. to go into the airplane business, other than to watch its development."

MEET AGAIN TODAY AFTER CONFERENCES OF 3 GROUPS

Smith, McAdoo and the "Minority" Factions to Submit Some Plan for Ending Deadlock.

ONLY ONE WOMAN IN COUNCIL ROOM

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri Aids Representatives of All Candidates in Discussion of New Plan.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Representatives of the various candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination after a four-hour conference tonight for a preliminary discussion adjourned until tomorrow.

Leaving the conference ahead of the others, one of the participants said he felt little had been accomplished and that he felt disposed personally not to attend the proposed Sunday meeting.

"I feel that I have wasted about all the time I can afford on such a gathering," he added.

"About Nothing Plus."

He explained that he would confer with others interested in the candidacy he represented before deciding finally whether he would attend the Sunday conference. He was one of three spokesmen for a candidate who had received a favorite son vote on every ballot.

Another participant, who likewise refused to allow himself to be quoted, described the results of the four-hour session as "slightly more than nothing—but not much more."

"It was about nothing plus," he said, and it was added that not a "single concrete suggestion had been presented for consideration."

No Conclusions, Hull Says.

David Ladd Rockwell, chairman of the McAdoo-for-president committee, after the conference, issued the following statement:

"Any assertion that Mr. McAdoo had withdrawn or intends to withdraw from the race in which he is the outstanding candidate is malevolently false. Such lies are obviously uttered for political effect. Mr. McAdoo will be nominated by this convention and elected by the people in November."

Chairman Hull announced shortly after 1 A. M. when the conference finally adjourned, that it would reconvene at 4 P. M. Sunday. The interval would be spent by the representatives of the various candidates in discussions within their own ranks, "in the light of what transpired here and what they already know," Hull said.

Hull said there had been "no conclusions" at tonight's meeting and that there had been no suggestion or consideration of concrete proposals to end the deadlock, "except of a general nature which I cannot disclose."

The chairman said the representatives of the candidates had shown "proper loyalty to the candidates," but had also exhibited an earnest desire to co-operate in an effort to solve the problem.

The rule of secrecy had been imposed on the conference, he added, in order that there might be the fullest and freest expressions of opinion. He said the meeting was designed to "get rid of as much brush as possible," in preparation for the meeting tomorrow after the candidates' representatives have conferred further with their chiefs.

Hopes for Definite Plan.

The conferees, Hull continued, had shown "a good spirit of fellowship with no disposition to indulge in controversies about individuals"

Asked if he expected to have a definite plan to present to the con-

GEORGE BELCHER IS SHOT BY WIFE DURING QUARREL

Former Downtown Saloon Man Reported in Serious Condition From Two Wounds in Body.

ARGUMENT THROUGH DOOR THE CAUSE

Woman Says She Was Going to Quit and Fired When He Tried to Break in Apartment.

George Belcher, former downtown saloon proprietor, was shot twice by his wife, Mrs. Heigarde Belcher, at the front door of their apartment, at 2611 California avenue, at 6:30 last evening. He is in the city hospital, in a serious condition.

Belcher, who is 47 years old, has a wide circle of acquaintance in St. Louis. As proprietor of the notorious Tannhauser cafe, in Sixth street, and later of a resort on Olive street, near Sarah street, he was in frequent conflict with the police and excise authorities. A policeman charged with accepting money from Belcher was dismissed from the force in 1906, and it was charged at that time that Belcher had made loans to others in the Police Department, in the hope of obtaining immunity from police interference. In 1918 the Excise Commissioner ordered Belcher to get out of the saloon business, announcing that no license would be issued to any saloon run by him.

Married but a Year.

Mrs. Belcher is 27, and was married to Belcher less than a year ago. At the Wyoming Street Police Station last night, she admitted the shooting, and said it occurred in a quarrel caused by her determination to leave Belcher.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Belcher told the police, Belcher struck her in the face, discoloring one eye. This week, she said, she determined to leave him.

"I left Thursday," she said, "and went to live in another apartment in the same building. He sent me a note, asking me to return. I did go back this afternoon, but only to get my clothes.

"When he came home, I had the front door locked, and was packing my belongings in a trunk. He called to me to let him in, and I replied that he would have to give me a little time, that I would be out soon.

"He kept demanding that I let him in, and pounding on the door, threatening to break it down. I went to the door and opened it, and fired the revolver I was carrying."

Fires Four Times.

Four shots were fired, neighbors said. After being wounded twice, Belcher fell down a row of four steps, bruising his body and breaking his left wrist.

At the city hospital it was found that one of his wounds was in the left arm and the more serious wound was in the back and the abdomen. Belcher was unconscious last night, and physicians thought he had less than an even chance for recovery.

Belcher also spells his name Boelscher. The card on the door of his apartment bears the name "Gerard Boelscher." The wife said this was a name which he sometimes used, but that she always spelled the name in the simpler way. She refused to talk in detail of her difficulties with her husband, or to add to her brief statement of the circumstances of the shooting.

While he was running the Tannhauser, Belcher shot and killed a negro employe. He said the shooting was accidental, and that he had picked up his revolver to use as a club on a negro, not the one who was killed. He was not prosecuted.

LA FOLLETTE AND HIS PLATFORM ARE INDORSED BY THE PROGRESSIVES

woman suffrage movement in America.

While somewhat terser than the platform ratified by the voters of Wisconsin and presented to the Republican convention as a minority report by Congressman Henry Allen Cooper, the platform adopted is in substance, the same. It contains 14 planks, and, in strong contrast to the lengthy documents adopted at both the old party conventions, occupies less than two typewritten pages.

The Outstanding Planks.

The outstanding planks are familiar to those who know Senator La Follette's attitude on public questions. The platform starts off with the declaration that the duty of the Federal government is to crush private monopoly, not to foster it, thus again emphasizing that the monopoly issue is to be the keystone of La Follette's campaign. Unqualified enforcement of the constitutional guarantees of free speech, press and assemblage is the second and a characteristic plank.

Obviously, the planks which will be cited in proof of the charge of "radicalism," which is certain to be hurled at La Follette throughout the campaign, are those advocating Government ownership of railroads, the election of Federal Judges, public ownership of waterpower, public control of national mineral and timber resources, a referendum on war, reduction of armaments, and the abolition of the "judicial veto." To be sure, other planks advocate proposals which neither of the old parties would sanction, but the foregoing certainly will be singled out for special criticism. It was the plank denouncing the use of the injunction in labor disputes which drew the loudest applause from the delegates, a majority of whom are railroad workers, although the pledges to retain high taxes on large incomes, to impose higher estate and inheritance taxes, and to revise the Federal reserve system to insure "direct public control of the nation's money and credit" came in for a large share.

Domestic Policies Stressed.

As will be seen from a study of it, the platform pays far more attention to domestic than to foreign policies. The plank for "common international action to affect the economic recovery of the world from the effects of the World War" might mean anything. The promise to seek a revision of the Versailles treaty "in accordance with the terms of the armistice," and to promote international treaties to outlaw war, abolish conscription and reduce armaments, is more specific.

These declarations are considerably supplemented, moreover, in the resolutions which accompany the platform, and which advocate complete and immediate independence for the Philippines and relief for the starving in Germany, and which also express sympathy with Irish aspirations for independence, and denounce the use of armed forces in Central America.

The platform is conspicuously silent on the question of the recognition of soviet Russia, a silence which can be attributed directly and almost wholly to the influence of Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, who is opposed to recognition. Senator La Follette has repeatedly advocated it. A Socialist delegate attempted to raise the question on the floor of the convention, but was ruled out of order.

Head of Resolutions Body.

The chairman on the resolutions committee, who presented the platform, was Donald R. Richberg of Chicago, who was counsel for the striking railroad shopmen in resisting the famous injunction obtained against them by the former Attorney-General Daugherty. He declared that many proposals had been submitted which the committee favored, but that the necessity of adopting a brief and succinct platform which everybody would read, and which could actually be carried out in the event of La Follette's election had governed the committee's action. The only resolution which was presented from the floor, and adopted, was one condemning the action of President Coolidge in appointing a "national mobilization day," as an act of militarism and a preparation for war.

"In the speaking which preceded the report of the committees, Congressman La Guardia, told the convention that the East has been inspired by the leadership of the West. "The workers of the East have learned," he said, "that a dangerous radical is a man who wants milk for the babies and decent wages for their fathers and mothers." The religious issue had been injected into the Democratic convention to divert attention from economic issues, he said.

"Morgan and Gary would be equally well satisfied with Cardinal Hayes or Rabbi Wise if they thought they could control them," he declared

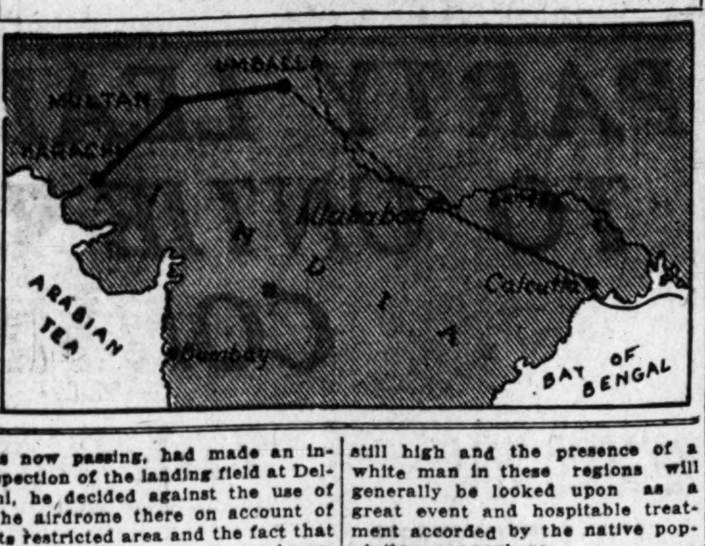
Danger of Early Ice Off Greenland Impels World Flyers to Speed Up

American Airmen Will Try to Cover 1500 Miles to England in Record Time.

By LIEUT. R. B. BROWN JR.,
Chairman of the World Flight Committee.

YESTERDAY'S FLIGHT



WASHINGTON, July 5.—Much to the surprise and gratification of the officials of the War Department, the United States Army Air Service round-the-world flight was able to completely refit the air cruisers with new wings and new motors and to replace the pontoons used for landings on the water with regular wheel landings here which they will use until England has been reached in three days. It was thought improbable that this complete metamorphosis could be accomplished in less than a week.

However, this splendid progress was not unattended by misfortunes. The flight commander's jinx seemed to have followed him to Calcutta, for while working on the upper wing of the cruiser Chicago he slipped and fell, fracturing a rib. Lieut. Lowell Smith did not consider this painful injury of sufficient importance to keep him from taking his accustomed place in the pilot's cockpit of the flagship and leading his flight toward Allahabad on the dawn of July 1.

After leaving the Royal Air Force airdrome at Dumdum, North Calcutta, the flight soon passed out of the lowlands of the lower Ganges valley, with its paddy fields and teeming rural population, into the high, rolling and somewhat mountainous country in Northwestern Bengal and finally into the plains of Bihar and the United Provinces of Indian, in which Allahabad is situated.

Welcomed by British.

The country flown over during this journey is devoted entirely to agriculture and that portion over which the flight passed in Bengal, Bihar, and the southern part of the United Provinces, is perhaps the most densely populated rural area in the entire world. The population is composed mostly of Hindus and Mohammedans, and though the cultural differences between these people is great, they intermingle in all the towns and carry on ordinary business intercourse without friction. A number of Animistics, worshippers of the elements, will be found throughout this area, in all classes, even among the subtle-minded Bengali scholars.

When the flight landed at the Royal Air Force airdrome, west of the Sacred City of Allahabad, the American airmen were welcomed by the English aviators stationed there. While all of these officers are anxious to see Capt. Stuart Maclaren succeed in flying around the world first, they have taken Americans to their bosoms with that characteristic hospitality and sportsmanship for which they are noted throughout the world.

The distance from Calcutta to Allahabad, 475 miles, was covered in six hours and 20 minutes flying time, or at the rate of about 71 miles per hour, for the entire distance, flying against head winds and encountering several thunderstorms, which made it necessary to detour considerably from the direct route and contributed to the slow average speed for this flight. However, considering these obstacles, the planes were able to make much faster time than had heretofore been possible with the heavy bulky pontoons, which were left at Calcutta.

In Perfect Condition.

The flight landed in perfect condition at Allahabad, ready for the flight the next day to Ambala. Just before sunrise on the morning of July 2, the three airplanes of the American expedition circled over the airdrome and the City of Allahabad and started northwest towards Delhi and Ambala, 530 miles away. It was originally contemplated that the flight would land at Delhi, but after Lieut. Halverson, the advance officer for the Fourth Division, through which the flight is now passing, had made an inspection of the landing field at Delhi, he decided against the use of the airdrome there on account of its restricted area and the fact that the Royal Air Force were only using the field as an emergency station, and altered the course of the flight to take in Amabala, 150 miles farther north, which has an excellent airdrome and possesses every facility for the convenience of the flyers. The flight, however, passed directly over Delhi, en route to Ambala.

At one time Delhi was the largest city in India, covering a space of 20 square miles and having a population of about 2,000,000. It is now reduced in circumference to seven miles and in population to a little more than 200,000. A vast tract covered with ruins marks the extent of the ancient metropolis of the Mogul empire. The present city is surrounded by walls of red sandstone, 30 feet high. There are seven colossal, arched gates surrounded by rounded bulwarks. The palace of the Great Mogul, built by Shah Jehan, is by far the most imposing and magnificent building in Delhi and perhaps the most wonderful structure of its kind in India. In 1911, the city was proclaimed the capital of India and the supreme government was transferred there from Calcutta. The city though a monument of the past, is only a phantom of its former great affluence.

Through Thunder Storms.

The flight landed at Ambala after five hours and 20 minutes in the air, covering the distance from Allahabad, at the rate of 93½ miles per hour, in spite of numerous thunder and rain storms which they were forced to pass through en route. The flight is now passing through that portion of interior India which is subject to the southwest monsoon in the summer, which is always accompanied by heavy electrical storms and torrential rains. Due to the terrific heat on July 2, the engine in Lieut. Nelson's plane, the cruiser New Orleans, cracked a waterjacket, and, although considerable water was lost before Ambala was reached, he landed safely and none the worse for his experience.

The landing field is within the cantonment of the British-Indian Army. The officers of the Royal Air Force met the American flyers with the same cordiality which their brother officers had accorded the Americans at Allahabad. Every facility of the British airdrome was made available for the American aviators and the slight damage to the cruiser New Orleans was quickly repaired.

At Ambala, the changing character of the native population will be noted. The "up-country man" is encountered, many of these being Mohammedans, and all of them more upstanding and martial in their bearing than their countrymen farther south.

On July 3 the world flyers left Ambala for Multan, 325 miles to the west, flying along the fringe of the great Indian Desert, which is largely embraced in the province of Rajputana.

Encounter Sandstorm.

The country which was flown over is the seat of the ancient Hindu chivalry, and the inhabitants are still a proud race, although they have lost many of their former admirable characteristics. This country is made up largely, if not entirely, of native states and the prestige of the Europeans is still high and the presence of a white man in these regions will generally be looked upon as a great event and hospitable treatment accorded by the native population everywhere.

The flight to Multan was not accomplished without difficulty, although only four hours and 42 minutes were necessary to make the trip. A very heavy sandstorm was encountered and the excessive heat made flying difficult. Lieut. Smith's report says that they landed at Multan safely, but very tired. The flyers again landed at a British airdrome and were shown every courtesy.

On the Fourth of July the American expedition left Multan in the early morning and headed down the valley of the Indus for Karachi, on the Arabian gulf. The country which was flown over en route is not subject to heavy rains and thunderstorms like the Ganges valley. Though the country immediately adjacent to the Indus is fertile and thickly populated, that portion which was traveled over by the flight is on the edge of the great Indian desert, and in pursuing a straight line, the flight did for a distance of about 100 miles, cross over the eastern edge of the desert.

It was during this time that Lieut. Nelson's engine in the cruiser New Orleans again cracked a water packet and though a great deal of water was lost, he finally landed safely at the Royal Air Force airdrome east of the City of Karachi, where arrangement had been made for the landing of the flight by First Lieut. Halverson, advance officer of the Fourth Division. At Karachi, the flight will again change motors.

Will Hurry Flight.

The great heat which the flight has encountered in India has made this course necessary. Lieut. Smith foresaw this situation while still in Calcutta and shipped two new motors by rail to Karachi, making three motors for the flight when it started. Karachi being a minor depot, had already one motor among the supplies and spares which had been shipped there from the United States. With the assistance of the Royal Air Force, the flight should succeed in replacing its old motors with the new ones in not more than three days and be ready to proceed to Bagdad by July 7.

It was planned to make stops at Chahbar, Bandar, Abbas and Bushire, Persia, and then to Bagdad. However, the stops in Persia are not over 350 miles apart and with clear weather, it is very probable the flight will attempt to complete the journey from Karachi to Bagday in two flights, omitting the stops at Chahbar and Bushire. On account of the quick work at Calcutta, the flight has picked up four days on its schedule, so that the delay at Karachi will not interefere seriously with the plans which have been based on the progress of the flight, and it is quite possible that more time will be gained before England is reached. Lieut. Crumrine, the advance officer for the Sixth Division, cabled to the commanding officer of the flight at Calcutta that indications in the North Atlantic point to an early fall, and that in all probability, ice will begin to form in the harbors on the east coast of Greenland, during late August. This knowledge has given added impetus to the flight and every effort will be made to complete the remaining 1500 miles to Borough (Hulls) England, in record time.

Party Leaders Fail to End Deadlock

vention when it reconvenes at 11 a. m. Monday, he replied:

"We hope so."

Rockwell, the McAdoo campaign manager, declared the representatives of the "minority" candidates would meet together before the general conference reconvened tomorrow and that there might be a meeting of spokesmen for McAdoo and Smith.

Rockwell said the preliminary conference had been "very helpful" and that there had been the utmost good feeling all around. He added that the situation in the convention had been a "very tense one" and that good was bound to come out of the conferences.

Three Conferences Today.

Later it was learned that three separate conferences will be held tomorrow, in addition to the resumption of the general conference in the late afternoon.

The McAdoo and Smith leaders will meet separately and not jointly as had been understood by some, while the representatives of the various favorite sons will meet in a group.

After the conference broke up, the participants gathered in knots about the room for an informal continuation of their discussion. In these gatherings, the old adhesion lines of the convention were observed.

William Jennings Bryan, Rockwell and J. Bruce Kremer of Montana whispered to each other for several minutes in one part of the room, while in another corner George E. Brennan and Franklin D. Roosevelt had their heads together.

That studied precautions had been made to prevent the story of the proceedings being prematurely revealed was indicated by the statement of one of the retiring members of the conference that he could not tell in detail what had taken place.

"Under our agreement, I couldn't even tell you my name if I wanted to," he said.

Caraway and Bryan Clash.

Despite repeated announcements that all was pleasant among the faction leaders during the conference, it was learned that Senator Caraway of Arkansas, representing Senator Robinson of that State, engaged in a sharp tilt with William Jennings Bryan, who attended the meeting in behalf of the interests of his brother, Charles W. Bryan, Governor of Nebraska.

Influential leaders from such states as Illinois and Ohio expressed the view privately and informally that some progress had been made in the meeting.

"The cordial temper of the gathering was significant and encouraging," said one.

"The ground is broken," said another.

Both gave credence to the view, however, that the meeting had not produced so much as a hint as to what specific plans might be offered at the Sunday session, at which the real work of the conferees must be accomplished. "All conferences report progress," was the comment of one of the important figures after the adjournment.

Houston Men to Participate.

It was observed that National Committeeman Mack of New York left the conference several minutes before the doors of the room were opened and the conclusion of the meeting formally announced. He was followed in a very few minutes by Mayor Hague of Jersey City, a Silzer backer.

Those who represented the interests of David F. Houston in the meeting indicated they were prepared to continue their participation in the conference tomorrow afternoon.

Kremer, who has been active in the McAdoo campaign and is vice chairman of the National Committee, left the room in apparent good spirits, exchanging more than conventional pleasantries on the way out with Brennan, generalissimo of the anti-McAdoo forces.

"In five more years you will be the headliner of the American orators," Kremer said, placing both arms on his rival's elbows and talking at close range.

"You underestimate him," a bystander offered. "Give him four years, and he,ll be the candidate."

Unit Rule Discussed.

During the first hour of the conference, talk centered largely around proposals for abrogation of both the unit rule and the two-thirds rule, but the majority opinion was that it would not be quite fair to change the rules of the convention at this stage of the proceedings.

The discussion then swung to the elimination of candidates. Spokesmen for the "minority" candidates took the position that a solution could be reached if the two leading candidates would withdraw. This brought immediate objection from both the McAdoo and Smith groups, who voiced the opinions that if the "minority" candidates would eliminate themselves, the convention could give expression to its real sentiments.

At no time was any offer made by any of the candidates to retire from the field and after a very general discussion of this proposition the matter was dropped.

BRYAN GOES TO SLEEP DURING CONFERENCE ON DEMOCRATIC DEADLOCK

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, hardened campaigner that he is, and as deeply interested in the outcome of the conference as any other man besides the candidates, fell sound asleep during the early conference tonight.

The session was convened in the reception room of Cordell Hull, chairman of the National Democratic Committee, at the Waldorf Hotel, but soon moved two doors down to 307, the reception room of J. Bruce Kremer, National Committeeman from Montana.

There were not enough chairs in Kremer's suite, so each of the conferees was told to carry his own chair from Hull's room. Here came portly Judges, Governors, United States Senators, suave and dignified personages of various political and governmental, or former governmental importance, each lugging a chair. As the strange procession passed, David Ladd Rockwell, campaign manager for McAdoo, whispered to two or three newspaper men, "Look in there, boys, and see what's happened."

After some argument with a Lieutenant of Police and his detail, who were guarding the suite, a look was obtained. There sat the venerable Bryan in a big chair, sound asleep, completely oblivious of the fact that the conference had moved away and left him sleeping, while perhaps those events were transpiring which might fix the name of the next President.

CONVENTION READY FOR ANY EXPEDIENT

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, July 5.—The Democratic national convention tonight, after six days of fruitless balloting on the presidential nomination, passed into the hotel room conference stage. Seventy-seven wearisome ballots, the taking of which was accompanied by displays of rancor without parallel in recent national convention history, had demonstrated the futility of trying to break the Smith-McAdoo deadlock by the ordinary processes of compromise. The convention with a sigh of relief passed over the task, for the time being, to a small group. In other words, it went from the realm of a pure democracy into the realm of representative government.

The transition was reminiscent of the manner in which Harding was picked as the Republican nominee at Chicago in 1920. When Wood and Lowden were in a hopeless deadlock, it will be recalled, Harry Daugherty and others of the inner circle of the party's governors got together in the now famous "2:11 a. m. conference" in a smoke-filled room of the Blackstone Hotel and picked the nominee, who was ratified that same day by the convention.

Between that conference and the one that the Democrats embarked upon tonight there is this essential difference: The men that picked Harding were self-appointed leaders who got together quietly around a table without any public announcement of their intentions; the Democratic conference was authorized by the convention itself as a possible means of curing a desperate situation.

Fully realizing the disaster threatening the Democratic party —the disaster that many said had already come upon it—the convention was ready to resort to almost any expedient that promised relief.

Therefore, when Thomas Taggart of Indiana, just before the adjournment this afternoon, proposed in a resolution that the problem be put up to a select gathering, the convention was with him to the last embittered man and the last embattled woman. For the first time in the 11 days it had been sitting the convention acted unanimously on an important motion.

16 Candidates Represented.

The Taggart motion, which had been framed in a conference of representatives of the rival factions, and which followed a similar suggestion of a peace conference by Charles M. Hay of St. Louis, provided that agents of each of the candidates should meet in conference with the chairman of the National Committee, Cordell Hull of Tennessee, and the chairman of the convention, Senator Walsh of Montana, with a view to finding some way out of the convention's difficulties.

A detail of police and sergeants-at-arms guarded the hallways of the hotel leading to the council chamber. All representatives of the candidates were compelled to identify themselves before being admitted to the conference room.

The conference was got under way without much loss of time. At 8:30 tonight spokesmen of 16 candidates began to assemble in Chairman Hull's rooms in the Waldorf Hotel.

Those present when the conference convened were:

For Gov. Smith — Norman Mack, New York; J. J. Hoey, New York, and George E. Brennan, Chicago; Franklin Roosevelt, his manager, and Thomas Lynch of Minnesota.

For William G. McAdoo—Homer Cummings, Connecticut; J. Brucer Kremer, Montana; Arthur Mullen, Nebraska; David L. Rockwell, Ohio, and William L. O'Connell, Illinois; Thomas L. Chadbourne, New York, and Hugh J. Wallace.

For Senator Underwood—Walter Moore, C. C. Carlin, Washington, D. C., and Gov. Pattangall of Maine.

For Senator Robinson—Senator Caraway of Arkansas.

For former Senator Saulsbury—Senator Bayard of Delaware.

For David F. Houston—L. G. Steven of Illinois.

For Senator Ralston—Thomas Taggart of Indiana.

For Gov. Davis—Fred Robertson of Kansas.

For Gov. Ritchie—Howard Bruce and E. Brooke Lee of Maryland.

For Senator Ferris—William A. Comstock of Detroit.

For Gov. Bryan—William J. Bryan, his brother, and T. S. Allen of Nebraska.

For Gov. Brown — Robert Jackson of New Hampshire.

For Gov. Silzer—James Kerney of Trenton and Frank Hague of Jersey City.

For Senator Glass—H. F. Byrd, Senator Swanson and Gov. Henry C. Stewart of Virginia.

For former Gov. James M. Cox —J. H. Goeke and Charles E. Morris of Ohio.

Mrs. Blair Summoned.

Newton D. Baker did not send a representative to the meeting. It was said by a friend of Baker that he did not desire the nomination and probably would decline it should it be offered. It would be impossible, said this friend, reflecting a general sentiment, for Baker to run on the League of Nations plank which the convention adopted after voting down his own impassioned plea for a straightforward Wilsonian declaration.

While the conferees were assembling, a message was brought to Chairman Hull from Edmond H. Moore of Ohio, a leader in the anti-klan fight, suggesting that Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri, vice chairman of the National Committee, be invited. Soon thereafter it was announced that Mrs. Blair would be called into the conference, as one of the representatives of the National Committee.

Conferees coming from the meeting room at 10:30 said that the session up to that hour had been a general "talk fest." They did not expect that the meeting would do more tonight than lay the ground for a series of discussions tomorrow.

Though several members of the group publicly expressed themselves as hopeful of the [illegible], the conference met in the same atmosphere of pessimism that had marked the proceedings of the convention ever since the acrimonious debate on the klan issue last Saturday night. Few of the leaders blinked the fact that the Democratic party has fallen into a morass from which it will be difficult, if not impossible—to get out. Some outstanding leader with the confidence of all factions might go before the convention and with appealing oratory like that of Baker on the league plank mold it to his will—but there is no such leader.

McAdoo Against Compromise.

By some of the anti-McAdoo spokesmen, the conference was seen as a McAdoo maneuver designed to bring about an agreement on Homer Cummings of Connecticut, one of the McAdoo strategists and former chairman of the National Committee.

"But," said one of the allied leaders, "The Smith people and those associated with them in the fight to stop McAdoo are not going to accept a nominee [illegible] upon the convention by the National Committee."

The attitude of David Ladd Rockwell, the McAdoo manager, just prior to going into the conference did not augur well for the success of the gathering. He was not talking the language of compromise. There was no word from him that McAdoo might be willing to set aside his personal ambition for the sake of the party welfare. Rockwell said that he expected the conference would concern itself with some plan of procedure designed to expedite a nomination, rather than with the selection of a compromise candidate.

There was another report that an effort would be made in the conference to settle upon Senator Joe Robinson as the nominee.

Situation in Convention.

The situation in the convention now boils down to this: Smith and the allies are holding the line against McAdoo. Smith realizes now, and has realized for the last three days, that he cannot be nominated. Smith would withdraw if McAdoo would also get out of the race. But as long as McAdoo is in the race, or as long as he may seek to dictate the nomination, the Smith legions will hold fast. This, at least, was their temper tonight.

There is reason to believe that if Smith had been allowed to go before the convention last night, as he desired, he would have offered his withdrawal, conditional on similar action by his chief rival.

But the stubborn intolerance of the McAdoo zealots increased as it has been by the gallery demonstrations in favor of Smith, blocked the proposed speech by the Governor. The McAdoo people later realized that they had made a grave mistake and sought to repair the damage. But they were too late. The other side got its back up and refused to be placated. So the underlying warfare of the convention —the clash of creeds, of sections, of wets and drys, of fundamental philosophies of life again flared out and increased the difficulties of reconciliation.

Smith Holds Veto Power.

The strategy of the anti-McAdoo forces this afternoon was to give conclusive proof that Smith holds the veto power in the convention.

To this end they set out to run Smith's total up beyond one-third of the 1098 votes in the convention. On the seventy-fifth ballot they succeeded in getting him up to even one-third, or 366 votes, and on the nextt they ran him up to 368. He finished the day with 367, or the exact number necessary to prevent McAdoo's getting two-thirds.

Smith's total was pulled out of the 330's by the accession of votes from Michigan and from Ohio, which, after going solidly for Newton D. Baker for several ballots, divided its 48 among several can-

CONVENTION TANGLE AS VIEWED BY W. J. BRYAN AND W. A. WHITE

Delegates Will Be Calmed by Rest and Sobered by Their Hotel Bills by Monday, Bryan Thinks Commoner Not Certain That Effort at Compromise Will Succeed, but Considers Proposition Worth Trying.

By W. J. BRYAN.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The convention began with a fight against one "invisible government." It is likely to end in a fight against government still more invisible and more powerful. The klan claims to control only about 1,000,000 men, but the invisible government that resides in Wall street extends its sway over a considerable portion of the membership of the two great parties. It has a strangle-hold on the Republican party through the control of its leaders. That party has not had such a reactionary convention as the last since the Progressives appeared in the Republican party.

Wall street not only dominated the convention at Cleveland but did so boastfully and boisterously. It transferred its tents of wickedness from the shore of the lake to the banks of the Hudson and has been dwelling in them for nearly two weeks. Its forces were in the background, but vigilant, during the earlier days of the convention. As we approach the crisis of the convention, they become bolder.

Wall street supervised as far as it could, the selection of delegates and picked out, where it could, those who look up to financiers each morning, and say "Give us this day our daily opinion."

No Constituents to Fear.

While our Congress was the most Progressive in recent years, the Democratic Senators and members, co-operating with the Republican Progressives making it so, this convention is not nearly as Progressive as our Democrats in Congress. The reason is plain. Legislators are elected with a view to legislation and being supported by salaries paid by the Government may be poor men and in sympathy with the masses. Delegates have to pay their own expenses and may be entirely out of sympathy with their constituents. Then, too, legislators are constantly reminded that their constituents may repudiate them if they betray them. Delegates, on the other hand, not only have no constituents to fear, but they may be led by promises of appointment and political favors to disregard the interests of their constituents. Big business is massing its forces to capture the nomination.

The New York World, one of the chief mouthpieces of big business, gave the convention a list of candidates who would be acceptable to Wall Street. A perusal of the list will convince anyone acquainted with the subject that the proposed candidates are not all equally popular with Wall Street. Some of them will be embarrassed by having the World's thumb-mark on them.

These Not Normal Times.

If greed were intelligent it would soon own the world, but greed always overreaches itself and this brings about a reaction. Wall Street ought to be satisfied with one presidential candidate. One should be sufficient at any time. In normal times Wall Street finds it advantageous to nominate both candidates so as to lessen campaign expenses. It picks out the Democratic candidate who can most easily be defeated. But these are not normal times. If La Follette is nominated, he can take the Progressive Republican vote away from the Republican party; he can take the labor vote from any reactionary Democrat; he can also take a large part of the farmer vote from any reactionary Democrat. If Wall Street carries its influence far enough to try to nominate one of its hand-picked candidates to head the Democratic ticket—and succeeds—the reactionary vote in the country will be divided and La Follette will have a chance to become the second, if not the leading candidate in November. Is this convention willing to reduce the Democratic party to a third-rate power? That is what it will do if it allows Wall Street's "invisible government" to dictate the nominees of this convention.

It is time to deal with another proposition which is so absurd that I did not at first consider it worth noticing. But it has been repeated so often and is taken so seriously by some that I venture to mention it for the purpose of presenting the objections to it.

Against McAdoo-Smith Ticket.

The proposition is that Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Smith be nominated for President and Vice President, some preferring McAdoo and Smith and others Smith and McAdoo. How any friend of either candidate could ever think of advocating such a ticket passes understanding. We have spent nearly two weeks at this convention—it is the longest convention ever held—and the fight has been carried on on the supposition that McAdoo and Smith stood for antagonistic policies. Now we are told that the ambitions of the two men can be satisfied and the success of the party assured by ignoring principles and making them our standard bearers. Instead of strengthening the ticket each would weaken the other. The men and women who have been working for McAdoo would repudiate him in contempt if he sought to purchase his election by such a bargain. And Mr. Smith's friends would likewise be indignant if their idol were willing to tie himself to one whom they have so bitterly denounced.

What will the fellows do who shouted "oil?" and what will the folks do who shouted "booze?" Is there any political chemistry by which the two can dissolve each other, when properly combined in a presidential ticket?

What Drys Think of Wets.

The friends of prohibition believe that the wets are honest but mistaken. If the friends of prohibition were willing to enter into such a combination nobody would believe them honest.

The convention acted wisely in adjourning over until Monday. The delegates calmed by rest and sobered by the size of their hotel bill may assemble Monday ready to do something. In the meantime the committee appointed by the convention (consisting of Chairman Hull of the National Committee, Chairman Walsh of the convention and representatives of the various candidates) will confer in the hope of finding a key that will open the deadlock. It is not certain that the committee will succeed, but since everything else has been tried, the proposition is worth trying.

PARTY LEADERS FAIL TO END THE DEADLOCK

didates, with the New York Governor as the chief beneficiary.

After the 366 mark had been reached, there was some intensive digging by the allies to get a couple of additional votes as a safe margin above one-third. They got them—and they said tonight they could have got a much larger number if necessary.

Resolutions Voted Down.

At the end of the day's session, when adjournment was taken until Monday morning to give the conferees a chance, McAdoo's total stood at 513, to which point it had been whittled down on the seven ballots of the day from 528½, while Smith's stood at 367.

The allies were thoroughly satisfied with the demonstration they had made of Smith's strength.

The main business of the day, however, consisted in the voting down of various resolutions offered from the floor for the purpose of expediting the nomination. A motion to take the convention to Kansas City was defeated by a large majority.

These vocal motions providing for changes in the convention proceedure illustrated the restless temper of the delegates and served notice on the managers that further failure on their part to bring the business of the convention to a head might result in the delegates running amuck. It was in such circumstances that Tom Taggart, conceived and put across the idea of the peace conference behind closed doors in Hull's suite.

Conferees Not Limited.

The conference as it was first assembled was not limited to any fixed number of representatives for each candidate. Several candidates had two or three spokesmen in the rooms, and McAdoo had eight.

It was expected that after the conference got itself organized and the real business began, the number of representatives would be cut down to one or two for each candidate.

It was noticed that neither Will Rogers nor E. L. Doheny had agents at the meeting, though both of them mght have claimed the right of representation under the terms of the Taggart resolution.

SMITH, WITH 368, REACHES HIGH MARK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—In the conference today, which decided on submission of the Taggart resolution, providing for a conference of party leaders, were several national committeemen, Taggart, George E. Brennan of Illinois, the Smith leader; David Ladd Rockwell, manager of the McAdoo campaign; Senator Swanson of Virginia representing Senator Glass; Norman Davis of New York, former Under Secretary of State; Breckinridge Long of St. Louis, the McAdoo chief of staff; Norman Mack of New York; J. B. Bruce Kremer of Montana, one of the McAdoo leaders, and Cordell Hull, chairman of the National Committee. Rockwell said the discussion was brought about at the suggestion of Taggart and was entirely harmonious. William J. Bryan declared the idea of the conference was excellent.

Three resolutions proposing in different ways to narrow the contest by elimination of favorite sons, were voted down by the convention.

The Taggart Resolution.

The Taggart resolution for the over-Sunday conference was as follows:

"I move that when this convention adjourns today, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee and the chairman of this convention, be requested to call a conference of the representatives of the candidates whose names are now being balloted for, and who have been formally presented, for the purpose of reaching an understanding so as to hasten the conclusion of this convention."

Former Senator Gilbert Hitchcock of Nebraska made one of the moves to limit the field of candidates, proposing that the convention go on record for the withdrawal of the candidate receiving the lowest vote, beginning with the seventy-fifth ballot, until only five should remain, such arrangement to be effective for today only.

"Is there objection?" asked Chairman Walsh. There was most decidedly. The question of passage of the resolution under suspension of the rules was then out. There was a clamor of "ayes" and a clamor of "noes." Several delegates called for a division and Walsh order a roll call. The resolution failed to receive the necessary two-thirds.

The division was, in general, between the McAdoolians on the one side, in support of the resolution, and the Smith forces and the allies on the other. The vote was: ayes, 496; nays, 589½. Missouri voted in favor of it.

Removal Proposal Beaten.

During the taking of the vote A. H. Ferguson, a delegate from Durant, Okla., got ready a resolution, providing for the removal of the convention to Kansas City. The text of this was as follows:

"It being apparent that no nomination can be made by this convention at this time; and it being essential to most of the delegates that they return to their homes, "Be it therefore

"Resolved, that the convention, after the next roll call, if no nomination is made, adjourn to meet at Convention Hall in Kansas City, Mo., on Monday, July 21, 1924, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of completing the business for which it was called."

The Oklahoma delegates' resolution providing for adjournment to Kansas City was read amid hoots and laughter. A point of order was made against it by former Congressman John J. Fitzgerald of New York. Chairman Walsh ruled that the motion was in order. He said it was within the power of the convention to adjourn from time to time and from place to place just as Congress could do. He cited as a precedent the removal of the Democratic convention of 1860 from Charleston to Baltimore.

Amid great confusion on the floor, Fitzgerald moved to lay the motion on the table—in other words to kill it. On a viva voce vote Walsh declared that the "noes" had it. The question then was on the original motion for passage of the resolution. Unable to decide between the "ayes" and "noes," Walsh directed that the roll be called. Replying to inquiries, he said that a bare majority would suffice for passage of the resolution.

It was soon evident that the resolution was beaten. Even Georgia, the leader of the McAdoo cohorts, voted against it. Missouri voted 7½ ayes and 28½ noes. Kansas cast its solid 26 in the negative. New York asked to be excused from voting. Somebody objected, whereupon the State voted 90 noes. The Oklahoma delegation, in which the resolution had originated, voted solidly against it. For the first time, Texas got a cheer from the Smith rooters in the galleries. It voted 40 noes. The resolution was defeated by a vote of 1007.3 to 82.7

Warring Factions Together.

Then Judge Thomas H. Ball of Texas introduced a resolution to the following effect: That on each succeeding ballot the lowest candidate should be dropped till only the two leaders remained; that not exceeding five roll calls should then be taken if neither candidate got a two-thirds majority, the unit rule should be disregarded and the candidate receiving a plain majority be declared the nominee. Judge Ball moved that the rules be suspended for these purposes and the convention ballot with no intervening business till the selection of a candidate.

Now this resolution appealed to neither side in the McAdoo and anti-McAdoo row. The antis did not want the low candidates dropped; the McAdoolians feared the effect of suspension of the unit rule. For once the warring factions in the main were together. Dan Daley of Massachusetts, a Smith delegate, made the point that the resolution was not in order because it would deprive delegates of their right to vote as they pleased. Walsh overruled the point of order.

Kremer of Montana, a McAdoo lieutenant, asserted the convention had no power to abrogate a unit rule that had been imposed on a delegation by State instructions. Walsh overruled Kremer's point of order also.

Bryan, who had been about the floor all morning or attending conferences off stage, planted himself in front of Walsh and broke into the discussion two or three times. Walsh declared that the motion was not debatable. The question was put, and the ayes made a weak showing. There was no doubt about the noes had it and Walsh so ruled.

Nothing happened on the first ballot of the day (the seventy-first) to get a chirp out of the weary delegates. Not half of them were in their places when the roll call began. The galleries were almost empty.

The session livened up a bit as more delegates straggled in, but there were still many empty seats during the taking of the seventy-second ballot. Some delegates had deserted New York for the week-end, in the belief that nothing of any moment could possibly happen before Monday.

LA FOLLETTE AND HIS PLATFORM ARE INDORSED BY THE PROGRESSIVES

in connection with woman suffrage. Quoting the Republican platform declaration that, that party had espoused the cause of women from the beginning," she said "from the beginning of what—the beginning of platform. That marks the beginning of their support so far as we in the field were aware of it."

She also paid her respects to Gov. Smith and McAdoo on the suffrage question, declaring that neither of them ever said or did anything for it until it became a fact "McAdoo," she exclaimed bitterly. "As between him and Fall, I prefer Fall. When he was caught he had the decency to go home and keep quiet, while McAdoo comes to claim the highest honor in the gift of the nation."

"What about John W. Davis?" called a voice from the delegates' section.

"I think he's the worst of the whole lot," was the quick reply. "Sure he is," the voice agreed.

Negro Speaker Is Cheered.

Some lowering faces and murmurs among the delegates were noticeable when Chairman Johnston introduced William Pickett, Secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, a young negro giant with a ringing voice. His flashing smile and quick humor, however, soon had the crowd laughing and cheering with him. He declared that a profound political stirring existed among the voters of his race today, and that they were ready to throw off their old alliances.

"When a Republican comes along today and tells an intelligent negro to vote for the party of Lincoln," he said, "the negro regards it as an insult to his intelligence, because he suspects that the Republican thinks he doesn't know Lincoln is dead." There were no negro delegates in the convention.

Numerous meetings to discuss practical plans for getting the La Follette ticket on the ballot in all the states, and for carrying on the campaign, were held in hotel rooms following adjournment. An aspect of the gathering which could not escape the observer was the apparent confidence of many of the leaders and delegates that La Follette has a chance of election. Many declared that while prior to old party conventions they had anticipated only that the Wisconsin Senator could carry seven states in the Northwest and thus throw the election into Congress, they now believed the popular reaction to the two party conventions was such as to give La Follette an even chance. They were talking of carrying all the states west of the Mississippi, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois in addition.

Decidedly Mixed Gathering.

This was a mixed gathering. W. T. Raleigh, millionaire Illinois manufacturer, was there. Morris Hillquit, New York East Side Socialist leader, was there. Dr. John R. Commons, president of the University of Wisconsin, took part. Sidney Hillman, shrewd leader of the great Garment Workers' Union, had a leading role. J. A. H. Hopkins, head of the Committee of Forty-eight, a perfect type of the wealthy Eastern liberal, was a delegate. Several lawyers, college instructors, physicians and editors mingled with the horny-handed engineers, firemen and machinists, the olive-skinned garment workers, and the red-neck farmers of the Northwest.

On the whole, it behaved better than either of the party conventions. Few hisses were heard during the two days, and the speakers received a respectful attention which has been almost entirely lacking from the other gatherings. In general the delegates looked like working men.

The women delegates suggested school mistresses. By no stretch of imagination could it be called "red." The old songs were sung, "America," "Onward Christian Soldiers," "The Star-Spangled Banner." The old heroes were apostrophized—Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson. The gathering opened with the reading of the Declaration of Independence and Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

For the sake of clear understanding, these things should be read. The delegates who assembled here were, for the most part, typically respectable middle-class people, the bulk consisting of the better paid class of skilled workers. They followed after no new gods. They have not consciously turned against the principles of the forefathers. They believe the spirits of Washington and Lincoln are on their side. They have no desire to overturn, or even change the form of the Government. They believe, on the other hand, that the substance, if not the form, has been subtly changed by powerful forces implied in the term "Wall street." The crusade upon which they have now embarked they regard as a crusade, in the language of their leader, "to bring the Government back to the people."

FIVE VETERAN MINISTERS TO BE ENTERTAINED AT MEETING

Clergymen Who Have Preached for 50 Years Will be Honor Guests at Evangelical Session.

Five ministers who have preached for 50 years or more will guests of honor at a meeting of 50 Evangelical ministers at Waterloo, Ill., Tuesday. The veteran clergymen are Rev. Henry Buchmueller of Red Bud, who has seen 60 years' service, and Rev. John Mollau, Waterloo; Rev. Jacob Irion, St. Louis; Rev. J. C. Kramer, Clayton, and Rev. F. S. Stoerker, St. Charles, who have preached for 50 years.

The meeting is the annual celebration of St. Louis Circle of the Evangelical Church. The ministers attending are mostly from St. Louis and Madison and St. Clair counties, Illinois.

ONLY IN NEW YORK COULD DEADLOCK HAVE HAPPENED, WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE SAYS

Three Great Mistakes of Convention, Kansan Writes, Are Money, Mob and McAdoo; La Follette Residuary Legatee.

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, Noted Liberal Editor and Publicist of Kansas.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Off-stage one hears through doors opening into the gilded and gaudy hotel rooms where sits the super-steering committee of the Democratic party, the muffled blows of their mauls upon the great ice-jam which is choking the progress of the campaign. This super-committee contains less than a score of men. In their hands is more power than has rested in the hands of a similar group for years.

William Allen White.

They are representatives of the various candidates from the Democratic convention who probably would make as wise a group of Democrats as could be assembled today. For there are no elder statemen, no great leaders of the Democracy. In other times there were Tilden, Thurman, Bayard, Gorman and Hill. In more recent times came Cleveland and Whitney and Vilas and the group that Cleveland raised to power in the 80's and 90's.

Only Bryan Is Left.

Since those days only Bryan survives as a leader. He is inadequate. He has power, great power. The South of the newer day looks to him because they feel that Underwood, Glass, Davis and their other Southern leaders are more in sympathy with the needs of an industrial civilization than they are to the benefits of a rural population. Despite its large industrial development, the South, like the West, is agricultural.

Cotton may not be king, in the South today, but it is still Chairman of the Executive Committee. So the rural South has developed no leaders except Bryan transplanted from Nebraska. The West has developed no leaders because the Democracy in the West, save in a few states and at odd times, is a minority party. The urban civilization of the East and New England has developed bosses, but the bosses have not been wise enough to prevent the great ice-jam that has threatened to destroy the party.

Three Great Mistakes.

Hence this steering committee is appointed more or less by lot. At it sits trying to blow out a channel through which the party may proceed to a nomination, it is liable to make mistakes; but not the tremendous mistakes that have come into this situation accumulated from the past four years of Democratic incompetency.

The three great mistakes that have deadlocked this convention arise from money, the mob and McAdoo. The Democratic party was a quarter of a million dollars in debt. It came to New York with the convention because New York had the money to pay the debt. But New York also contributed the mob.

It was the mob that injected the religious issue into the convention. If the convention had met in Cincinnati, St. Louis, St. Paul or Denver, the mob would not have dared to demand the fight upon the Ku Klux Klan.

Klan Fight Caused Jam.

The fight upon the Ku Klux froze into a solid mass the forces of McAdoo and produced the ice-jam. It also solidified the anti-McAdoo forces around Smith, did this mob from the great city.

And we have a spectacle for the past ten days of the two fundamental philosophies of America, Puritanism and Catholicism, grinding upon one another, producing heat but not light; forces which in the natural process of civilization ameliorate and gradually mix and in the end make something new and fine and beautiful of our nation. It will be years before these forces will be sufficiently unconcealed to combine into a useful amalgamate.

While the committee is hammering upon the ice jam let us consider for a moment some of the outward and physical symbols under which the jam has piled up. Behold Exhibit A which we will call by the way of mixing a metaphor, the Mother of deadlock! Mrs. Nellie Hull Root, of Long Beach, Cal., has been sitting for days in the box above Section C of the Press Box, the box known as Sallie McAdoo's box, and she has been waving a brown and white flag with a California bear on it and an inscription "The California Republic."

Plain, Kindly Face.

A motherly woman in her late fifties is Mrs. Nellie Hull Root, obviously Mid-Western, either by birth or extraction, with gray patches and streaks in her rather thin hair, tightly knotted at the back of her head. Wifehood, motherhood, maturity and the vanishing charms that once gave whatever lure she had to her face have left a plain and kindly countenance, slightly frost-bitten, but still in their homeliness, gentle and sweet. She has the trademark of the W. C. T. U. all over her.

Beside her, at various times, other women have sat with similar flags. It was her duty to keep the flags waving whenever McAdoo's name was mentioned in a ballot. Serenely, gently, with no emotion she kept her flag waving like the visible expression of the almost audible purring of some great, subconscious, comfortable cat, smiling through her aura.

Without Enthusiasm.

All day she sat there, unruffled, without special enthusiasm while a great faith flowed through her in the goodness of McAdoo and the inflexible purpose of God to nominate him. When the band played she waved the flag in chaste accompaniment to the jazzy times, which left her innocent of their implications. She was the Sunday School Superintendent, beating time to the Gospel hymns. She and her kind sitting in the convention whether personally or as the mothers of the women who sit there, reaching out and enveloping all the women delegates, compose perhaps a fifth of the convention. To them the cause of McAdoo represents all that the urbanites jeer at when they hoot at mother, home and heaven.

La Follette to Be the Heir.

The men might have compromised or combined, and so eliminated McAdoo long ago; but this gentle, faithful, plain woman knows nothing of compromises and combinations. She knows only that she's the Lord's anointed in a holy cause, and so she sits and waves her banner, nudges the napping lady next to her to see that the other flags are waving and so waits for her eyes to see the glory of the coming of the Lord. In the end when the committee working on the ice-jam gets everything else out of the way, they will have to reckon with this shy, modest, but ruthless mother of the deadlock, and her kind.

In the meantime every minute from now on that the deadlock holds will make a thousand votes for La Follette. La Follette, not Coolidge, will be the residuary legatee of the dead donkey of Democracy unless the supersteering committee shoots some superstimulant into his old gray hide.

LA FOLLETTE'S ANNOUNCEMENT OF PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDACY

One Paramount Issue Is to Break Power of Private Monopoly System, the Senator Declares

Groups Through Control of Markets and Prices Have Doubled and Trebled Cost of Sustaining Life, He Says.

Stands for Honest Realignment In Politics; Assails Democratic And Republican Conventions

Asserts That if People in November Repudiate Both Old Parties, Then a New Era Will Begin.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., July 5.—Senator Robert M. La Follette's announcement that he was an independent candidate for the presidency came in response to appeals from two distinct sources. On Thursday, the "La Follette-for-President" committee, with headquarters at Chicago, presented to the Senator, at his home in Washington, a petition bearing 200,000 names asking him to become a candidate. On the same day he received a telegram from the Conference for Progressive Political Action, in convention at Cleveland, a telegram citing the alleged failure of both old parties to meet progressive demands, and asking him to enter the race.

The conference is an organization in which the bulk of strength consists of the railroad brotherhoods, the machinists and garment workers' national unions, the Farmer-Labor party of Minnesota, the Committee of Forty-eight and other labor and political organizations.

On the following day Robert M. La Follette Jr., appeared before the Cleveland convention and read a message from his father, in which the Senator announced his candidacy and set forth the issues upon which he proposes to make his campaign. The message was delivered simultaneously with the "La Follette-for-President Committee at Chicago.

A "Conservative" Utterance.

Those familiar with Senator La Follette's public utterances consider this one of the most conservative he ever made. It proposes little that can be regarded as radical. He directs his fire chiefly upon monopolistic control of business, industry and finance, asserting that the same forces which control business also control the Government. His slogan is, for him, an old one—"Restore the Government to the people."

He proposes to do this, it appears, mainly through enforcing the existing statute against monopoly, the Sherman antitrust act.

Of course, the message is not a platform. His platform will be that recently presented to the Republican convention at Cleveland as a minority report by the Wisconsin delegation. It goes into considerably more detail. Nevertheless the message undoubtedly sounds the note upon which the La Follette campaign will be founded. It follows:

In the most momentous crisis which has confronted the nation in our time you have called upon me to accept the leadership in a national political campaign to wrest the American Government from the predatory interests which now control it and to restore it to the people.

I realize this summons comes to me in no sense as a mere personal tribute. The American people are thoroughly awake to the real issue with which they must deal, and recognize the failure of the two dominant parties to meet them. They know that the principles involved in the campaign are greater than any individual or any political party. It is only in so far as my public record squares with those principles and meets those issues that I can be of any substantial service in the progressive movement.

I conceive it to be the first duty of every political party and of every candidate to state plainly and specifically to the American people the terms upon which their suffrage is invited. The Republican and Democratic parties have failed in this obligation. The Progressives must deal honestly and openly with the people.

After long experience in public life and painstaking consideration of the present state of public affairs, I am convinced that the time has come for a militant political movement, independent of the two old party organizations and respondent to the needs and sentiments of the common people.

Must Consolidate Gains.

I should be unwilling to participate in any political campaign at this time which would imperil the steady advance of the progressive movement or diminish the number of true progressives, nominally elected as Republicans and Democrats who are now serving the public in the House, the Senate and in many of the State governments. The ground already won must not be abandoned. We must consolidate our present gains and press forward without compromise or surrender.

The necessity for an independent progressive movement lies in the failure of the two old parties to purge themselves of the influences which have caused their administrations repeatedly to betray the American people.

The rank and file of the membership of both old parties is progressive. But through a vicious and undemocratic convention system and under the evil influences which have been permitted to thrive at Washington, both party organizations have fallen under the domination and control of corrupt wealth, devoting the powers of government exclusively to selfish special interests.

An analysis of the platforms adopted by the two old parties will show that the real issues have been ignored and that the candidate of either party, if elected, will go into office with no specific pledges whatsoever binding him to the people, while he will be under the most immediate necessity and obligation of serving the party bosses and predatory interests to whom he owes his nomination and upon whom he must rely for election.

Raps Both Conventions.

The Republican convention at Cleveland scornfully rejected the only progressive platform offered for adoption and nominated a candidate who is the frank defender of the present system of Government in the interests of organized wealth.

The Democratic convention was forced, out of consideration of political expediency, and through the efforts of sincere progressives within the party, to take less openly reactionary ground, but the platform adopted at New York does not meet the demands of the progressive millions of the nation. The fact that the Resolutions Committee at that convention, controlled by proven reactionaries and trusted agents of organized wealth, accepted the platform declarations on demostic issues without a dissenting vote on any plank is sufficient testimony to the character of the Democratic platform as an evasive and dishonest document.

But even if both Republican and Democratic conventions had adopted thorough-going progressive platforms, the American people have learned that neither party can be trusted to keep its promises. Both parties within the last quarter of a century have regarded their platforms, as they regard them today, not as a contract with the people and a program of action, but as devices to catch votes and to gain political office, with all its opportunities for personal aggrandizement and private profit for those who are willing to betray a public trust.

To break the combined power of the private monopoly system over the political and economic life of the American people is the one paramount issue of the 1924 campaign.

If the Progressives will but unite with a single purpose to meet this issue fearlessly and squarely, they may rely with entire confidence upon the support of the plain people who are the victims of the present system and who have the support and the power, through the ballot, to control their own Government.

Groups Control Government.

The people have already given proof by their election of progressives to the Congress and to State offices that they recognize the real issue that confronts them and understand its magnitude.

They know that their Government at Washington is now, and has been for a quarter of a century, in the hands of small but powerful groups acting together and controlling it in their own interests.

Each group dictates production and prices in its own field—in iron, coal, oil, steel, lumber, sugar, meats clothing—in short, in mining, manufacturing, transportation and all important business enterprises. Through grain exchanges, elevator combinations and packing monopolies the markets are manipulated and prices fixed on all products of the farm.

Within the last 25 years it has thus come about that these powerful groups, through the control of markets and prices, have doubled and trebled the cost of sustaining human life—of housing, warming, clothing and feeding the American people.

The American people are honest, intelligent, patriotic, industrious and frugal. And yet in a land of untold wealth, dedicated to the principle of equal opportunity for all, special privileges to none, life has become a desperate struggle for the average man and woman. The millions who work on the farms, in the mines, in transportation, in the factories and shops and stores, with all their industry and saving find themselves poorer at the end of the year than at the beginning.

The mighty power which has enabled a few to amass enormous wealth at the expense of the many, now so completely controls the Federal Government that timid and reactionary men in public life who cling to the old parties dare not brook its opposition.

The underlying reason, indeed, why both parties have failed to take the people's side of the present crisis is that neither party can openly attack the real evils which are undermining representative government without convicting themselves of treachery to the voters during their most recent tenures of office.

Prolonged Violation of Law.

The private monopoly system has grown up only through long-continued violation of the law of the land and could not have attained its present proportions had either the Democratic or Republican parties faithfully and honestly enforced the law.

John Sherman, the clearest visioned Republican statesman of his time, saw the danger of political liberty and economic freedom in this country a generation ago and sought to fortify the Government to meet and destroy it.

Of the private monopoly system which had its beginnings in the latter part of the last century, he said, "It is a kingly prerogative inconsistent with our form of government. If anything is wrong, this is wrong. If we will not endure a king as a political power, we should not endure a king over the production, transportation, and sale of any of the necessities of life. If we would not submit to an emperor we should not submit to an autocrat of trade with power to prevent competition and to fix the price of any commodity. The remedy should be swift and sure."

Growth of Monopoly.

The Sherman antitrust act of 1890, enacted by a Republican Congress, placed in the hands of the executive department of this Government the most effective weapon that ingenuity of man could devise against the power of monopoly, while it was yet in its infancy.

But between 1898 and 1908, monopoly was permitted to breed unchecked, to crush out individual enterprise through illegal combination, and to control basic industries until by Jan. 1, 1908, the capitalization of the trusts had been increased from $3,784,000,000 in 1908 to more than $31,672,000,000.

In the election of 1908 the American people were given to understand that the incoming Republican administration would revise the prohibitive tariff duties, from which the monopolies derived much of their power. But the inquitous Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, with its increases in the taxes upon the American consumer, was written in 1909 in admitted violation of the solemn pledges of the Republican party.

The people of the United States voted in 1912 that the power of monopoly must be destroyed and President Wilson, then the candidate of the Democratic party, gave his pledge that the will of the people should be faithfully executed. The dominant issue upon which the Democratic party sought the suffrage of the people was forcibly expressed by Mr. Wilson in 1912 when he said:

"The trusts are our masters now. We have come to be one of the worst-ruled, one of the most completely controlled and dominated governments in the civilized word—no longer a Government by conviction and the vote of the majority, but a Government by the opinion and duress of small groups of dominant men. The Government of the United States in recent years has not been administered by the common people of the United States. The Government of the United States at present is a foster child of the special interests. It is not allowed to have a will of its own. Our Government has been for the past few years under the control of the heads of great allied corporations with special interests."

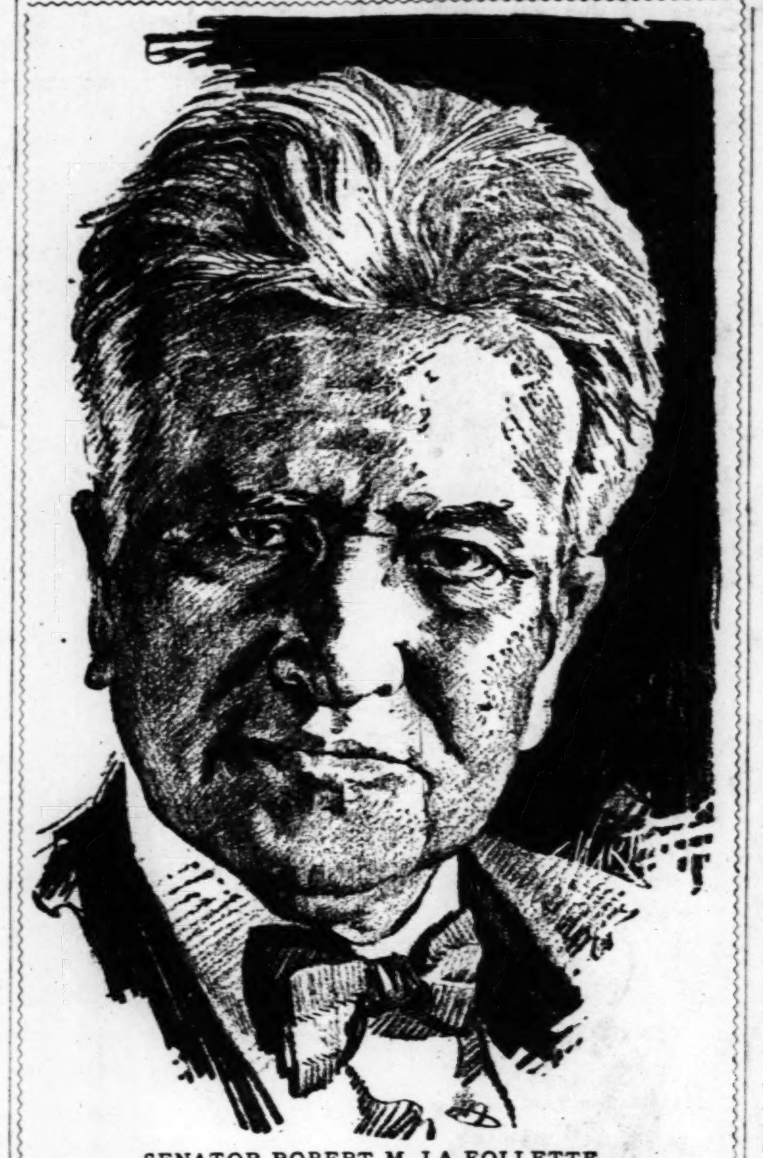
These statements from the Democratic candidate were accepted as true by the American people in the campaign of 1912, coupled with the platform pledge of the Democratic party in that year. That specific pledge reads as follows:

"A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We, therefore, favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal as well as the civil law against trust officials, and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States."

No Effort to Enforce Law.

From 1912 until the present time no honest or continuous effort has been made by a single administration, either Republican or Democratic, to protect the American people from the exactions of private monopoly by enforcement of the criminal sections of the antitrust laws. These sections should and must be enforced if the power of corrupt business is to be broken.

While the Democratic party went into office pledged to destroy monopoly by civil and criminal prosecutions, it withdrew or compromised even the pending civil prosecutions against the trusts during the war and left the American people at the mercy of the greatest profiteers in all history. In the last years of the Democratic administration under the notorious regime of Attorney-General Palmer, monopoly was recognized as beyond the reach of the law, while labor unions, farmers' organizations and individual citizens daring to assert their constitutional rights against this tyrannical power were singled out for attack and destruction.



SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE.

In 1920 the people expressed their resentment at their betrayal at the hands of the Democratic party by defeating it with the greatest popular majority ever cast against a political party in the history of this country.

Coorruption of Cabinet Member.

But since March 4, 1921, the American people have learned that monopoly has become as bold and ruthless in time of peace as in time of war. The oil monopoly, after having been permitted under a Democratic administration to exact from the people enormous and unconscionable profits, reached out for the remaining naval oil reserves of the Government. It had already succeeded in obtaining from a Republican Congress and a Democratic President overlarge tracts of oil and mineral lands outside the naval oil reserves, under the guise of a leasing bill. It now resorted to the outright corruption of a member of the President's Cabinet to attain its ends. It obtained the services of former members of the Cabinet of the preceding Democratic administration to aid it in extending its dominion over the natural resources of the earth.

The American people will not be convinced of the sincerity or of the capacity of the Democratic party to govern by its mere condemnation of Republican corruption. Corruption is the inevitable result of the present system of monopoly control over government.

The American people now understand that so long as they permit their Government to remain in the hands of the monopoly power they will be helpless to control their destinies either in peace or in war.

Peace, liberty and economic freedom are the great principles to which the American people are devoted. Progressives must champion these principles until they are firmly re-established in the life of this country.

The organized banking interests which own the railroads, control credit and dominate the industrial life of the national will further oppress labor, rob the consumer, and by extortionate railroad rates and dictation of the terms of credit, reduce agriculture to the level of European peasantry if longer permitted to control this Government.

Source of Imperialism.

The ill-gotten surplus capital acquired by exploiting the resources and the people of our country begets the imperialism which hunts down and exploits the natural resources and the people of foreign countries, erects huge armaments for the protection of its investments, breeds international strife in the markets of the world, and inevitably leads to war.

France, Germany, Great Britain and her self-governing peoples appear to have recognized the principle that the first step toward world peace is the control of Government of each nation by the people, and the dedication of Government to the service of the masses. Had England, France and Germany been under liberal governments in 1914, there would have been no world war.

The surest reliance against war is democracy.

The American people must likewise control their own Government and restrain their own war makers before we can hope for world stability and comity with the Governments which have recently been swept into power by the peace-loving peoples of other nations.

It is useless to hope to control the expenditures for our military establishment or to rely upon the making of treaties for disarmament, or to take any action for the preservation of peace and good will among nations, under an American President and Congress elected and controlled by an organized monopoly power which knows no law but might and greed, and enjoys its greatest profits in time of war.

Makeshift Remedies Futile.

It is equally futile to propose makeshift remedies for the temporary relief of the terrible distress which now exists among American farmers. These deplorable conditions are the direct result of the policies of the two old parties, which plunged prosperous agriculture into a ruinous panic. In all sections of our country the farmer has felt the disastrous effects of the extortionate railroad rates imposed by a Republican Congress and a Democratic President in the Esch-Cummins law, the deflation policy of the Federal Reserve Board which the responsible leaders of both parties instituted and have since defended, and the consistent policy of administration of both parties in leaving monopoly a free hand to set the price on everything the farmer buys and everything he consumes, including farm machinery and implements, fertilizers and household necessities.

The hypocricy of the old parties was never more forcibly illustrated than by a comparison of their platform declarations with the actual records of their representatives in the session of Congress just closed. Professing deep concern for the farmer, reactionary Republicans and Democrats failed to produce a single constructive measure for the relief of agriculture, rejected the only bills which were introduced for this purpose and by their combined votes against the votes of the progressives forced Congress to adjourn for the party conventions, defeating a resolution providing that Congress should return after a month's recess to give immediate consideration to farm relief legislation.

The present condition of agriculture is the natural result of Democratic and Republican policies which have denied the farmer the equality to which he is fairly entitled, while the progressives have demanded repeal of the Esch-Cummins transportation act, reduction of freight rates to substantially their prewar levels, reformation of the Federal Reserve Board, and the removal of artificial burdens which have been placed upon the farmer by administrations serving monopoly, to the ruin of agriculture.

Road to Prosperity for All.

The farmer does not expect that he be given special advantages. He realizes that so long as the Government permits monopoly to crush out his co-operatives by cut-throat competition, control the prices of his products at will and curtail his credit, there can be no sound, permanent prosperity for agriculture. He understands that he must make common cause with the wage earner, who is likewise at the mercy of monopoly, and he must make common cause with the consuming public which pays monopoly its extortionate profits, but this is the road to prosperity, for all the people, unattainable by panaceas which leave monopoly entrenched in its present tyrannical power over credit, industry and the Government itself.

I have long held the opinion that in the co-operative principle, as applied to both marketing and credit, lies the best hope for dealing effectively with monopoly. But unless the entrenched powers which now control the economic life of this nation are restrained by the vigorous action of Congress and the executive, the attempts of the people to free themselves through co-operation will fail. In their uneven struggle against monopoly, the people must insist that the Government be their ally rather than, as at present, the active agent of the enemy.

Co-operative Marketing System.

In order permanently to relieve the farmer and to prevent the recurrence of agricultural distress, as well as to benefit the consumer through eliminating the unjust toll of middlemen and speculators in food products, it is the duty of the Government to aid the farmer in the organization and development of a national co-operative marketing system, under the control of the farmers themselves, free from interference by the Government or its agencies. The Government must recognize that agriculture is entitled to be placed upon an equal footing with other industries of the nation.

The progressive movement is the only political medium in our country today which can provide Government in the interests of all classes of the people. We are unalterably opposed to any class Government, whether it be the existing dictatorship of plutocracy or the dictatorship of the proletariat. Both are essentially undemocratic and un-American. Both are destructive of private initiative and individual liberty.

Supreme Issue.

With the changings of a 30-year test, I have been more and more impressed with the deep underlying singleness of the issue.

The supreme issue is not railroad control. It is not the tariff, banking or taxation. These and other questions are but manifestations of one great struggle.

The supreme issue, involving others, is the encroachment of the powerful few upon the rights of many. This great power has come between the people and their Government. We must, with statesmanship and constructive legislation, meet these problems, or we shall pass them on, with all the possibilities of violent conflict and chaos, to our children.

Democracy cannot live side by side in any country with the present system of control of Government by private monopoly. We must choose, on the one hand, between representative Government with its guarantee of peace, liberty and economic freedom and prosperity for all the people, and, on the other, war, tyranny and the impoverishment of the many for the enrichment of the favored few.

Upon this issue I am ready to enlist with you to wage unceasing warfare until the American people have been restored to the full enjoyment of their political and economic rights.

I am under no illusions as to the magnitude of the task we have marked out for ourselves. This campaign calls for sacrifice, courage and unsparing activity from every man and woman engaged on the people's side. But so long as the progressives keep faith with the people and remain steadfastly true to the principles which are at stake, we can face the vast financial resources and the specious arguments of our opponents with full confidence of success.

We start this campaign with the tremendous advantage of an old American tradition, deeply fixed in the hearts of the people, derived from the Declaration of Independence, that the great masses of men and women are entitled to an equal chance and that they possess the right to demand equality at the hands of the Government under which they live.

Every great political advance in America has come from the efforts of the common people of this country. It was upon them and not upon the privileged classes of society that Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln relied.

Points to Wisconsin.

We shall be falsely accused of advocating radical and destructive policies even while we alone are fighting for the old principles upon which this Government achieved its greatness. Happily, we can point to great progressive commonwealths like Wisconsin, where prosperity has been enjoyed by business, agriculture and labor alike, where honest taxation and efficient government has been substituted for graft and corruption, while the reactionies of both Republican and Democratic parties must share responsibility for the disastrous economic policies and shameful corruption which have marked the last five years of administration of the Federal Government.

Popular government cannot long endure in this country without an agresively Progressive party.

I stand for an honest realignment in American politics, confident that the people in November will take such action as will insure the creation of a new party in which all progressives may unite.

I would not, however, accept nomination or an election to the presidency if doing so meant for Progressive Senators and Representatives and progressive state governments, the defeat which would inevitably result from the placing of complete third party tickets in the field at the present time.

Birth of Political Parties.

Permanent political parties have been born in this country after and not before national campaigns, and they have come from the people, not from the proclamations of individual leaders.

The organization of a national party among 110,000,000 people scattered over 48 states is a task of such magnitude as to request of labor and the expenditures of large amounts of money. We are confronted with the practical difficulty that there is not sufficient time before the election in November for the efficient organization of such a party.

If the hour is at hand for the birth of a new political party the American people next November will register their will and their united purpose by a vote of such magnitude that a new political party will be inevitable. If the people in this campaign repudiate the presidential candidates of the Republican and Democratic parties—as in the providence of God I trust and believe they will—we shall then witness the birth of a new party and the beginning of a new era in the life of the American people.

I shall submit my name as an independent progressive candidate for President, together with the names of duly qualified candidates for electors for filing on the ballots in every State in the Union. My appeal will be addressed to every class of the people and to every section of the country.

Stands on His Record.

I am a candidate upon the basis of my public record, as a member of the House of Representatives, as Governor of Wisconsin and as a member of the United States Senate. I shall stand upon that record exactly as it is written and shall give my support only to such progressive principles and policies as are in harmony with it.

With a declaration of the program I intend to carry into effect, if elected to the presidency by the votes of the people, I have adopted in substance, the platform submitted in a recent primary and indorsed by an overwhelming majority of the people of Wisconsin.

In the course of the campaign, I shall give frank expressions to my views on every political issue of recognized importance. The people have a right to know the position of every candidate upon questions which are of vital moment to them. I have never avoided or evaded issues. I shall not do so now.

But I have sought at this time to define and to set apart from all other questions what I regard as the dominant issues at this hour, on the settlement of which depends the future freedom, prosperity and happiness of the American people.

SCHOLLMEYER IS AGAIN ARRESTED FOR AUTO THEFT

Former Saloonkeeper Found Fastening License Plate on Machine Later Identified as Stolen.

William A. Schollmeyer, former Grand boulevard saloon keeper, who was arrested several times in April for automobile thefts and receiving stolen household loot—as the result of information anonymously furnished by a woman—again was arrested at 3 a. m. yesterday at Waterman and Rosedale avenues.

Two detectives from the Page Boulevard Station, passing at that hour in a police automobile, say they observed Schollmeyer fastening on a license plate to a Hudson speedster automobile, which had been stolen a few hours before from in front of the residence of Alexander Handlan of 4323 McPherson avenue, its owner. The license plate has just been removed from a Ford car parked in the rear.

Along with Schollmeyer, the detectives arrested John Sonnen, 23, who now operates Schollmeyer's old saloon at 1046 North Grand, and James Yeager, 21, who said he lived in a hotel at Eighteenth and Olive streets. They were sitting in the front seat of the stolen car, later identified as Handlan's. Page Boulevard police say Schollmeyer admitted the theft of the car, relating that he left it near his former saloon until it was closed at 1 a. m., later being rejoined by the other two men.

Schollmeyer, a former clerk of the Board of Education, was indicted April 17, twice for burglary in the second degree and larceny resulting from the recovery of goods stolen from an Olive street apparel shop and a rug store, and once for grand larceny, growing out of his arrest as he was about to drive away in a stolen automobile. The goods were recovered in the attic of his home at 3625 Finney avenue, and in a flat at 4458A Page boulevard, where receipts were found showing Schollmeyer had paid bills for the tenant, Mrs. Pearl Johynson, 27 years old.

PLATFORM ON WHICH LA FOLLETTE WILL MAKE RACE FOR PRESIDENCY

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., July 5.—The text of the platform adopted by the Conference for Progressive Political Action, follows:

"For one hundred and forty-eight years the American people have been seeking to establish a government for the service of all and to prevent the establishment of a government for the mastery of the few. Free men of every generation must combat renewed efforts of organized force and greed to destroy liberty. Every generation must wage a new war for freedom against new forces that seek through new devices to enslave mankind.

"Under our representative democracy the people protect their liberties through their public agents.

"The test of public officials and public policies alike must be: Will they serve, or will they exploit, the common need?

"The reactionary continues to put his faith in mastery for the solution of all problems. He seeks to have what he calls the 'strong men and best minds' rule and impose their decisions upon the masses of their weaker brethren.

"The Progressive, on the contrary, contends for less autocracy and more democracy in government and for less power of privilege and greater obligatons of service.

"Under the principle of ruthless individualism and competition, that government is deemed best which offers to the few the greatest chance of individual gain.

"Under the progressive principle of co-operation, that government is deemed best which offers to the many the highest level of average happiness and well being.

"It is our faith that we all go up or down together—that class gains are temporary delusions and that eternal laws of compensation make every man his brother's keeper.

Program of Public Service.

"In that faith we present our program of public service:

"(1)—The use of the power of the Federal Government to crush private monopoly, not to foster it.

"(2)—Unqualified enforcement of the constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech, press and assemblage.

"(3)—Public ownership of the nation's water power and creation of a public super-power system. Strict public control and permanent conservation of all natural resources, including coal, iron and other ores, oil and timber lands, in the interest of the people. Promotion of public works in times of business depression.

Stand on Taxation.

"(4)—Retention of surtaxes on swollen incomes, restoration of the tax on excess profits, taxation of stock dividends, profits undistributed to evade taxes, rapidly progressive taxes on large estates and inheritances, and repeal of excessive tariff duties, especially on trust-controlled necessities of life and of nuisance taxes on consumption, to relieve the people of the present unjust burden of taxation and compel those who profited by the war to pay their share of the war's costs, and to provide the funds for adjusted compensation solemnly pledged to the veterans of the World War.

"(5)—Reconstruction of the Federal farm loan systems to provide for direct public control of the nation's money and credit to make it available on fair terms to all, and national and state legislation to permit and promote co-operative banking.

"(6)—Adequate laws to guarantee to farmers and industrial workers the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing for the maintenance or improvement of their standards of life.

Control of Prices Favored.

"(7)—Creation of a government marketing corporation to provide a direct route between farm producer and city consumer and to assure farmers fair prices for their products, and protect consumers from the profiteers in foodstuffs and other necessaries of life. Legislation to control the meat-packing industry.

"(8)—Protection and aid of co-operative enterprises by national and State legislation.

"(9)—Common international action to effect the economic recovery of the world from the effects of the World War.

"(10)—Repeal of the Cummins-Esch law. Public ownership of railroads, with Democratic operation, with definite safeguards against bureaucratic control.

Against Labor Injunctions.

"(11)—Abolition of the tyranny and usurpation of the courts, including the practice of nullifying legislation in conflict with the political, social or economic theories of the Judges. Abolition of injunctions in labor disputes and of the power to punish for contempt without trial by jury. Election of all Federal Judges without party designation for limited terms.

"(12)—Prompt ratification of the child labor amendment and subsequent enactment of a Federal law to protect children in industry. Removal of legal discriminations against women by measures not prejudicial to legislation necessary for the protection of women and for the advancement of social welfare.

"(13)—A deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the sea.

Foreign Policy Denounced.

"(14) We denounce the mercenary system of degraded foreign policy under recent administrations in the interests of financial imperialistists, oil monopolists and international bankers, which has at times degraded our State Department from its high service as a strong and kindly intermediary of defenseless Governments to a trading outpost for those interests and concession seekers engaged in the exploitations of weaker nations, as contrary to the will of the American people, destructive of domestic development and provocative of war. We favor an active foreign policy to bring about a revision of the Versailles treaty in addition to the terms of the armistice, and to promote firm treaty agreements with all nations to outlaw wars, abolish conscription, drastically reduce land, air and naval armaments and guarantee public referendums on peace and war.

"In supporting this program we are applying to the needs of today the fundamental principles of American democracy, opposing equally the dictatorship of plutocracy and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

"We appeal to all Americans without regard to partisan affiliation and we raise the standards of our faith so that all of like purpose may rally and march in this campaign under the banners of progressive union.

"The nation may grow rich in the vision of greed. The nation will grow great in the vision of service."

For Postal Pay Increase.

SEPARATE resolutions:

"(1) Resolved, that we favor the enactment of the postal salary adjustment measure for the employes of the postal servce passed by the first session of the sixty eighth congress and vetoed by President Coolidge.

"(2) Resolved, that we favor enforcement and extension of the merit system in the Federal civil service to all its branches and transfer of the functions of the personnel classification board to the United States civil service commission.

"(3) Resolved, that we favor the immediate and complete independence of the Philippine islands, in accordance with the pledges of the official representatives of the American people.

"(4) Resolved, that appropriate legislation be enacted which will provide for the people of the Virgin Islands, a more permanent form of civil government such as will enable them to attain their economic, industrial and political betterment.

Sympathy for Irish People.

"(5) Resolved, that we deeply sympathize with the aspirations of the Irish people for freedom and independence.

"(6) Resolved, that in the prevailing starvation in Germany, which, according to authoritative evidence, is beyond the scope of private charity, and in the event of like destitution in any other country, we consider it humane and just, and in conformity with our traditions and former practices, that the aid of our Government should be extended in the form of the delivery of surplus food supplies to a reasonable amount, and upon such conditions as the emergency may justify.

"(7) Resolved, that we denounce every such use of the armed forces of the United States to aid in the exploitation of weaker nations, as has occurred all too frequently in our relations with Haiti, San Domingo, Nicaragua and other nations of Central and South America."

Delegates Don't Know What A Cheap Floor They Are Asking For, Ring Lardner Suspects

NEW YORK, July 5.

Dear Editor:

IT SEEMS like this should be told again in chronological order. Well way after midnight on the 4th of July I called up a newspaper which I will not name as they have never offered me a cant to work for same and I asked them what was the news and they said Mr. McAdoo had took a big advance and was now 588 votes. So I says to the little woman, who I now call Buster, it looks like we would be all through tomorrow night, so I went to sleep and woke up in the morning only to find out that an error had been made over the telephone and Mr. McAdoo had only 528 instead of 588 votes and it looks like we would be here all summer. I told this to she, who I have nicknamed the Mrs, and she give me a wry look as she had been a Republican all her life but I convinced her that the boys was in earnest and she says all right go ahead but dont go later than September as we have a date to attend old timers week in Indiana.

So then I got on the 9.12 train all alone and found out by reading the paper that chairman Walsh had throwed a gavel at a gentleman from New York, or in other words I mean that the yeard of the gavel had flew off the handle and hit a guy from New York and knocked him unconscious and they asked me what did I think about it and I says you cant knock a guy from N. Y. unconscious because they have been that way ever since this alleged convention started.

So finally I got seated down in the convention and they started taking more ballots and a man from Oklahoma asked for the floor and says he thought the sense of this convention was to ask all native sons to withdraw. His speech was all right except when he says the sense of this convention of which of course they aint none.

The funny part of this convention is that every little while somebody gets up and asks for the floor. If they knowed what a cheap floor had been put in for this convention they probably would quit asking for it.

But any ways this man from Oklahoma wanted all the favorite sons to withdraw. Well gents I have got four sons and none of them the favorite over any other sons but I will make them all withdraw if you will nominate a candidate.

My present platform, based on the fact that Maj. Berry wants to be Vice President, is Berry for Vice President and Razz for President, making a perfect ticket of Rassberry. Other dark horses whom I have met during the day was Jack Downey of the Aberdeen Hotel for President.

And Elmer Oliphant of Purdue and West Point as Vice President.

Mr. Downey owns the Aberdeen Hotel and Mr. Oliphant aint ever done nothing but play all-American football.

Or if you don't like those pick Paddy Carr from Chicago for President and Elmer Oliphant for Vice President.

But my favorites is Razz and Berry and our slogan is we are going to be here till the world's serious.

RING LARDNER.

MT. EVEREST PARTY MEMBERS THINK MALLORY AND IRVINE REACHED THE TOP

Probably Stopped to Rest on Way Down, Went to Sleep and Succumbed to Intense Cold

Theodolyte Measurements Show That Point at Which They Were Last Seen Was Only 800 Feet From Top and They Were Going Strong—Expedition Starts Back Home.

By LIEUT. COLE E. NORTON.
Leader of the Expedition to Scale Mount Everest.

(Copyright by Arrangements With the Mount Everest Committee.)

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

RONGBUK BASE CAMP, June 14.—The expedition leaves the base camp tomorrow bound for a short period of recuperation to the Rongshar Valley, under Gaurisankar, before starting on our homeward march. The fickle weather, which has played so many dirty tricks this year, continues to be brilliantly fine, and there are indications that the monsoon has ceased for the moment, but there is no question of a resumption of hostilities on the mountain. Every one of the surviving climbers has shot his bolt.

I have before me a medical report showing that each of us has a more or less dilated heart, besides various minor disabilities. The trouble will right itself at the lower altitudes, to which we are bound but would probably be permanent if further high climbing were attempted. This the medico, Maj. Hingston, definitely forbids.

There is yet another casualty to report. Manhahadur, a Nepalese assistant bootmaker, who was very badly frostbitten in the feet, as reported in my message of May 13, died of pneumonia at the base camp, under Maj. Hingston, on May 25. Perhaps it was merciful, as he would have lost both feet had he lived.

We leave here with heavy hearts. We failed to establish success, for who will ever know whether the lost climbers reached the summit before the accident which, it may be assured, caused their death? The last point at which they were seen was determined by the theodolite as 28,227 feet, less than 800 feet from the top. Together with the height reached by Dr. Somervell and myself which, measured by the theodolie, was 28,128 feet. These constitute the world's record for climbing with and without oxygen, respectively. But the price is out of all proportions to the results.

Leader's Tribute to Mallory's Ability.

Much will be written by those at home of both Mallory and Irvine in regard to the various departments in which they distinguished themselves. I shall only say a few words on how we knew them here. Mallery was for three years the livingesoul of the offensive on Everest. I believe the thing was a personal matter with him and was ultimately, somewhat different from what it was to the rest of us. The story of his determined and ultimately successful reconnoissance in 1921 is now well known. In 1922 he formed one of the party which reached 27,000 feet without oxygen and established what was then the world's highest record.

This year he was earmarked for the first attempt with oxygen, but this was prevented by the weather. Then he took part in the first attempt without oxygen, but had to turn back at 25,000 feet. Only three days later he started on the last fatal attempt, with oxygen, and this time, who will say whether victory was at last his or not before he died?

We always regarded him as an ideal mountaineer, light, limber and active, gifted with tremendous pace up and down hill, with all the balance and technical proficiency on rocks, snow and ice which only years of experience gave. But the fire within him made him really great, for it caused his spirit constantly to dominate his body to such an extent that, much as I have climbed with him, I can hardly picture his ever succumbing to exhaustion. As a man, he was the very real friend to us all, his cultured, gentle spirit curiously contrasting with the restless, fiery energy he displayed in action. His loss is irreparable, no less to his friends of successive Everest expeditions than to the very much larger circle of those who loved him in England.

Irvine was described in the earlier dispatches by Gen. Bruce as our experiment, for he was a mountaineer of limited experience and 12 years younger than the average of the expedition. But the experimental stage was short indeed, for it was a matter of hours rather than of days. The qualities which made him such a success when sledging in Spitsbergen brought him to the front.

Irvine Quickly Demonstrated Prowess.

We all realized immediately that we had here no untried boy, but one of the most valuable members of the new expedition, and what is more, one who could take his place modestly, but with absolute equality, with men so much his senior in age. Then, in no time his cheery comaraderie, his good nature and his untiring mechanical ingenuity and resource made him not only valuable but invaluable.

I do not know how we are going to get on without him. Physically, he was the strongest of us, he did surprising feats in carrying and hauling loads. His times up some stages of east Rongbuk glacier were unequaled. In my last dispatch I spoke of his work on north Col in the role of a supporter, a true test of a man's mettle. But nothing was new to him, for ever since Khampa Djong he had been working unremittingly and unostentatiously every day and all day for the good of the expedition and its individual members. We mourn in his loss that of the true friend to every one of us, and a most gallant gentleman.

I have asked Odell to amplify his previous brief account of the final attempt, and to tell the story as he took part in it from his position in support at Camp Four. His performance in climbing once to 25,000 feet and twice to 27,000 feet in seven days constitute what I consider a remarkable feat to be accomplished on Everest, or on any other of the great Himalayan peaks. Perhaps more remarkable still is the fact that he suffered less than most other climbers in doing so.

Another Who Proved His Worth.

It remains for me to say a few words about the evacuation of the glacier camps. Throughout, you have heard little of Shebbeare, yet he plays a most important part in them. After the first evacuation of a camp on May 11, it was decided that Shebbeare's knowledge of the language and the psychology of the porters called for his presence on the lines of communication, rather than at the base camp. Accordingly he was established as King of No. 11.

From that moment, we at the higher camps never had to look over our shoulders, or give a moment's anxious thought to our line of supply. Food for sahibs and porters, fuel and supplies of all sorts arrived smoothly as required, and more important still, we knew that the comfort and health of the porters on the lines of communication were well cared for.

When the time came on June 11 to evacuate all camps, Shebbeare took the matter in hand and, in three days, by good organization and the use of every porter who could carry a load, he had cleared to the base camp every single article whose value justified transport home across Tibet. So smoothly was the operation performed under his skillful leadership that there is nothing to write of it.

Our one free day here before we finally leave this old base camp of conflicting memories, so bleak and inhospitable after the sunny plains of Tibet, so homelike and cozy after the far bleaker glacier camps, is fully occupied. Every man that can be spared is at work arranging loads for tomorrow's march, or employed in erecting a monument on one of the great conical moraine heaps which overlook the base camps to commemorate the names of those who lost their lives in the three Mount Everest expeditions.

Mr. Odell's story of the final attempt on Everest is as follows:

The Story of the Last Climb.

"Col. Norton has requested me to relate the events connected with the last climb of Mallory and Irvine, a climb in a good many aspects of which I had the advantage of witnessing during the protracted period of eleven days while acting in support at North Col, 23,000 feet. The duty of being in support, from meaning readiness to support at need any exhausted member of the party on the mountain, largely transferred itself into cooking and preparing meals for whatever climbers made North Col camp, a place of call. This function kept us fully occupied, particularly as all water had to be obtained by melting snow; snow which at this altitude was of an exceedingly dry and powdered variation.

"On June 6, following an early breakfast of fried sardines, joyfully acclaimed and moderately partaken of Mallory and Ervine, left North Col camp for Camp Five, 25,000 feet, accompanied by five porters with provisions and reserve oxygen cylinder. Using oxygen, they had already ascended from the camp 2000 feet below in two and a half hours. They were highly pleased with their performance, which seemed to augur well for the final attempt on the mountain.

"The next day they ascended to Camp Six, 27,000 feet, which had been established by Norton and Somervell in a record climb three days previously. On the same day I ascended to the supporting Camp Five. Hazard, at this time, arrived at North Col to replace me.

The porters returning from Mallory that night were bearers of a hopeful message in a note which said that they had only used the minimum oxygen up to 27,000 feet and that the weather was perfect for the job. The latter I could well appreciate, for looking out that evening from the little ledge on which the tent was pitched at Camp Five, I saw that the weather indeed seemed most promising for the morrow.

A Savage, Wild Jumble of Peaks.

"The situation of the camp was unique and the outlook a commanding one. Westward there was a savage, wild jumble of peaks, culminating in Cho Uyo, 26,750 feet, bathed in pinks and yellows of the most exquisite tints. Right opposite were the gaunt cliffs of Everest, the north peak intercepting a portion of the wild northern horizon of brilliant opalescence, which threw into prominence the outline of a mighty peak far away in Central Tibet. Was it Gen. Pererias, supposed rival of Everest? Eastward, floating in the thin air, the snowy top of Kangchenjunga appeared, and at last, beautifully varied, the outlying Gyangkar range.

"Sunset and after, at that altitude, was a transcendent experience, never to be forgotten. At early morning of June 8, it was clear and not unduly cold at such an altitude, the two porters I had brought with me to Camp Five complained of sickness and headache, and altogether I was not unthankful for the excuse to send them down to Camp Four at North Col, for I especially wished to be free during an ascent. I was to make for as wide a geological survey of the mountain face between Camps Five and Six as was possible.

Entire Summit Suddenly Unveiled.

"After I had started on my task, banks of cloud began to form, which, periodically immersed one in gloom, but the wind remained quite light for such an exposed ridge. Now and then there would be accompaniment of sleet and light snow. I could see above me frequently during these squalls that there was a glow of light, indicating clearness at a higher altitude, and hoped that Mallory and Irvine were above the mist.

"At 12:50 o'clock, just after I had emerged in a state of jubilation at finding the first definite fossils on Everest, there was a sudden clearing of the atmosphere, and the entire summit of the ridge and the final peak of Everest were unveiled. My eyes became fixed on one tiny black spot, silhouetted on a small snow crest between a rock step in the ridge and the black spot moved. Another black spot became apparent, and moved up the snow to join the other on the crest. The first then approached the great rock step and shortly emerged at the top. The second did likewise. Then the whole fascinating vision vanished.

"Enveloped in clouds once more, there was but one explanation—it was Mallory and his companion, moving, as I could see, even at that great distance, with considerable alacrity, realizing, doubtless, that they had none too many hours of daylight to reach the summit from their present position and return to camp 6 at nightfall.

"The place on the ridge mentioned is a prominent rock step at a very short distance from the base of the final pyramid, and it was remarkable that they were so late in reaching this place. According to Mallory's schedule, they should have reached it several hours earlier if they had started from the high camp as anticipated. That they had encountered bad conditions and snow-covered rocks and other obstacles was likely, however. In my opinion, from the position in which they were last seen, they should have reached the summit at 4 p. m. at the latest, unless some unforeseen and particularly different obstacle presented itself.

Speculation on How They Pushed.

"On the final pyramid, this seemed to be very unlikely, for we had scrutinized the last slopes with telescopes and binoculars, and had seen that, technically, climbing was easy. Perhaps the most likely explanations of their failure to return, were a fall or inability to reach camp before darkness set in. I rather incline to the latter view, and consider it very probable that they were sheltered in some recess in the rocks, and fell asleep, and a painless death followed, due to excessive cold at these altitudes.

"After a brief glimpse of the party above described, I continued up to Camp Six, which was reached just as a rather severe blizzard started. The camp consisted of one small mountain tent perched on a ledge and backed up by a step of rocks by no means conspicuous or easy to find. I brought up with me provisions for the camp, and after placing them in the tent and sheltering for a while, I decided to go out in the direction of the peak along the mountainside in case bad weather should compel the party to turn back.

"I whistled and yodeled through the driving sleet to give the returning party the right direction, but soon realized that, in the point of time, it was a worthless task, for they would still be beyond hearing even if they were returning. Perhaps they were right above the blizzard in the sunshine. Within two hours the storm had blown over and the whole north face was bathed in sunshine. I searched the uppercrag for another glimpse of the party, but nothing could be seen.

Mystery That Will Never Be Solved.

"In accordance with the early arrangements, suggested by Mallory himself, I returned to North Col and, with Hazard, kept watch till late for signs of the returning party. As they had not returned on the morrow, it was assumed that perhaps they were still sleeping at Camp Six, having reached it at a late hour the night before. But we were unable with field glasses to detect any movement around the distant tent.

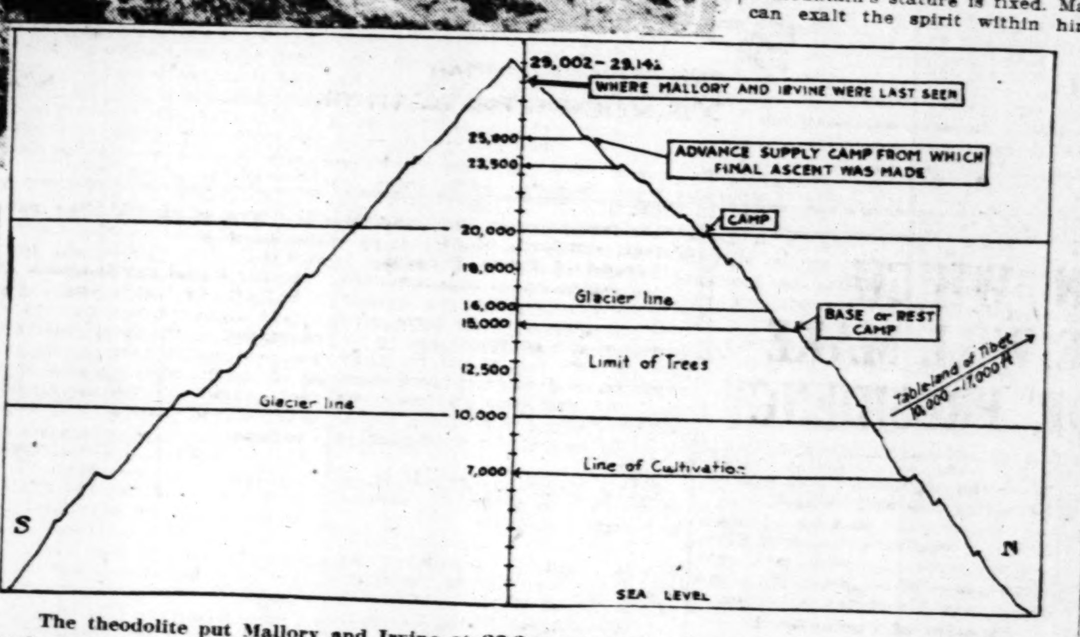
"At noon I decided to ascend to Camp Five, stay the night, and proceed to Camp Six the next day to ascertain if they had returned and whether help was needed in consequence of some mishap. I arranged a code of signals with Hazard by motions of a sleeping bag placed conspicuously on the snow in case assistance, medical or otherwise, should be required. Two porters again came with me to Camp Five. But again they had to return to Camp Four because of indisposition.

"After a very cold night, I pushed on to Camp Six, this time carrying with me oxygen apparatus, and also provisions for the missing party. I reached the tent of the camp in the afternoon, only to find everything as I had left it two days previously, and as Mallory and Irvine had left it on the morning of their climb. Leaving the tent, I climbed some distance and worked out on a long face in the direction of their route, searching for some clue. But what hope was there on such a vast mountain face? Weeks of diligent search by a party fully equipped for such a difficult and particularly trying work at that altitude might not produce any result, nor unravel the mystery.

"At length as the day was drawing to a close, I reluctantly gave up the search and signaled down to Hazard at North Col, over 2000 feet below, that no trace could be found. Closing up the tent, and leaving it with the last relics of our lost companions, I made my way down the north ridge, having, now and then, to take shelter behind the rocks from the violent and bitterly cold west wind, and to restore warmth and prevent frost bite, and at dusk reached the North Col Camp with its profound comforts and hot soup. The next day we evacuated the camp and others in succession down to East Rongbuk Glacier.

"Has Everest been climbed" Colonel Norton has referred to this question. It will ever be a mystery, considering all the circumstances and the position they had reached on the mountain. I personally am of the opinion that Mallory and Irvine must have reached the summit. At least they have established the mountain altitude record."

A Near View of Mt. Everest's Crest and a Chart Showing Expedition's Highest Known Climb



The theodolite put Mallory and Irvine at 28,227 feet when they were last seen by Odell—the highest known point on the earth's surface ever reached by man, though the members of their party think it likely that they reached the crest before they turned back.

"MAN NOT BEATEN, MT. EVEREST WILL YET BE CLIMBED"

Sir Francis Younghusband of Royal Geographical Society Tells Why Task Will Not Be Abandoned.

By Sir Francis Younghusband,
Former President of the Royal Geographical Society, Who Led the First Mount Everest Expedition.

(Copyright, 1924.)

LONDON, July 5.—The doom of Everest is sealed and for one simple, one very obvious, reason: Man grows in wisdom and stature, but a mountain's stature is fixed. Man can exalt the spirit within him, but a mountain cannot add a single cubit to her measure.

Everest fights stoutly and with many terrible weapons. She is girt about with unscalable rocks, and she has snow and ice, wind and frost to aid her. But she fights blindly. She cannot learn by experience and she cannot rise to the occasion, and she is opposed by an adversary who has all these advantages over her. For man is full of cunning. He profits by experience and battling only increases his spirit.

The armor of Everest is seemingly perfect, but man discovered one tiny chink, and through it is warily forcing his way. He finds means to outwit the mountain's allies and each throw-back he receives only heightens his spirit. He quickly recovers himself and, undaunted, returns to battle. While the mountain forever, remains fixed, the spirit of man can heighten itself, can rise higher and higher as the battle demands and occasion requires. As man looks up to the hills and earnestly strives to attain them, his spirit increases within him.

Thus doom can be seen relentlessly closing in on Everest. Man is remorselessly marching upon her. First he whetted his spirit upon lesser giants. Forty years ago he was still very humble and did not presume to think of anything higher than 21,000 feet. Twenty years ago, by exercising it, his spirit had risen by exercising it, reached 23,000 feet. Fifteen years ago he had attained to nearly 25,000 feet, and now, at length, he has dared to think of attacking the proudest monarch of them all. Two years ago he climbed to 27,000 feet and a month ago he reached no less a height than 28,000 feet. Twenty-one, 23, 25, 27, 28—arithmetic itself shows that 29 must follow and Everest be vanquished.

A Foretaste of What Awaits.

And of what victory has to offer for reward we already have a glimpse. For this year man stood right up on Everest's shoulders. From a point higher than the summit of any other mountain, twice higher than most Alpine peaks; higher even than that Kangchenjunga which so thrills men's souls as they view it from Darjeering, man last month looked out upon the world. By his own efforts he had exalted himself to a position from which he looked down upon the greatest mountain giants until they appeared mere pygmies beneath him, and he could see far over Tibet to the distant gleaming range 200 miles away.

Even this was but a foretaste of what Everest will reveal to him who stands upon her summit. For, this year, man's vision was curtailed by the mountainside on which he stood, but from the summit his sight will range in a full circle around in all directions. Nothing will impede it. Not only for 200 miles across Tibet will it extend, but to the plains of India as well—the plains nearly 29,000 feet below him.

Making Man Do His Best.

It will range, too, along the line of the greatest peaks of the Himalayas. K-2, the nearest rival of Mount Everest, will be away beyond Kismar, too distant for him to see, but only fourteen miles away will be Makaler, 27,790 feet, perhaps the finest in architecture of all Himalayan peaks. Beyond it again will be Kangchenjunga, 28,150 feet and, still further, Chomalhari, standing sentinel over the road to Lhassa. A sea of peaks will stretch all around him and the kingdoms, principalities and powers far down below will lie submerged in a bluey haze.

Raised high above the rest of the earth, he will feel himself to be in a region of the sternest austerity, indeed, but of loftier, purer, clearer and more dazzling radiance further stretching the horizon than man had ever known before.

His vision will be all the more intense because he will have won this glory for himself by his own unaided efforts. Ever after, when man looks upward at Mount Everest, it will not be with a crushing sense of his own littleness. Beside her he will then be justly proud of his own greatness. Extremely lofty as she is among mountains, he will know for certain that his own spirit can exalt him higher still, and he will have nothing but unsullied love for his mighty foe. She may have shown him no mercy in the struggle, but she will have forced from out him what, except for her, he would scarcely have known that he possessed.

Compelled by her to exercise the highest in him and give only of his best, he will have found himself responding gladly to her call. Higher courage, more splendid daring, firmer will and sharper wits he will have had to display, and as his spirit heightens in him he will feel a glow of that joy which high achievement always gives. And he will love her for it.

This is the reward which Everest can confer. By making him be his best, she will have made man know the joy which being his best brings, and its thrill will hearten him in every other high endeavor.

What he did on Mount Everest he will strive to do in every other sphere, and as man has just reported when, after fighting blizzards and smothering snow and numbing cold, he was thrown back only a thousand feet from the summit and half a mile away, the struggle is "worth it—worth it every time."

WHAT NEW YORK PRESS THINKS OF DEADLOCK

Newspapers Unite in Opinion That Democratic Party Is Committing Suicide.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—New York newspapers, Democratic, Republican and Independent, unite today in editorial opinion that the Democratic party is committing suicide, at least so far as the coming election is concerned, by protracting the bitter deadlock into which it has fallen. They disagree as to what, if anything, can be done at this late date to save its chances of success.

The Morning World which started off as a stanch supporter of Gov. Smith, in an editorial today captioned "Shall the Democratic Party Die?" declares that the only way to save it is to defeat McAdoo, "heal the wound in the party by accepting the withdrawal of Gov. Smith" and "then choose a vigorous candidate who surmounts the bitterness of this struggle." It suggests the following list from which a compromise candidate might be drawn: Newton Baker, Carter Glass, John W. Davis, Senator Robinson, Gov. Ritchie, Senator Underwood, Owen D. Young, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, David F. Houston, James M. Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Evening World, calling for a return of harmony, declares that "unless the Democratic national convention comes to a sense of its duty this year will spread a dark blot of disaster upon the Democratic record."

The Times calls on the Democrats to "stop trying to be too clever by half" and nominate "a man of the type of John W. Davis." Only by naming such a candidate, it says, can the Democratic party hope that the country "will be led slowly to forget the enormous blunders and the incredible incompetence" of the convention.

The Herald-Tribune sees possibility of a nomination only in "sheer exhaustion" and declares that only "sheer luck" will decide whether the nominee is to be a good one.

"The only good that may be gleaned from the chaos," it thinks, "would be realization that religious issues cannot be safely or rightly fought out on a political basis.

American Calls for "Dry."

The American, without naming its choice, calls for a "dry." "If the Democratic party wants to lose this year," the American says "it has only to nominate a candidate who is wet." The klan issue, it thinks, was raised only to overshadow the question of prohibition.

Arranging a compromise, the Sun says, "is a hard job at the stage of the game when one event after another has made for the deepest political hatred. Perhaps the old bosses could have smoothed the convention's ruffled front in time. But in the absence of the old bosses mutual surrender in the guise of compromise looks a long way off."

NAMED PRESIDENT OF TEXAS U

Dr. Walter Splawn Accepts Post Which Californian Refused.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 5.—Dr. Walter Splawn, member of the Texas Railroad Commission, today was named president of the University of Texas. He will assume his new duties between now and Sept. 1.

Dr. Herbert E. Bolton of the University of California was elected to the post several months ago, but in a message to members of the Board of Regents, today, definitely declined.

47th Semi-Annual

further stretching the horizon than man had ever known before.

His vision will be all the more intense because he will have won this glory for himself by his own unaided efforts. Ever after, as man looks upward at Mount Everest, it will not be with a craven sense of his own littleness. Beside her he will then be justly proud of his own greatness. Supremely lofty as she is among mountains, he will know for certain that his own spirit can exalt him higher still, and he will have nothing but unsullied love for his mighty foe. She may have shown him no mercy in the struggle, but she will have forced from out him what, except for her, he would scarcely have known that he possessed.

Compelled by her to exercise the highest in him and give only of his best, he will have found himself responding gladly to her call. Higher courage, more splendid daring, firmer will and sharper wits he will have had to display, and as his spirit heightens in him he will feel a glow of that joy which high achievement always gives. And he will love her for it.

This is the reward which Everest can confer. By making him be his best, she will have made man know the joy which being his best brings, and its thrill will hearten him in every other high endeavor. What he did on Mount Everest he will strive to do in every other sphere, and as man has just reported when, after fighting blizzards and smothering snow and numbing cold, he was thrown back only a thousand feet from the summit and half a mile away, the struggle is "worth it—worth it every time."

CASE OF SLAYERS NOW TRYING TO ESCAPE GALLOWS

Policeman's Widow Says 7000 Signers for Executive Clemency Should Put Themselves in Her Place.

HUSBAND DIED "PROTECTING THEM"

Question of Guilt Not Raised in Plea to Halt Hanging of Two Men Here for the Murder.

On the morning of April 22, 1922, Patrolman Michael O'Connor was walking on South Broadway, near Arsenal street. Suddenly, a man came up and said, "There's a stick-up at Morris'."

O'Connor did not stop to telephone to the station, or to summon help. He ran across the street to the Morris packing plant office. As he entered, two robbers, who held revolvers, were searching employes.

O'Connor began shooting. He could have killed one of the robbers, but in doing so he might have wounded one of the employes. So he fired two shots high, over the heads or robbers and clerks.

Policeman Shot in Head.

Robbers are not so particular to avoid wounding non-combatants. One of these two robbers took direct aim and fired one shot, which pierced O'Connor's head, killing him instantly.

Then the two robbers ran out, jumping over O'Connor's body.

Outside the door, Patrolman Bernard Mengel met them. He and Patrolman Louis Held, had been summoned by the same man who first gave the alarm to O'Connor.

Mengel fired one shot. One or both of the robbers shot Mengel in the head, through the right arm and through the right hand. As Patrolman Held came up, one of the robbers shot him through the right shoulder. Held had fired two shots as he approached.

Another Officer Fatally Shot.

Mengel died that afternoon. Held recovered.

The robbers jumped into an automobile and were driven away.

Nearly four weeks later, a woman heard Charles Merrell boasting of "two pretty shots" which he had made. Listening further, she learned that he was talking of the shooting at the Morris plant. She informed the police of what she had heard.

Merrell, a former convict, was an automobile mechanic, and the police, in arresting Merrell, questioned Robert A. Manley, who worked in the same garage. Manly confessed that he had driven Merrell and Hugh Pinkley to the scene of the attempted robbery, but said he had not known what they intended to do. After the killing of the policemen, he said, they had compelled him, by threats of death, to drive them away.

Testimony at the Trial.

Pinkley, a former convict, was arrested in East St. Louis.

In the trial of Merrell and Pinkley, in November, 1922, for the murder of Patrolman O'Connor, Manly testified positively to driving the two men to and from the scene of the killing of the policemen, and to the circumstances in so far as he had seen them from outside the building.

The assistant manager of the Morris office positively identified Merrell and Pinkley. A policeman who had seen the car driven away identified the two men, and a motorman identified Merrell as having been in the robbers' machine.

Merrell and Pinkley offered alibis. Merrell said he had been at work in his garage. He explained a wound in his leg by sayinf an automobile part fell on him. He produced two alibi witnesses. Pinkley also had two witnesses, his alibi story being that he was in East St. Louis.

Not Tried in Mengel Case.

A jury, after considering the case three hours and 35 minutes, found Merrell and Pinkley guilty, and voted fo rthe death penalty. They were not tried for the murder of Patrolman Mengel, in which case the evidence would have been practically the same.

The case against Manley was dropped, for lack of a witness who could testify that he had known of the robbery plan.

The usual appeal to the Supreme Court was taken by Pinkley and Merrell. That court, last month, affirmed the conviction and death sentence. July 18 was set as the date for the execution.

Now, a petition for executive clemency is being prepared, and will be presented to Gov. Hyde, probably tomorrow. It does not raise the question of the men's guilt, but says that capital punishment is at variance with the best humanitarian thought of the day, and that the State has no moral movements in some states to abolish capital punishment. Such a movement was once successful in Missouri, but a few years later the right to take life, and tells of death penalty was restored.

Attitude of the Widow.

Mrs. Nora O'Connor, widow of the policeman for whose death the two men were sentenced, lives with her two children, a boy of 14 years and a girl of 13, 3420 Montana street. She read, with interest and emotion, a Post-Dispatch news item which quoted the lawyer for the condemned men as saying that 7000 persons had signed the petition for clemency.

"I wish the people that signed that petition would put themselves in my place," Mrs. O'Connor said. "My husband and Mr. Mengel were killed, and Mr. Held was wounded, in doing their duty, protecting the citizens of St. Louis, these petition signers along with the rest.

"Mrs. Mengel has died, in the past year, and grief over her husband's death had much to do with it. Her two children were grown before she lost her husband. It was different with me. My children were still young, and it has been no easy matter to keep them in school, particularly as I have been in poor health and unable to do much work.

"I cannot understand why anyone should wish to keep these criminals from the punishment lawfully meted out to them."

Sheriff Orders Ropes for Execution of Two Slayers.

Two ropes, for use in the execution of Pinkley and Merrell, set for July 18, have been ordered by Sheriff Strodtman. The Sheriff will select from his deputies the usual death watch, two deputies working in four-hour shifts, for the 48 hours before the execution.

The Sheriff has received a number of requests for tickets to the double execution. He has refused these, and says he will admit only the persons who have a right to be present. These include lawyers for the condemned men, attending clergymen, a representative of the Coroner's office, newspaper reporters and six legal witnesses.

News About St. Louisans at Summer Resorts

REPORTS FROM NORTH ATLANTIC RESORTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass., July 5.—With the week-end holiday as an added attraction, boats, trains and automobiles coming into New England have been loaded with visitors from all parts of the country arriving for a short vacation or to stay until the cold weather drives them back to the city.

The fashionable North Shore of Massachusetts anticipates a brilliant social season. The presence of the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, and Lady Howard at Pride's Crossing with the members of the Embassy staff located at other of the many colonies within motoring distance, will be the occasion of considerable entertaining.

Among those without whom no North Shore season would be complete is Mrs. Samuel M. Kennard of St. Louis, who for many years has made her summer home on Fuller street, Magnolia. Mrs. Kennard will have with with her later in the summer, her daughter, Mrs Luther Ely Smith and family, and other members of the Kennard clans.

Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick of St. Louis came early in June to her summer home "Stonehurst," in the Magnolia section of Gloucester.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Geisinger and family of St. Louis have taken apartments for another season at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, where their coming is awaited by a large circle of friends made during many previous years spent at the North Shore.

Mrs. Eugene A. Perry Jr. of New York joined her mother, Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick of St. Louis, at the Magnolia summer home the first of the month, coming for the holiday festivities.

Mrs. M. F. Walden and Miss Sylvia M. Walden of St. Louis have reserved apartments at the Hotel Rockmere, Marblehead, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanford Crawford of St. Louis returned from their winter sojourn in the South early in the season to open "Rockmarge," their summer home on Marblehead Neck. Mr. and Mrs. Crawford are among those delightful people who are always extending the hospitality of their home to friends, and guests are even now arriving for week-end visits.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Blumer, the latter formerly Miss Nancy Scott, daughter of Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott of St. Louis, and their two young daughters, Nancy and Priscilla, are making their year-round home in the recently purchased home on Blossom lane, Manchester. During the winter Mrs. Blumer was absent several weeks on a trip with her mother to California to attend the wedding of her brother, Mr. George Scott of Boston, to Miss Mary Keck of Coronada.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne have returned from Palm Beach and opened their summer home, "Inglelowe," at Beverly Farms, one of the attractively situated estates along the shore. Mr. and Mrs. Dobyne are prominent in the social activities of the Essex County Club set at Manchester. This year Mrs. Dobyne's daughter, formerly Miss Dorothy Kahler of St. Louis, will be missed by the young people of the North Shore, her marriage to Mr. John Charles Thomas having taken place during the winter at Palm Beach, followed by a trip abroad.

Mrs. B. T. Whipple of Kansas City has added to the charm of her pleasant gardens at "Tenth Tee Cottage," Bass Rocks, by the construction of an attractive lily pond.

The Cape Ann section of the North Shore has long been a mecca for artists, sharing with Provincetown on Cape Cod, the honor of having the largest summer schools of painting in the country. Two rival societies—the Gloucester Society of Artists and the North Shore Arts Association of Gloucester—hold exhibitions during the summer and their social events are among the finest at the shore. Last summer the opening exhibition of the Gloucester Society of Artists drew more than 4000 people.

Prominent in this artist colony is Tom Barnet, artist and architect of St. Louis, who, with Mrs. Barnet, is located for the season at their Lean-to Studio in the Rockport section.

Mrs. Louis Upton Brumback of Kansas City has returned for another season at her cottage in Rockport. Mrs. Brumback's painting entitled "Gloucester Harbor," which was shown last summer at the exhibition of the Gloucester Society of Artists, has been presented to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Mrs. Jacob L. Loose came from her Kansas City home early in the season to open "Sea Rocks," her summer place at Grapevine Cove, East Gloucester.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Sutherland and niece, Miss Jane Wilkins of St. Louis, have arrived at Bay View, Cape Ann, having made the trip east by automobile. They will spend the summer at their former home, the Dennison estate, on the Shore.

Mrs. Jesse Dwight Dana and two sons, Richard and Robert, of St. Louis, came East for the wedding last week of Miss Gwendolen Flagg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Flagg of Portland, Me., and Mr. Jesse Albert Drew, son of the late Mr. Morrill N. Drew and Mrs. Drew, also of Portland, which took place at the Cathedral Church of St. Luke, Portland, on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Richard Dana was in the group of ushers at the ceremony, and arrived in Portland in time to take part in the round of brilliant prenuptial functions given by the family and friends for the bride and bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sullivan of St. Louis are spending the summer in Portland and at the Casco Bay resorts.

St. Louisans Who Are Spending Summer at Charlevoix.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., July 5.—Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Morse of St. Louis, Mo., are among those who came to Charlevoix this week.

Mrs. J. W. Fristoe of St Louis has arrived for her annual visit in Charlevoix. She has her cottage on the Belvedere grounds and has been at the Hallett Inn while she has had her place made ready.

Charles E. Vallet came up from St. Louis during the last week for a visit here.

Mrs. C. L. Allen and family, who came from St. Louis during the last few days, have been at Charlevoix Beach, as has also Mrs. J. D. Hollingshead of St. Louis.

Mrs. H. A. Frankenthal, Miss Carol S. Frankenthal and Mrs. Alice Cunningham of St. Louis are at Sunset Cottage on Lake Michigan.

Mrs. S. Starke of St. Louis and Mrs. Sheldon P. Fox, also of St. Louis, are guests on the Belvedere side of the resort.

Mrs. R. Vernon Clark of St. Louis was at her cottage during June and will remain until late autumn.

Many St. Louisans at Newport for the Summer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—Newport's season opened early and most of the large estates are occupied, some of them for the first time in many years. Among this number is "Crossways," long the summer home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, and the scene of many notable entertainments. The place has been on the market, but has now been definitely withdrawn and is to be used as a summer home by Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish.

Mrs. Vanderbilt has opened The Breakers, and, as usual, will have with her for the summer the many members of her family. Nearby at the Harry Payne Whitney villa, the Hungarian Ambassador, Count Szechenyi and Countess Szechenyi, the former Gladys Vanderbilt, and their four daughters, have been spending the early summer before sailing for a visit to the Szechenyi home in the Carpathian Mountains.

The official season began last night when the first dinner dance was held at the Clambake Club.

Bailey's Beach, the fashionable bathing place of Newport, has been restored to its former condition by the expenditure of much time and effort. An oil tanker was wrecked off Newport early this spring and the beaches and rocks were thoroughly coated with the thick slimy oil.

Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert, her two sons, Albert and George, and her mother, Mrs. George S. McGrew of St. Louis, are at their cottage at Narragansett Pier for the season. Mrs. Lambert is identified with the Point Judith Country Club set, and the boys are among the young people to be seen daily on the tennis courts of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore of St. Louis have opened Taurento, their summer home, on the Westerly road, at Watch Hill. They were in the gay throng which inaugurated the season at the patriotic ball at the Misquamicut Golf Club last night.

The Rev. Edward S. Travers and family of St. Louis, for many years members of the Watch Hill summer colony, are at Irisrock, on Sunset avenue, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West of St. Louis have become so attached to Watch Hill as a summer home that they have returned for another season and, with their family, are at Windvale, on Ocean View highway.

Among the early season arrivals at Hotel de la Plage, Narragansett Pier, was Mr. George Hartnett of St. Louis.

Mrs. S. S. Blackwell of New York, formerly of St. Louis, has returned for another season at the Pier, and is located at Hotel de la Plage.

Mrs. Malcolm Thomas and two young daughters of St. Louis are spending the summer with Mrs. Thomas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bliss, at their cottage in the fashionable New London colony near the Hotel Griswold.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Franklin of St. Louis were recent guests at the Elm Tree Inn, Stonington.

St. Louis Folk Numbered Among Bay View Visitors.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BAY VIEW, Mich., July 5—Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Burford and daughter, Miss Margaret Burford and son, Humber Burford of St. Louis, arrived a few days ago and are guests at the Roselawn for their summer visit.

Mrs. C. R. Anderson of St. Louis, was one of the early arrivals at the Bay View House.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Krutzsh of St. Louis have been visiting friends in Bay View and Northern Michigan.

Schooner for Joseph Pulitzer Nearing Completion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WISCASSET, Me., July 5—The 75-foot schooner, Discoverer, built for Joseph Pulitzer of St. Louis from plans by John A. Alden, is being built at the Pendleton yard here, where it is nearing completion. The schooner is 75 feet overall, 58 feet waterline, 18 feet beam and 9 feet 7 inches draft.

The deck is of Michigan sugar pine. The vessel has every convenience including two bath rooms, electric light, hot and cold water, a refrigerating plant and a wireless outfit. Auxiliary power is furnished by a four-cylinder 80-horsepower engine. The home port will be Bar Harbor where Mr. Pulitzer's summer home is located. The Discoverer will be used for cruising along the shore and a trip to Labrador is planned.

A new class of 16-foot one-design knockabouts will be a feature of the racing season at Seal Harbor this summer. Seven of these small craft have been built during the winter at Lawson's yards, Dorchester, Mass. Among those ordering them are Joseph Pulitzer, John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Edsel Ford, all summer residents of Bar Harbor.

MANY GATHER AT NORTHERN LAKES

WEQUETONSING, Mich., July 5.—Mr. and Mrs. James W. Waterworth and C. W. Condie of St. Louis are new members of the summer colony at Roaring Brook, down along the bluff. Mrs. J. O. King has come up from St. Louis to her cottage here, as has Mrs. M. M. Reber of the same city.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wallace of St. Louis are at Cottage 28 at the Point. Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Eaton and family are at this resort, having come some days ago from St. Louis.

Mrs. Wallace Tuttle of St. Louis, who came north some days ago, is at Cottage 33 at the Point. Mrs. H. L. Block and Mrs. Hugh Scott of St. Louis are at Cottage No. 8 and Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Scott of St. Louis are at Cottage 5.

Mrs. A. Bell and family and Mrs. Samuel Reber and daughter, May, and son, Linton, are among the cottages in the west end of the grounds.

Dr. George Tuttle and family are occupying the Tuttle cottage and other members of the family may come up from St. Louis later to join them.

Mrs. J. D. Street and her sister, Mrs. R. E. Williams, of St. Louis, are occupying their own cottage in this resort for the summer. Mrs. Fordyce of St. Louis is in the Deckman cottage on the west grounds.

Mrs. Greenfield Sluder, Miss Virginia Sluder, Miss Martha Sluder and John C. Sluder of St. Louis have joined the Missouri colony at the Point. Their cottage is known as "No. 33."

At Roaring Brook are Mrs. C. W. Condie and Miss Virginia Condie, who are at The Inn.

Mrs. F. C. Bonsack, St. Louis, and Mrs. R. E. Park of the same city are Missourians passing the summer in the North, the former at the Roaring Brook Inn and the latter in her bluff cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McIntyre of St. Louis are enjoying their summer stay in Northern Michigan. Their cottage is not far from the golf grounds.

Mrs. C. F. Gauss and Mrs. C. W. Bullen of St. Louis are passing their summer stay in the North at Cottage 36 at the point.

Dr. Edwin P. Lehman of St. Louis is at his Point cottage for some time.

Mrs. H. L. Langenberg and Miss Ella Larson are members of the Northern St. Louis colony for several weeks.

Many St. Louis families are being attracted to Walloon Lake, near Petoskey. This lake, with its 72 miles of shore line, set deep in the wooded hills, is said to rival for beauty and attractiveness anything in the entire resort region of the nation.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Fisher of St. Louis are among the early comers. Mrs. C. W. Lewis and family are at a cottage on the south side of the lake.

GIRL, 5, BURNED BY SPARKLER, DIES

Lydia Huelsman Was Playing With Fireworks When Her Dress Became Ignited.

Lydia Huelsman.

Independence Day, 1924, was not unmarred by an avoidable fatality in St. Louis.

Lydia Huelsman, 5 years old, of 4031 North Ninth street, put on a filmy silk dress Friday evening and played with fireworks. Late in the evening she held a sparkler, and it ignited her dress.

Instantly the child was enveloped in flames, which covered her entire body with deep burns before her mother could tear off her clothing.

She was taken to Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, where she died at midnight Friday, after agony which physicians could only attempt to relieve, but the burns were too extensive for healing.

The warning has been published repeatedly not to let children handle sparklers under any circumstances. These brightly sparkling affairs are sometimes represented as unproductive of flame, but such is not the case. Another Fourth of July warning is to clothe children who are to play with fireworks in woolen or other coarse material.

Child Seriously Burned While Playing With Firecrackers.

A belated Fourth of July accident yesterday caused serious injury to Josephine Mike, 3 years old, of 1032A South Thirteenth street. The child was playing with firecrackers on the rear porch of her home at noon when she screamed and a sister found her dress in flames. The sister beat out the flames, but the child was badly burned about the body, arms and face.

OFFICER HAS TO RESCUE MAN TWICE FROM RIVER

Victim Leaps Back in Again, But Second Time Policeman Carries Charge to Patrol Box.

Patrolman Joseph Bogowitz, at the foot of Wash street, last night, saw a human form stirring the Mississippi River about 5 feet from shore. Removing his coat and shoes, Patrolman Bogowitz waded out and returned with the body of a man, apparently unconscious, in his arms.

Laying the man on the levee, Bogowitz started to a patrol box 100 feet away. Half way there he heard a splash, and turning, saw the body he had recovered was gone. Again he waded out and again he brought the man safe to shore. This time, however, he carried his charge to the patrol box and held him tight while he summoned a wagon.

At City Hospital the man said he was Arthur Heness, 35 years old, with no home. He was treated for "submersion" and alcoholism, it was said at the hospital.

BREAKING OF GROUND TODAY FOR SALEM METHODIST CHURCH

The congregation of the Salem Methodist Episcopal Church will participate in ground-breaking exercises for its proposed $150,000 edifice at Kingshighway and Cote Brilliante avenue at 3 p. m. today. The first spade of earth will be turned by Charles Niedringhaus, one of the oldest members.

The ground was purchased three years ago. The plan includes a church of Gothic design, a parish house community building and a parsonage—the latter already being completed and occupied by the pastor, the Rev. W. F. Isler. Salem Church boasts of being the mother of German Methodism in St. Louis. The first church was established in 1841 by the Rev. L. S. Jacoby, when St. Louis' German constituency numbered about 15,000. The first church was built on Wash street, between Tenth and Eleventh street, and is now occupied by an Italian congregation. A larger structure was later erected on the same lot, and in 1873 an edifice costing $75,000 was erected at Fifteenth and Wash streets.

In 1905 the church was sold and a new location taken at Page boulevard and Pendleton avenue. Last fall this church was sold to a Jewish congregation. Recently the Zoar Methodist congregation at Gano and Carter avenues united with the Salem congregation. Pending the completion of the new church services will be held in the Church of Seventh Day Adventists at Newstead and Delmar avenues.

Peck Griffin Wins Match At Triple A

Former Clay Court Singles Champion Defeats Dr. George Rice, 6—1, 6—0—Joe Werner Wins.

CROWD OF 500 SEES INAUGURAL PLAY

Joseph Armstrong of St. Paul Victor Over Woody Brown — Wray Brown Beats Weinstock.

Five hundred tennis fans attended the opening matches in the fourteenth annual National City Court Tennis Championship at the Triple A Club yesterday afternoon. With the leading stars of the country not yet present the opening contests were between St. Louisans and lesser known visitors. Joe Werner, former captain of the Princeton Tennis team, was the first St. Louisan to chalk up a victory, defeating Lucien More a former Triple A champion, 6—1, 6—3.

Edgar Tilton Jr., of New York, had the honor of scoring the first victory in the tournament. He defeated William Martin of St. Louis, 6—1, 6—4.

First and second round matches in the men's singles event will occupy the program for the first three days of the tournament, with the doubles and junior competition scheduled to start Tuesday. Ninety men are entered in the singles.

Twelve matches were completed in the first round. All of the favorites won their matches without difficulty.

Clarence J. (Peck) Griffin of San Francisco, former national clay court singles champion, was among the players showing their wares on the opening day. Griffin won his first round match, easily defeating Dr. George Rice of St. Louis, 6—1, 6—0.

Joseph J. Armstrong, St. Paul, advanced to the second round of play, defeating Woody Brown, brother of Wray Brown, Missouri Valley champion.

The two Oklahoma stars, William Luther and James Beattie arrived in time to play their first-round matches. Both men played a steady game and should make a good record in the tournament.

Detroit Players Wins.

Another visiting player who advanced to the second round was F C. Elwell of Detroit. He defeated William H. Bierman, local player and captain of the Washington University tennis team, in a three set battle. The score was 2— 7—5, 6—1.

Edgar Tilton Jr., of New Yor formerly a resident of St. Lou came through his opening rou singles by winning from Willia Martin Jr., the Country D School player. The first set w easy for Tilton but Martin made more difficult in the second.

Wray Brown, Joseph Wern and Fred Josties, local player won their first round matche Teddy Eggman, the East St. Lo champion, eliminated W. D. M Lain, Springfield, Ill., in straig sets.

Schlesinger to Play Here.

Tournament officials last nig announced that Robert Schles ger, member of the Australian D vis Cup team, will appear he playing in the singles and possi in the doubles.

Schlesinger is now at Indian olis and in a long-distance te phone communication last night assured local officials that would arrive here Monday mo ing.

William T. Tilden, natio champion, will also arrive Mond

Good Exhibition Match.

The match which brought the best tennis of the day was one of the scheduled contests, the exhibition doubles in wh the local stars, Karl Kamm and Wray Brown, opposed Jo Armstrong of St. Paul and Cl ence "Peck" Griffen, the Francisco ace. Kammann Brown won two of the three played, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3. Th were many sparkling rallies tured by brilliant shots on sides. Griffin and Armst seemed to be handicapped by lack of practice together, whil local stars were at the top of game.

Made-Over Cub Recruit Hurler Beats Cards, 6-2

Blake, Changed by Killefer From Sidearm to Overhand Flinger, Outpitches Pfeffer and Sherdel.

By Herman Wecke.

John Blake went to the Cubs last winter from the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League as a side arm pitcher. Bill Killefer did not like his style, and changed him over into an overhand flinger. Yesterday Killefer figured that Blake had progressed far enough, so gave him a chance to start his first major league contest. As events turned out, Killefer made no mistake, as Blake came through with a 6—2 victory over the Cardinals.

The made-over pitcher was rather easy to hit, being found for 11 safeties, and he was fairly wild, giving five bases on balls.

But he was able to bear down in the pinches and that Cardinal punch was in evidence in but one round, the fifth, when two passes and three hits produced two tallies. The locals had 14 men left on the bases.

Pfeffer and Sherdel Pounded.

Jeff Pfeffer started for the Rickeymen. For four rounds he was as good as Blake. Then three hits and a pass produced three markers and in the next round Pfeffer was out with Sherdel taking up the flinging burden for the Rickeymen. Between them the two Cardinal hurlers yielded 12 hits, which included two doubles, a triple by Blake and O'Farrell's homer, which started the scoring in the fifth.

The victory for the Bruins yesterday assures them of an even break in the series with the Cardinals. To date the Cubs have won 11 of the 13 games played between the two clubs.

After a hurling battle had been waged for four rounds, Pfeffer weakened to start the fifth. With a 0—2 count he tried to slip over a third strike on O'Farrell. However, the Cub catcher parked it in the right field bleachers. Then Blake walked. The next two batters were retired, but then trouble started anew and incidentally came close to depriving the Rickeymen of the services of their real ace—Rogers Hornsby.

Grantham started a smash toward right, which bounded against Hornsby's leg and rolled into left field for a double. When Blades fumbled Blake scored and Grantham went to third. Hornsby went down for the count and rolled over apparently in great pain. After a few minutes' rest he was able to resume play. Cotter then singled Grantham home with the Cubs' third run.

How Cardinals Scored.

The Cardinals' half also was productive. Cooney doubled for a starter, but was cut down trying for third. Then Flack, for Pfeffer, walked, as did Smith. Holm struck out, but Hornsby and Bottomley came through with hits and two runs were over.

With Sherdel pitching, the Bruins got busy after two were out in the sixth. O'Farrell walked and Blake showed that he was a batter as well as a pitcher by driving far over Holm's head in center for a triple, scoring his battery mate. Statz followed with a hit and Blake got over with the second run of the inning.

On Blake's three-bagger the Cardinals protested that the hurler failed to touch second. Freigau was so persistent that he finally was banished by Umpire Cy Pfirman. The argument ended as do all those in which players and an umpire are concerned—the arbiter had his way.

In the ninth, Statz's double, a sacrifice by Hollocher and Grantham's hit produced the sixth Cub run. The Cardinals filled the bases in their portion, but failed to score, Dyer, up for Vick, ending the clash with a roller to Hollocher.

Stuart to Pitch Today.

The fourth game of the series between the clubs will be played this afternoon, with Johnny Stuart and Elmer Jacobs as the probable pitchers. Grover Alexander has a bad hand and for that reason probably will not be called upon to labor. Play at 3 o'clock.

Mike Gonzales, Cardinal catcher, has a badly bruised hand and probably will be out of the game for several days. Meanwhile Charley Niebergall will do the receiving.

Wills-Wightman Team Captures Wimbledon Title

American Women Defeat Miss McKane and Mrs. Covell In Straight Sets.

By the Associated Press.

WIMBLEDON, July 5.——Two of the five classic Wimbledon championships were won by Americans today in the final day's play of the tennis tournament. Miss Helen Wills, the American singles champion, and her partner, Mrs. George Wightman, defeated the new Wimbledon singles champion, Miss Kathleen McKane, and Mrs. Covell, 6—4, 6—4. The other went to Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, who spent most of the afternoon wearing down their compatriots, R. Norris Williams and Watson M. Washburn, whom they finally defeated, 6—3, 3—6, 8—10, 8—6, 6—3.

The all-French final in the men's singles brought victory to the Basque youth, Jean Borotra, whose smashing, flawless net game carried him in triumph to the championship over his countryman, Rene La Coste. By such a game, he had defeated Vincent Richards earlier in the week. The score today was 6—1, 3—6, 6—1, 3—6, 6—4.

The mixed doubles title, the only all-British final, went to Miss Kathleen McKane and J. B. Gilbert, who defeated Mrs. Shepherd-Barron and L. A. Godfree, 6—3, 3—6, 6—3. Wimbledon's fifth title was decided yesterday when Miss McKane beat Miss Wills in the ladies' singles.

Atones for Earlier Defeat.

The American champion's victory this afternoon atoned in part for her loss of the singles. With Mrs. Wightman, the team captain, as partner, Miss Wills played sterling tennis during most of the match. The feature of the first set was the lengthy period of lobbing toward the end of the set, which proved eminently successful, as it was done with rare perfection and gave the American players four straight games and the set.

The second see-sawed to four-all; then Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman carried out a series of rallies, which, notwithstanding some erratic playing by Mrs. Wightman, ended in victory for the Americans.

The score by points:

First Set.

Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman—
1 10 4 2 4 2 4 4 4 4—6.
Miss McKane and Mrs. Covell—
4 12 0 4 1 4 2 2 2 2—4.

Second Set.

Miss Wills and Mrs. Wightman—
0 5 3 0 6 1 4 4 4 4—6.
Miss McKane and Mrs. Covell—
4 3 5 4 4 4 1 2 2 1—4.

In the men's singles, the acrobatic Borotra and the stylist La Coste, bobbed up and down all over the court through five sets. Then the "big four" of the American Olympic team, who did not prove so formidable as English critics thought they would be in the singles competition, took possession of

Miss Wills Undaunted By Defeat, Hopes to Win the Next Time

LONDON, July 5.

MISS Helen Wills, discussing her defeat in tennis singles at Wimbledon, has told the Evening News she will try again.

"I am disappointed but I gues I can find consolation in my age, as I have plenty of time to get better and try again," she said. "I can't say just how I lost my big lead yesterday. I enjoyed the game thoroughly most of the time and thought I was going to win.

"It hasn't taken me long to find my form over here. I am now playing every bit as well as I did in America."

PIRATES BEAT REDS BY POUNDING DONOHUE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, July 5.—Pete Donohue was driven from the mound in the fourth inning after the Bucs had jumped out to a big lead in the second round and the locals had no trouble annexing a victory, 11 to 4.

Stone, working for the Pirates, experienced one bad inning, the sixth, but he had such a big lead that the attack fell far short and he came through in the final innings unharmed. The locals rang up 14 hits for a total of 23 bases mostly against Donohue, but when Carl Mays appeared he stopped the hitting spree.

BABE RUTH INJURED CHASING A FOUL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 5—Babe Ruth was confined to his bed in the Raleigh Hotel tonight after the double-header with the Senators in which the big fellow was severely injured in the fourth inning of the first game after going after Joe Judge's foul.

At first it was not thought to be serious, but later after Ruth had gone to his room he sent a hurry-up call for Trainer Woods, being in great pain. A doctor had been called during the intermission between games at Griffith Stadium and he said he did not think the injury of a serious nature.

Ruth, who has been the fielding sensation of the present Washington-Yankee series, went after Judge's high foul in the fourth with two out and a man on third. He evidently misjudged the distance of the concrete wall that surrounds the right field bleachers. "Spark Plug" Matthews was on third. Ruth wanted to keep the Griffmen from scoring on Pennock and dashed against the concrete wall, missing the ball by a foot.

Sisler's Men Get 11 Hits but Fail to Give Wingard Any Runs

Lefthander Gives Only Two Hits After Relieving Lyons in Second Inning—Brilliant Support Saves Whitehill.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, July 5.—George Sisler and his Browns stepped out on Navin Field here today with high hopes of trimming the Detroit Tigers and by a victory placing themselves in third place among the American League leaders.

The hopes were blasted, for Whitehill, the Tiger pitching star, added another shutout triumph to his list by letting the Browns down, 3 to 0. It was his second shutout of the season and also gave him a record of allowing but one run in his last 27 innings of pitching.

Against Cleveland recently Whitehill worked a 1 to 0 game Against New York on his last start, he won, 2 to 1.

It was not that he tossed such remarkable ball today that he won, for St. Louis massaged his offerings for 11 safe smacks and the records show 12 Browns were left stranded.

Support Helps Whitehill.

In other words, Brownie batters were getting on base, but once there, they had no place to go, as Tiger fielders proved real demons at killing off scoring chances.

The Tigers were a long way from having their hitting clothes on, for the best the Tigers could do off Lyons was four hits in two innings and in the balance of the game but two hits were made off Wingard.

Distance hitting was absent, there being only a scratch triple by Heilmann and a double by Cobb.

How Runs Were Scored.

Though each team had many scoring chances in the early frames, Detroit alone took advantage of the opportunities. Right off the bat, the Bengals stood not upon ceremony but slipped over a sun in the opening round.

Burke started by smacking the first pitched ball to right for a base. On a great double play in which McMillan made a stellar catch of Cobb's liner, Tyrus and Burke were killed off.

Fothergill was in the way of a pitched ball and took first, going from there home when Tobin lost Heilmann's high fly in the sun, the hit going for three bases. Blue grounded out and this storm was over.

Back came those Tigers in the second inning for a pair of runs. After one was out, Lyons lost control and walked Jones and Woodall. Whitehill's infield out helped them along a base. Burke then stuck in his second hit of the game, a single over second base, which scored Jones and Woodall. Cobb doubled down the third base line. Wingard stepped into the box in Lyons' stead and caused Fothergill to lift an easy fly ball to Williams.

Whitehill's Whitewash.

WHITE SOX POUND FOUR INDIAN HURLERS TO WIN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago handed Cleveland another defat today, winning the third game of the series, 8 to 7. Red Faber hurled seven and one-third innings, allowing six hits; then weakened, and Connally finished, granting one hit.

Speaker employed four hurlers, Metevier, Cheeves, Clark and Roy, the Sox getting 13 hits. Bib Falk uncorked four successive hits, three being doubles, while Hooper got a double and two singles. Eddie Collins stole his twentieth and twenty-first bases.

A spit ball thrown by Faber in the fourth hit Jamieson on the right knee, putting the star slugger out of commission.

FRANK THOMPSON AGAIN WINS CANADIAN TITLE

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, July 5.—Frank Thompson of the Mississauga Golf club of Toronto, won the Canadian amateur golf championship for the second time today, defeating Ross Somerville of the London Hunt club, 3 and 1, in the final round.

Thompson was two up at the end of the 18 hole morning round but went of his game in the early stages of the final 18, and Somerville, playing brilliantly, squared the match at the fourth hole. He held his seasoned opponent until the fifteenth green when the strain proved too great and he lost three holes in succession.

EVERYTHING READY FOR OPENING OF OLYMPIC GAMES TODA

1430 Athletes Of 45 Countries Entered at Paris

U. S., With More Than 350 Representatives, Figures to Win Championship.

98 Sprinters Start Today in Sprints; 52 in 10,000 Meters

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 5.

NINETY-EIGHT sprinters will toe the mark tomorrow in trial heats of the 100-meter dash in a preliminary battle for the title which Charles Paddock won four years ago and which he will defend. This is the largest field in any of the opening Olympic events, the 400-meter hurdles drawing only 31 competitors and the 800-meter run drawing 69.

Fifty-two will make bids for distance honors in the 10-000-meter run, while in the field events 43 are slated to start in the high jump trials. Thirty-eight will compete for the final javelin honors.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, July 5.—The parading and ceremonies have been cleared off the official Olympic program; everything is ready for the actual competition in the eighth revival of the international championships which begin Sunday, July 6, with a variety of running and field events.

The Americans were seventeenth in the long parade today, following Esthonia and preceding Finland. There were 320 American athletes in the line which covered practically half of the stadium track and numbered nearly as many representatives as all of the athletes in the 16 nations which preceded the United States.

Cheer American Flag.

A tremendous ovation broke out from the stands as burly Pat MacDonald dipped the Stars and Stripes while his companion, Matt McGrath, another veteran Olympic hero, turned the standard bearing the words, "Etats Unis." There was a special cheer for Col. Robert M. Thompson, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, who had risen from his sick bed to take his place in the procession. After it was all over, Col. Thompson, wearied by his exertion, but still showing his characteristic enthusiasm, declared: "I never had a greater thrill than that cheer gave me as we went by the stands."

Great Britain, with 150 representatives, and France with 180 marchers, were the only divisions rivaling the United States in size, while three were rivals for the distinction of having the smallest delegation, Lithuania, China and the Philippines each with two athletes.

The American flag passed in front of the reviewing stand for a second time when the Philippines dipped their standard on which the Stars and Stripes topped their national colors.

The Latin-American nations also made an impressive appearance, Argentina having 72 marchers attired in neat blue and white uniforms closely resembling those worn by the North Americans.

Ancient Greece would undoubtedly have gaped incredulously at such an array of athletic excellence and international representation as the turnout for the 1924 games. Where they had tens of athletes at the ancient games of 25 centuries ago, they have hundreds today. Where different states participated on the plains of Hellas, 45 nations have sent whole teams to Paris for the struggles. Where the athletes traveled parasangs to reach the stadium in Greece, they traveled thousands of miles to reach Colombes village.

1430 Athletes Entered.

In all, 1430 athletes, representing nearly half a hundred countries, are eligible to compete for the championship—a mighty tribute to the growing worship at the shrine of physical supremacy.

As in every previous Olympic revival since the first one held in 1896 in Athens, the strong American squad, with more than 350 members, leads in numbers and excellence all the teams of the world. On any scoring system that can be devised, it figures to be returned victor—except possibly that where first alone would count—a system that will not apply at Paris.

Were firsts only to count, the Finns, as in 1920, might give us a rub, owing to the superb class of Paavo Nurmi, the wonderful middle and long distance runner who is entered in six events for Finland.

United States Victory Expected.

Americans expect to put across their victory not only through firsts, but through a great number of placed men. The United States team numerically outstrips that of any other country with the exception of France, which is holding the games. However, the United States will be at no disadvantage since only a limited number from one country (four in most cases) are permitted to start in any single contest.

America is expected to clean up in the three sprints, all the hurdles, both broad and high jumps, the pole vault, the hammer throw and the relay races. It has excellent chances to win the decathlon, pentathlon and marathon, and will undoubtedly be in scoring positions in every event on the card with the possible exception of the walks and some of the distance runs.

Barring accidents to the men, there seems no possible way of outcounting the American team.

Eight Days of Competition.

Eight days of continuous competition will be required to complete the running off of the actual contests, which close with the events of July 13, which will see the running of the marathon and the relay finals at 400, 3000 and 1600 meter distances.

It is probable that some of the events on the program of the 1924 games will not again be seen. A preliminary meeting of the Olympic Committee has taken up the advisability of dropping five events from the card, including the hop, step and jump, the decathlon, the 200-meter flat, the cross-country and the distance walk.

If the decathlon is to be abandoned after this year it will probably see Jim Thorpe's famous record established in 1912, at Stockholm, unbeaten forever more. Thorpe in that year won the pentathlon and later the decathlon, the latter with a grand total of 7675 points—a world record, although later wiped off the books when it was discovered that Thorpe had played professional baseball under an assumed name while attending Carlisle University.

Osborne, America's hope in the decathlon this year, cannot equal Thorpe's performance because he is not entered in the pentathlon. In the 10-event contest he came within 300 points of Thorpe's mark and with just a little improvement in a few events, might possibly surpass the now officially obliterated achievement of the Fox and Sac Indian.

First Day's Program.

The first day's program is as follows:

2 p. m.—400-meter hurdles and broad jump trials.

2:30 p. m.—100-meter trials.

3:15 p. m.—800-meter trials.

4 p. m.—100 meters flat (second trials).

4:30 p. m.—400-meter hurdles (second trials).

5 p. m.—10,000-meter race, final.

The sprint trials will attract the keenest interest owing to the famous names involved. If the track is right the Olympic record of 10 3-5 seconds is in real danger because Paddock, Scholz, Murchison, Abrahams and others are men of real quality. Abrahams recently equalled the world's record for 100 yards and may break up what appeared almost a four-place certainty for America. If Scholz, who ran the distance in 10 2-5 seconds in the Yankee tryouts is in the same form, no one is going to trim this great runner.

American should run one two in the 400-meter hurdles with Taylor winning. America is not expected to win from the great Scandinavian javelin throwers, but should score points. The same condition is expected in the 800 meters, unless Paavo Nurmi of Finland fails to run in this race. It is doubtful if Merediths' record of 1912 will be surpassed.

The 10,000 meters race is also conceded to Europe.

Senators Break Even With Yanks

Walter Johnson Loses to Pennock, but Marberry Outpitches Waite Hoyt.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Behind Marberry's good arm the Senators managed to win the second game and break even on a double-header with the New York Yankees here today.

Herb Pennock won from Walter Johnson in the first game, 2 to 0, Pennock allowing only six hits. Johnson was touched for 10 safeties. Marberry won the second, 7 to 2. Hoyt was unsteady and was found for four hits and two bases on balls in the first inning. Ruth went hitless in the second game.

The grandstands are capable of seating close to 4500 spectators. Their capacity is expected to be fully taxed when "Bill" Tilden, B. I. C. Norton, the Kinsey brothers and other stars perform.

Griffin Uses Peculiar Drive.

"Peck" Griffin, holder of numerous titles and with "Little Bill" Johnston, former national doubles champion, caused some comment among local tennis critics by the peculiarity of his forehand drive. Instead of employing hos whole arm in the swing, Griffin strokes the ball with a swing limited almost entirely to his forearm and wrist. This deprives him of some speed, but it conceals the direction of the shot until the moment of impact and makes his drive a very deceptive one.

The weather was ideal both for the players and the spectators, with just a faint freeze stirring, but one not strong enough to interfere with the playing. The courts, too, were probably in the best condition they have ever been in as a result of the careful nursing they have received for the last few weeks. The only unpleasant feature from the spectators' viewpoint was a rail which obstructed the vision of the boxholders. The offending rail was removed after the matches.

First Round Results.

Edgar Tilton Jr., of New York, won the first match of the tournament by defeating William Martin, St. Louis, 6—1, 6—4.

Henry S. Cushman, St. Louis, defeated Harold Davis, Springfield, Ill., 9—2, 6—4.

James Beattie, Tulsa, defeated Edgar A. Rice, St. Louis, 6-1, 6-2.

Fred O. Josties, St. Louis, defeated R. N. Skrainka, St. Louis, 6-0, 6-0.

Joseph J. Armstrong, St. Paul, defeated Woodward H. Brown, St. Louis, 6—0, 6—3.

Teddy Eggmann, East St. Louis, defeated W. D. McClain, Springfield, Ill., 6—2, 6—0.

Wray Brown, St. Louis, defeated Herbert Weinstock, St. Louis, 6—1, 6—0.

U. S. Polo Team Meets Argentines

Americans Can Clinch Olympic Title by Beating South Americans Today.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 5.—Argentina and the United States will meet tomorrow in the most important polo match of the Olympic tournament. Should the United States poloists win, they will clinch the championship, having won all four of their matches. If the Argentines win, they will have to defeat both France and Great Britain to attain the championship.

Great Britain defeated France today, 15 to 3.

The British poloists showed a much better game than in their match with the United States, but the experts predict certain defeat when they meet the Argentines.

BROOKLYN DEFEATS BOSTON BRAVES, 8-4

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass., July 5.—The Dodgers spanked the Braves 8 to 4 here today with Arthur Decatur holding the Tribesmen well in check and with the Brooklyns doing savage things to Jim Yeargin and Lou North. The batting of the top Dodger quarter was effective, as they bunched their blows. Dick Loftus, Concord, Mass., boy, played right field for the Dodgers and was given a diamond ring by his townies before the game. Tierney was in civies, bothered with a bad eye.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Burned Out.

NORMAN BROOKES, the hero of last week, couldn't come back in his match next day with Jean Washer, champion of Belgium. The veteran lacked reserve force to play two hard matches on succeeding days. That's the trouble with athletes past youthful prime—the reserves are all gone.

The veteran who keeps in condition is fairly good up into his forties. Knowing how to conserve his force and profit by stored-up experience and craft, he can make the younger fellow look foolish for a time.

But he can't come back if stung. In the grueling battle of a week, the late rounds find him exhausted and without resiliency.

In the fight game men like Tommy Gibbons, age 35, make a wonderful stand—until they are hit.

Then one good blow wrecks them. For a young man can take a staggering wallop, even be flattened to the canvas, and still come back; but up in the thirties this becomes impossible. The head refuses to clear quickly. The rebound is slower. The reserve power is slow in rushing to the seat of trouble.

For THERE ARE NO RESERVES!

In the meantime the veteran has been counted out.

Arteries and heart that go with 35 years are not the circulatory system of 20.

A Peel of Laughter.

THE soccer battle between Thomas W. Cahill and Peter J. Peel, which enters its second phase at Detroit, tomorrow and Tuesday, ought not to be taken too seriously.

In fact, it appears to be merely the venting of factional spleen against the man who built up the organization and who, up to the time that he was dismissed from the secretaryship for insubordination and inefficiency, had been a real and almost the sole prop of the organization.

The only serious feature about it is that Cahill, Samson-like, may pull down the temple pillars and wreck the structure he so painstakingly and (almost single-handed) built up in 11 years.

Betrayed by Own Faction.

ONE could hardly blame him. His present plight is due to a tragedy that involves betrayal at home and secret plotting and undermining abroad.

Cahill's St. Louis following plotted against him and destroyed him at the last meeting, electing Peter Peel over Cahill's candidate by a hair-line margin. This brought on the present situation by destroying Cahill's control. But for certain St. Louis votes, Peel could NOT have been elected.

Once Peel was in the saddle he fought Cahill at every turn and finally discredited him officially.

Charges Are a Joke.

BUT not actually. It was Cahill who launched the U. S. F. A. It was Cahill who kept it afloat. It was Cahill who fought to Americanize the game and its control in the United States; and it was Cahill who put $20,000 in the organization's treasury as surplus and it was Cahill who made American soccer famous in European countries for the first time.

To brand as inefficient the master mind merely shows the spleen behind the attack on Cahill.

No greater injustice has been done in American sport officialdom in a quarter century than the deposing of Cahill for truly paltry and almost despicably petty complaints.

Racing Tracks Conducted on Business Pla

C. Bruce Head, a Director Fairmount Club, Says "Charity Track" Would Fail.

"Racing today is as per baseball—a sport, yet an amusement and a big business which would be doomed to fail if sound business principles did not govern it throughout."

That is in substance the opinion of C. Bruce Head, owner of the Waldeck Stables and Altawood, the horse which "ran over" the field to finish fourth in the Kentucky Derby after a bad start.

Head, here to inspect the property of the Fairmount Jockey Club of which he is a director, laughed at the idea that racing should be put on a "charity" basis, with a group of sportsmen donating to make up an annual deficit incurred by a poorly managed track.

The Tanforan Case.

"The Kentucky Jockey Club, the most successful of all racing associations, is conducted on the business basis just as Fairmount will be," Head said. "The unsuccessful track, with a group of contributors, is represented by Tanforan at San Francisco.

"Headed by A. B. Spreckels, who died last Monday, a group of Francisco sportsmen conducted two meetings, which lost more than $150,000 each. With Spreckels' death, Tanforan is expected to close.

"While Tanforan is expected to die, the Kentucky Jockey Club's meetings are more successful than ever. Ten years ago, the Kentucky Derby wasn't worth $10,000; the derby of 1924 netted Mrs. Rosa Hoots $52,000, when Black Gold raced home a winner. In addition, it brought her the Jockey Club's $7000 Gold Cup, while Harry Webb, the trainer, was presented with a gold watch and J. D. Mooney, his jockey, gold spurs."

Supporting the statement that racing today is big business, Head explained that the Kentucky Jockey Club was incorporated for $3,000,000; that each year it spends from $300,000 to $400,000 on improvements, and that Col. Matt J. Winn, vice president and general manager, is held strictly responsible to his directors for the management and financial success of the track.

Character of Racing Changed.

As a director at Fairmount, Head promised to help bring the highest class of horses to this section. With the class of race officials to be brought here, Head predicted that Fairmount would attract the best stables in America.

"Racing today is not the racing of yesterday," Head contended. "I have seen many gatherings, but I have never seen a finer or more representative gathering of people than I saw at Churchill Downs last Derby Day" he commented. "There were 80,000 persons there—and I did not see one person intoxicated."

Head advocated a strong state racing commission to regulate the number of tracks in each state, to stabilize the conduct of each track and to prevent conflicting dates of race meetings. Kentucky has such a commission, the first state to have it; now New York and other states have followed.

Head will be one of the presiding stewards at Raceland "the new Saratoga of the West," which will open its first season of racing at Ashland, Ky., on July 10.

MEMPHIS RED SOX WIN FROM ST. LOUIS STARS, 3-1

The Memphis Red Sox easily subdued the St. Louis Stars yesterday in the second game of the series at Stars' Park by a score of 3-1. George Mitchell of the local team knocked a homer and Clay made a brilliant running catch. Two double plays were made, but numerous errors prevented the Stars from winning the game. Memphis stands fourth in the Negro National League.

The third and final game of the series will be played this afternoon.

The Chicago Giants are scheduled to appear here for a series of three games beginning tomorrow.

LADKIN BEATS MAD PLAY AND AGA KHAN IN FEATURE RACE AT AQUEDUCT

Belmont's Horse Wins, Eased Up, By Four Lengths

Proves Right to Title of Best Three-Year-Old In the East.

SANDE RIDES A WINNER

Young Martin Victor in Tremont Stakes, Ahead of Swope and Gold Beater.

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Ladkin proved his title clear to being the best of the 3-year-olds in the East at Aqueduct this afternoon. Picking up level weights with Mad Play, winner of the Belmont stakes, he took the track in the Dwyer stakes at one mile and a furlong and won, eased up, by four lengths.

Mad Play, thanks only to the riding of Sande, beat Aga Khan a length for the place, while Klondyke and Mr. Mutt, the other starters, staggered in beaten off.

Perhaps the best story of Ladkin's power can be told by the fractional times. He went the quarter in :23 2-5. The half in :46 2-5, six furlongs in 1:11 2-5 and the mile in 1:35 2-5.

"Burning gas" as he hit the stretch turn, he went wide past the middle of the track, and Mad Play, which chased him all the way, went too. Klondyke having moved up to third place, saved half a dozen lengths on the rail, but it did no good. Ladkin just went on by him and eased up in the final furlong.

Too Good for Mad Play.

Mad Play was a live horse today and ran right back to his race in the Brookdale handicap a week ago, but for all that he went wide and despite Sam Hildreth's opinion, he had no more chance to beat the winner than he had when Ladkin galloped to him in the Carlton stakes at one mile a fortnight ago. August Belmont was at the course to see Ladkin win and was congratulated on the latest triumph of his nursery study. Ladkin is by Fair Play—Lading, she by Rockand, the same strain that gave Man O' War to the turf.

John Madden's Young Martin with Sande in the saddle won the thirty-fifth running of the Tremont stakes at six furlongs, that was second interest to the Dwyer. Standing a hard drive from the head of the stretch home, he beat Swope, which won the great American stakes a week ago by a length with Gold Beater, the Farrell entry, favorite for the race, necks behind. Swope ran a particularly brilliant race. Under an impost of 130 pounds he gave 15 pounds to the winner, and after breaking from the outside, fought his way to a contending position at the quarter pole. From there he finished off Nicholas and was wearing the winner down with every stride.

Eleven in Parade.

This was the first time that two-year-olds were sent six furlongs and eleven of the best that have been shown paraded after a long delay. Voltaic jumped off in front with Nicholas second and Young Martin third, Noah fourth, and the other just plainly outrun. Sande slipped up on the rail at the main stretch turn and kept Young Martin in front to the end. Nicholas appeared to have a chance at the three-sixteenths pole but he tired and the closing rush of Swope finished him. The race was run in 1:13 4-5, the fraction being 23.47, 1:13 4-5. John Madden was enriched $7600 by the victory.

The meeting of Ladkin and Mad Play in what amounted to a battle for the three-year-old honors of the East attracted one of the largest crowds to the course although the weather was chilly and damp and rain threatened.

Wilbur C. Whitehead started the Saturday favorite players off on the right foot breezing to beat rather ordinary two-year-olds in the opening dash at five furlongs by half a dozen lengths.

El Kantara, considered the best of the subscription jumpers and quoted at 3 to 5 today failed his backers in the steeplechase. Isis, another subscription jumper was second. The race was won by Gasper a long shot. A poor ride by Jeff Cott brought about the defeat of El Kantara when he fell four jumps from home.

Isis also tired at the end and was beaten by Gasper, an English horse which came from far back to win by half a length in a drive. Incidentally a new record was set for the two-mile course, Gasper running it in 4:02, clipping one and three-fifths seconds from the mark set by Elkantara on June 25.

TEAMS OF EIGHT TO PLAY FOR WALKER CUP

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5. — When the American and British golfers tee up at the Garden City Golf Club in September for the Walker Cup competition there will be 10 on a side, eight of whom will play in the team match and two of whom will be "reserves." The Royal and Ancient Club recently wrote to the United States Golf Association asking its approval for that number and the national body agreed to the suggestion.

Befuddle Takes Latonia Oaks in Driving Finish

Passes Princess Doreen, Favorite, In Stretch and Wins by Short Lead.

By M. S. Trueblood,
Sports Editor, Cincinnati Times-Star.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LATONIA, Ky., July 5.—The green and white silks of Edward Riley Bradley, master of the Idle Hour Farm, were flashed to the fore, but only on a short head, when Befuddle, the best filly from that racing establishment, entered turf's Hall of Fame by winning the rich Latonia Oaks from a small but select field at Latonia.

Princess Doreen, the favorite, and early pace-setter, tired a trifle under a terrific drive, and finished second, while Laveen out-gamed Sun Spot, the only other starter, taking third money.

Befuddle established a new track record for the mile and a quarter when she ran the distance in 2:02 2-5, which is just one-fifth of a second faster than the time made by her stable companion, Busy Signal, which made the old mark in 1920. The pace was terrific, the first quarter being run in :23 2-5, the half was run in :47, the three-quarters in 1:12 1-5 and the mile in 1:37 4-5.

Col. Bradley was a happy man after the race, as it was in this particular event that Busy Signal established the track record several years ago and he was duly rewarded because of the $9,480 net he received for his filly's share of the purse and because of the fact that she took her place with the best three-year-old fillies in America and made her a contender for the championship in this respective class.

The Princess went to the front early and ran with Befuddle, Sun Spot and Laveen trailing in the order named. On the back stretch the Princess was running easy, in front by two lengths, and Befuddle was second, in front of Sun Spot, with Laveen last.

On the far turn Princess Doreen was urged somewhat by Jockey H. Stutts, but he found Befuddle in for a contest and the Princess' lead was cut down to one and a half length, while Befuddle was five lengths in front of Sun Spot, with Laveen still last.

At the head of the stretch Princess Doreen was going her best and Befuddle came with a rush and down the stretch they came with the Princess leading at the sixteenth pole by a half length. Once Befuddle was a nose in front 50 yards out. Lyke let out a few wraps and his mount came on to win by a short head, while the Princess hung on the last 70 yards. Laveen moved up to third place at the eighth pole when Sun Spot quit to nothing. The winner was second choice in the betting and paid $9.10 for $2.

Hawthorne's Race Meeting Profited Over $50,000 on First Two Days of Running

Betting at Track Is Negligible Due to Unfamiliarity with System and Failure to Establish "Line of Credit"—Intend to Make the Public Pay.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Ills., July 6.—Joseph A Murphy, who is seeking to lead Missouri horse racing out of the wilderness in which for 18 years it has been wandering, is pulling a Moses for turf followers right here in Chicago, by way of showing that he can qualify for the St. Louis job.

Laboring under adverse laws, Murphy has sent the revived racing game here to a fine start and a profit of over $50,000 net on the first two days of the 52-day schedule planned by the Chicago Business Men's Racing Association.

The first two days of the current meeting attracted an attendance of nearly 24,000 paid admissions which at $2.35 for ordinary days and $3.40 for holidays and Saturdays, brought the two-day gate revenue of the association to $60,000.

Between 50 and 75 philanthropists, ordinarily termed bookmakers, paid $90 a piece each day to help swell the Association's revenue, making $10,000 additional. The sale of privileges swelled a few thousand more, a total aggregate income of close to $75,000 the first two days of a nominally betless racing meet.

Deducting $25,000 for purses and operating expenses leaves a net profit of $50,000 which will more than pay for bedizening the ruin of the late "War Eagle" Ed Corrigan's long deserted race course.

Black Bread Comes Later

The first two days, however, represent the white bread. The association will begin to eat the black bread later, should the public tire of the long grind of 52 days, in the later stages of which only hard-boiled regulars, playing the game on the other fellow's money, will be found at the box office.

In the meantime the association has established beacon lights along the way, in the form of the Chicago Derby and other good stakes, to titillate flagging public interest.

Visitors to Hawthorne, who knew the old track were treated to a surprise and a shock. It was as if grandma had decided to bob her hair, cut 12 inches off her skirts, and go in for the fox trot. Paint does wonders for grandma's and race tracks. It has for Hawthorne. With the aid of paint, plus extensions to the grandstand a cottage club house, a bleachers for overflow patrons, concrete flooring and some fine new barns—one of which houses the game little Kentucky Derby winner, Black Gold, the course looks almost giddy. Old Ed Corrigan would foam at the mouth to see it dolled up in this fashion. For the master of Hawthorne was of the old hard-boiled type to whom a red necktie meant an invitation to fight.

Quarter Public Into Bankruptcy.

It's all changed now. Even the prices are changed. And Bo, a word in your ear. Don't come to Hawthorne without any change—at least, not anything less than a quarter. They quarter the public into bankruptcy. You waste your time picking over dimes and nickels here. The only thing a dime will buy at Hawthorne is a program. From hot dogs up to the price of a fare home, it is two-bits or no count.

More than a few in the holiday crowd Friday had not taken the precaution to consult the prices when they journeyed to the races. Many, after arriving, about faced and went home when informed that the general admission price was $3.40 for men and $1.75 for women. Talk about equal rights, a woman is only half a man, Hawthorne estimates.

The prevailing prices and the "take" at the first two days indicate that the Chicago Racing Association intends to make the public pay the price of the experiment of bringing back the sport of Kings and at this time it appears that Murphy has sold his racing proposition to Chicago.

The class of the attendance at Hawthorne on Independence day was far above that which prevailed around St. Louis during the "dog days" of the racing game in 1905.

Betting at Track Negligible.

Not one person wanted to borrow a pencil or asked to look at my program. There wasn't a drunk on the grounds, and the only stagger seen on the premises was the staggering price of corned beef sandwiches—25 cents and conduct your own search for the mustard.

On the train going to the track it was not so good. A parade of lipsters surged through the train aisles. One-armed gentleman sold shoe strings and chewing gum.

A deaf and dumb handicapper spread out a broad sheet on each passengers' knee guaranteeing you a $100 special or return your money if he failed to make good. The $100 special retailed for 10 bucks and there was no address given as to where to call for the refund.

The daily bugle's offering were tempting but unsound.

At the track, the amount of betting was negligible, due to unfamiliarity of the public with the system and the failure of the Hoi Polloi to establish a "Line of Credit."

The bookies were plentiful and willing, notwithstanding seven arrests made on opening day. What is a $10 fine to a bookie who pays $15 a race for the privilege of booking. One more name on the sucker list will make up for it.

How It is Accomplished.

The philanthropic bookies were evident, each with his helpers, forming a little group. The stranger going up to one would ask the price of a certain horse and get it. Then he would ask if the bookie would take a bet and he would not—until you had walked away with one of his subordinates and "established a line of credit."

This means either the transfer of money or an introduction by a responsible acquaintance of the bookie. However, money was tabu on the track. Also acquaintances who had bookmaking friends were few, thus most of the public had only a looking interest in the races, which may have accounted for the down-hearted cheering when some of the triple-platers flashed past the post, winners.

In the days to come the followers of racing will have made their bookmaking acquaintances. Then a nod or a paper slip will get you a bet, which will be cashed downtown or of the track. The race course authorities here would be horrified to learn of the transfer of filthy lucre on the result of hoss race.

The Police Judge, too, might be shocked anywhere from $10 to $25 worth, if you, as a customer, were caught slipping the coin to a bookmaker. So it is best, as usual, to hide all the shells.

Makes Favorable Impression.

It is one comfort to know that whereas, in Missouri, the offense of being caught making a bet or acting as stakeholder is a felony, in Illinois is is only a misdemeanor—of which there are more in Illinois than of any other thing, except hotel employes unable to understand the English language.

The Hawthorne plant as a whole makes a very favorable impression and Judge Murphy thoroughly understands the mechanics of conducting a racing meet. The affair is off to a good start. But we rather hold to the view that its future is in the laps of its attorneys—of whom one was in the stand throughout the program. Nothing like being prepared for a counter-attack.

GIANTS GET 14 HITS AND BEAT PHILS, 6-5

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The Giants defeated the Phillies, 6 to 5, in an interesting game today. The Phillies were outbatted, but only the brilliant support of the Giant outfielders saved the game for McQuillan, Young, Wilson and Meusel making sparkling catches. Ford hit a home run with two men on bases in the second.

Hennessey to Meet Tilden In Net Final

Indianapolis Youth Who Defeated Norton Also Eliminates Patterson of Australia.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 5.—With a continuation of the brilliant play that upset B. I. C. Norton yesterday Johnny Hennessey of Indianapolis swept into the finals of the Western tennis championships here today at the expense of Gerald Patterson, defeating the captain of the Australian Davis Cup team by scores of 4—6, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3.

Hennessey, who is a former Western champion, will play Wm. T. Tilden of Philadelphia for the title tomorrow. Tilden advanced to the finals today with a 6—3, 6—0, 6—0 victory over A. C. Chaplin Jr. of Hyannis, Mass.

Also Won From Norton.

Hennessey's victory over Patterson was even more spectacular than his defeat of Norton. Patterson's smashing drives and terrific service decided the first set, but in the fourth game of the second set Hennessey broke through the Australian's service for the first time and the tide turned at this point. As the match progressed Patterson grew more erratic while Hennessey's game continually improved.

In the semifinals of men's doubles Hennessey and Chapin defeated Lott and Gravem of Chicago, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2, while Patterson and Schlesinger won from Tilden and Weiner, 6—4, 8—6, 3—6, 6—3.

Miss Marion Leighton and Mrs. Leo Alter, both of Chicago, will meet in the finals of the women's singles as the result of victories today over Mrs. H. S. Adams, Indianapolis, and Mrs. I. W. Pugh, Indianapolis, respectively. Miss Leighton-Mrs. Alter will play Mrs. Ruth Riese, Saginaw, Mich., and Mrs. A. J. Stewart, Chicago, for the women's doubles title.

Leo Kurzrock, Indianapolis, and Thomas McGlyn, Philadelphia, will play for the junior championship.

U. S. F. A. MAY RECEIVE DEATH BLOW AT NATIONAL SOCCER MEETING

'Pro' Teams to Withdraw From Cup Competition

Loss of Revenue Would Seriously Embarrass If Not Disrupt National Body.

CAHILL-PEEL CLASH ON

Deposed Secretary Will Seek Vindication and Will Oppose President Peel's Re-election.

By Dent McSkimming.

An interesting struggle within the ranks of the United States Football Association (the governing body of soccer in America) is expected to enliven the annual meeting of the organization at Detroit, Monday and Tuesday. Some happenings expected are:

The probable withdrawal of the American Soccer League (east) and the St. Louis Soccer League from the United States Football Association cup competition.

A fight to bring about the removal from office of Peter J. Peel, now president.

An endeavor to obtain vindication on the part of Thomas W. Cahill, former honorary secretary, who was removed by Peel last April.

By far the most important of these steps as far as the life of the United States Football Association is concerned is the proposed withdrawal from the cup competition. The only appreciable source of financial support the national body has is the cup competition and neadly 90 per cent of the revenue derived from this series has come from games played by teams which are members of either the American League or the St. Louis League.

Ouster of Cahill Costly.

Cahill's removal from office by Peel has served to hasten the formation of an allegiance between the two large professional leagues. Soccer men believe that the amalgamation of the professional circuits would have come within a few years regardless of the Cahill-Peel fued, but it is quite evident that when the U. S. F. A. fired Cahill, it hastened the step.

It is not the plan of St. Louis or American League leaders to secede from the U. S. F. A. They have made formal application for separate recognition and they have announced their intention to withdraw from the cup series. They have under consideration a plan for their own cup series which will be known as the professional soccer championship series and this plan will deprive the U. S. F. A. of all revenue heretofore delivered, except annual dues.

Thus, although the professional organization will not attend the meeting bent upon wrecking the U. S. F. A., it remains evident that the plan which they propose to adopt will very effectually cripple the major governing body.

The reason for the proposed withdrawal of the major professional clubs from the U. S. F. A. cup competition is that they have all experienced financial loss and embarrassment to their schedules by playing minor amateur clubs in the cup series. It is to get clear of the minor matches which entail losses that the all-professional national circuit is being evolved.

Cahill With American League.

Cahill, the deposed official, is now secretary of the American Soccer League and in all preliminary negotiations between the St. Louis League and the American League have been in complete harmony.

Had the U. S. F. A. retained Cahill as its secretary, it is believed that he would have taken steps to avert this withdrawal of the professional teams.

It is difficult to see how the U. S. F. A. can maintain its position as the governing influence in soccer if it is bereft of the revenue which the big professional clubs have in the past contributed through cup games.

The following figures disclose the importance of the "gate" from the big professional clubs last season which will, under the new plan, be lost to the U. S. F. A.

U. S. F. A. share from all national cup games	$15,873.96
From games in which American League teams participated	6,443.00
From games in which St. Louis League teams participated	6,746.02
Total, St. Louis and American League	13,289.02
U. S. F. A. share from all other cup games combined	2,594.94

Cahill to Seek Vindication.

Cahill will attend Monday's meeting at Detroit and it is expected that he will seek vindication. It is not unlikely that Cahill will lead a move to elect a new president of the U. S. F. A.

The ousting of Cahill was actually done by the National Commission, which is composed of President Peel, Chairman Andrew Brown and Treasurer Richard Haddock. It was charged that Cahill had been guilty of incompetence and insubordination and Peel charged that Cahill theatened him with a knife during a meeting following the national final game at St. Louis last March. Cahill has denied that he drew a knife on Peel.

St. Louis' Representatives.

St. Louis will be represented at the Detroit meeting by Winton E. Barker, president of the St. Louis Soccer League and former vice-president of the U. S. F. A.; Phil J. Riley, treasurer of the St. Louis Soccer League, and Harry J. McCarthy, manager of the Vesper-Buick Club of the local league. Barker is also president of the Missouri-Illinois State Association.

Soccer salaries in the United States are mounting as a result of the financial success enjoyed by the backers of the clubs composing the American Soccer League in the East and the St. Louis Soccer League, the two large professional bodies.

Manager Tate Brady of the Scullins has opened negotiations with two star eastern players, both recently imported from Scotland. One of the men replied to Brady's offer with a counter offer, asking for $250 a month for the full year and a bonus of $600 for signing.

This figure of $3600 is in excess of any salary paid to a St. Louis played at present. Brady will endeavor to reach a compromise figure.

Beresford Wins Diamond Sculls

Mellen, American Oxford Student, Strokes Leander Crew to Victory.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England, July 5.—The Leander eight, stroked by W. P. Mellen, American student at Oxford won the Grand Challenge Cup of the Henley Regatta today, defeating Jesus College, Cambridge, in the final heat by six feet.

The Diamond sculls were won by J. Beresford Jr., who captured them in 1920. He was defeated by Walter M. Hoover, the American oarsman in 1922 and failed last year to get to the finals. He had an easy victory today in the final heat over K. N. Craig, of Pembroke College, Cambridge.

AUSTRALIAN DAVIS CUP PLAYERS DEFEATED BY COLLEGE CHAMPIONS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer, both of Texas, intercollegiate doubles champions for 1923, defeated Pat O'Hara Woods and Fred Kalms, members of the Australian Davis cup team, 8—6, 6—3, 12—10, in the final double round of the Nassau Country Club invitation tennis tournament at Glen Cove, L. I., today.

The combination of Thalheimer's steadiness and White's spectacular offensive proved too much for the Australians. Hard, accurate service was the Americans' most effective weapon on the attack.

Wood bore the brunt of the opposition's slashing style of play but was unable to compensate for Kalms' defensive weakness.

KATE HALL VICTOR IN FREE-FOR-ALL PACE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORTH RALDALL, CLEVELAND, O., July 5.—Outspeeding Hal Mahone in the two fastest miles paced this season, Kate Hal, owned by Ed Jackson, Toronto, won the free-for-all pace, feature of the get-away Grand Circuit card here today. The mare got away on top in both miles, and was never headed, staving off Marvin Childs' Omaha-owned gelding "Challenge" in the stretch to win the first heat in 2:02 2-5 and the next a second faster.

Hal Mahone was the only one of the field which could get close to the mare, and was only beaten by a neck in the two miles. With Kate Hal ruled out in the consolation, Hal Mahone took that mile easily in 2:04 3-5.

Australia to Give Yale Real Fight

Murray Bridge Crew Has Won "Down Under" Title Last 2 Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Probably the most formidable opponent which the Yale crew will encounter in the Olympic regatta at Paris will be the Murray Bridge eight from Australia. The famous Leanders of England also will have to be reckoned with, but if the Australians are all that they are reported to be, the Elis will have to be in the phenomenal form they showed in the Olympic tryout final on the Schuylkill River to retain the title for the United States.

The Murray Bridge crew is a veteran outfit composed of the pick of the sweep-swingers from "Down Under." It has won the Australian championship for two years. Murray Bridge was seen in the Olympics for the first time at Stockholm in 1912, and was beaten by less than half a length. A correspondent at Sydney, N. S. W., says that this year's Murray Bridge eight is a far stronger combination than that of 1912, and that it will take an extraordinary crew to send the Antipodeans home beaten.

The same correspondent says: "Australia ought to do well in the swimming events. Charton, the 17-year-old sensation, who was unknown a little more than a year ago, may break records at Paris. We think he will beat your Weissmuller. Charlton has done 220 yards, with only one turn, in 2:23:3-5, 440 yards in 5:11:4-5, and 880 yards in 10:51:4-5. Beaurepaire, Henry, Christie and Stedman, all great swimmers, have gone with Charlton. This team can beat 2:26 for the 800-meter team race."

PLAN TO TAKE MOVIES OF OLYMPIC TRACK FINISHES ABANDONED

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 5.—The plan to take slow moving pictures of the finishes of track races in the Olympic games, which was recommended by several American officials was abandoned as impractical. A proposal to restore the Greek system of throwing the discus was rejected.

The federation selected track and field officials for next week's games, including nine Americans. They are William C. Prout of Boston, chief judge of track finishes; Joseph MacCabe of Boston, marshal; Matthew P. Halpin, New York, judge of the throwing events; E. F. Schaefer, Buffalo, judge of the jumping events; Albert Geiger of Boston and William Humphreys of San Francisco, co-timers; John Hallahan, announcer; John O'Hugh of New York, starter, and F. W. Rubien of New York, member of the track and field jury.

The international organization discussed point scoring, declining to indorse the French system of scoring 10 points for first.

Injury Fails to Keep Nationals' Leader on Bench

Stanley Harris Is in Game Every Day With Chip Off Right Ankle Bone.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Stanley Harris, second baseman and manager of the Washington club, is playing with a chip off the right ankle bone. He was out of the game several days and during that time his club lost four straight games to Cleveland. He took the brace off his foot and went back to play. The club then started winning and after cleaning up the Yankees took first place and held it ever since.

Harris said today he didn't expect to take his injured ankle to the hospital until after the American League flag had been won or lost.

A few years back Harris was playing for the Buffalo Internationals. Clark Griffith sent a scout to see him. The scout watched him for several days, and was unable to make up his mind. He didn't like the way Harris threw.

Played With Broken Finger.

He wired Griffith, then manager of the club, to come and see for himself. Griff led his club and watched Harris. He wasn't satisfied from his point of observation and went down to the Buffalo bench. He found Harris was throwing with his third finger strapped to the second. The injured finger was badly swollen.

He bought Harris on the spot. And the next day Harris joined the Senators in New York and went in at second. He played a good game despite his handicap. But on returning home the Senators' club doctor looked at the injured finger and found, through X-ray, that the bone was broken. Harris was ordered off the field immediately. But he didn't want to go. He said the finger had all winter to heal. But Griffith was boss then.

Harris displayed enough nerve to make a hit with Griffith and the Old Fox kept a close eye on his hopeful.

"Harris displayed such good baseball sense and such a fine fighting spirit from the very first that I couldn't help from hoping that he would turn out to be the fellow I was looking for to eventually manage and make a success of the playing end," said Griffith.

Is a Great Manager.

"My judgment of him is confirmed. He is a great manager right now and he will be a greater manager, naturally, after he has had more experience.

"I groomed him for the management with that idea in mind. I made him boss of the infield as soon as he had won a regular berth. Last year he was captain of the team. I hardly expected to make him manager this year, but things broke in such a way that I had to name a new manager and after long consideration I put the job up to him. I was afraid he was too young and that the extra responsibility would weigh too heavily and lessen his work in the field.

"But my fears were not confirmed. Harris has played even better ball considering the odds against him with his injury. He is one of the gamest boys I ever have known."

Griffith has taken great pains with Harris in the last few years. He has gone over with him after games, plays that were made right or were made wrong. Harris has been the pupil and Griffith the teacher. Now he believes he has his managerial problem solved for a long time. He anticipates no more of these every-winter changes.

BARR IS WINNER OVER WATERS IN FINAL OF GULF STATES TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 5. — John Barr, Dallas, Tex., yesterday won the singles championship of the annual Gulf States open tennis tournament by defeating Arthur C. Waters, New Orleans, the defending champion, in the final match in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4 and 7—5.

Gillespie Stacy of Austin, Tex., and Barr remained in the running for the doubles title by beating Edgar T. Morris and Wallace Westfeldt of New Orleans in the third round, 6—4, 6—4.

Miss Gwendoline Peters, New Orleans, won the women's singles title by defeating Mrs. J. W. Reilly, New Orleans, in the final, 6—1, 6—3. Mrs. J. W. Reilly beat Mrs. Gillespie Stacy, Austin, Tex., in the semifinals, 6—4, 1—6, and 6—2.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie Stacy, Austin, Tex., qualified to meet Murray and Mrs. Reilly today in the final match of the mixed doubles as a result of their victory yesterday over Miss Peters and Mills Newton, New Orleans, 2—6, 6—1 and 6—4.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE TO MEET IN NET CUP FINAL

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 5. — England and France will play the finals of the European Zone Davis Cup tournament, on July 26, 28 and 29. The matches will be contested at Eastbourne.

GOLF by J. Roy Stockton

Medal vs. Match Play

ST. LOUIS golf galleries, which were so large as to be unmanageable during the national open championship at the Country Club in 1921, will have an opportunity to compare a big match play tournament with a medal play competition when the Missouri open is held here Sept. 27 and 28. The Country Club has been announced as the scene of the tournament, though details of the financial arrangement are yet to be settled.

The tournament also will be an innovation in St. Louis in that it will be the first tournament here with an admission charge. Spectators will be tagged at $2 a day, the revenue being used to furnish the money prizes for the professionals, cups and medals for the amateurs and to defray the club's expenses in preparing the course for competition and in cleaning up after the hordes have tramped over the sleek fairways.

All the Stars Coming.

IT will be a tournament which compares with the best open events in the country. Walter Hagen, British open champion; Cyril Walker, 120-pound American open champion; Gene Sarazen, P. G. A. title-holder; Joe Kirkwood, the Australian trick shot artist; MacDonald Smith, the Californian—in fact, all the professionals worth while will be here.

Many persons prefer the match play tournament. You can see a great deal more in such a competition. Interest increases with each round until the two surviving stars meet in a final.

A person watching a medal play tournament is like a child picking berries. He scurries here and there, fearful lest the juiciest berries, the more brilliant match, is somewhere else. He may scamper over the hills all day and still miss the finish of a round in which some star cracks the course record with a string of birdies.

The Gallery Problem.

IT will be interesting to see how galleries are handled. In a match play tournament there are two galleries for the semifinals and one for the final. There may be a dozen scattered, constantly shifting galleries during each day's play in the Missouri open. The officials in charge will have their hands full. No wonder the Country Club wants a bit of the profit. It takes real civic spirit to turn over such a beautiful course to be overrun with wild galleries, even if they are made a trifle less wild than usual by a tax of $2 per nut per day.

Stickler for Rules.

"THERE'S a good reason for my knowing the golf rules," said Lawson Watts, finalist in the Missouri State and Trans-Mississippi tournaments, in a discussion of the general disregard of the code during recent competitions here.

"I played in numerous Eastern interscholastic tournaments and the players claimed a hole every time you broke a rule. One day I picked up a twig near my ball and carelessly tossed it into the air. 'You lose the hole for that,' my opponent said.

"I objected, contending that the twig had been within a club's length of my ball. 'Yes,' agreed my opponent. 'But when you picked up the twig you also pulled up three blades of grass. You can't remove anything growing.'

"He was right and I lost the hole. I was very careful thereafter not to pick up grass with twigs."

Questions and Answers.

Q.: In a handicap tournament A and B play their match, both under the impression that they played from scratch. After the match, which A won, one up, B said he believed he should have had a stroke handicap, but he wasn't certain. He later found he should have had a stroke. Should match be replayed?

A.: It was up to B to know his handicap, and through his neglect he forfeited his right to a replay. The match should stand as played. This question has been decided many times by the appeal boards of golf.

Q.: A man I play with frequently shoots into the rough. He bends trees out of his way, chops away clumps of weeds and takes practice swings to chop down the rough. What should I do?

A.: Murder him and find a new playmate.

Q.: A new member in our club plays 18 holes in about 120 strokes and wants to play in our tournaments. How shall we handicap him?

A.: Don't handicap him or let him play in tournaments. You saw him first.

the center court to get what consolation they could from an all-American doubles final.

It was not brilliant tennis to start with, but improved as the match progressed. Hunter netted three returns from his service and double-faulted, to lose a love game at the opening of the match. Williams was the weaker of the other pair and could not get the range; most of his fast ones overshot the base line.

Not Brilliant Tennis.

Hunter and Richards took the first at 6—3, and Williams and Washburn the second with the same count, and by much the same sort of tennis. Without the question of nationality being involved the crowds were waiting to applaud tennis on its merits but it was the middle of the twenty-third game before the Olympic competitors staged a rally that brought rousing applause from the crowded terraces.

After that the contest improved, and the British spectators were given a fine example of bulldog characteristics. Each pair held on like grim death for points. The powerful Hunter and the youthful Richards stuck to Williams' rocket shots and worried Washburn until even his traditional steadiness began to be shaken just a little, which was sufficient for the others to win.

Five of the nine games in the fifth set went to deuce. Hunter, serving in the ninth, took the count of 40—15, and double-faulted. He then sent one of his fast ones over the line. Williams and Washburn netted one each, and the match and the Wimbledon doubles title went to Richards and Hunter.

Susanne Lenglen watched the matches throughout the afternoon. She says she is well enough to enjoy the game as a spectator. It is not certain, however, that she will be able to compete in the Olympics, her doctors not having decided that point yet.

Joe Bush Asserts Yanks Must Beat Tigers to Repeat

Cobb Has Fighting Outfit, While Young Pitchers Have Come Through.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Joe Bush, crack pitcher of the Yankee, has a wholesome respect for Ty Cobb and his battling mates.

"If we are to win the American League pennant," says Bush, "the Tigers will be the combination we will have to defeat. Cobb has a hustling group of players who are on their toes every minute. Honestly, it is one of the 'fightinest' clubs in the league.

"The young pitchers Cobb has have been delivering wonderfully and if they keep it up will carry the team on through the thick of the fight. When "Dutch" Leonard gets back in togs, Cobb will have another star flinger, if the southpaw has not lost any of his old effectiveness."

Old Punch Missing.

Bush was asked why the Yankees have been going badly for the past few weeks. The team that was expected with its corps of five seasoned veteran pitchers and hard-hitting infielders and outfielders to virtually walk away from the rest of the league is having its own troubles.

"We don't seem to be able to get started," said Bush. "The old punch isn't there when it is needed and the pitching has not been up to the standard of last year. However, we are not to be counted out. When we start hitting and getting the pitching, the team will get out in front and stay there, with plenty to spare.

"Detroit will bother us, but outside of the Tigers we haven't much to worry about. The Red Sox made a gallant start, but have been unable to keep it up. The rest of the teams shouldn't occasion us a lot of trouble when the race gets real warm."

Pilgrim Meets Zion.

Pilgrim and Zion are scheduled to play this afternoon in the opening game of the Concordia League double-header at St. Louis U. Athletic Field with Dandes and Amelung as the rival hill men. Bethany and Bethlehem, with Ellersieck and Engler as the pitchers, clash in the second game. Play at 1:30 o'clock.

Firpo Sails for U. S. to Prepare For Wills Bout

Argentine Says He Will Accept No Advice in Training for Fights Hereafter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUENOS AIRES, July 5.—Several hundred admirers were at the dock Thursday to say farewell to Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, who sailed for New York aboard the American Legion to prepare for his fight with Harry Wills.

Firpo is accompanied by a retinue consisting of a secretary, private cook, sparring partner, business agent and publicity man.

Juan Homs, the agent here for Tex Richard, who spent nearly three months persuading Firpo to return to the ring, also sailed.

The Argentine heavyweight declared he did not intend to engage a trainer in the United States. He was not sure that he would even engage American sparring partners, relying upon his own ringmate, who is popularly known here as "Firpito" owing to his resemblance to Luis Angel. Firpo's private cook, who is also a good boxer, will be used as sparring material.

Firpo is taking his own cook along in order to insure that his food will be prepared in the Argentine style to which he is accustomed.

"This time," declared the South American battler, "I am not going to accept advice from anybody but myself. I am going to be the architect of my own fortunes. Knocking out Wills will be the least of my troubles. What'll trouble me more will be people who want to tell me what to do and how to do it."

Regarding his plans after the Wills fight, Firpo said they were uncertain.

DR. ALTHAUS VICTOR IN RIVERVIEW TOURNEY

Dr. Carl J. "Dutch" Althaus won first prize in the Riverview flag tournament, planting his flag at the twenty-first hole. Peter Anderson Jr. was second, five yards behind Dr. Althaus and J. B. Horan was third, a few yards behind Anderson. William Soderman and Elmo Holke tied for fourth, 200 yards past the twentieth tee, and E. R. Evans got the booby prize, just reaching the twentieth tee.

LAMB LEADS BATTERS IN WESTERN LEAGUE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 5.—A sensational batting streak that produced 18 hits in six games drove Lamb of Tulsa to the top of the Western League batters with an average of .401, a jump in percentage from .377. Austin of Tulsa, the leader a week ago, dropped into a tie for second place with Cullop of Omaha with .394. Dunning of Wichita is third with .387.

Boards in the fences received a terrific jolting in the attack that produced the new leader. An indication of Lamb's clouting is gained from two baggers alone, not counting his other long distance blows. He has connected with 46 to date, making eight in six games.

Washburn of Tulsa slammed out five home runs within a week, giving him 22 for the leadership. Davis, his teammate, connected with a pair, shooting his total up to 19. Cullops added two four-base drives to his collection and his teammate, Robinson, three. Incidentally, Washburn crossed the plate 13 times, which gives him 93 runs.

Other leading batters: Lelivelt, Tulsa, .384; Miller, St. Joseph, .373; Robinson, Omaha, .367; Davis, Tulsa, .363; Washburn, Tulsa, .355; O'Brien, Denver, .354; Gingiardi, Denver, .348; Falk, Denver, .346; Demaggio, St. Joseph, .345.

SMITH OF ATLANTA IS SOUTHERN LEADER

CHICAGO, Juy 5.—Smith of Atlanta, batting leader of the Southern Association, pulled away to a 22-point lead over Lapan of Little Rock, increasing his average to .387. Lapan is grimly hanging on with .365, with Carlisle of Memphis third with .361.

Anderson of Chattanooga grabbed the long distance hitting honors from Paschal of Atlanta by adding two circuit clouts to his string, which gives him 12 to 11 for Paschal.

Marriott of Mobile has become quiescent on the paths and was able to add but one to his string of 28.

Other leading batters: Guyon, Little Rock, .359; Paschal, Atlanta, .358; Burrus, Atlanta, .354; Barber, Memphis, .352; Taryan, Memphis, .352; Williams, Mobile, .351; Stewart, Birmingham, .346; Tucker, New Orleans, .333.

Jack Dempsey Will Not Defend Title This Year

Tex Rickard, Making Announcement, Says He Speaks With Kearns' Sanction.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Definite announcement Jack Dempsey will not enter the ring this year in defense of his title was made today by Promoter Tex Rickard, after a series of conferences with Jack Kearns, the champion's manager. Rickard's pronouncement confirms reports circulated concerning the title-holder's plans since the promoter signed Harry Wills, New Orleans negro heavyweight and Luis Angel Firpo, South American championship aspirant, to box in his Jersey City bowl Aug. 30.

In making the announcement Rickard said he spoke with Kearns' sanction and explained that conditions are unfavorable for a heavyweight title bout before 1925. Rickard added that Dempsey would not defend his crown before late next June or early next July. The winner of the Firpo-Wills battle will be matched with Dempsey in June, 1925, according to present plans, he stated.

Regarding the reasons for keeping Dempsey on the shelf for another year, Rickard said:

"I expect to hold the Wills-Firpo bout on Aug. 30 or a date around that time. Dempsey will be busy with moving picture work, Kearns has informed me, until some time in August. It would be unreasonable to ask Dempsey to prepare himself for the defense of his title in a few weeks' time. By the same token, it would be impossible for Firpo or Wills, after a hard struggle as late as Aug. 30, to resume training immediately for a contest that could not safely be scheduled later than the second week of September."

BRIEF TAKES LEAD IN ASSOCIATION RACE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 5. — The sensational ascent of Neun of St. Paul apparently has come to an end as the St. Paul flyer, after leading the American Association batters almost since the start of the season, today is batting third with an average of .390. Bunny Brief of Kansas City moved to the top with .420, while Dressen of St. Paul slid into second place with .404.

Neun's base stealing proclivities were numbered during the week and he was only able to add one. However, his total of 27 puts him so far in the lead that he can afford to take things easy so far as the record is concerned.

"Reb" Russell of Columbus took a fresh grip on the ash and is rejoicing in 13 home runs. Smith of Louisville added two for a total of nine, the same number hung up for Brief and Kirke of Minneapolis.

The race between Neun and Christensen, also of St. Paul, for scoring is as fierce as ever, with Christensen showing the way with 77. Neun has counted 76 times.

Other leading batters: Shannon, Louisville, .359; Maguire, Toledo, .357; Allen, Indianapolis, .349; Brooks, Columbus, .347; Russell, Columbus, .345; Christenbury, Indianapolis, .337; Dixson, St. Paul, .337.

LEADERS MEET TODAY IN HORSESHOE LEAGUE

The league leading Southwest Nash team and the second place Buster Browns will meet in the feature match of the season in the Municipal Horseshoe League at the Fairgrounds this morning. The Nash team is leading by six full games.

The Gus Klemmes, who are but nine games out of second place, have a chance to gain on the leaders, as they are scheduled to meet the tailend Fairgrounds.

The Lucido Qualitys and Marcus Avenue Horseshoe Club will meet in the other match.

The standing of teams:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Southwest Nash	104	40	.722
Buster Browns	98	46	.680
Gus Klemmes	89	55	.616
Marcus Av. H. S. Club	54	90	.375
Lucido Qualitys	47	97	.320
Fairgrounds	40	104	.277

DUCRET WINS OLYMPIC FENCING CHAMPIONSHIP

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 5.—M. Ducret, present champion of France, yesterday won the Olympic individual foils championship by taking all of the six matches in the finals. M. Cattiau, three times champion of France, won second place, being defeated only by Ducret. Van Damme, the Belgian left-hander, was third. He was defeated by both Ducret and Cattiau. While only two places count, Larras of Argentina, classified for fifth, winning two and losing four of his matches.

Miss Ellen Ossier of Denmark won the women's Olympic championship. Miss Gladys Davis of Great Britain was second and M. Crete Hechsher of Denmark was third.

28 TEAMS ENTERED IN GIRLS' SHUTTLE RELAY

Because of the interest shown by some of the playground and school athletic organizations already entered in the annual girls' relay shuttle race to be held at Sportsman's Park July 17 in connection with the Tuberculosis ball game, the relay race committee has decided to permit more than one team to enter from each organization. This information was given out yesterday by William F. Yorger, chairman of the committee.

Twenty-eight teams are entered in the race thus far. This number is expected to be doubled by the time for closing the entries, July 14. Organizations which have entered teams are the following playgrounds: Blow, Buder, Fairmount, Mullanphy, Fox, Murphy, Franz, Carnegie, Pontiac, Carr, Franklin, Reddeck, Columbus, Laclede, Soulard, Dakota Leffingwell, Yeatman, De Soto, Lyons, Fairgrounds, Manchester, St. Louis Park, Sherman, Marquette and O'Fallon and University City Municipal playgrounds and Soldan High School.

Rules of the contest are that the competing teams shall have six members each, under 16 years of age and less than 62 inches in height. Each team must have its own leader. The race will be a tag relay and the distance covered will be 50 yards. The three teams finishing first will be presented with gold and silver prizes. Gold pencils will go to the members of the team winning first place, sterling silver pencils to the girls of the team winning second place, and silver pencils to those in third place.

Miss Browne to Try "Come Back"

Coast Tennis Star Will Again Compete in National Title Event.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Miss Mary Browne of California has heard the call of the courts again and is coming from California shortly to begin serious preparation for another bid for the national tennis championship she held in 1912 and 1913. It is to be her second "comeback" effort in three years and she is in hopes it will be more successful than the first, which just missed regaining the title for her.

It was in 1921, after an absence of eight years from national title competition, that Miss Browne invaded the courts of the East in a championship effort. It was the same year that Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, another Californian and another former champion, came East for the same purpose. Both did very well indeed, everything considered. Mrs. Bundy made a valiant fight in the semifinal against Mrs. Mallory, but found the latter too strong for her physically. Miss Browne reached the title round, threatened seriously for a set and a half, flashing all her former sensational volleying and playing with consummate skill, but, like Mrs. Bundy, Miss Browne eventually was forced to bow to greater stamina and her title bid just failed.

Since then Miss Browne has confined herself more or less to golf, at which game she has made great strides.

This time she is bringing with her Miss Ethel Sutton, a younger sister of the former American titleholder, who is said to possess excellent tennis possibilities. Mrs. Dudley is a third member of the coast delegation.

Miss Browne has sent in her entry for the national championship, which will be played at Forest Hills, beginning Aug. 11.

Miss Helen Wills, present titleholder, who will return from the Olympic games championship play in time to compete in the United States nationals, will give the Forest Hills tournament a decided Pacific coast atmosphere.

JOHN EVERS SUSPENDS HURLER BLANKENSHIP

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Ted Blankenship, Chicago American pitcher, has been indefinitely suspended by Manager Evers and has returned to his home in Oklahoma with slight probability of returning. In his last appearance three men faced him. One walked and the other two hit safely. After being removed, Blankenship is said to have resented Evers' mention of his exhibition and threatened to attack him.

Sharkey May Box Renault July 21

Recent Conqueror of Floyd Johnson Looks Like a Real Prospect.

By Fairplay.

(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, July 5.—Jack Renault is going to fight someone at the Queensboro A. C. in Long Island City on July 31.—Jack has signed papers and says he does not care what opponent Simon Flaherty selects. Jack Sharkey of Boston, the "new John L. Sullivan" who gave Floyd Johnson such a pasting recently, may be the man selected. Everyone who has seen this husky youngster says he will bear the closest scrutiny.

Just now various promoters are holding verbal bouts with one another in an effort to arrange a satisfactory date for the Tunney-Carpentier battle.

Jimmy Johnston, promoter of the projected combat, simply cannot hold this fight upon the night named by the Athletic Commission, July 24. The Giants play at the Polo Grounds that day and when they get through with a rival team the grounds are unfit for another battle upon the evening of the same day.

MARKETS ARE STEADY AND MONEY CHEAP

Rally in Grain Prices Brings Out New Influence of Considerable Importance Says Review.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review says:

"With summer dullness accentuating the curb imposed on initiative by the industrial reaction and political uncertainties, the markets have continued steady. Cheapness of money still is the outstanding feature of the situation, although the rally in grain prices has brought out a new influence of considerable importance. For the present there is no prospect of a change in the money situation. Gold still is pouring into the country, the banks are out of debt with the Federal Reserve system and deposits are piling up. Industry and trade are hardly likely to make noticeably larger demands for accommodation during the next month or two. Flotations of new capital issues, which is encouraged by the plethora in funds, may absorb part of the surplus; it is hardly likely to change the situation materially during the summer. Accordingly, the continuation of an easy money market is highly probable.

"Things have reached a stage in industry at which the rate of decline must slacken. Steel production now amounts to only a little more than 35 per cent of capacity. That is a very low figure; good judges think that it is likely to mark the low point in operations. Stocks of steel products are being liquidated and consumption of steel hardly can have fallen to so low a stage as would be represented by 35 per cent of manufacturing capacity. So far, however, there are no signs of a pick-up. Pig iron prices still are declining and steel prices hardly are firm. Buyers are confining their orders to small lots and still entertain a notion that lower prices yet may prevail. Sooner or later, of course, an improvement must come. Just how vigorous it will be remains to be seen. Anything which will do more than steady prices will surprise the trade.

Three Buyers of Steel.

"Of the three chief customers of the steel industry—the railroads, the automobile industry and building construction—the latter is making the best showing. A large volume of building is under way and the amount of steel required during the second half of the year should be quite respectable. On the other hand, the railroads are curtailing expenses on right of way and maintenance. A big surplus of idle cars permits them to do so.

"The country as a whole has not stopped consuming goods. Industry has reacted sharply after a burst of overproduction, but eventually must increase its operations to care for current consumption. Meanwhile the position of the farmers has improved materially. Mail order sales are holding up well and should be good this fall if the better prices for grain are maintained. The railroads are not earning the 'fair return,' but are making decent profits. Successful flotation of the Hungarian reconstruction loan is a reminder of the fact that European stability is being restored."

"Most traders of the Stock Exchange added today to their holiday and the result was that the turnover was but slightly in excess of 200,000 shares. Despite the infrequency of transactions, however, the tone was firmish, especially during the first hour. Buying of Northwestern railroad shares was a feature and their strength extended to other parts of the railroad list. Industrials were extremely inactive, aside from a few specialties, and profit-taking all around before the close left irregularity, but the gains predominated. Bonds also were dull with a firm tone.

Franc Down Saturday.

"French exchange continued under the pressure of sizeable offerings and gave up 11 points at 5.01 cents. Weakness here was largely in sympathy with the London market where the bulk of the business was transacted. Sterling also was easier and ⅛ of a cent lower at $4.32⅝ as compared with the closing price on Thursday. Other European rates were firmish and trading bore a holiday appearance.

"The weekly statement of the Clearing House reveals a return to the trends noted prior to the special requirements of the end of the half year. Loans and discounts decreased 74.5 millions and demand deposits fell 73.4 millions, following the large increases of the previous week. An increase of 35.7 millions in surplus reserve brought that item to 622.2 millions.

MOVEMENT OF NEW WHEAT INCREASES; CORN PRICES REACH NEW HIGH LEVEL

Offerings of Canadian Oats Into New England Territory Factor in That Market—Rye Holds Fairly Steady.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The new wheat movement in the Southwest increased during the week ending July 5, according to the weekly grain market review of the United States Department of Agriculture. Harvesting was about completed as far north as Kansas, and threshing had begun in the southern part of that State. Threshing returns from Oklahoma and other Southwestern states show larger yields than were expected and private reports estimate that the hard winter wheat crop probably will be 50,000,000 bushels larger than the Government estimate June 1. Weather conditions in the spring wheat territory have also been favorable, and reports indicate that if conditions continue favorable, the crop will be around 200,000,000 bushels this year. The prices were but little changed during the week at the principal markets, but the demand was slightly less active toward the close, and if the expected increase in receipts materializes during the coming week, a downward trend may occur. In the spring wheat markets the premiums were about unchanged, but sales at the top of the range were of smaller volume than during the previous week. Larger offerings of good test Oklahoma winter wheat had a tendency to weaken the demand for the better grades of spring wheat and also weakened the market for the winter wheat at Minneapolis. In the hard winter wheat markets the tone of the market was decidedly easier on account of the fairly liberal offerings of new wheat. Northwestern mills were the most active buyers on a basis materially above that at which exporters at the Gulf were bidding. Scattered export sales of new hard winter wheat for July shipment were made at one cent over the July price basis, Kansas City, but the country generally was unwilling to sell at this basis. The protein content of early shipments was rather low, but later ones have shown some improvement. The low protein content of the new wheat has caused increasing strength in the old wheat premiums. Mills report rather slow demand for new-crop flour, but are operating actively on old orders, which has assisted in maintaining a good cash demand.

Corn prices reached new high levels on Thursday, when July corn at Chicago reached 97⅝c. Continued wet weather over a large area of the corn belt and generally poor crop prospects were principally responsible for the advancing market. Commercial stocks have been materially reduced but receipts during the week showed some increase in the principal market. The demand became less active at the higher prices and buyers were taking only sufficient corn for their immediate needs and were substituting oats and other grain where possible. There were indications of an increased movement from country points where holders were attracted by the unusually high prices. No great increase in the movement, however, is probable until crop conditions become more favorable.

The oats market lost a good part of the gain of the previous week and July oats at Chicago closed on Thursday at 50⅞c, a net decline for the week of about 3¾c. Offerings of Canadian oats into New England territory, duty paid, at prices lower than domestic quotations, were largely responsible for the break in future prices and cash prices followed the decline as demand became less urgent. New oats from Texas were again offered at a discount of about 4 cents per bushel under offerings from the Central Western markets, which restricted the Southern demand in those markets.

The rye market held fairly steady during the week although future prices at Minneapolis declined ⅝c. Shipping demand fell off somewhat, but mills were active buyers for Nos. 1 and 2 rye at 1 to 2 cents over the July price, and elevators took the balance of the offerings.

The barley market remained practically unchanged. Demand at the principal markets was fairly active and sufficient to absorb all arrivals. Commercial stocks have become very small, but there was some increase reported during the week at Minneapolis.

Flax offerings were a little larger at Minneapolis during the week, while the demand was slightly less active, especially for other than choice seed. The best grades sold readily at the top of the range which was from $2.42 to $2.46 a bushel.

Railroad Briefs

NEW YORK, July 5.—Strength of Northwestern Railroads in today's market, particularly Great Northern and Northern Pacific, was based on unofficial reports that the application for authority to consolidate these carriers with the Burlington had been granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This application had been on file for a long time. According to officials of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern they have heard rumors from various sources that announcement of the granting of this application would be made in the near future. Under the application the present system would be continued as it is now operated.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad today received authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue $18,000,000 of equipment trust certificates to be sold at not less than 96 per cent of par.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today granted authority to the Oklahoma City-Ada-Atoka Railroad to acquire control by lease of a portion of lines of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas and of the Oklahoma City-Shawnee Interurban Railway.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Class 1 railroads had 359,644 surplus freight cars in good repair on June 22 and immediately available for service, a decrease of 3317, under the number on June 14, the American Railway Association reports. No car shortage is being reported.

Freight cars in need of repair on June 15 totaled 192,471, or 8.5 per cent of the number on line, an increase of 3252 over the number of June 1.

CURB PRICES IRREGULAR IN TRADE OF THE WEEK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Price movement the past week on the Curb Market was irregular, some stocks moving up to new high records, with many at the same time in supply and sustaining material losses. McCrory B stock, after selling at 89¼, had a sharp decline, the new shares and warrants also yielding from the early levels. National Tea ranged from 200 to 230. Dubilier moved up from 39 to the new high record of 40⅞ and Hudson & Manhattan and Hudson Co. preferred both made new high records. United Bakeries displayed strength, the preferred advancing from 92 to 96. Durant Motors, after selling at the new low of 13¾, rallied to 16.

For a time the petroleum stocks showed strength, Vacuum Oil being the leading feature in that group and advancing two points, but lost all its gain on Thursday. Prairie Oil after selling at 214 was under steady pressure. Some of the miscellaneous oil issues were strong.

Call for Bank Statements.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—The State Finance Department has issued a call for statements of the condition of all State supervised banks in Missouri, as of June 30.

New York Bank Clearings.

NEW YORK, July 5.—New York bank clearings, $904,0000,000; New York bank balances, $86,000,000; New York Federal Reserve bank credits, $80,000,000.

GRAIN EXCHANGES OF COUNTRY WERE CLOSED SATURDAY

THE grain exchanges of the country were closed Saturday, directors voting to remain closed from Thursday night until Monday morning. The local Produce Exchange and National Stockyards also were closed. Although the New York Stock Exchange was open, no session of the St. Louis Stock Exchange was held Saturday. The Cotton Exchanges also were closed. Local banks were open.

HOGS CLOSE UP IN SHORT-WEEK TRADE

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	14,934	22,674	19,919
Hogs	63,058	79,369	60,728
Sheep	10,483	11,855	19,038
Horses and mules	164	250	283
Totals	88,639	114,148	99,968

Holidays Friday and Saturday reduced the last week's trade in livestock at the St. Louis National Stockyards to a four-day session. Consequently, receipts were smaller and the market, partly for this reason, staged a material advance in most departments. Cattle and calves aggregated 15,000 head for the four-day period as against an actual run of 22,674 for the previous week. A feature of the run was the sharp decrease in arrivals of South Texas grass steers. There were only a few cars of these on sale. Fairly active and advancing markets featured the trade during the period under review. Thus, the declines forced in the market the previous week were generally regained. Beef steers moved up 25c on an average and some favored sales were as much as 50c higher. The bulk of consignments cashed at $8 to $9.60 per cwt., while the top was $10.35 paid for a weighty drove of Benton County, Mo., bullocks. Five cars Nebraska steers also made $10.25. Common streets graduated down to $5. Light steers and heifers gained 25c and in most cases 50c, the better kinds often selling at $8 to $9.15 and both mixed and heifers topping at $9.25. Plainer yearlings scored around $7, $6, $5 and under. A 50c advance was recorded in butcher cows and extreme cases were 75c up. The bulk on the close brought $4 to $5.25, while a common grade centered around $3.50 and best cashed upwards of $7. Canner and cutter cows strengthened 25c, cutters on the close being quotable at $2.50 to $3.25 and canners at $2 to $2.50. Bulls scored a rise of 50c and in some cases 75c. Good weight bolognas finished at $4.50 to $5.25 and beef bulls centered around $5 with some choice up to $6. Common bulls and canners sold around $3 and $3.50. Stocker and feeder cattle ruled about steady for the week under light receipts and demand. Steers varied mainly from $4.15 to $7.35, while cows brought $2.75 to $3.50, heifers $3 to $5.25 and bulls $ to $5. Veal calves at $8.75 to $9.50 on the close reflected an advance of $1 to $1.25 over the previous week. Southern canner yearlings remained about steady at $2 to $2.25.

Hogs Mostly Higher.

Sharp fluctuations were witnessed in the hog trade the past week with prices for the period closing higher in most cases. Receipts in this department were moderate, total number of hogs received for the four days being 63,058. All grades of swine shared in the late advance, prices during the closing session showing a gain of 10c to 20c over the previous week's close, light hogs displaying the big end of the advance. Best butcher hogs averaging from 220 lbs. and up show a gain of 10c with sales on the close at $7.40 to $7.50 largely. Medium weight kinds from 190 to 220 lbs. were 15c over the previous week with the light hogs and shipping weights from 160 to 190 lbs. at 15c to 20c higher at $7.20 to $7.35 largely. Pigs were steady for the week, a gain of 50c during the closing session placing this class on this basis. Strong weight kinds from 130 to 150 lbs. were quotable in a spread of $6.50 to $7.00 with the medium weights from 110 to 130 lbs. at $6 to $6.50, and the light pigs and pee wees from 110 lbs. and down at $5.50 to $6, some of the plain trashy southerners selling down to $5. Packer sows closed strong with sales at $6.25 largely. Stags showed no material change at $5 to $5.50, according to weight and quality of the offerings.

Sheep Run Moderate.

Sheep and lamb receipts were moderate, figuring 10,483 head and quality was generally good, although arrivals still continue to include a fair proportion of the Southwest kinds and half-fat natives. Lamb prices staged a sharp advance, putting on $1. Choice lambs were quotable at $13.75 at the close of the week as against $12.75 the previous week. Medium to good lambs were quotable at $12 to $13 and plainer kinds at $9 to $12. Culls advanced 50c, sales closing at $6 to $6.50. Skips were valued at $4 to $5. No material change was shown in the prices for aged classes. Best mutton ewes were steady, possibly strong, at $5 to $5.50 for the light fat kinds. Heavy and medium weight ewes made $3.50 to $4 mostly, some higher. Choppers and bucks at $2 to $2.50 were about steady with canners also unchanged at $1 to $1.25. Breeding ewes continue largely at $6 to $7.

Horses and Mules.

Receipts of horses and mules continue very light, arrivals the past week not exceeding 200 head. There was no particular change in the market and demand continues largely for riding horses. There is also a limited call for the commercial types.

Produce Elsewhere

NEW YORK, July 5.—Butter firm. Eggs easy. Nearby hennery browns, extras, 34@39c. Cheese steady, receipts not compiled today.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Live and dressed poultry quiet, prices unchanged.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Dry goods primary markets were generally closed today after the holiday. A new and higher ruling price list was issued by one large house, the advances ranging from 3 to 5 per cent. Another attempt is under way to avoid a strike among cloak and suit makers called for next week. Lines of tropical suitings for men's wear will be opened in the next two weeks.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, July 5.—Firmness was maintained throughout the week in the local wool market and this same characteristic was reported from the western ranges and the foreign markets. The prospective strike of ladies' garment workers in New York had a somewhat depressing effect on mill buying but wool in the west is passing steadily out of the hands of growers. Prices showed little change.

Hides.

HIDES—Less 1 pound tare per hide for

No. 1	6½	Flint	12
No. 2	5½	Salted	6
Bulls, No. 1	4½	Salted, packed	5
Bulls, No. 2	3½	Culls	4
Glue Hides	3½	Culls, salted	3

No. 1 horsehide, mane and tail on, $3.75; small and No. 2, $2.75; glue and pony, $1.25. Hog hides, 20c—glue and pig half price. Uncured hides 1c less.

Honey and Beeswax.

HONEY—Southern bright amber at 7c to 8c per lb.; dark at 6c; nearby comb honey at $4 per case.

BEESWAX—Prime at 25c per lb.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review says:

"Wide movements occurred in the foreign exchange market during the past week and in some cases the trading was influenced by important special developments. Probably most importance should be attached to the improvement in the position of sterling, which after selling at $4.31⅝ moved up to $4.33⅝ on steady accumulation accompanied by transmission of funds in large volume to London. It had been expected in the first half of week that the Bank of England would advance its rate of discount on Thursday, but this expectation was not realized, although bankers generally believe that such action will be taken in the near future. French exchange traveled over a wide range, checks on Paris falling 20 points to 5.12½ on Tuesday, when the transactions were on an extremely large scale, one local institution alone taking 20,000,000 francs exchange on that day. This movement was followed by a brisk rally, but the improvement was not maintained and was followed by renewed selling on Thursday.

"The lower level reached by French exchange was attributed to the fact that the end of month of June had passed without the appearance of any urgent demand to cover the short contracts put out last March and the belief was created that most of these commitments had been settled long before their maturity. Danish exchange had a practical collapse in its trading position during the first half of week, following a sharp break in London, and checks on Copenhagen yielded from around 16.30 a week ago to 15.55. On one day offers were reported at 15.48, but no sales were publicly made below 15.55. Spanish exchange reflected the futility of the mandate issued by the Government some time ago placing a ban against speculative operations, and efforts to place a substantial amount of pesetas checks caused a decline of 20 points in two days. Dutch and Swiss exchange were both strong, responding to accumulation from several quarters, with an advance to new high figures for the year. Japanese was also strong, and there was a special movement in Canadian exchange which sold at a new high for the year."

"French exchange continued under the pressure of sizeable offerings and gave up 11 points at 5.01c. Weakness here was largely in sympathy with the London market where the bulk of the business was transacted. Sterling also was easier and ½c lower at $4.32¾, as compared with the closing price on Thursday. Other European rates were firmish and trading bore a holiday appearance.

RAIL INCOME FROM MAY SHOWS BIG DROP FROM 1923 FIGURE

Operating Revenues Totaled $477,229,000, Decrease of $70,657,800 From May Total Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Class 1 railroads earned net operating income of $60,595,197 in May, a decrease of $29,657,455 under the same month last year, the American Railway Association reports. April's total was $61,821,900.

For the first five months of 1924, net operating income amounted to $325,172,660, which was at the annual rate of return of 4.27 per cent on their property investment, compared with $358,435,740, or 4.98 per cent, for the same period of 1923.

Operating revenues in May totaled $477,229,000, a drop of $70,657,800, or 12.9 per cent below the same month last year. Operating expenses of $351,252,200 also showed a decrease of $35,998,030, or 9.5 per cent, under those for May, 1923.

Forty class 1 carriers operated at a loss in May, of which 18 were in the Eastern district and 22 in the Western district.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Today's market was on the small turnover that was to have been anticipated.

The features of the day were the stocks of companies which stand to benefit most from the recovery in agricultural buying power resulting from the improvement in the grain and produce markets. Northern Pacific went up over 2 points and Great Northern preferred over a point, while Chicago & Northwestern duplicated its high. St. Paul preferred was also higher.

American Agricultural Chemical preferred around 31 was up 13 points from its low, and Virginia-Caro Chemical preferred went along sympathetically.

Baldwin Locomotive rose a point and U. S. Steel common sold above par again. Unusual activity at higher prices in Superior Oil attracted attention. Among the specialties Congoleum was a feature with a 2-point jump, and West Penn Power made a new high.

The close was dull but generally strong.

The Bond Market.

The bond market in today's two hours of business was quiet, but generally strong. U. S. Government loans were substantially unchanged. French issues which had been such a feature all week continued to hold arounf their high prices, although French municipal bonds were fractionally lower. There was fairly active trading in Brazil 8s around 99.

Railway bonds were strong. St. Paul issues improved as part of the rising movement in the entire northwestern group. The debenture 4s of 1934 were particularly in demand. New Haven debenture sixes rose a half point. Union Pacific first 4s sold at 92½ as against 92 on Thursday. The feature in the industrial list was the active buying of Goodyear rubber 8s which had closed Thursday at 103 3-8 and were bid up to 104 this morning.

On the week there has been a slight reaction in the market as a whole, but very slight. What happened is a perfectly natural pause in the advance to consolidate the ground gained. Perhaps, too, the greater demand for money for the half-year settlements has also been a factor. In the meantime, there has been no weakness and demand in the "over the counter" trading has continued brisk. There has been particularly good inquiry for the low coupon rate bonds selling at a substantial discount. Such bonds are always in demand in periods of declining money rates and the present is no exception.

The most important piece of new financing this week has been the Hungarian loan, the American participation in which amounted to $7,500,000.

Feathers.

FEATHERS—Per lb.: Prime white live geese, 78c; gray, 54c; duck—white, 53c; colored, 33c; chicken—prime dry-picked body white, 12c; colored, 3¼c; green or damp, 2c—musty not wanted. Chicken and turkey—mixed body, 3c. Turkey—body, white, full fleece dry, 40c; body, colored, full fleece, dry, 8c; do green, 5c; mixed quills (tail, wing and pointers), 3c. Old feathers, 5c to 50c. Tare, 10 per cent on small bags, 3 per cent on large.

Scrap Iron and Rags.

SCRAP IRON AND METAL—Per 100 lbs.: Light brass, $4.50, heavy red brass, $7.50; light copper, $8; heavy yellow brass, $6; heavy copper and copper wire, $9.50; zinc, $3; lead, $4; pewter, $21; tinfoil, $32; tea lead, $3; aluminum, $14; scrap iron in car lots, $9 per ton.

RUBBER, RAGS, ETC.—Country rags, $1.50 per 100 lbs.; old rope—manila at $3.50, common at $1. Rubber, nominal.

Nuts.

PECANS—Average Western or Texas at 14@15c per lb.; large nuts more.

BLACK WALNUTS—At 2¼c per lb.

AMERICAN PARTY HEAD URGES K. K. K. POLICIES

Gilbert O. Nations, Notified of Nomination, Assails McAdoo and Smith.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 5.—In the presence of a large crowd, Gilbert O. Nations of Washington, D. C., editor of The Protestant, and a professor of the American University at Washington, was notified yesterday of his nomination as the candidate of the American Party for the presidency. The nominatinn was made June 2 at Columbus, O., where the first national convention of the new political party was held.

Nations, whose native home is near St. Louis, Mo., responded with an address, which was extremely pro-Ku Klux Klan and which carried with it a great deal of anti-Catholic bitterness.

While leaders of the new party state that it has no connection with the Ku Klux Klan, there was a strong klan gathering on hand to hear the nominee outline the klan principles and klan beliefs and incorporate them into his ideals of national Government.

Denounces Smith and McAdoo.

A bitter denunciation of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York and a likening of William G. McAdoo to Peter at the humiliation of Christ before the high priest of the Jews, featured the address.

"Mr. McAdoo declared with emphasis that he had never known the klan," the nominee said. "Two great followings strove for the mastery of the New York convention. One was reputed to be dry and loyal to the Constitution, but really was neutral and noncommittal. The other was brazenly wet and demanded extermination of the Ku Klux Klan, root and branch. The former dares not defend it."

Nations declared that the American Party stood for the American public school and that it also stood for America's continued refusal to join the League of Nations.

The speaker told the gathering the league was essentially Catholic by reason of the proportion of Catholic and non-Catholic members and that because the ratio was so unbalanced the American party does not foster the proposal that America join.

For Restrictive Immigration.

Total exclusion of the "tide of debased immigrants that have been pouring into our great cities and industrial centers" is demanded by the American party, Nations said. He told his listeners that the 2 per cent selective immigration law came after 10 years of propaganda and was keenly felt by the big politicians.

Speaking on law enforcement, Nations, who is the father of Gus O. Nations, prohibition enforcement officer for Missouri, and Heber Nations, former State Labor Commissioner of Missouri, said that only two small states, dominated by Catholics, withheld their approval of the Eighteenth Amendment. "They are in the group that steadfastly supports the nomination of Gov. Smith at the Democratic national convention," he shouted.

While there were no open klan activities at the notificaion, klan literature was circulated among those present and children out for a day in the grove where the notification too place were attired in miniature klan robes and helmets.

The notification address was delivered by the Rev. L. L. Pickett of Uniontown, Pa., a former Kentuckian. One of the klan lecturers addressed the crowd before Nations and the American party heads arrived.

JULY 5 RANKS WITH FOURTH AS HOLIDAY

Calendar and Consideration of Employers Gives Vacation to Thousands.

The Fifth of July as well as the Fourth of July, will go down in current history as another day off for thousands of St. Louisans.

Friday, there were fireworks for many to fire and patriotic celebrations of the 148th anniversary of American independence for some to attend—though, to be sure, no old-fashioned Fourth of July oratory in these parts—but yesterday there was nothing to do but play or loaf, and be thankful for the three-day holiday brought by the calendar and consideration by employers.

It was a brief vacation for workers in many places, though public utilities and purveyors of daily or almost daily necessities could not stop that long. Downtown banks were open yesterday, but with only a few clerks to transact emergency business, and Merchants' and Stock exchanges were closed. Most downtown stores and wholesale houses were shut and Federal offices were about the only public offices open here.

The country lured thousands away from the pavements. Water and the open spaces beckoned with play of all sorts.

Today those who went away will begin the homeward trek.

PARALYZED MOTHER DOESN'T KNOW SON THREATENED LIFE

Ruel E. Green, Missing Since Thursday, Wrote Lodge Member He Was Going to Kill Self.

Mrs. Elizabeth Green lies paralyzed in a rooming house at 3400 Morgan street, waiting for her son and supporter, Ruel E. Green, 37 years old, to return. She does not know that after his last departure from the house, Thursday morning, that a fellow member of his fraternal order, the Woodmen of the World, received a letter in which Green wrote he was going to end his life.

Mrs. Green has been paralyzed for 25 years. She may be taken to the City Hospital to be cared for.

Charles Halfaker, proprietor of the rooming house, said Green left without any comment, just as he went out every day. Green formerly was a railroad clerk but had to seek a new job and took one at manual labor, handling baggage in some capacity at Union Station.

Edward S. Horwitz of 1228 Hodiamont avenue is the man who received Green's letter with the threat of suicide.

CAR JUMPS ROAD, PINNING COUPLE BENEATH IT IN CREEK

A roadster driven by John Geatley of 1924 Clara avenue plunged from the road, turned over and fell in a creek, pinnig Geatley and his wife, Edna, beneath it, at 6:55 p. m. yesterday. The steering apparatus broke as th car approached a bridge on the North and South road just north of Edgar road.

The creek, which a short time ago had nearly four feet of water, is almost dry, and the Geatleys were not submerged. They were released from beneath the car by Z. T. Scovill of Clayton, who was driving behind them. Mrs. Geatley was unconscious, but it was said at St. Mary's Hospital, Clayton, where she was taken, that her injuries were minor. Geatley was cut and bruised.

FINED FOR USING FISH NET

Man Must Pay $25 and Costs for Violation of Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WINFIELD, Mo., July 5.—Clifford S. Bell of Winfield, a market fisherman, was fined $25 and ordered to pay $14.85 costs by Justice of the Peace Rohland here today after pleading guilty to operating a large winged hoop net within 300 yards of the point where any slough empties into the Mississippi River. He was arrested Friday by State Deputy Fish Warden John P. Heller, charged with operating a net at the entrance of the slough which connects King's Lake with the river. State Game and Fish Commissioner Wielandy has ordered his deputies to clear of nets all openings through which fish may enter lakes or sloughs.

During the first six months of 1924 the Post-Dispatch, in addition to establishing a new high six-month record for itself—and of course for St. Louis—was the only St. Louis newspaper to make a clear record of Gains in Total Paid Advertising, Local Display Advertising, National Advertising and Real Estate and Want Advertising.

As in Many Previous Semi-Annual Periods, the POST-DISPATCH Alone Carried More Advertising Than the Globe-Democrat and the Star Combined

Total Paid Advertising

POST-DISPATCH Alone	11,733,400 Lines
Globe-Democrat and The Star COMBINED	10,477,800 Lines
Post-Dispatch Excess Over Both	1,255,600 Lines

Local Display Advertising

POST-DISPATCH Alone	7,095,760 Lines
Globe-Democrat and The Star COMBINED	6,044,700 Lines
Post-Dispatch Excess Over Both	1,051,060 Lines

Real Estate and Want Advertising

POST-DISPATCH Alone	2,532,880 Lines
Globe-Democrat and The Star COMBINED	1,917,000 Lines
Post-Dispatch Excess Over Both	615,880 Lines

The Daily Post-Dispatch alone has more City Circulation than the morning and one other evening newspaper combined.

The Daily Post-Dispatch alone has over 70,000 more City Circulation than both other evening newspapers combined.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch alone has over 80,000 more City Circulation than the only other St. Louis Sunday newspaper.

How Great Department Stores Must Combat Chain-Store Idea, As Successful Merchant Sees It

Edward A. Filene Says These Great Institutions Must Organize Their Own Buying Organizations on a Chain Basis to Meet This Competition.

By ROWLAND THOMAS.

NEW YORK, July 5.

BE prideful, cling to your independence, and perish. Be sensible, join the chain gang, and prosper.

That choice will sooner or later confront exery retail merchant in the United States, according to Edward A. Filene, himself an outstanding merchant in Boston. He points out that the recent growth of the chain-store method of selling to consumers has been almost sensational in its rapidity. And he predicts this growth will continue till the retail business of the future has become almost wholly a chain-store business.

You may resent the innovation. You may regard the chain store as a vulgar, pushing upstart. Nevertheless, you will find it the part of wisdom to give the fellow the glad hand—take him into the club—even welcome him to the hearth as partner, son-in-law, prospective heir. Treat him thus and he'll reciprocate. Try to treat him rough or to ignore him and he'll sprawl all over you, for he is the incipient future. The chain store method of merchandising is founded on economic bed rock. It represents the current stage of business evolution. The sagacious merchant will recognize this and get in line with his times. The unsagacious, trying, to swim against the prevailing current, may court disaster.

Used Old School Methods.

Filene, trained in the old school methods and principles of the sturdily individual store, made himself one of the super-retailers of the United States. He is the first of them so far as known to acknowledge that the independent store, great or small, has passed its heyday and must yield to a more efficient method of ultimate distribution of commodities.

"The chain store," he told the writer, "is very rapidly encroaching on the field of the individual small stores dealing in staple goods. The latter may be supplanted if they do not fully reorganize. All of us are old enough to remember when tobacco was sold almost wholly in independent stores. It is difficult to find an independent tobacco store today.

"The individual small store," he continued, "is worth saving. It has qualities valuable to good distribution and valuable to society. Years ago in a public address I pointed out that these stores were threatened and suggested that they weld themselves into chains in which each manager would be owner, retaining his full interest in the profits of his store. In this way he would have all the advantages of the two systems to each other. Welding such chains would have been harder now than it would have been then, but by no means more difficult.

Department Store Threatened.

"Now the department store also is threatened. The competition between it and the chain stores is small as yet, because the largest, most powerful chains are not in the lines most important to the department store. Tnerefore there is still time for the department store to anticipate the peak of the competition and keep its lead."

He characterized the rapid increase of store chains as astounding. There are more than 2000 such systems in operation in the United States, handling more than 30 lines which range from hotels pianos, theaters and hardware to beauty parlors, fruit, flowers and garages. More than a billion dollars annually is taken in by these chain enterprises.

"Some of them," Mr. Filene pointed out, "have grown to great size. The A. & P. system, according to a recent report, has over 8500 stores and does a volume of $15,000,000 yearly. The Woolworth Co. in 1913 operated about 1200 stores and did a business of $193,000,000. A year ago the United Cigar Stores had 2500 stores and agencies. The United Drug Co. had 259 stores and over 8000 stockholder agencies."

Massed Buying Power.

Massed buying power is one of the great advantages of the chain system. By it they can eliminate middlemen's profits; get lower quantity prices; use the entire output of factories, relieving the manufacturer of heavy losses incidental to seasonal idleness or the production of unprofitable goods. To illustrate the chain store's possibilities for mass buying, Filene quoted figures recently published by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. as to quantities sold for cash over its counters in one year:

One hundred and fifty million loaves of bread, 375,000,000 dozen eggs, 225,000,000 pounds of flour, 90,000,000 cans of milk, 75,000,000 pounds of sugar, 310,000,000 cakes of soap, 470,000,000 pounds of potatoes, 11,000,000 pounds of tea.

Retail selling, of course, is merely the final stage of the economic process called distribution. Production and distribution are yoke mates, the two horses of the span whose task is to put Mother Earth's largess in usable form into the hands of the consumer, earth's children. But the steeds, as Mr. Filene analyzes the situation, are not pulling evenly now. The two processes are in different stages of evolutionary development. Production, pretty generally, is much further advanced toward a mass basis. Distribution still waits to be organized on the corresponding basis of mass buying, which will surely come, since the two processes are independent. The chain stores are the forerunners and pioneers of the new regime. Hence their astonishing success. They are most nearly in line with the prevailing economic forces.

Does this mean chain stores of the centralized, "absentee landlord" type with which we are familiar will displace all other retailers? Mr. Filene does not think so. The small individual retailers of staples can link themselves into chains for buying purposes and still retain their individuality of ownership and management. And the department stores can, must and will maintain themselves by a parallel adaptation.

Suggests Man Plan.

"In my opinion," he said, "the only way in which the department store can meet the change now clearly indicated and maintain itself against the rise of the chain store is by adding to its own strength the chain store advantages by organizing itself into chains. The coming successful department store chain which by greater service to the public will overshadow the present chains, will be an aggregation of establishments federated or confederated like the states of our United States, and with the similar departments of all the stores themselves constituting a chain within the main group. All shoe departments, for example, will operate as a chain of the shoe stores. Each department of the chain will be under a local manager or partner who will have leeway for lo-

Romantic Story of the Man Who Has Fused Quartz Which Promises To Make Life Easier for Mankind

Edward R. Berry, Who Rose From Mechanic to Inventor, Explains How He Perfected Substance Which Will Greatly Relieve Tuberculosis Patients in Hospitals.

Discovery Means Invisible, Ultra Violet Sun Rays May Stream Through Windows of Institution—Expert Tells of Discovery After Years of Labor.

AND WHAT DOES IT ALL AMOUNT TO?

"SIMPLY this," said Berry, "that consumptives will be greatly benefited in hospitals with quartz windows through which will stream the invisible but beneficial ultra-violet sun-rays. They will no longer have to be exposed to the open air on Swiss mountain tops in order to get a chance for recovery. That our new quartz mercury-vapor lamps will supply ultra-violet rays day and night independent from the sun. That children need no longer die of rickets, even if they are kept indoors. That we shall have motion picture lenses which will not crack under the intense heat to which they are subjected; tuning forks which will never vary in pitch, as even our best instruments do now; thermometers more accurate and dependable than any we possess; giant mirrors for astronomers which will not distort the images on stars and planets under any conditions; lamps that will give you a complete, healthy "sunburn" in ten seconds and will rapidly purify a city's water supply; medical appliances that will shoot light, heat and other forms of radiation into hitherto inaccessible portions of the human body. All these advantages will soon be accessible to any one, and their cost will not be excessive."

By Ernst Brennecke.

BOSTON, Mass., July 5.

AN unfamiliar substance and a new personality has suddenly leaped into prominence together.

The substance is fused quartz.

The personality is Edward R. Berry. Berry is the engineer whose labors have at last made possible the production of this rare and valuable substance on a large commercial scale.

When we read of a scientific accomplishment such as Berry's most of us, perhaps, piece together the pictures we have for years associated with inventors. We visualize a small, dimly lit chamber, cluttered with strange contrivances, wheels, glass retorts, gas burners. We imagine the lonely, bearded man of science at work, mixing his chemicals endlessly, until one day he makes a great discovery and cries "Eureka!" A romantic picture, smacking of the lore of medieval alchemy, full of marvelous dramatic possibilities.

Scientists Different Now.

But this picture is, alas! untrue. The real thing is quite different. The modern scientist who makes his mark no longer works alone. He works as hard as his prototype, perhaps even harder, but in altogether different surroundings. He has behind him a superb organization and an equipment which only great sums of money and the unique industrial development of our modern practical age of business could possibly provide.

And yet his figure is far from being stripped of romance, far from being devoid of glamour. Take the case of Edward R. Berry and "fused quartz"—"SIO-1," as he calls it simply. This story is one with thrills all its own. It is the tale of a silent, grim struggle, bitterly prolonged for over 10 years, but finally decided with a definite victory.

The protagonist in this baffling contest was one man's brain, sharpened by years of technical training. The enemy to be overcome was a natural substance, refusing to be tamed, defending itself toughly with mysterious, little-known, powerful forces, and sometimes attacking with dangerous violence. The stakes to be won were profit, comfort, health to countless human beings and an enviable sense of rewarded toil to the daring worker and his patient associates.

Where Work Was Done.

The field of operations, the stage upon which the drama was played, was the Thompson Research Laboratory at the river works of the General Electric Co., at West Lynn, a few miles north of Boston. This laboratory might well be termed a scientists' paradise. Here the experimenter has at his disposal oxygen, hydrogen and other gases under pressure, direct and alternating electric current at many different intensities, mechanical, chemical and electrical apparatus of the most efficient design, skilled mechanics and highly trained assistants—everything, in short, that the investigator could possibly demand. Here, in a huge building which houses an army of industrial workers, is one spacious floor, flooded with artificial light and sunlight. Here furnaces glow and roar, motors and dynamos hum, many-colored lights glare and flash unceasingly, sparks crackle and torches wave great beards of flame. But here is no confused clutter; scrupulous cleanliness and the strictest order prevail. Guards keep out the uninvited intruder.

Here scientific calculations, painfully worked out in secluded offices and drafting rooms, are applied in actual experiments, devoted to the never-ending task of developing new processes and new products. Here is one of the great birthplaces and nursing homes where the latest-born children of American technical progress are ushered into the world amid furious travail.

Began Life as a Mechanic.

Edward R. Berry, a young New Englander, has seldom been far away from this scene, and has never been removed from its influence. His home was in Lynn, in the shadow of the plant's colossal funnels. After his elementary and secondary school education he gravitated naturally toward the "river works." For two years the youth worked as one of the thousands of skilled mechanics who swarm toward the General Electric Co.'s buildings every morning. Then he realized his need for higher scientific education if he was ever to forge upward and find a place for himself in the "lab," where real, new things were going on.

He left his job forthwith and journeyed up to the University of Maine. Four years later, in 1904, he was graduated with the degree of bachelor of science. He then continued with an additional three years of advanced study and won his title of master of science in 1907. His master's thesis was composed on the subject of electric furnaces, with which he had been chiefly pre-occupied. During the past few months he has been frequently called "Dr. Berry" and even "Prof. Berry"; he modestly disclaimed both titles, until June 9, when the University of Maine granted him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science.

After his academic training had been completed, he worked for a time in an electric water-power plant in Maine, then considered a position in an electro-chemical plant at Niagara Falls. On his way to Buffalo, however, he stayed for a time at Lynn and was again sucked into the great River Plant. This time he possessed not only better equipment for his tasks, but also better luck. He was a modest, retiring worker, a true industrial scientist, careful and unassuming, with an immense capacity for intense devotion to a single group of problems and the solution of problems. The solution to a problem has always been important to him for its own sake rather than for the sake of gain or glory And he has always given ample credit to others who have scored successes in his own field.

Berry was in luck this time because there happened to be special need for a man not only of his temperament but also of his particular attainments. Berry had specialized on electric furnaces and was not only an expert but a real authority on the subject. The Thompson Research Laboratory had just been organized. Elihu Thompson, the great inventor himself, as director, had been bending his energies toward the development of furnaces which might be able to master the baffling material.

Berry Made Asssistant.

Berry arrived on the scene at this point, plunged into the work, and soon made such rapid strides that the young engineer was made assistant director when Dr. Weintraub left for Germany. He has been in charge of the research ever since. Few people knew of his existence during his many ensuing years of struggle. It was not until April 26 of this year, when he read a paper which summarized the activities before the American Electro-Chemical Society at Philadelphia that the world took notice and realized that important things had been happening at Lynn.

A few weeks later Berry gave the writer a vivid account and a clear explanation of these happenings. He was discovered standing before a table covered with bits and chunks of transparent material which looked like glass, in many sizes and shapes. He has a stocky figure, clear gray eyes, huge muscular hands. He picked a piece of translucent substance, roughly shaped like a six-sided pyramid.

"Here is a natural quartz crystal," he said, "just as it is taken from the earth. Our chief source of supply is Brazil, although there is a plentiful supply of very fine quality in Madagascar. Three-fifths of the earth's crust is composed of just this SiO_2; there is quartz in the ground almost everywhere, although a great deal of it is rather impure.

"And yet—it is, in a sense, one of the rarest of substances. Quartz tubes, rods, instruments, sheets, if they are pure and clear, are at this moment worth several times more than their weight in gold. They are worth the money, at that. Many a scientific instrument made of quartz is immeasurably superior to a similar instrument made of glass or even of platinum."

Long, Hard Road.

"How, then," I asked, "can an instrument made of such common material be so difficult to procure, and so expensive?"

"It is a long road," answered Mr. Berry, "and a heart-breaking one, from the natural quartz crystal to the finished product. Quartz was deposited in the earth from water solution and formed under tremendous heat and pressure countless ages ago. But we cannot work with these natural forms of the stuff, beautiful as they are. The crystalline structure makes it impossible for us to take advantage of its wonderful transparency. It must be melted, fused, purified. Crystals often contain quantities of water and liquid carbon dioxide, which must be driven out.

"Suppose, then, we tried to melt this particular chunk," he continued, "by gradually heating it. What would happen? It would fly apart with perhaps explosive violence, shattering itself into thousands of pieces, damaging everything within range. Persons who have tried this experiment have not always escaped injury, as a matter of fact.

"One very laborious method, now happily antiquated, has, however, been employed with some success. A workman takes a tube of quartz and heats it in the "oxy-gas" flame to a white heat. Then he takes a tiny bit of quartz crystal, heats that similarly and sticks it on the rod. Then he heats that together until the bit is entirely fused. Then he adds a second bit in the same way. After a long period of this kind of exhaustive labor, the tube will be considerably thickened and then by the well-known process of blowing the tube can be slightly extended, more or less clear and comparatively free from bubbles. By such a means tubes can be built up. Then it may be cut lengthwise and flattened to form a small sheet. Small wonder then that such product imported from abroad sold at such a price and was of such a poor quality that commercially it was of little or no importance.

"Small wonder that hospitals which have wanted to install fused quartz windows to give tubercular patients the benefit of the ultra-violet rays of the sun despaired of ever acquiring such panes.

Cheaper Method Devised.

"A cheaper, more rapid and more convenient method of getting from the crystal to the fused product had to be devised. The ultimate solution was found in the electric furnace, a machine which develops greater heat, under higher pressure, than is possible by any other method.

"It was simple enough to devise a furnace which would 'melt' crystals of quartz if they were packed tightly enough into a graphite container. 'Melt' is perhaps not the proper word, for we cannot melt quartz as we can melt ice or even glass. No matter how much we heat it, it never turns into a thin liquid which will run freely. At 1700 or 1800 degrees it turns into a glowing, white molasses-like consistency. Then it also begins to vaporize—to turn into gas.

"Under these conditions the small quantities of water and carbon dioxide contained in even the purest obtainable crystal will form countless bubbles, small and large. If the stuff is then cooled these innumerable bubbles will remain inside the mass, making it opaque and therefore unfit for transmission of light rays.

"How to drive these bubbles out, so that the remaining substance will come out clear and transparent—that was the task that had to be accomplished.

"It was in 1915 that our first success was

Conference on Dawes Report Best Chance for Peace Since Armistice, Lloyd George Says

Presence of Participating American Delegation Seen as Great Advantage Over All Other Similar Meetings.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, M. P.

(Copyright, 1924.)

LONDON, July 5.—The coming conference is Europe's best chance since the armistice for establishing peace.

There are many reasons that contribute to this opportunity. The lapse of years since the war accounts for a good deal. The angry passions have had time to subside. They cooled down more rapidly in England than in France. That was to be expected. The French losses were heavier and the devastation of the war was greater and more visible in France. But the difference in the rate at which the process of cooling down took place in the two countries had much to do with their differences in recent years. Britain arrived at a stage of reasonable judgment long before French opinion had worked off its wartime heat. M. Poincare, by stirring up the hot cinders, exposed them to the air and thus expedited the cooling process. And this leads me to the second propitious condition for the London conference—the Ruhr fiasco.

At the last conference I ever had with M. Poincare, when the question of the Ruhr was mentioned he was warned that, if he pursued the policy on which he subsequently launched, he would reap lots of trouble—and no cash. His answer was a confident smile. It was the gesture of a man who knows better. All the French Prime Ministers have been tempted by the rich and savory cheese placed by Nature at the very nostrils of France. They all had their sniff at it—Clemenceau, Millerand, Briand and lastly Poincare. M. Briand had a nibble but went no further. M. Poincare walked right into the trap and, after vain efforts to carry away his prize, found to his astonishment that coal mines are not portable property. He tugged away at his cheese for many perspiring months but barely got some scrapings from the rind for his omelette. The French electorate were disappointed with the dish and dismissed the chef. M. Herriot is looking for a menu on which the Ruhr is not written. He is the first French Premier to look away from that temptation.

Advantage in the Time.

It is a distinct advantage to hold a conference at a time when the eyes of the French delegates will not always be rambling from discussions of practical proposals to the dazzling but dangerous allurements beyond the Rhine. At all previous conferences, the devil kept whispering into French ears—"Take Essen and the untold riches of Westphalia will be yours." It was so easy to take—Germany had no troops, the Ruhr was without any defences and in this unprotected valley lay the richest industrial area on the continent of Europe. All France had to do was, like Ali Baba, to fill her pockets with the treasure that lay at her feet and convert it into reparations.

This glittering fallacy has now been exploded. The British and American delegates will therefore have, for the first time since the armistice, disillusioned French statesmanship to deal with. It is only those who have had for years to contend against the Ruhr obsession who can fully appreciate what a gain this is to negotiation.

View of U. S. Influence.

But I am not sure that the greatest advantage enjoyed by this conference over all its predecessors will not be found to be the presence, for the first time since Versailles, of a participating American delegation. Since President Wilson left Paris, America has been represented at international conferences in Europe by men who occupied the humiliating position of mere note-takers. They were dumb, but not deaf. They took no part in discussions as they were expressly forbidden to express any opinions on behalf of their government. Many a time have I seen a crucial decision, which would have been given the right turn had America weighed in with her mighty influence, either going wrong or not going at all. I have on these occasions, wished that the eyes of America could have been fixed for one brief hour on the conference table, to view the gigantic issues that were trembling in the balance and awaiting were it but one grain of her authority to settle down.

Europe has often besought, in the making of a real peace, that American aid which was such a decisive factor when thrown into the scales of war. Up till October last, America turned a deaf ear to all these pleas. She has come in at last, and that fact in itself ought to ensure the success of this conference.

When President Coolidge decided to appoint an expert to join the commission set up to investigate the reparations difficulty, it was as momentous a decision as President Wilson's declaration of war. It was America's declaration of peace. It is much easier for both France and Germany to defer to the wishes of America than to the pressure exerted by Britain alone. France has no sense of rivalry with America to cloud her judgment, and Germany knows that the goodwill of America is essential to the restoration of her credit. Nothing but unimaginable blunderings can steer this conference into failure.

All Need Dawes Report.

Every Power concerned has accepted the Dawes report. What is more important, every Power concerned needs the Dawes report and wants the Dawes report. There is therefore no "arriere pensee" in the general acceptance of this lucky report. It ought, therefore, to have a walkover at the conference. It will then have to walk through the lobbies of the Reichstag on to the statute book of Germany. The journey will be made easier if the London negotiators will always bear in mind that there is a dangerous opinion in Germany, as well as in France, to be conciliated. It is for that reason that I think the allies would have done well to have invited Germany to London to sit at the table on equal terms with the other conferring nations The psychological effect would have been great in Germany itself. It would have made it easier for the wise men of Germany who are laboring for peace and facing much obliquity in ensuring it, to persuade their countrymen not to listen to the counsels of despair and vengeance.

Germany's Two Considerations

To treat Germany as a servile nation on whose part it would be an impertinence to discuss the orders it receives is to offend its decent and honorable national pride. There was an excuse, at the time of the Versailles treaty, for not calling her into the conference from the start. Time was pressing, and to have entered into prolonged negotiations with Germany on all the terms of that colossal document might have postponed the advent of peace. Millions of men would have had to be kept under arms and the tension, as well as the burden of delay, would have been intolerable. But there is no such justification in the present conditions. In the end, time will be saved by face to face discussion and I sincerely hope that the Chequers decision in this respect will be reversed.

As far as I am able to judge, the action of Germany will be Honesty in Government.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is the pride of the Democratic party at this time to point the finger of identification and accuse the Republican party of the moral crime of dishonesty. It advises turning the rascals out of office and the taking away the trust committed to the care of the Republican party. The Democratic party has clothed the carcass of the wolf with the hide of a sheep and is trying to induce the dear people to partake of their goods in order to reduce the high cost of living. It, like the fawning publican, is publicly congratulating itself that it is not as the Republican party. And yet is there that moral fiber in its being of which it so loudly boasts?

If it be true that it is holding up to the dear people the beacon light of moral honesty, then why did its delegates at New York in private and upon the convention floor condemn the activities of the Ku Klux Klan and refuse to go before the citizenry with a condemnation written into its platform? Was it for political expediency, or moral cowardice? Not one of them was, ever has been, or would be ashamed to acknowledge their membership in the church to which they belong. Not one of them is ashamed to acknowledge membership in the order of Masonry, or the order of the Knights of Columbus, or any other order, when called upon in open court touching their qualifications to sit as jurors in hearing of suits between their fellow citizens, or to testify as witnesses in court.

No order except the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan teaches its converts to deny membership when asked to acknowledge it before public bodies. And yet the members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, when accused of being a political secret order, advance the argument that it is as sensible to denounce the Free Masons, the Knights of Columbus, or any other order. All this is done in order that the public may not be made acquainted with the workings of the Ku Klux and in order to avoid public condemnation which it so justly merits.

Russia had and has its bolsheviks; Italy its Fascisti, and the United States its Ku Klux Klan. The Russian bolsheviks produced its Lenine and Trotzky; the Italian Fascisti its Mussolini, and the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan its Dr. Evans, kleagles and grand dragons. What of secret political societies?

An Anxious Mother.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I AM desirous of locating the whereabouts of my son and ask you to assist me. Will be very grateful if you will publish a description of him in your paper. He has been a patient in Macon (Mo.) Sanatorium for a year and being very anxious to get out and make his way home, he left without permission on Wednesday, the 18th of June (last month). He is 22 years old, blond, weighs about 128 pounds, slightly stooped. Would like to communicate with anyone who has seen him or should see him or if he sees this article let mother know where he is so I can assist him to get home, as I am very uneasy about him.

Thanking you for your kindness,

Make Wars Unnecessary.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Lutheran Synod has followed the precedent set by other denominations of late and denounced war. They will help to demilitarize public opinion and to teach men to think in terms of peace. Very good. And may all our Christian brethren study the economic causes of war and find it to be a part of their Christian duty to aggressively favor a change to a brotherly social system in which war would disappear as a matter of course. Remember, that fable about the sun and the wind entering into a wager as to which could deprive a traveler of his coat? The wind tried to blow it off, but failed. The sun just beamed on the traveler and he took it off himself. Socialism will beam upon society and it will throw war off as no longer necessary or in harmony with conditions.

Price of Milk.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE cool, rainy spring has been very favorable to the production of milk and cream with small demand for ice cream. There has been a surplus of milk. The delivered price of milk is 13 cents per quart, or more than the price per gallon years ago, when more milk was lost through lack of refrigeration than at present.

Now we see large signs and page ads of contented cows, mostly "bull"; nothing about price. If the distributers gave a fair price it would make contented people and cut out the propaganda.

LA FOLLETTE'S MESSAGE.

If Senator La Follette will stand squarely on his issue against monopoly and the plutocratic control of government, without tinkering with the constitutional structure of American institutions, his candidacy will make a strong appeal to liberals in every part of the country.

The Senator's message to the Progressive Conference at Cleveland is a powerful indictment of the forces of monopoly and privilege. It is written in an excellent spirit, and without a touch of violence or destructive radicalism. He condemns both the dictatorship of plutocracy and the dictatorship of the proletariat or undemocratic and un-American. "Both," he says, "are destructive of private initiative and individual liberty."

So much that he says with regard to the betrayal of the people by both Democrats and Republicans and the failure of either party while in power to destroy privilege and break monopoly is true, that it can be accepted in the main as a sound indictment. Monopoly has thriven and the people have been plundered of their natural resources and have been robbed by profiteering combines under both parties.

He credits the Democratic party with being less reactionary and less under plutocratic control than the Republican party, which he damns without measure as the agent of plutocracy.

All Americans who are not bound to special privilege can agree with Mr. La Follette's statement that "peace, liberty and economic freedom are the great principles to which the American people are devoted." And there is truth and force in his statement concerning the great issue. He says:

> The supreme issue, involving others, is the encroachment of the powerful few upon the rights of many. This great power has come between the people and their government. We must, with statesmanship and constructive legislation meet these problems, or we shall pass them on, with all the possibilities of violent conflict and chaos, to our children.

It is gratifying to note that Senator La Follette rejects any policy embodying special privilege for the farmer and the wage earner, but devotes himself to the undoing of the wrongs that have crept into the laws and into our economic conditions and that oppress all of the plain people. If monopoly were struck down, and the special privileges which buttress it were destroyed, oppression would vanish, economic equality would be restored, and all kinds and conditions of men would be free to work out their own prosperity.

The rub comes, however, in the remedies. Monopoly has been damned many times, but the efforts to destroy it have been more or less futile. Mr, La Follette wants the laws against trusts and combines which fix prices strengthened and enforced. So far good, but the real strength of monopoly is deeper than that. It lies in the possession of natural resources by the monopolists. Trusts and combines are only the surface evils.

Henry George put it right when he said that no monopoly could stand long unless it had its feet on the ground, that is to say, unless it controls the resources of the land such as iron and other ores, coal, oil, water power, forests and franchises.

If Mr. La Follette can find a way to break the hold of the monopolistic dynasts on the natural resources of the country, and restore them to the people, he will do the greatest service that can be rendered to the American people. If he can find a way to restrict the holding of natural resources for use only and never for monopoly, he will open the way to real economic freedom. Tinkering with the constitutional structure will be unnecessary, because the bulwarks of monopoly will be overthrown.

Mr. La Follette, however, will not organize a third party, and does not expect to be elected and have back of him a party majority which will control the Government. The practical effects that he expects from his candidacy will be the founding of a new party, the defeat in the election of both the old parties and the strengthening of his progressive bloc in Congress. Then, with the election thrown into Congress, he will hold the balance of power and be able to check the Democrats and Republicans.

The progressives will be able to prevent the election of any man distasteful to them, and to defeat legislation, but except by a combination with one or the other of the old parties, they can do nothing.

Whatever comes of La Follette's movement, his candidacy is at least a strong protest against the conditions existing at Washington.

AVIATION HERE AND ABROAD.

Americans are naturally proud of the achievement of their air hero, Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, in proving that this continent can be crossed by the air route in a single day. We have inaugurated a regular mail service across the country by airplane. No country has beaten us in enterprise, daring and endurance. The army and navy air services are doing all in their power with their limited means to keep the United States in the front rank in aviation.

But in that every-day progress, on the largest scale, in Government and commercial aviation, which is the best preparation for a possible war, and also the best public education in the possibilities of aviation, the European countries are far ahead. France has been building up the airplane industry, by subsidies and other Government aid, ever since the war. She has the largest and best fleet of airships in the world. Germany has cheap passenger air service between her big cities and is well equipped with commercial planes. And now Great Britain has launched a huge aircraft monopoly, with a Government subsidy of $5,000,000, equal to the capital stock. "The British Empire," said Col. Bristow of the British air service, "will one day stand or fall according to its appreciation or neglect of its aerial forces."

Last year British aircraft carried 12,000 passengers and $3,500,000 worth of goods and covered 943,000 miles, without the loss of a passenger. It is time for the United States and the people of this country to bestir themselves, if we are not to be left far behind in this race for navigation of the air.

A NEW ALICE IN WONDERLAND.

When James Whitcomb Riley's little orphan, Annie, uttered the warning that "the gobble-uns'll git ye ef ye don't watch out," she was unaware of the most mysterious and most fearsome of all the goblins. Annie never heard, nor did Mr. Riley, of the radio. But little Alice Colson, an Iowa girl of 14, who tried to elope the other day with a boy of 17, is wiser than Annie was; she's a real Alice in Wonderland, for Radio, King-Bee Grand Goblin of the Ethereal Universe, has reached out its invisible and innumerable tentacles and gathered her in.

The boy's name being Gerald, and Alice being of a romantic turn, she could not resist running away with him. But when she learned that her parents had caused a description of her to be broadcast, Annie capitulated. No use trying to evade such a goblin as that! So Annie came in and surrendered; and now, no doubt, she is willing to warn other romantic maidens that the radio'll git them ef they don't watch out.

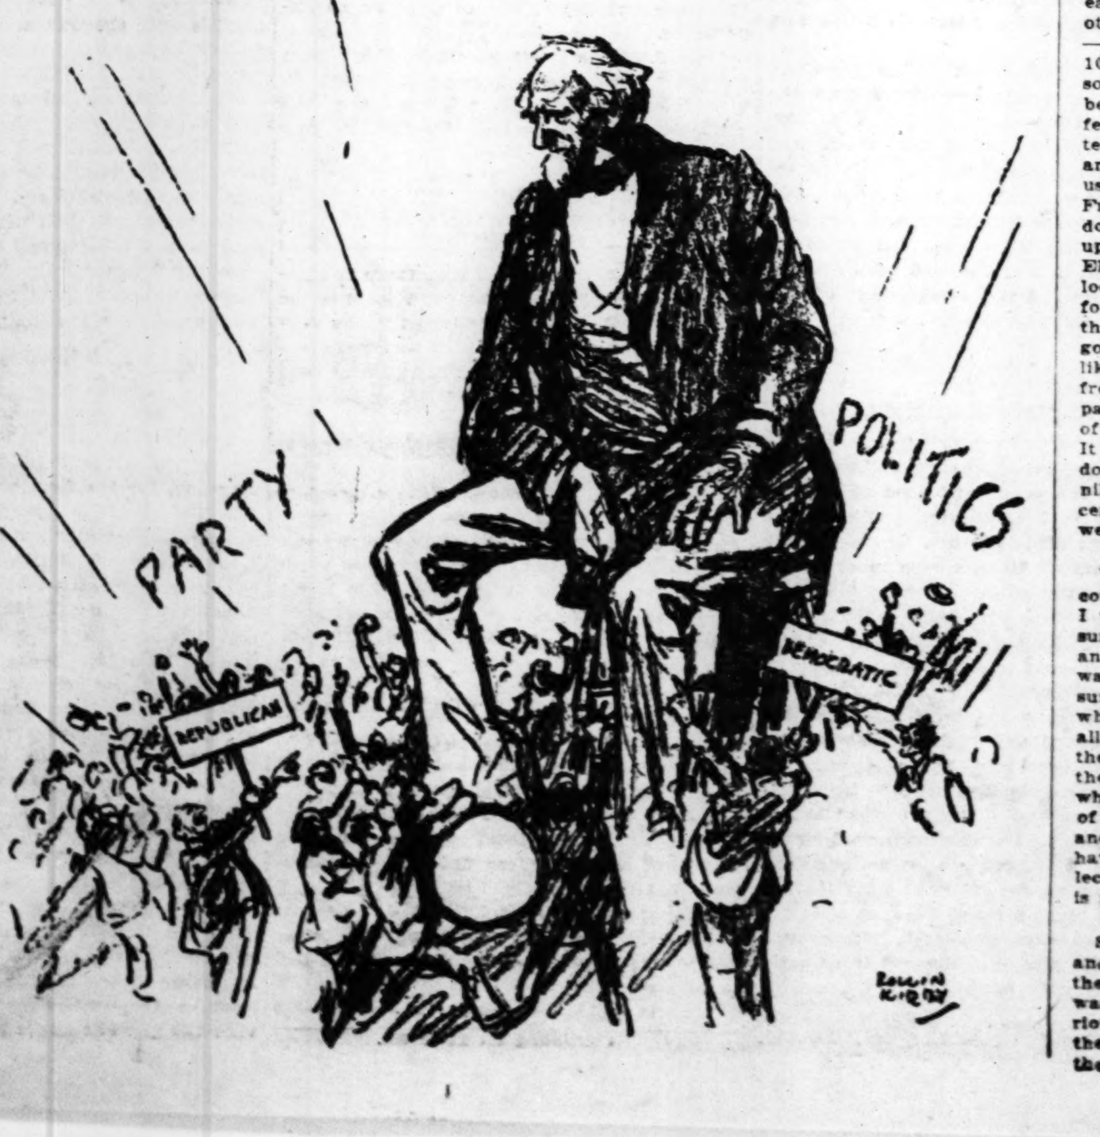
THE SUPER-LITERARY MALADY.

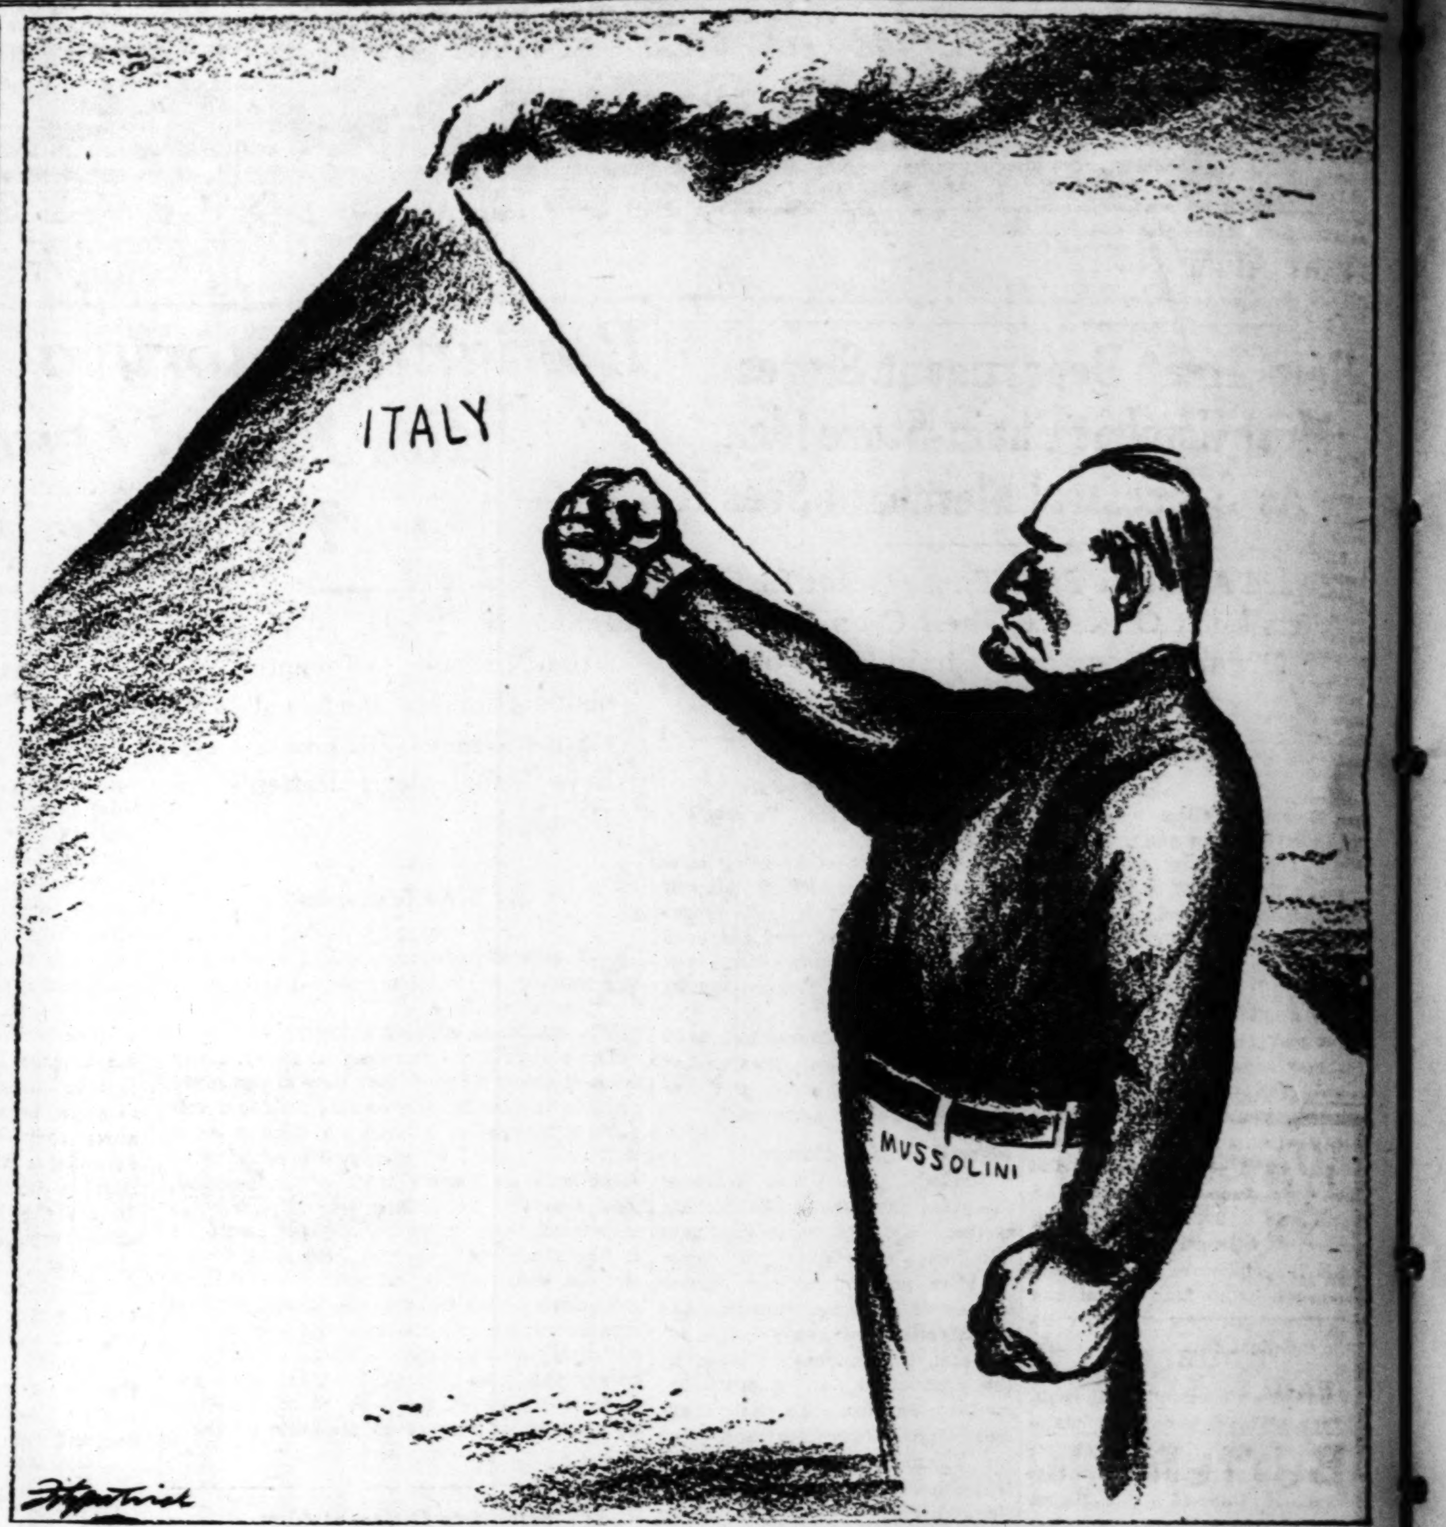
To a person of average culture, one of the advantages of living in a city such as St. Louis is the absence of what may be described as a super-literary set. So far as we have been able to ascertain through travel and reading, New York and Chicago are the only American cities so afflicted. Each of those unfortunate places has a self-selected circle of males and females of the species who arrogate to themselves a superior intellectuality. An acute observer recognizes the symptoms quite readily. These symptoms are indicated in this brief excerpt from an article by a Londoner in the current number of The Bookman, and it is evident that London also suffers:

"I have seen great numbers of high-browed, small-nosed women, who speak as if they had plums in their mouths, who have all given me the impression of being rather conceited about their intellects. They insist upon talking in a sort of esthetic jargon about 'art' and 'fawm' and Walter de la Mare, * * * and they distress me more by their assurance than by their limitation. I know there are men who also talk about 'art' and 'fawm,' and I regret equally the existence of these men, who are a menace to any person who really cares about either art or form—and who therefore speaks reluctantly about either."

Super-literaryism is a disease due chiefly to mental lopsidedness. Its victims lack the happy rotundity of intellect which includes, as necessary rounding-out ingredients, common sense and a sense of humor. This being the diagnosis, what then is the prognosis? Alas! common sense and a sense of humor are born, not made. The "art" and "fawm" folk are chronic cases. They themselves cannot be cured, but those who come in contact with them can avoid inhaling the infection by exhaling a hearty laughter.

THE ONE WHO PAYS.
(From the New York World.)





WILL THE VOLCANO OBEY?

JUST A MINUTE

(Copyright, 1924.)

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By CLARK McADAMS

NEW YORK.—Last summer when I was in New York they were putting up a great building at the extreme lower end of Broadway near the Battery. Broadway spreads out there as it approaches the bay very much as the trunk of a tree spreads just before it enters the ground.

The new building followed upon its facade the shape of Broadway. It went up like the hanging gardens of Nebuchadnezzar, one over the other, until in a final rocket-like upthrust it ended in a tower just short of the Woolworth tower.

It was a white building, and standing down in Broadway and watching it mount from the street level to the superb height of the tower in a veritable up-ended city, one building topping another, here a temple and there a tower, this round and that square, here something severe and there something decorative—a very architectural ladder mounting from the dreariness and drudgery of the street into the freedom and adventure of the skies—I wondered whose building it was and of just what the apotheosis.

A little above that on Broadway was the Woolworth Building, eloquent of the abandon with which we spend 10 cents. Probably it is because 10 cents come to us easier than they have ever come to any other people that we part with them easier—that we will buy anything because it is 10 cents, not because 10 cents will buy something we want. However that may be, there is the Woolworth Building, 750 feet high, unquestionably America's architectural masterpiece, a symphony in steel and stone which has made Cass Gilbert to us what William S. Gilbert was to England. From the top of its tower you can look down upon the greatest of American cities, upon the Hudson, the Statue of Liberty, Ellis Island, the Brooklyn Bridge. You can look out to sea. You see the three and four funneled ocean, greyhounds lying at their docks far below, the ships coming and going upon the bay. There is nothing else like it anywhere in the world. Paris is from the Eiffel Tower colorless by comparison. Here are water, land, the romance of the New World, our touch with the old. It is all made into a panorama and laid down before us in a picture by the willy-nilliness of 10 cents. Crazy to spend 10 cents on any old thing selling for a dime, we made possible this.

Very well. What madness of yesterday could the new building on Broadway be? I went down the other day to see. Last summer there had not been a name of any sort upon it. You might guess that it was gum-chewing or almost any other absurd thing did it. You could be sure that whatever did it was something to which we all give our mite, the rich and the poor, the widow and the orphan, the thrifty and the unthrifty. It was not something in which the contributions are from each one of us in 10 or in 20, but from all of us and everyone. The great fortunes, so I have read, have usually been made by collecting something from everybody. There is more money in pins than in stickpins.

So it was that I walked down Broadway and reached the place where it flares at the bottom like a sailor's pantleg. There was the great white building, with the curious rounded facade, the steps suggesting the hanging gardens of Nebuchadnezzar, the plane surfaces here and the pillars there, and finally the tower going up like a rocket high in air.

They had been getting on with it since last summer. The exterior is complete. The windows are swung. A little and the occupants-to-be will be in, some high and some low, some looking gloriously out to sea. There was the name, too. It is just as I thought. You will laugh when I tell you. It stood out in cut stone, unashamed and truthful:

Standard Oil Building

So that was that.

If it has been 53 years since New York had one of the great national conventions, it will be a hundred years before she has another national convention of the Democrats. It is said that money, which is the root of all evil, lured them from the way of discretion. Usually the Democrats stick to the West. They may be found every four years as a rule in session at St. Louis or some other city in the Mississippi Valley. Being our only national party, as William Allen White has pointed out, they sometimes show as far away as Frisco; but they are at home in the West. The New York convention had fearful consequences. To begin, it landed the party in the stronghold of Smith. Smith might anywhere else have been an incident. At New York he became a very great factor. It was not that he was ever in any danger of being nominated. He never was; but with him in the race for the nomination, backed by his own people in his own home, issues which had nothing to do with the campaign swayed the convention this way and that before it ever got down to the serious business of the party

The Democrats are not sure that this has not injured the party. They are making cautious inquiries to ascertain what its solidarity, if any, amounts to after the shindy at New York. They blame themselves, not Smith and his people, for what happened. They should have met on neutral ground. It is well known of Democrats that they never fight the Republicans half so hard as they can fight among themselves once they get started. In the South, where there are no Republicans, political campaigns are even more bitter and spirited than they are in the North.

The truth is that Homer nodded—and he got scratched up for it.

THE OZARK HILLS.

To know them is to love them! Yes
Those low-peaked hills which summer winds caress,
Whose crests the dark green cedars crown
And royal oaks upon deep vales look down.
Here nature painted with a marvelous brush
Deep evening shadows and the dawn's pink flush.
And more than this, the hills she glorified
With intuition and artistic pride.
As around each peak with magic brush she drew
A misty halo of enchanting blue.
To know them is to love them! Yes
Those low-peaked hills which nature paused to bless
With touch immortal, each entrancing view
Veiled in a mist of her mysterious blue.

CHRISTIANITY AND WAR.

GLEN FRANK, Editor of the Century, in the July Number of the Magazine.

IF ever a war was spiritually justified, it was the war waged for the war aims formulated by Woodrow Wilson and approved by allied statesmen, and yet witness the spiritual havoc that marks its aftermath * * * If we find ourselves dragged into another war by the stupidity or cupidity of political or industrial leadership in our own or some other nation, let us go into war honestly admitting that it is an ugly job, as the clearing of a sewer is an ugly job, an ugly job that has been made necessary by stupidity and cupidity, and not insult the name and disgrace the Church of Jesus of Nazareth by fooling ourselves into thinking we are entering a spiritual crusade * * * War is the utter negation of all that the religion of Jesus stands for. The state may spend its time dilly-dallying with the problem of war; the church dare not. If in the future the church is to be more than an exhorting ambulance driver in world politics, it must choose now between Jesus and the generals. It is so easy for the church to say that, as an organization, it will not bless any war, and then follow such an assertion with a weasel phrase such as "except wars of defense and wars waged in a righteous cause." As if any nation ever admitted that it fought a war that was not in self-defense or in a righteous cause! * * * The church is not an end in itself; it is a means to an end. The church must not allow the care of its machinery to steal away its strength from the serving of its deepest mission which is the Christianization of human society, a thing that will remain impossible, in my judgment, as long as churches sanction war.

THE BRITISH "HONORS LIST."

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

THE Labor party, which was supposed not to understand the traditions of the Empire and to be lacking in the appreciation of finer nuances of conduct, has put its Tory and Liberal opponents to shame by restoring, for the moment at least, something of the old dignity and prestige of a potent factor in British society. * * * There is no equivalent in the United States for the British "honors list." The nearest we have to it is the doling out of ambassadorial posts after a new President takes office. * * * There was more than the usual interest in the honors list of the Labor Government. Timid Tories foresaw the possibility of plumbers turned into lords and railway men made baronets. The first Labor honors list is out and nothing of the kind happened. Ramsay MacDonald made no new peers at all and only two baronets. Even the lesser lists are shorter than usual.

More striking than this, however, is the fact that the titles and honors conferred are almost all for some signal national service. T. P. O'Connor, for instance, the "father" of the House of Commons, is made a member of the Privy Council, with the privilege of putting "Right Honorable" before his name. The baronets are a famous London surgeon and a man who gave the money necessary for the establishment of the National Scottish Library. There are no actors in the list of knights and no brewers—both unheard-of omissions—and but few politicians.

HOW DEPARTMENT STORES MUST COMBAT CHAIN IDEA

cal adjustments and will, with due regard to the fundamental policies of his chain, have as much authority in dealing with local problems as any of his local non-chain competitors. Out of such an organization should come true mass buying with department store conveniences and service. The department store chain system will succeed permanently under the rapidly coming changes in distribution.

Wants Shopping Done.

But distribution, Mr. Filene hastened to point out, is not an end in itself. It is only the road from producer to consumer. If it is a poor road, the cost of its inefficiency is loaded on the consumer.

Filene wants shoppers to shop instead of just buying. He wants stores overrun with hard-boiled customers. He wants these pestilential hordes to be looking less for bargains than for values. He wants them to know values; insist on values; shop, reshop and counter-shop till they get values, regardless of the stocks they dis-arrange and sales staffs they discommode.

"It is economic treason to shop carelessly," he declared. "It is a part of good citizenship to sacrifice the necessary time and trouble to get the best prices and goods attainable. That maens giving up the idea that it is a sign of nobility to pay any price demanded. The public can contribute decisively to the growth to the best form of retail distribution by shopping and shopping again, bringing influence to bear so that the store organized to present the best value will get the business.

"Value is threefold: quality, style and price, and there is plenty of leeway for very great reductions in retail prices provided consumers will help producers and distributors by supporting those who produce and distribute the best values. That means shopping carefully. In the last analysis the average commodity has no value except its selling value. The price which goods are sold at is determined largely by the price a customer can or will pay."

This would not be the case, he added, if production and distribution functioned perfectly. They do not so function now. As pointed out by Secretary Hoover's Commission of Engineers in their report, "Waste and Production," almost half the production cost of the average article is due to preventable waste.

"The average thing doubles in price from production cost to ultimate consumer," Mr. Filene commented. Some things treble—farm products, for instance, and automobile parts. Careful shopping is one of the forces which would help to close up this gap. When people pay too much for goods they work a double injury. They lessen their own buying power. And they help to make wages and salaries counterfeit instead of real. Under present conditions, men's time is largely taken up earning necessary food, clothing and shelter, with enough luxuries added to keep them willing to work. And earned money becomes counterfeit when prices rise so high that the wages or salary is insufficient to buy those necessities and that modicum of luxury."

Massed buying through chain organization to lessen distribution costs—careful instead of careless shopping to insure the consumer the benefit of the saving—that is Mr. Filene's heretical thesis.

CONFERENCE ON DAWES REPORT CHANCE FOR PEACE

primarily determined by two considerations. The first is the prospect held out by the allies of substantial loans to help her to reestablish her currency. The second will be the attitude of France and Belgium towards the evacuation of the Ruhr. Here there may be trouble. M. Herriot's declarations are not, on the face of them, by any means satisfactory. Mr. MacDonald seems to have pleaded for an "invisible occupation." This is one of the vague phrases in which he is wont to indulge. It was too misty for M. Herriot either to reject or to accept. He is a business man. He therefore replied by stipulating for a free hand for France and Belgium. If this only means that he is retaining the Ruhr occupation for the present as a negotiating pawn, all may yet be well. But if he meant his words in the Poincare sense, then there will be mischief.

As I have already said in the course of this article, I believe the Herriot Government has accepted the Dawes report in good faith. The displaced reactionary government also accepted it, but it was clear that they had an "arriero pensee." They meant, by one excuse or another, to retain their military hold on the Ruhr with a view to securing two objects. The first is deep in all French hearts, the second has sunk deep into many French pockets. The former is security for the French frontiers, the second is opportunity for French financiers. Many Frenchmen honestly believe that France will never be safe unless the arsenals of Westphalia are under French control. French financiers and forge masters believe that the industries of France can only be made great and prosperous by economic control of the resources of the Ruhr.

The Poincare Government could never get away from these influences. The mandate of the last election liberated French diplomacy. M. Herriot is a free man. The success of the conferene will depend largely on his making full use of his freedom.

I am very hopeful of success—and the Dawes report will in a few weeks be an essential part of the international system of Europe.

ROMANTIC STORY OF MAN WHO PROMISES TO MAKE LIFE EASIER

achieved. A furnace was built capable of generating a heat of over 2000 degrees centigrade, and operating in a vacuum. In addition, this vacuum served to expand the bubbles to several times their ordinary size, thus allowing much of the gas to free itself from the mass. Here is what resulted:

Berry opened the safe which stood in a corner of his office. He took from it a piece of quartz about the size and shape of a quarter. The writer felt it; it is smooth and fairly transparent, but tiny bubbles could be discerned in the interior.

"These bubbles," continued the engineer, "are largely evacuated spaces, but do contain some gases and possibly liquids. Compared to what we turn out now that little piece is very imperfect. But compared to what had been done previously it represented a great accomplishment. It is the first piece of clear quartz successfully made by fusion in an electric furnace.

"As soon as we had produced that piece I could visualize our eventual success. It was still far away, and devilish difficulties had still to be overcome, but progress seemed inevitable. That piece supplied me with a definite forecast of all the things which are now confidently expected. Cheap quartz, in lamps, for purifying water, in window panes for sun rooms in hospitals, in small and large lenses for microscopes, cameras and telescopes, in medical instruments—all these possibilities were seen through that piece 10 years ago.

"But there was still a long road to travel. Those bubbles had to be driven out. For 10 years those bubbles have been my nightmare. I have tugged at them, bombarded them, heated and chilled and squashed them. Every conceivable engine has been used to conquer them. It was heart-breaking labor.

"And now, to be brief and untechnical, we pull them out, and then we squash what remains of them in the smallest possible space.

"How do we pull them out? Just step down into this."

He led me along the corridor and into a large chamber in the center of which stood a huge tank from which streamed octopus-like tentacles of pipes and cables, the walls were lined with engines and other machinery.

Vacuum Pumps.

"Here are 18 high-powered vacuum pumps—sucking pumps, which exercise their pull through pipes connecting with the material in that furnace in the center," explained Berry. "The natural quartz, tightly packed in graphite cylinders, is placed in the furnace and heated. Then the pumps are set going. The normal pressure inside the glue-like quartz is greatly increased. The bubbles expand. The largest of them, coming to the surface, break and are promptly pulled away by the pumps. The mass is then removed, and we get this."

He displayed a heavy gray cylinder and tapped it with a hammer. Its shell cracked and fell away and there remained a cylinder of gleaming, glass-like matter, with notches along its sides. He placed it on and over a sheet of newspaper. The print was easily readable through the nine inches of the cylinder's length.

"The real process now remains," continued Mr. Berry. "This slug is now placed in another furnace, which does not pull out but squeezes the remaining bubbles. The mass is subject to enormous external pressure and is then driven through slots in the bottom. Suppose we observe it in operation."

We stepped into another room. Amid a deafening clatter a group of workmen were collected about what looked like a suspended tank, from the bottom of which poured several white-hot streams. These were clipped into lengths and cooled in a water bath. Here one could finally see clear fused quartz manufactured in quantities—a commercial product, no longer a curiosity of the special laboratory.

Enormous Pressure on Furnaces.

"Now, it looks simple and ninnocent enough," remarked Mr. Berry, as we found our way back to his study, "and it may well seem so, unless one remembers that there is a pressure of over a million pounds exerted on the covers of some of those furnaces. We can't bolt the covers down any tighter; to add more bolts would only weaken the furnace walls. Even at that, though, I have begun to use a pressure from 2000 to 3000 pounds per square inch a total of nearly 2,000,000 pounds in a single furnace."

His achievements now known to the world, Berry has suddenly found himself famous. The human side of his story, however, is the staggering contrast afforded by his many years of inconceivable toil, physical and mental, but particularly the latter. More than 10 years of a man's prime spent entirely in realizing a dream of expelling millions of tiny bubbles from a tough and refractory substance. On concentrated devotion of this character rests the triumph of modern organized science.

Schedule of Supervised Play.

To stimulate attendance upon the playground of the Ben Blewett Junior High School, Enright avenue and Windermere way, the patrons' association of that school has issued an announcement giving a schedule of supervised play from 1 to 5 p. m. on week days, except Saturday, when the hours are from 8 a. m. to noon. Baseball volley ball and basketball teams will be organized in the various groups under the supervision of an instructor furnished by the School Board.

62,000 SIGNATURES FOR TAX PROPOSALS

Masonic Lodges Backing Movement to Exempt Property Used for Schools and Charity.

More than 62,000 signatures have been obtained by the Masonic lodges of the State, in an initiative petition campaign, which closed yesterday, to place on the ballot at the November election an amendment to the State Constitution which will exempt from taxation property, including endowments and income, used exclusively for educational purposes or for purposes purely charitable. The petitions will be filed with Secretary of State Becker tomorrow.

The campaign was launched a month ago by the Board of Directors of the Masonic Home of Missouri, one of the largest charitable institutions in the State. William F. Johnson of Boonville is chairman of the committee which has directed the campaign. The other members of the committee are David M. Wilson of Milan., former Gov. Alexander M. Dockery of Gallatin, and Mrs. Ella J. Flanders of Excelsior Springs.

The signers were obtained by volunteer circulators, each Masonic lodge and each Order of Eastern Star chapter in the State having appointed a committee to assist in the campaign. Although sponsored by the Masonic fraternity, numerous other fraternities, educational institutions and religious organizations have indorsed the proposed amendment and will co-operate in the campaign for its adoption in November.

In a statement yesterday the Campaign Committe said that the campaign has been one of the most successful initiative petition campaigns ever conducted in the State. Reports of circulators, it is stated, indicate an overwhelming public sentiment in favor of the amendment.

The proposed amendment is similar in its provisions to Section 8 of Amendment No. 12, which was submitted at the election on Feb. 26. Amendment No. 12 was defeated by a small majority because of other objectionable features, and not because of any objection to Section 8, the Campaign Committee believes.

The amendment as it will be submitted follows:

"The property, real and personal, of the State, counties and other municipal corporations, and cemeteries, shall be exempt from taxation. Lots in incorporated cities or villages, or within one mile of the limits thereof, to the extent of two acres, and lots one mile or more distant from such cities or villages, to the extent of five acres, with the buildings thereon, when the same are used exclusively for religious worship; property, including endowments, or income, used exclusively for educational purposes, or for purposes purely charitable, or for agricultural or horticultural societies, when not operated or used for private profit, shall be exempt from taxation."

Under Section 6, Article 10, of the present Constitution, which the proposed amendment repeals, cemeteries and lots to the extent one acre in cities and towns, or within one mile of the city limits, and lots of five acres more than a mile from a city, with buildings thereon, may be exempt from taxation by general law when such property is used exclusively for religious worship, for schools or for purposes purely charitable. The present Constitution does not include endowments, nor does it provide that property to be exempt shall not be operated or used for private profit.

I WAS FAT

NOW I ONLY WEIGH 130 POUNDS

Took off 50 Pounds in 8 Weeks—No Diets, Exercises, Creams, Dangerous Drugs or Worthless Reducing Girdles.

READ ABOUT "SAN-GRI-NA" LATEST FRENCH WAY TO TAKE OFF FAT—IT'S SAFE AND LASTING.

"Dear Fat Folks: Let me tell you the truth about fat—do not be fooled by believing you can check a fatty condition in your system by going through weakening diets, strenuous exercises, rubbing your body with creams or lotions, or by using any of the old drugs for reducing. If these were effective, THERE WOULD NOT BE A FAT MAN OR WOMAN IN THE COUNTRY to-day, as diets, exercises, creams and old remedies have been tried for years. Do not think for a minute that you can take off fat by wearing so-called reducing girdles—it cannot be done. I personally know the horror of being fat—I went through it, not only did I feel ashamed of my figure, but, worse still, I never was well or happy like the rest of the girls—I always had pains in my back or limbs, my feet ached, my head was dizzy—ALL THAT BECAUSE I WAS OVERTAXING MY FRAME WITH 50 POUNDS OF EXCESS FAT, WHICH NATURE DID NOT INTEND FOR ME TO CARRY. I had spent a small fortune trying everything known to reduce, but never succeeded until I found out about 'SAN-GRI-NA,' the discovery of a French scientist, who has devoted his life to the study of 'obesity,' and has been able to compound in a small, tasteless tablet, the ingredients necessary to gradually and safely eliminate fat from the body. If you want to reduce and at the same time improve your health, go today to your drug store, get a package of 'SAN-GRI-NA' (make sure it is 'SAN-GRI-NA'), take two small tablets before each meal and watch your weight go down. 'SAN-GRI-NA' is GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS—not only does it do away with fat, but it acts as a tonic on the entire system. Do not accept any substitute, as 'SAN-GRI-NA' is the only thing which ever reduced me, and which I can truthfully recommend."—Madame Elaine, New York City.

SAN-GRI-NA is now sold at any of Sparhart Bros. stores, Draper Drug Stores, Enderle Drug Stores, Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, or Otto's Drug Stores.

ARRESTS BY GAME WARDEN

Two Men Charged With Fishing With Trammel Net.

Fred Gerhard of Creve Coeur, who is a Deputy Constable of Bonhomme Township, and a resort owner on Creve Coeur Lake, and Charles Hayes of 5330 Clark avenue, were arrested at midnight Friday by William J. Wiemeyer, a Deputy State Fish and Game Commissioner, who charged them with fishing in the lake with a trammel net.

Weimeyer stated that he caught Gerhard and Hays taking in the net, which contained several large fish. Both gave bond for their appearance Wednesday before Justice of the Peace Knoche at Creve Coeur.

Wiemeyer also arrested Ernest Biller of 2115 Arsenal street, for fishing without a license Friday afternoon.

PETITIONS ON CITY EXPANSION PLAN READY FOR FILING

Total of 56,583 Signatures Obtained Throughout the State for Initiative Proposal.

EACH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT CANVASSED

Success Due to Fact City and County Have Worked in Harmony, Vesper Declares.

Initiative petitions calling for a vote throughout Missouri in the November general election on a proposed constitutional amendment to enable St. Louis and St. Louis County to act on metropolitan expansion, will be filed with the Secretary of State at Jefferson City tomorrow by the Metropolitan Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

The volume and distribution of signatures to the petitions encourages leaders of the movement to believe that the voters of the State will act favorably on the proposal at the polls. Passage of the proposal simply will mean that the people of the State's metropolis and its adjacent county will have the privilege of self-determination in a matter that concerns them alone.

56,583 Signatures.

A minimum of about 46,000 signatures was needed. After the movement was undertaken there was only about a month in which to obtain signatures. The total obtained is 56,583. A surplus was gathered for two reasons—to demonstrate sentiment and to allow for removal of some improper names, as always occurs in such petitions.

Only 11 of the 16 congressional districts had to be canvassed, but all 16 were canvassed, and a surplus obtained in each. Signatures from the Tenth District, comprising all of St. Louis County and part of the city, total 6514; those from the Eleventh and Twelfth (city) districts, respectively, are 2480 and 1649. The Fifth District, comprising Kansas City and the rest of Jackson County, gave 7047. Virtually all counties are represented.

Statement by Vesper.

F. W. A. Vesper, chairman of the Metropolitan Committee, issued the following statement:

"We members of the committee feel that the success of the campaign for signatures has been largely due to the fact that in this matter the citizens of both city and county have worked in harmony. In past efforts to bring about a consolidation of the city and county there have appeared conflicting interests that have made agreement impossible, but this time matters were decided in advance, and a most elastic proposition, in which the interests of both city and county are safeguarded, was agreed upon by representatives of both sides of the boundary.

"The amendment as submitted is merely an enabling act which will allow the citizens of the two communities to settle among themselves some matters of vital importance to the growth and progress of the St. Louis district on the west side of the river. It provides for a joint board of freeholders who shall decide to submit to the voters at some later date a plan for expansion. The citizens of the two communities can accept or reject the submitted proposition, as they see fit, but first we must have constitutional authority to adjust what are really our own affairs, and that is why we are asking that this amendment be placed upon the ballot Nov. 4."

Provisions of Plan.

The proposal would enable appointment of nine freeholders from the city and nine from the county to draw up an expansion plan under one of three schemes—merger of city and county as one county under municipal government, re-entry of the city into the county so that extensions could be made under existing laws, and annexation of parts of the county to the city.

The proposal was indorsed by a St. Louis County committee appointed by the County Court, of which Arthur V. Lashly is chairman.

Mayor Kiel, in a statement made before his recent departure for Europe, congratulated the Metropolitan Committee on its preliminary success, which, he thought, showed conclusively "that the people throughout the great State of Missouri realize the handicap that St. Louis has been laboring under by virtue of the old agreement of 1876." The Mayor said that upon his return he would do "everything in his power to forward this project."

The next move of the Metropolitan Committee will be to spread information of the proposal through the State, to win votes for it.

DAILY AMERICAN SUSPENDS FOR AN INDIFINITE PERIOD

The St. Louis American, daily morning newspaper, started here May 23 in conjunction with the German daily, Amerika, suspended issue for an indefinite period yesterday, following a meeting of the Board of Directors, at which it was decided the paper was losing too much money to continue publication.

The paper, of which J. D. Flynn, Oklahoma publisher, was editor, was published in the plant of the Amerika, 18 South Sixth street, and its issue of July 3 was the forty-third issue. In that issue it was announced there would be no publication July 4 and 5, but that the Sunday paper would be issued as usual.

$27,500 FINE PAID BY CEMENT COMPANY

Check Forwarded Following Settlement of Antitrust Proceeding.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—A check for $27,500, in payment of the fine stipulated for the Missouri Portland Cement Co., of St. Louis, in the settlement last Wednesday of the anti-trust case in the Supreme Court against the St. Louis Material Dealers' Association, was received today by Supreme Court Clerk Allen from Charles M. Polk of St. Louis, attorney for the company.

The $10,000 fine imposed on the Continental Portland Cement Co., now out of business, has not yet been paid.

Settlement Reached.

As has been related, the antitrust proceeding was settled by the Missouri Portland and Continental companies, the dominating members of the association, agreeing to pay fines of $27,500 and $10,000, respectively. The agreement was reached in a conference with the Judges of the Supreme Court in chambers, who approved a stipulation fixed by company attorneys and Attorney-General Barrett. The Missouri Portland assumed responsibility for the 12 smaller companies named as defendants and the suit was dismissed as to them. The stipulation also provided an ouster order would be issued against the Missouri Portland Co. to be suspended during good behavior.

Chief Justice Graves stated a formal decree by the court had been drawn up today and sent to the court clerk to be entered in the record. The decree has incorporated in it the various provisions of the stipulation filed by the attorneys for the company and State.

Previous Fines.

Two fines of $10,000 each, imposed in a settlement of a similar antitrust proceeding against two cement companies of Kansas City, are yet to be paid. As has been related the Ashgrove Lime and Portland Cement Co. and the Dewey Portland Cement Co., both of Kansas City, agreed on May 26, last, to pay fines of $10,000 each in the antitrust case filed against them by Attorney-General Barrett and accept conditional ousters. The ousters are stayed during good behavior. The companies were given 60 days to pay the fines, a like period having been allowed for payment of fines by the Missouri Portland and Continental companies.

The total of $57,500 to be derived from the fines in settlement of the St. Louis Material Dealers' Association case and that against the two Kansas City companies will go into the general revenue fund of the State. This is in contrast to the law governing disposition of fines collected in prosecutings within the various counties of the State, which go into the school funds.

PROMOTIONS AND ASSIGNMENTS IN 138TH INFANTRY MADE

Col. A. E. Deitsch Is Organizing Regiment to Rid it of Klan Influence.

Several promotions and assignments in the 138th Infantry, First Missouri National Guard regiment, were announced today by Col. A. E. Deitsch, who is reorganizing the regiment to rid the organization of members of the Ku Klux Klan in the interest of discipline.

In addition to the resignations already announced, Capt. Emil Burst yesterday tendered his resignation, which was accepted. Capt. Burst offered no explanation of his action.

Master Sergeant Edwin Burns was appointed Captain and supply officer to succeed Capt. Hiram Townsend, resigned; George L. Patterson was appointed First Lieutenant and assigned to Machine Gun Company H, and Second Lieutenant Guy B. Zaricor of Company E, was appointed First Lieutenant.

Sergt. Burns has had over 15 years' service in the Regular Army and National Guard and won promotions to the rank of Captain in the World War. Lieut. Patterson was a Second Lieutenant in the war. Lieut. Zaricor has been with the regiment two years.

The resignations of Capt. William Phillips and Capt. Carl Christine were not in any way related to the campaign to restore discipline. Capt. Phillips, who was Adjutant, resigned because of a reduction in pay, and Capt. Christine quit because conditions were such, he said, that he did not believe the regiment could be put on an efficient footing without the active co-operation of business men with Col. Deitsch. Capt. Christine was one of the leaders in the group that opposed the Ku Klux element.

Society to Fete National Tennis Players Here for Championship Tourney

Smoker, Dinners, Dances and Opera on Program Arranged by Entertainment of Visitors—Many of Social Leaders Box-Holders at Matches.

THE national clay court tennis championship tournament this week is lending interest to a lagging midsummer calendar—and, with the entertainments scheduled for the visiting players, will provide a series of red-letter days for society. Each afternoon the flag-bedecked boxes and stands surrounding the "Triple A" courts will be filled with an admiring gallery, clad in sports clothes of vivid hue, come to do homage to the country's keenest devotees of the racquet. Each evening much of the same crowd will form gay parties to entertain them.

The biggest lion of all is William T. Tilden II, world's champion, who has so many titles it is difficult to enumerate them; and in addition Brian I. C. Norton, the young Englishman, who, with Mr. Tilden, holds the national doubles championship (played on grass courts); Howard and Robert Kinsey, former St. Louisans, who will defend their title as clay court doubles champions; Samuel Hardy, captain of the team who brought the Davis Cup back from Australia in 1920; Beals C. Wright and "Sandy" Wiener, Mr. Tilden's protege.

The play started yesterday, and, beginning tonight, there will be some sort of function each evening up to and including Saturday, when the finals will be played. Much of the entertaining has been put into the hands of a committee, although there are, in addition, a number of affairs not on the official program.

Tonight Stuart and Arthur Stickney have invited a group of friends informally to their home on the St. Louis Country Club grounds, and tomorrow night a smoker has been arranged at the Racquet Club. Tuesday night there will be a small dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Kauffman in Portland place, in addition to party at the Municipal Opera. A dinner dance at the Sunset Hill Country Club will complete Wednesday's program.

Drummond Jones has arranged a dinner dance at Grant's Farm for the visitors Thursday night, and invited his guests for 8 o'clock. The following evening the Percy Orthwein home on Lindell boulevard will be opened to a special group for an informal party before a boat ride down the river on the steamer J. S., planned by the committee. Willard Cox will be host with Mr. Orthwein. Members of the fashionable set will motor to the St. Louis Country Club for a dinner dance Saturday night, when the players, and especially the winners, will be the center of attraction. As is customary with visiting sportsmen, all town and country clubs will be opened to the visitors for the entire week, and guest cards furnished.

A list of box holders for the week follows: Elzey G. Burkham, Dr. Joseph W. Charles, Richard L. Daly, Edward H. Simmons, L. Ray Carter, Allan P. Gamble, Walter H. Kobush, Wooster Lambert, James Bergs, Mrs. W. H. Morgan, Joseph Woddock, Dr. G. H. Rice, Dan W. Jones, Harold J. Wrape, Harold M. Kauffman, Joseph L. Werner, Ferris Tennis Club, Wheaton C. Two Weddings Climax the Week's Social Gayeties

Hadley-Drescher and O'Reilly-Warner Nuptials Are Informal Events but of Social Importance.

TWO weddings yesterday, both small and informal, but of social importance, gave a climax to the week's social gayeties.

At 11:30 o'clock in the morning in the picturesque old family home of the late Congressman and Mrs. W. Flavius L. Hadley in Edwardsville, their daughter, Miss Flavia Hadley, became the bride of John M. Drescher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren F. Drescher of 7 Beverly place. The engagement was not announced until Thursday. The decorations and arrangements were simple, and there were no attendants except W. L. Hadley, who was his brother-in-law's best man. The bride wore an imported gown of heavy flat crepe, made simply, and depending upon the richness of the fabric for adornment. The blouse was sleeveless and plain and the girdle embroidered. A cascade of loops of the material falls from the waist line to ornament the front of the skirt. She carried white gardenias.

Guests From St. Louis.

The guests from St. Louis, besides Mr. and Mrs. Drescher, parents of the bridegroom and Dr. and Mrs. Howard Kehde, his brother-in-law and sister, included Mrs. Newton R. Wilson and Mr and Mrs. Auguste B. Ewing. The Rev. Dr. Arthur of the Episcopal Church of Edwardsville read the service. Mr. and Mrs. Drescher will spend their honeymoon at Banff and Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies, and will make their home at the Forest Park

Matrons and Girls To Sell Souvenirs at Charity Ball Game

200 Will Appear in Red and White Costumes at Tuberculosis Society Benefit July 17.

RED and white will be the colors of the costumes worn by the more than 200 St. Louis girls and matrons who will be the center of attraction at the big charity ball game at Sportsman's Park, July 17, when they sell souvenir programs and incidentally distribute thousands of interesting gifts for the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis. The occasion will be the annual benefit ball game of the Tuberculosis Society, and the colors, red and white, are chosen because they represent the international anti-tuberculosis emblem, the red double-barred cross on a field of white.

Twenty-eight matrons have organized the girls into groups of 10 each, and the ball park has been platted so that each group will cover the same amount of territory. The programs will be sold for 25 cents each, and every program will contain a coupon which will entitle the holder to one of the 30,000 or more presents given away as souvenirs of the event. These presents are of every imaginable kind, from an automobile to an order for a "permanent wave," and are donated by interested merchants, manufacturers and financial concerns.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Bush, first vice president of the Tuberculosis Society, is chairman of the Program Committee and will direct the selling campaign. Some of the other matrons who will act as chaperons and assistants are hotel. The Hadley family has spent its winters in St. Louis for years, and has occupied the home of Mrs. Tom Meston in the Kingsbury apartments. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Gaius F. Paddock, Mrs. Ralph D. Griffin, W. L., West and Douglas Hadley.

TWO WEDDINGS CLIMAX THE WEEK'S SOCIAL GAIETIES

At 6 o'clock in the evening, Miss Annette O'Reilly, daughter of Mrs. Robert J. O'Reilly of 27 Washington terrace, was married to Francis Sinclair Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Warner, 5156 Kensington avenue. Because of the recent death of Dr. O'Reilly, guests were limited to members of the two families. Monsignor J. J. Tannrath officiated. The bride's gown was white crepe de chine, slightly draped, and with Irish lace trimming the bodice. She dispensed with a court train, and her short veil was caught to her hair with lilies of the valley. She carried the same flowers combined with roses. Miss Miriam Stanley, her niece, wore a pink organdie frock and carried blue delphinium and pink roses. Frederick Werner was his brother's best man. After a honeymoon trip in the North, Mr. and Mrs. Warner will make their home with Mrs. O'Reilly.

Made Informal Debut.

The bride is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent and made an informal debut three seasons ago. Mr. Warner served overseas with the Brigade Headquarters Co. St. Louis National Guard.

Members of the younger set in St. Louis who met Miss Lydia Dadmun of New York when she was here as the guest of Miss Margaret Caradine a month or two ago, will be interested to know that she was a bridesmaid at the wedding yesterday of Miss Joan Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney of Fifth avenue, New York, and Charles Shipman Payson of Portland, Me., which took place at Christ Church, Manhasset, L. I. The ceremony was attended by relatives and intimate friends, but a large reception followed at Greentree, the country estate of the Whitneys, at Manhasset. The title "Greentree" is where the famous Whitney racing stable derives its name.

There were two matrons of honor—Mrs. Barklie McKee Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington III of Washington. The bridesmaids, besides Miss Dadmun, were Adele and Virginia Ryan, Josephine Dodge and Elizabeth Kountza. The bride is a member of the Junior League and the Colony Club. She is a granddaughter of the late Secretary of State John Hay, and her paternal grandfather was the late William C. Whitney, Secretary of the Navy in President McKinley's Administration. Mr. Payson is a graduate of Yale and Harvard University Law School.

The marriage of Mrs. Elstelle Ellard Estep, widow of Thomas B. Estep, and Eric O. Leutszler of Elyria, O., took place Friday. The couple will be at home after July 15, at 3210 Harper street.

LEMON JUICE BEST TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier. Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It cannot be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Kills Catarrh Germs In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method, called Lavex, kills the germ in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it, and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid to anyone who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

Monday—A Sale of Sample Silk Dresses

Presents an Unusual Buying Occasion

$12

THREE well-known Dress manufacturers who specialize in Dresses of the better kind have sold us this extraordinary group of Silk Frocks at great price concessions, which makes it possible for us to mark them at these low figures.

One or two of a style in splendid quality Canton crepe, crepe meteor, crepe de chine, Roshanara and Georgette, in black and every popular color.

Because there are only 300 Frocks from which to choose, we suggest early selection. The range of sizes includes those for misses and women, and extra sizes up to 54. We recommend the event as one of extreme value-giving. The four models sketched are merely the keynote of the beauty to be found in the Dresses offered. The sale starts promptly at eight-thirty Monday morning.

(Downstairs Store.)

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer

This is the season when she who would have a lily-white complexion should turn her thoughts to mercolized wax, the firm friend of the summer girl. Nothing so effectually overcomes the soiling effects of sun, wind, dust and dirt. The wax literally absorbs the scorched, discolored, withered or coarsened scarf skin, bringing forth a brand-new skin, clear, soft and girlishly beautiful. It also unclogs the pores, uncovering blackheads and increasing the skin's breathing capacity.

An ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, applied nightly like cold cream, and washed off mornings, will gradually improve even the worst complexion. There's nothing better for tan, freckles, blotches.

KING'S DOCTOR HITS DRY LAW IN DEBATE

Denies Liquor Is Narcotic; House of Lords Argument Often Becomes Heated.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Lord Dawson of Penn, the King's physician, entered the lists against prohibition when the Bishop of Oxford's control bill was debated on its second reading in the House of Lords this week. He drew a vivid picture of the results of effacing the effects of a glass of an alcoholic beverage at the end of a hard day's work and asserted "We haven't the right to do anything which would diminish the cheerfulness and sociability of the world."

Ridiculing the idea that liquor was a narcotic, Lord Dawson said that a large majority of members of the medical profession were of the opinion that it was a useful and beneficial substance in the proper quantities at the proper time. "Can it be said that we should have had some of our finest literature, paintings and poetry on a ginger beer regime?" he asked.

Birkenhead Hits at U. S.

During the debate which often was heated, the Earl of Birkenhead seized the opportunity for another fling at prohibition in the United States which he said had resulted in a great general violation of the law on the part of all classes. Lord Buckmaster, on the other hand, asserted that since the Volstead act had been passed the jails had been emptied, savings deposits had increased, industrial efficiency had been promoted, and a higher level of comfort had been attained for women and children.

The bill is foredoomed to failure, according to observers, but has had the effect of focusing public interest on the question. Its proponents believe that it will eventually result in the passage of some measure for further control of liquor sales. The present measure provides that the inhabitants of each locality shall vote each three years on total prohibition, reorganization under State control or no change.

New Inn Is Opened.

In an effort to evolve an ideal public house, a big brewery firm has opened a "fellowship inn" at Bellingham, which is the first of a group of inns intended to serve alcoholic beverages and to cater to the social wants of all classes, and particularly those of families.

The inn's sign was painted by Sir Arthur Cope, member of the Royal Academy. Inside the inn there is a large hall, where music, dances, concerts and lawful games may be enjoyed. The inn has its own band and its own entertainments, and the customers sit at small tables in the continental cafe style, consuming tea, coffee or ale as they prefer.

The cooks and waitresses of the new public house have been instructed at a school instituted by the brewery company, whose chairman claims that the liquor problem cannot be solved by prohibition, government control or local option, and suggests his way—fellowship—is the right one.

POLITICAL SITUATION IN CUBA UNSETTLED

Presidential Nominating Convention Delayed by Fight in Liberal Party.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, July 5.—Cuba's national political conventions to nominate presidential candidates will be held later than ever this year, for while they usually are over before May 1, indications now are that the first one will not meet until some time in July. A President, Vice President and half of Congress are to be elected Nov. 1.

President Alfredo Zayas was elected in 1920 by a combination of the Conservative party with his Popular party, and interest today centers largely in whether he will seek re-election and who will be the candidate of the Liberal party, normally the strongest one. Zayas has repeatedly stated that he will seek re-election only if drafted, but if newspapers of various shades of political belief are to be credited, opposition to re-election never was so strong throughout the island.

Machado Leading Liberals.

Gen Gerardo Machado, lawyer, is shown by the provincial conventions to be the outstanding candidate for the Liberal nomination. Half a dozen other Liberal leaders, however, are being backed as dark horses, and among them are Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, Secretary of State; Gov. Alberto Barreras of Havana province, and Gov. Roberto Mendez Penate of Pinar del Rio.

The fight in the Liberal party seems to be delaying its national convention and the other parties are waiting on it.

Little activity has been shown publicly for anyone in the Conservative party, whose outstanding leader is former President Mario G. Menocal, the man who was largely instrumental in making Zayas President.

Popular Party for Zayas.

Friends of Menocal have mentioned his name from time to time, but thus far no real campaign has been waged in his behalf. Santiago Verdeja, Representative in Congress from Matanzas, has had some backing for the Conservative nomination, and has announced that he was receptive, but Menocal has not made his position plain.

The Popular party leaders have announced that Zayas is the only man their party will consider as its candidate, and are known to be working for reconstruction of the "Liga Nacional," as the Conservative-Popular combination of 1920 was called.

WITH MISSOURIANS IN SOCIETY AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

By A. P. Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Groups of "politcal widows," who are remaining in Washington until their husbands return from the conventions or other political meetings, gather at some home to listen to the speeches over the radio. Because one cannot play mah jongg and bridge and keep their minds on what is going on in the air, sewing, knitting and beadwork and other such lost arts have been revived. Some of the women have made whole dresses by hand and another has made curtains for her dining room.

Washington took another look at Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes when they were at the White House this week. They are both well known here, yet this was their first visit since Gen. Dawes was nominated for the vice presidency on the Republican ticket. Mrs. Dawes looked very smart in a white costume of pleated crepe de chine, with a white hat to match. For one of the family dinners at the White House she wore white lace made on graceful lines over white satin.

Mrs. James Carson Breckenridge, wife of Col. Breckenhidge of the Marine Corps, has joined her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Thomson of New Orleans in New York. Mrs. Thompson, who was Miss Genevieve Champ Clark, will come to Washington after the adjournment of the National Democratic Convention to attend a meeting of the National Committee here. She and her husband will be the guests of Col. and Mrs. Breckenridge.

Another Missouri woman who will return to Washington from the convention, whether she is re-elected vice chairman of the Committee or not, is Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, who has been the leader of Democratic women for the last four years.

While Mrs. John B. Henderson and her granddaughter, Miss Beatrice Henderson, are not in town, the tennis courts, swimming pool and the large sun parlor at Henderson home are the rendezvous for the elite of the diplomatic, social and official circles in Washington to really enjoy summer sports.

Miss Elizabeth Hughes, the subdebutante daughter of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, who has recently recovered from a serious illness which, lasted several years, plays a lively game of tennis and is often seen on the courts with the charming little daughter of the new Egyptian Minister and Madame Yousry, Miss Luftera Yousry as her opponent.

The Minister of Sweden and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss arrived in Washington yesterday to inspect their beautiful new home in Georgetown, which was formerly the residence of John C. Calhoun, but which the present owners have remodeled into a French chateau. Mrs. Bliss, who is a former St. Louisan, has made many purchases of period furniture and fittings in Europe during their sojourn there for the Georgetown home.

Princess Cantacuzene entertained on the roof of the new Willard last night for a company of six.

Mr. and Mrs. Breckenridge Long, who have been attending the Democratic convention, will not return to Washington at its conclusion but will go immediately to their home on North Shore. Next winter they plan to return here and open their large home on upper Sixteenth street, which is known in Washington society as the Christmas gift house, from the fact that the late Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh purchased and furnished it as a surprise to her husband, when he was a member of President Taft's Cabinet and gave it to him on a Christmas morning. The Longs have made it one of the smartest houses in the Capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman H. Scheen of 2146 Oregon avenue and daughter, Annetta, will depart for Los Angeles and Catalina Island soon.

Mrs. Terry F. McAuley of 4337 Laclede avenue and her children left today for a month's stay in California. She will also visit her mother, Mrs. D. R. Redden of Salt Lake.

Mrs. Leon D. Gruber of 4006 Utah place, Mrs. Laura Sallenbach of 4000 Wyoming street, Misses Tillie and Annie Hampe and Hattie Freelingstarf are touring the West. They will visit Yellowstone Park before returning home.

Among the many St. Louisans going to Europe are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Taylor of 6352 Washington avenue, and daughter, Jane, who left last week. They are accompanied by Edward F. Suhre.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wolff of 5406 Delmar boulevard, accompanied by their daughters, Mrs. B. F. May and Mrs. Sanford Baumn, have taken a cottage for the summer in Atlantic City, N. J., and will leave Sunday, June 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Krokyn of 6010 Pershing avenue leave on July 9 for an extended trip including France, Germany, Palestine and Poland.

ENGAGEMENTS AND WEDDINGS OF THE WEEK

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Havighurst and Milton H. Koch was solemnized June 18 at the First Methodist Church in Warrenton. The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Havighurst of Warrenton, and is a graduate of Central Wesleyan College. Mr. Koch, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Koch of 4968 Page avenue, served overseas as a lieutenant in the engineering corps and is a graduate of Washington University, where he became a member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity. The couple reside at 6814 Plateau avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayo S. Keator of Webster Groves, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rosalie Lucile, to J. Alphonse Prudhomme Jr. Mr. Prudhomme is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Phenar Prudhomme and grandson of the late Alphonse Prudhomme. Miss Keator, who with her parents has just returned from California, graduated May 25 from St. Mary's Academy, Natchitoches, La. The wedding will take place in August.

The marriage of Miss Judith Goodenow, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Goodenow of 5939 Woodland place, and Harold Pearson Etter, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Etter of Alameda, Cal., took place June 28 at the Goodenow home, with the Rev. Russell H. Stafford of Pilgrim Congregational Church officiating. The couple have departed on a trip to New oYrk and will make their home in St. Louis.

St. Peter's Evangelical Church was the scene of the wedding, June 25, of Miss Elizabeth Hartmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Hartmann of McCausland avenue, and William Moehlenbrock of Ferguson. The bride wore white georgette and lace, with a long train and veil, and carried roses and lilies of the valley. Misses Midred Habenicht, Hilda Moehlenbrock and Louise Lindenschmidt were bridesmaids; Albert Moehlenbrock, best man, and William Gerdes of Quincy, Ill., and Frank Cook were ushers. Alita Boehle, cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl. The couple are spending their honeymoon in Colorado and will make their home after Sept. 1 at 1019 McCausland avenue.

The engagement of Miss Jessie Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Taylor, to John Dodge Hardy was announced to a few of their friends at a party June 20.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Marion of 4845 Easton avenue announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Sarah, to Arthur H. Litt Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Litt have departed on their honeymoon for a motor trip through Northern Michigan.

NATIONS HAS QUIT PROHIBITION JOBS

Tells Friends at Federal Building He Resigned Last Monday.

Friends in the Federal Building were informed yesterday by Gus O. Nations that he had resigned from his triple Federal prohibition job here last week.

He announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Attorney-General June 4 and said then he would resign "at once," declaring: 'I do not approve of the acceptance of salaries from public funds by a persons who devotes his time to campaigning for another office."

tI was supposed that prohibition service regulations would force his immediate retirement, as they bar "the slightest suspicion of politics." But last Wednesday Federal Prohibition Director De Hart of Missouri said he had written Nations that he would accept his resignation as of June 28, but had received no reply, and was unaware whether Nations continued in office.

At the office of the service in Washington it was said Tuesday Nations was keeping his jobs temporarily at request of De Hart to complete "certain duties." The prohibition service was aware of Nations' active candidacy.

Meanwhile, Nations was carrying on his campaign. He was away last week on a speaking trip in the State. Returning yesterday and visiting the prohibition office, he told friends he had had nothing to do with the office since Monday. When in a Federal Building elevator he remembered leaving his pistol in his automobile and returned for it.

Nations, who is 30 years old, became prohibition agent for the St. Louis district in January, 1922. His first raid which attracted attention was at Cafferatta's cafe, after which there was much discussion of his treatment of customers there. For a time he used "blanket" search warrants, for unnamed persons, but desisted after a legal controversy. On New Year's eve, 1922, he raided the Hotel Chase dining room and, with his force, was chased away by the revelers. Late summer Nations became group chief of prohibition agents here, field director of agents in Missouri and legal adviser to Director de Hart, at $4000 a year.

Agent William Goshorn, who was left in charge by Nations, is a candidate to succeed his former superior as group chief.

Noted Lawyer Dies at Danville.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DANVILLE, Ill., July 5.—Joseph Bonnell Mann., 80 years old, for more than half a century a prominent lawyer and Democratic leader, died here this morning. He was the first City Attorney of Danville, whose charter he drew. In the early '70s he was a noted baseball player. At one time he was president of the Indianapolis, Bloomington & Western Railroad. He had been ill three years. His last important case brought the freeing of Will J. Davis, owner of the Iroquois Theater, who was indicted as the result of the great fire 20 years ago.

FIVE OFFICIALS SENTENCED TO SING SING FOR GRAFT

Mayor of Long Beach, N. Y., and Aids Were Convicted of Misusing City's Funds.

By the Associated Press.

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 5.—Five public officials, recently convicted as a result of the investigation of Nassau County affairs ordered by Gov. Smith, today were sentenced by Supreme Court Justice Cropsey to prison terms ranging from three months to two and a half years.

Joseph M. Ralsig, former Justice of Peace, convicted of misappropriating funds collected from automobile traffic violators, was sentenced to Sing Sing for one and a half to two and a half years.

William H. Reynolds Mayor of Long Beach, was sentenced to the penitentiary for six months.

John Gracy, convicted with Reynolds for misusing city funds, got three months. Similar sentences were imposed on George C. Van der Werken, City Engineer of Long Beach, and Charles C. Clark, Corporation Counsel. Van der Werken was convicted of conspiring to defraud the city and Clark of accepting unlawful fees.

SCHOOLS GET $16,694 FROM FINES AND BOND FORFEITURES

Record Sum for 6-Month Period Paid to Board of Education by Circuit Court.

Herman Bader, Clerk of the three divisions of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, yesterday mailed to the Board of Education a check for $16,694.35, representing the share of fines and bond forfeitures accruing by law to the schools for the last six months. It constituted the largest amount from this source in any six-month period. It was forwarded as of June 30, 1924, and compared with $10,511.05 for the six months ending Dec. 31, 1923, and $13,846.10, forwarded June 30 a year ago.

The record total is attributed to the large number of fines imposed in felony cases involving the carrying of concealed weapons, felonies involving automobiles and a few liquor cases. Investigation discloses that fines in these cases have not only been more numerous than usual, but have been larger in amounts.

Comforts and Luxuries of an Ocean Liner

Cruise on 4 Lakes & Georgian Bay

Chicago to Buffalo (Niagara Falls) and Return via Mackinac Island, 30,000 Islands, Parry Sound, Detroit and Cleveland

A different kind of vacation. A rare combination of rest, recreation and sight seeing. A vacation trip of over 2000 miles on Lakes Michigan, Huron, St. Clair, Erie and Georgian Bay. An experience similar to that of an ocean voyage, on one of the finest Steamships on the Lakes.

The Great Oil Burning White Liners

$74.50 Meals and Berth included

Offer you a vacation of renewed strength and energy—new scenes of special interest and real educational benefit—a chance to make new friends and have a wonderful time. If you care to relax and lounge, you can do so in comfort in many quiet nooks, or fanned by the exhilarating breezes enjoy the ever-changing scenery from the canopy covered Palm Garden on Observation Deck. If you crave society and "something doing" all the time, you will find it in the many delightful activities aboard the ship. All these advantages at a price so low that most anyone can well afford it.

$74.50 Meals and Berth included

Equipment and Service

The magnificent sister steamships, North American and South American—passenger service exclusively—in equipment and service are comparable only with the finest Atlantic Liners. Promenade and Sun Decks of unusual width; large Grand Salon; commodious Lounging Rooms; Observation Roof Garden. All Staterooms and Parlor Rooms have windows or ports to insure perfect ventilation. Have running water, call bell and electric light—beds have finest mattresses and springs, thoroughly comfortable and restful. Bath and toilet in connection with each Parlor Room and convenient to all Staterooms. Kitchens are all white enamel. Dining rooms and kitchens are fly screened. Excellent meals daintily served by waitresses neatly dressed in white. Open air playground screened in for children.

Call or write for booklet. Sailings from Chicago every Tuesday and Saturday at 3:30 p.m. (Central Standard Time.) Stop-over can be arranged in advance for any port of call.

Tickets bearing rail routing between Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo will be honored for transit upon additional payment.

Gaiety or Restful Quiet

Guests can enjoy seclusion in quiet or enter into the gaiety on board, as they prefer. There are pleasures for old and young. Even those who come alone soon find congenial acquaintances—the social hostess introduces them that they may enjoy to the utmost the dancing, deck and card game, concerts, entertainments and social life which make the time pass so pleasantly on these great cruising ships. Many come on board determined to rest, but the life giving breezes of the lake soon make them want to play. "Some trip," you'll say when you get back home. "Beautiful scenery all the way, comfort and luxury, and wonderful meals. Met so many nice people and had such a wonderful time. Those cool, invigorating lake breezes put new life into me—the trip did me a world of good—felt like a new person when I got back home."

BERLIN - ANGORA AIR MAIL

Flyer Leaves German Capital to Try Out Service.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN July 5.—Hans Zimmerman, who in 1922 won the King of Italy flying cup, started at 4:30 o'clock this morning for Angora, by way of Budapest and Constantinople, to try out an airplane mail service. It is expected one day will suffice for the journey which takes 110 hours by rail. The plane is fitted with exchangeable pontoons and land wheels, the aviator planning to use the former as far as Constantinople and then bring the wheels into play.

If the flight proves a success, a regular mail service may be established.

A. A. ADEE, U. S. DIPLOMAT FOR 54 YEARS, DIES

Second Assistant Secretary of State, 81 Years Old, Was Patriarch of Service.

WAS AUTHORITY ON FOREIGN RELATIONS

Government Has Never Had a More Faithful and Competent Servant, Says Hughes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Alva A. Adee, Second Assistant Secretary of State and patriarch of the American diplomatic service, died today at his home here. He was 81 years old.

Adee, had a continuous service in diplomacy covering 54 years. He was conceded to have possessed the most intimate knowledge of any single individual of American diplomacy and the foreign relations of the United States generally. For 38 years he had held the post of Second Assistant Secretary.

A series of complications incident to the advanced age caused Adee's death. Owing to his failing strength he had been relieved of routine duties for several years past and had served as adviser extraordinary on all important questions affecting precedents, or diplomatic usage or custom.

During the war he was kept busy digesting the new questions of policy and international diplomacy raised by the changing relations of the United States with the belligerents.

Tribute From Hughes.

Secretary Hughes paid this tribute:

"The death of Mr. Adee brings to an end a service which is unparalleled for its length and efficiency in the history of the Department of State. He was a man of broad scholarship, rare diplomatic insight, and for intimate knowledge of our foreign relations easily held first place. During a long period and until his health failed, he was the constant and most trusted adviser of Secretaries of State. It is not too much to say the Government has never had a more faithful and competent servant."

From the position of Secretary of Legation in 1870, he rose in 16 years to Second Assistant Secretary of State. Because this place was nonpolitical, he chose to remain in it rather than accept the first assistant secretaryship, a political post.

Not only, in times of great international strain, was he often called upon to act as Secretary of State, but he was the author of many state papers upon which rest the fame of several lofty figures that have filled the portfolio of state. His personality was so impressed on the methods of business of the department that no innovation ever was attempted without his indorsement.

His Wide Versatility.

Of the hundreds of Government officials, none was more versatile than Adee. His scope ranged from international law to photography and included a knowledge of many sciences. Although he never graduated from any law school, he frequently was consulted by great lawyers who presided over the State Department. He passed on every official note that left the department and thus placed the communications on a high literary plane. According to tradition, he wrote almost all of the Thanksgiving day proclamations.

He attained eminence in the field of micro-photography, particularly in the study of diatoms.

Due to his connection with the Department in Washington and his extensive foreign travels, he became acquainted with diplomats, crowned heads, and leaders of thought in all parts of the world. Almost every summer, often accompanied by his old friend, Alexander M. Thackara, of the consular service, he would travel in Europe, frequently by bicycle, collecting various specimens and photographing ancient castles and ruins.

Mr. Adee was born in Astoria, N. Y. Nov. 27, 1842. Suffering from impaired hearing from his birth, a limitation so severe as to make his subsequent great intellectual development the more remarkable, he received his education from private tutors. At an early age he showed an aptitude for modern languages, which he further developed by a long pedestrian tour through Europe in 1867. In 1899 he received from Yale the degree of M. A., honoris causa.

No Adjournment of W. C. T. U.

Because of the nearness of the primary elections, in August, the Women's Christian Temperance Union will continue to hold its regular monthly meetings throughout the summer. The July meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3623 Delmar boulevard. The Legislative Committee of the Women's Committee of One Hundred will give a resume of the results of a questionnaire sent to a number of State and city candidates for election.

A New Declaration of Independence

Last week we celebrated the 148th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

This week let us all resolve to declare a New Declaration of Independence—Freedom from headaches, ill health and the unhappiness occasioned by various forms of defective vision.

For over 20 years I have specialized exclusively in the relief and prevention of vision defects by properly prescribed Glasses.

Men and women to the number of over 30,000 have found Guilbault's Glasses and Guilbault's Eye Testing Service the most satisfactory and the most successful that they have ever had. The majority of my new patients are gained solely through old patrons recommending my Glasses and my extremely reasonable charges to their friends and acquaintances. This is the greatest assurance of complete satisfaction that you can secure.

HUNTER KILLED WHEN RETRIEVING BIRD

Harry Pott of St. Louis Victim of Accidental Shot Near Centralia, Ill.

Harry Pott, 34 years old, of 3408 Wyoming street, was accidentally shot and killed while hunting Friday near Centralia, Ill., where he was visiting with his wife.

He was out with friends, one of whom shot a hawk. He started toward the fallen bird, when another shot was accidentally fired from the gun as it was being passed from one man to the other, fatally wounding him.

Pott was employed here by the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Co., and was a member of the drill team of Alhambra Grotto.

PATROLMAN IDENTIFIES YOUTH AS TOGGERY SHOP ROBBER

Patrolman Walter Schuster and Lieut. McNamara of the North Market Street District were walking at Jefferson and Cass avenues Friday when Schuster nudged his superior officer and whispered: "See that fellow sitting in the automobile over there with that girl? He's one of the pair that held me up."

Schuster was referring to the holdup of the Lincoln Toggery, 4102 West Florissant avenue, June 28, when the proprietor, Isadore Levine, was forced to surrender $120 froh his safe to two armed youths while Schuster, who resides in that neighborhood and had entered the store to buy a shirt, was compelled to crawl under a table and keep quiet.

The man in the automobile was arrested and said he was Everett Dickens, 19 years old, of 7558 Woodlawn avenue, Maplewood. He added he returned to St. Louis three months ago on a parole after serving eight months of a two-year sentence to Boonville Reformatory for automobile theft. He denied robbing the store, despite Policeman Schuster's positive identification. Levine told police that Dickens resembled one of the robbers, but he was unable to positively identify him.

Operation Not Successful

"Sixteen years ago I was operated for appendicitis and later operated again for gall stones. Neither did me any good and I suffered all kinds of torture since. Five years ago I took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and have felt no symptoms or pain since. All stomach sufferers should take it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph (3 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (5 drug stores), Brown-Cloughly, Johnson Bros. Drug Co. and druggists everywhere.

REFERENDUM ON BRIDGE APPROACH BEFORE VOTERS

Election Board Announces Approval of Petitions Bearing 26,944 Names Favoring Proposal.

ALDERMEN UNLIKELY TO ALTER POSITION

Acting Mayor Neun Expresses View Board Would Not Repeal Ordinance if Special Session Were Called.

It appears that the voters of St. Louis will be called on to decide at the November general election whether preliminary stages of creating a northeast railroad approach to the Municipal Bridge, for which insufficient funds have been provided and for use of which there is no definite prospect, shall be abandoned, as directed by the Board of Aldermen, or go forward.

The Anti-Toll Referendum League, which has circulated referendum petitions for a popular vote on the ordinance directing the City Counselor to dismiss proceedings in Federal Court in East St. Louis for the condemnation of land for the approach, obtained sufficient proper signatures for its petitions, the Election Board announced yesterday.

26,944 Signatures Approved.

Signatures filed totaled 48,186, but many were rejected as improper; 26,944 were found good, while the minimum necessary was 21,494. There were some complaints of misrepresentation in the canvass for signatures.

Last year's bond issue provided $1,500,000 for the northeast railroad approach to the bridge, which has a very busy vehicle roadway and an utterly idle southeast railroad approach. Officials have estimated that the northeast approach would cost $5,000,000, plus $250,000 or more for land for it. There is no assurance that the railroads would use this gateway to the city rather than ignore it, as they have the existing approach.

The upholding of the referendum petitions will be certified within a few days to the Board of Aldermen, which, however, is in vacation till Sept. 26. Under the charter the board may reconsider a referred ordinance within 30 days after such certification. Should it reverse itself and defeat the ordinance, a popular vote would not be necessary, but if it passed the ordinance again or took no action, the popular vote would be held, a majority being required for repeal.

Special Session in Doubt.

Acting Mayor Neun, who is president of the Board of Aldermen, was not prepared to say yesterday whether he would call a special session to reconsider this ordinance, but expressed the opinion that the board would approve it once more. Neun opposes the northeast approach, considering the lack of assurance that it would be put to work.

Mayor Kiel vetoed the original ordinance for the land condemnation, but the Aldermen passed it over the veto, and the condemnation suit was filed by the City Counselor. Two repeal bills were introduced and dropped, but the ordinance for dismissal of the suit was passed and approved by the Mayor.

Chief activity in the Anti-Toll Referendum League has been by the Tenth Ward Improvement and Taxpayers' Association, Central Trades and Labor Union and Chouteau-Lafayette Improvement Association. Leaders have been John J. Heil, president of the Tenth Ward organization, and Frank H. Gerhart, militant proponent of use of the municipal bridge.

SUPER HIGHWAYS TO MEET TRAFFIC NEEDS PROPOSED

Roadways for Fast and Slow Motor Vehicles a Feature of Plan Proposed for Detroit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, July 5.A super highway plan for Detroit, to provide for transportation in the suburban area as the city expands, is proposed by the Detroit Rapid Transit Commission. The commission would have the city buy rights of way, before values rise, for a series of streets wide enough to carry four rapid transit lines, two roadways for fas moving automobiles and two roadways for slow moving vehicles, such as trucks.

Of Interest to Auto Owners.

Of chief interest to motorists is the proposal that the two motor speedways in each street be so built as not to be subject to interruption by cross traffic. According to the Engineering News-Record, separation of through from cross traffic would be accomplished by elevating the two motor speedways as well as the four rapid transit tracks above the cross streets at half-mile intervals. Crosstown traffic would pass under the motor and rapid transit lines through archways which would provide for access to the rapid transit stations. Thus foot passengers would not have to cross the motor speedway.

The super-highway district would be divided into areas three miles square, or of about nine square miles, bounded on all four sides by super-highways. The super-highway system would not include the thoroughfares through the subdivisions of those areas surrounded by the super-highways themselves, but the plan considers it desirable that the intermediate section line roads located on the mile divisions be made 120 feet wide and the half-mile streets be 86 feet wide. If the mile streets were given a width of 120 feet, then it would be practicable, if traffic conditions warrant, to convert them into express motor traffic streets by elevating the express lanes over the half-mile cross streets, as would be done in the case of the super-highway.

Advantages of Plan.

The advantage of this plan, it is explained, lies in the fact that besides providing a right of way for wide streets it also provides space for rapid transit lines in the center of these new highways, which can be built at grade when they are required, thus avoiding the necessity of building either subways or elevated railways. The cost of such rapid transit lines at grade is estimted at $1,100,000 a mile, as against $5,500,000 for similar four-track subways. So five miles of surface rapid transit could be built for the same money that would be required for one mile of subway if the new streets did not provide this space for rapid transit lines.

Of course, within the city proper, rapid transit lines would have to be built as subways. The plan recognizes this fact and provides for the transition from 120-foot streets with four-track subways to a 204-foot super-highway near the outskirts of the present city.

CALIFORNIA, BEGINNING TO MAKE STEEL, DREAMS OF ITS OWN AUTO FACTORIES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.

AN INDUSTRIAL development that may eventually affect the automobile industry is the start just made at producing steel in California by the Columbia Steel Corporation. Using coal and iron from Utah mines, the corporation is producing 300 tons of steel a day.

If a California steel industry can be built up with costs similar to those in Eastern and St. Louis steel centers, the Pacific Coast will be freed from high freight costs on steel, and large expansion of plants using steel, from foundries to automobile factories, will be possible.

WATER 25 CENTS PER GALLON ON ONE TRAIL

Tourists Encounter 127-Degree Weather in Mojave Desert—Burns Arms on Sides of Car.

A trail for most motorists to avoid is that running north from the Santa Fe Trail a few miles west of Needles, Cal., through Las Vegas, Nev., and Mesquite, Nev., according to a motorist who spent Sunday in St. Louis.

"We had grief almost the whole distance," he said. "We were out of luck in the Mohave Desert, for the temperatures soared unbelievably nigh. It was 127 in the shade when we hit Ludlow, Cal., and my wife burned her arm against the side of the car.

"Much of the going was very rough and taxing. Water was scarce. In fact, we had to pay 25 a gallon for it in several places, and in one place we could not get any.

"We made out all right coming east from Salt Lake City, the road through Devil's Slide, Evanston Laramie to Denver being very fair. The roads were good also from Denver to Kansas City. But I really believe the Missouri roads were as bad, if not worse, than those in Nevada."

THREE-CENT GASOLINE TAX IN EFFECT IN KENTUCKY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON(Ky., July 5.—A 3-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline has gone into effect in Kentucky, wholesalers and jobbers of gasoline have been notified. The law permits no exemptions. A 20 per cent penalty for failing to obey the act will be imposed.

NEW HIGHWAY TO OPEN CAROLINAS TO MIDDLE WEST

"Dixie A," From Cincinnati to Asheville and Florida to Save Them Hundreds of Miles Driving.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 5.—A new vacation land will be opened to motorists of Missouri and other Middle Western states as a result of the cutting of 600 to 900 miles from the distance to Asheville and the Carolina mountain region through a movement to establish "Dixie A" Highway to Florida and pave 24 miles of virtually impassable roads in Laurel, Knox and Rockcastle Counties in Kentucky. The same saving of mileage, of course, will obtain to Florida as compared with the present best route—that via Washington, D. C.

"There are several districts in Kentucky with stretches of good roads, but the whole State system is a patchwork with no connections across the state, north or south, or east or west," says N. Buckner, managing director of the Western North Carolina Motor Club.

"Road construction work must continue simultaneously from 57 centers. It is easily seen how little can be done with $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 a year for maintenance and construction at 57 points.

Big Annual Loss.

"Detour Kentucky" has been the routing instruction from the motor clubs and other touring agencies for several years with the result that Kentucky has lost $20,000,000 a year or more on a basis of last year's business alone, and this only from quick money spent by long distance travel in passing through western, middle and eastern sections of the state. And this, too, not taking into consideration the larger loss that comes through investments that would have come through these same motor travelers in business, industry, homes and agriculture.

"But how does this affect the question of the 24 bad miles in Kentucky from the Ohio River to Cumberland Gap? To the individual community, construction and improvement of the 24 miles of bad road was impossible. To a group of communities working together in perfect harmony, in

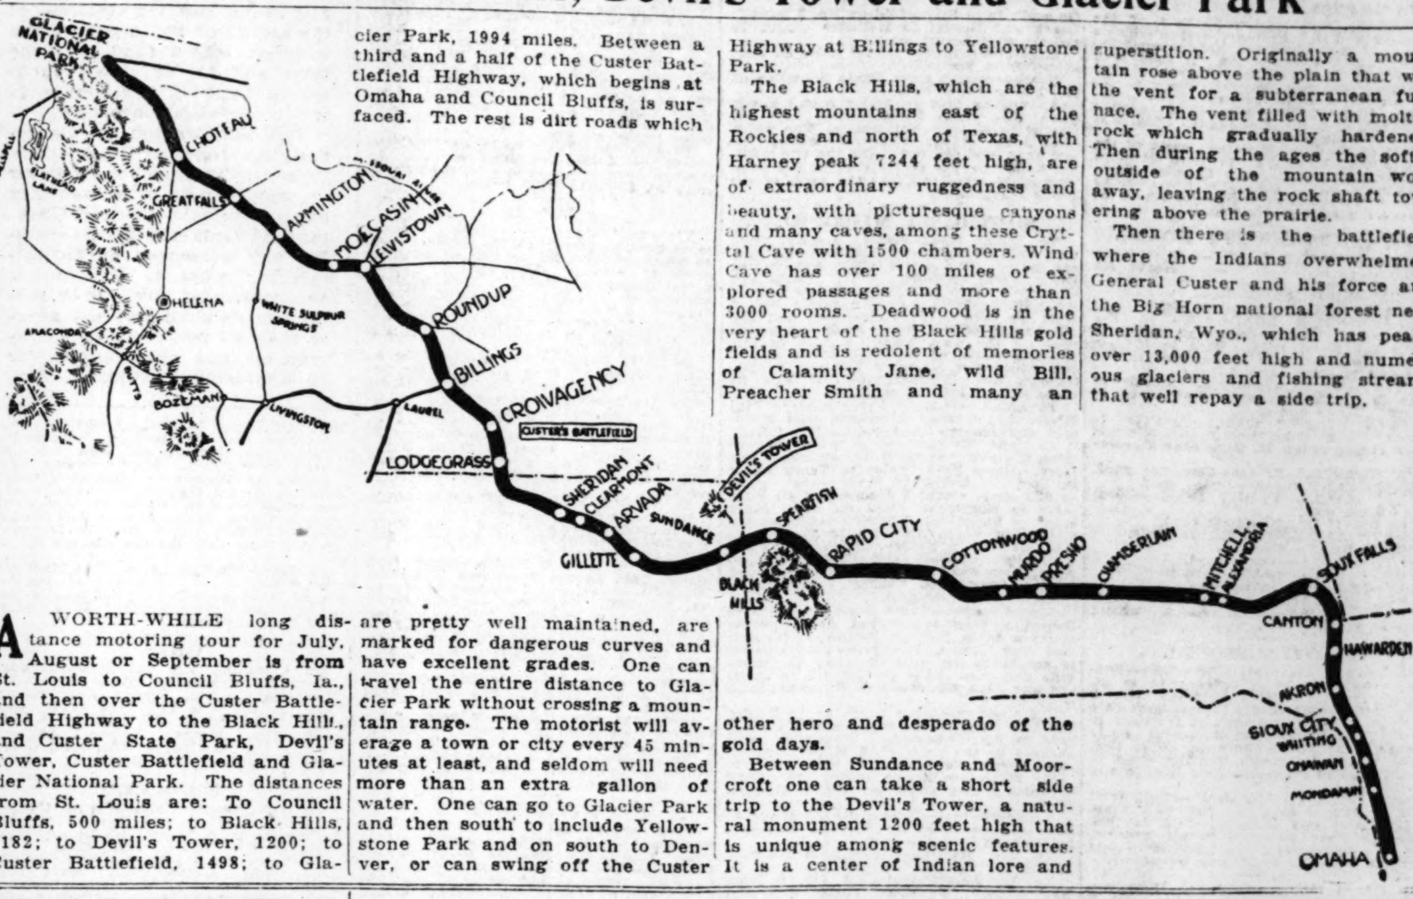
Tour to Black Hills, Devil's Tower and Glacier Park



A WORTH-WHILE long distance motoring tour for July, August or September is from St. Louis to Council Bluffs, Ia., and then over the Custer Battlefield Highway to the Black Hills, and Custer State Park, Devil's Tower, Custer Battlefield and Glacier National Park. The distances from St. Louis are: To Council Bluffs, 500 miles; to Black Hills, 1182; to Devil's Tower, 1200; to Custer Battlefield, 1498; to Glacier Park, 1994 miles. Between a third and a half of the Custer Battlefield Highway, which begins at Omaha and Council Bluffs, is surfaced. The rest is dirt roads which are pretty well maintained, are marked for dangerous curves and have excellent grades. One can travel the entire distance to Glacier Park without crossing a mountain range. The motorist will average a town or city every 45 minutes at least, and seldom will need more than an extra gallon of water. One can go to Glacier Park and then south to include Yellowstone Park and on south to Denver, or can swing off the Custer Highway at Billings to Yellowstone Park.

The Black Hills, which are the highest mountains east of the Rockies and north of Texas, with Harney peak 7244 feet high, are of extraordinary ruggedness and beauty, with picturesque canyons and many caves, among these Cryttal Cave with 1500 chambers. Wind Cave has over 100 miles of explored passages and more than 3000 rooms. Deadwood is in the very heart of the Black Hills gold fields and is redolent of memories of Calamity Jane, wild Bill, Preacher Smith and many an other hero and desperado of the gold days.

Between Sundance and Moorcroft one can take a short side trip to the Devil's Tower, a natural monument 1200 feet high that is unique among scenic features. It is a center of Indian lore and superstition. Originally a mountain rose above the plain that was the vent for a subterranean furnace. The vent filled with molten rock which gradually hardened. Then during the ages the softer outside of the mountain wore away, leaving the rock shaft towering above the prairie.

Then there is the battlefield where the Indians overwhelmed General Custer and his force and the Big Horn national forest near Sheridan, Wyo., which has peaks over 13,000 feet high and numerous glaciers and fishing streams that well repay a side trip.

HOW THE SUPERCHARGER ON WINNING INDIANAPOLIS RACING CAR OPERATES

The supercharger which enabled Joy Boyer, piloting a Deusenberg eight special to win the Indianapolis race, is a device for getting more fuel into the cylinders than the pistons can suck in through the carburetors. It is a fan device, whirling at several times engine speed and operating only after the engine revolutions pass a certain speed.

Some stock cars made in Europe have such superchargers, and the idea figured in the first American grand prize race. It also was used on Mercedes cars in the Indianapolis race a year ago.

Corum Is Leading Racing Drivers of This Country

WASHINGTON, July 5.—"There is a healthy rivalry among drivers for the highest number of championship points in A. A. A. sanctioned race meets, and it should be noted by motorists, that, in addition to skill, such points depend upon safe and clean driving. Foul play in driving disqualifies a contestant.

"A list of championship points to July3 shows Corum in first place with 555 to his credit. Cooper, with 535 points, is a close second, while Fengler is third with 500. Murphy has 295 points; Hartz, 280; Wonderlich, 250, and Hill, 170. Milton has 50, Vail, 32; Boyer, 10, and Durant, 5. But the season is young and the situation may be quite different when other important events have been run off, including the Pike's Peak climb, and Altoona, Pa., 250-mile race, both on Sept. 1."

LARGE SAVING OF TIME AND MONEY ON CROSS-STATE ROUTE PREDICTED

Short Mileage Airline Highway from St. Louis to Kansas City to Save 40 Miles and Much Time as Compared With Other Routes.

BY B. H. PIEPMEIER,
Chief Engineer of the Missouri State Highway Department.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—As a direct, short mileage line connecting the largest two cities of the State, State Highway No. 2 is destined to become the main cross-State highway and the heaviest traveled road in the system. Because of this anticipated large volume of traffic, the location of this trunk highway has been a matter of much study and investigation in order to insure economy and best operating conditions for traffic.

A considerable saving in distance has been gained by choosing a direct route and serving tributary communities with spurs or feeders. This directness of route reduces the traveled distance, end to end, 246 miles—a saving of nearly 40 miles over the nearest competing route. Also this highway is located so as to pass a little to one side of the towns along it and thereby save the "slow downs"

The Phaeton

The Chrysler's 3-inch motor is so efficient in its power development that it gives a high-gear speed range of 2 to over 70 miles per hour, combined with gasoline economy safely over 20 miles to the gallon. That's the result of balance, elimination of friction, utilization of fuel, perfect carburetion and correctly applied thermo-dynamics—the result, in a word, of scientific engineering.

The Chrysler Six
Pronounced as though spelled, Cryſler

The power flow of the Chrysler Six is without the slightest vibration. It seems impossible until you experience it—and then you too will speak of this car in superlative terms.

So ingeniously engineered that the actual compactness of the car gives surprisingly ample room, and a degree of riding ease never before found in any but the larger, heavier cars.

Motor, chassis, body—all show the handiwork of genius in the adaptation of tried and true principles of engineering to the creation of a car that gives a totally new type of performance.

NEED RETURN PERMIT TO MOTOR IN CANADA

American Tourists Will Get Into Real Trouble if They Fail to Heed New Rule.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5.—The new customs regulation that American motorists entering Canada must get permits to return, is necessary in handling motor traffic over the border, and protests are not justified, according to the Automobile Club of Buffalo. Motorists planning to tour in Canada should govern themselves accordingly or find themselves in a maze of troubles.

The club has issued the following statement regarding the regulation:

"Reciprocal arrangements for touring privileges on a 30-day basis without bonding and without license fee, was the result of more than 15 years of consistent endeavor by the organized car owners of Canada and the United States. The requirement of filling out a permit form at the border was instituted when the reciprocal arrangement took effect.

"One of the new laws provides that the certificate of registration must accompany the car at all times, and that the driver must be prepared to present the certificate of registration upon request of the proper authorities. It is obvious, therefore, that this provision alone would influence a change in customs regulations that would enable the motorist to comply with the law."

NEW HIGHWAY TO OPEN CAROLINAS TO MIDDLE WEST

perfect co-operation of effort, the 24-mile barrier began to shrink in importance.

Vast Income From Tourists.

"The Board of Governors of the Asheville Western North Carolina Motor Club in Asheville, Western North Carolina, a great motor travel center like Florida, recognized the loss the "Land of the Sky" was sustaining by reason of the widely disseminated "Detour Kentucky" and the large extra mileage required to reach there. The investigation conducted by its officers developed the extraordinary data that approximately 220,000 cars rolled into Florida in the 1922 and 1923 season, having grown from 57,000 cars four years before. Estimates to June indicate 300,000 cars in Florida during the season of 1923-1924, and that approximately 65 per cent of them are from the Middle West and states immediately adjoining.

They travel four people to the car, average 125 miles a day and spend an average of about $30 a day. It is said that Ohio and Michigan send more cars to Florida resorts than any other states with Illinois and New York close to third position.

The Western Carolina people held up to the leading civic clubs, bankers and business men this tremendous loss in business to them because of the "detour Kentucky" propaganda, which also meant pass up the Land of the Sky, too.

In the triangle from Cincinnati to Detroit and Cleveland on the one hand, a territory which the Land of the Sky section had been cultivating for several years, and which promised rich reward in return for the effort to provide an open short route for Middle Westerners to their favorite vacation haunts means a saving of an average of $300 á car on the round trip, in addition to an average of about 10 days. Figuring the modest sum of 20c a mile a day of from 600 to 900 miles each day, or 1200 to 1800 miles saved round trip, the saving to the motor travelers, estimating say 70,000 cars from the Middle West territory, will reach the rather startling total of more than $2,500,000.

This short scenic highway will save an average of 900 miles each way from the Chicago district and around 600 miles each way to the Ohio and Michigan motor traveler to Western North Carolina and Florida resorts over the present eastern road through Washington. A saving of from 1200 to 1800 miles on the vacation round trip, it is estimated, will automatically increase number of cars by 25 per cent.

This road will permit Middle Westerners and many Northern motorists to visit Cincinnati and its famous zoo and scenic hill and river drives, the Blugrass region of Kentucky, Berea and Boone Gap made famous by the great pioneer of early days; the historic Cumberland Gap at the corner of three states, Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee, where was fought a sanguinary battle between the States, and where passed Daniel Boone in his pilgrimage from North Carolina to Kentucky; the Great Smoky Mountains of East Tennessee and the beautiful "Land of the Sky" in the "Heart of the Blue Ridge" Mountains of Western North Carolina, with its Chimney Rock and Broad River Gorge known as the "Grand Canyon of the East," the Pisgah National Forest and Game Preserve with its Government maintained scenic motor highways, and a trip over the Mount Mitchell motor road to the Top of Eastern America, 6711 feet high, the view from which covers 62 other peaks more than a mile high.

Road Conditions
Where to Go and How

THE followng summary of routes and road conditions has been prepared by the Automobile Editor and George Drummond, manager of the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri With its aid, motorists can easily plan their vacation and week-end tours as well as busness trips

Generally speaking, roads west of the Mississippi River are dirt and travelable only in dry weather. Their condition changes with the weather. A road good today may be bad after rain, and a road poor when wet may be good when dry. To get the latest bulletins, call at the Automobile Club of Missouri, 4228 Lindell boulevard, or phone it at Lindell 8220, just before starting a trip.

East of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio River, highways are hard surfaced to the Atlantic Coast and Canada. It is wise, however, to get the latest news about detours and road construction so as to insure a comfortable trip.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY ROADS.

LEMAY FERRY ROAD — Open; good condition to Meramec River. Heavy fill south of Meramec for next mile.

TELEGRAPH ROAD—Good.

GRAVOIS ROAD—Open; concrete.

MANCHESTER ROAD—Open to Big Bend road. Closed from this point to North and South road. Open to Melrose road—turn south to Allenton, west to Pacific and Manchester road.

CLAYTON ROAD—Open. Rough in spots to North and South road; good to Denny. Rough rest of way.

OLIVE STREET ROAD—Concrete to Denny. Good from Denny to Missouri River except rough in spots near Chesterfield.

ST. CHARLES ROAD—Concrete; good.

FLORISSANT ROAD—Open; good.

NEW HALL'S FERRY ROAD—Good; open all the way.

BIG BEND ROAD—Open; good.

NORTH AND SOUTH ROAD—Fair.

PRICE ROAD—Fair.

DENNY ROAD—Open; good.

KEHR'S MILL ROAD—Fair.

EATHERTON ROAD—Fair.

BELLEFONTAINE ROAD—Open; good.

ANTIRE ROAD—Good as a whole; rough in spots.

NORTH MISSOURI.

St. Louis to Hannibal (130 miles)—Easton avenue and St. Charles road to St. Charles, west on State Highway No. 9 to marked detour at St. Peters; back onto concrete to marked detour at O'Fallon to Flint Hill. Follow No. 9 (gravel road) through Troy and Auburn to Eolia, then gravel and dirt through Bowling Green to Frankfort, and gravel to New London and Hannibal.

To Hannibal via Louisiana—North from Eolia on gravel over the Red Ball Train to Louisiana and then via New London. Both options passable in all weather, save two detours mentioned and short dirt stretches between Eolia and Frankfort.

To Macon (188.5 miles) via Moberly—From St. Charles go west on Road No. 2 to marked detour at St. Peters, back to concrete and take marked detour at O'Fallon through Flint Hill to Wentzville. Then concrete to Foristell and thence dirt and gravel in sections to High Hill, where leave No. 2 and follow No. 45 through Montgomery City to Wellville, then No. 22 through Mexico and Centralia to Renick, then north on No. 7 through Moberly to Macon. Dirt road from High Hill to Macon, but good in dry weather.

To Chillicothe (248 miles)—Take route to Macon, then due west on No. 8 through Brookfield and Meadsville. Dirt, good when dry.

To Maryville (350 miles)—From Chillicothe go northwest on the "O. St. L." trail through Gallatin, Pattonsburg, Albany and Stanbury. Dirt, good when dry.

TO KANSAS CITY.

Via Jefferson City—Clayton road, North and South road, Manchester road to Melrock road, then detour south to Allenton and go west to Pacific and back into Manchester road a mile west of Gray's Summit. Go west on No. 12 through Jeffriesburg, Leslie, Drake, Mt. Sterling, Linn and Jefferson City (140 miles). Gravel except six miles of dirt west of Mt. Sterling. Practicable going to Jefferson City in any weather. From Jefferson City follow No. 12 through California, Tipton, Sedalia, Warrensburg and Lone Jack to Kansas City (321 miles).

Via Fulton—Follow Route No. 2 west from St. Charles through Wentzville, Warrenton, Columbia (146), Boonville (174), Marshall (213) and Higginsville to Kansas City (312 miles).

Via Moberly—West from St. Charles to High Hill (82 miles), then No. 22 to Montgomery City (91), Mexico (124), Centralia (139), Moberly (170), then No. 10 to Keytesville, Brunswick, Carrollton (235), Excelsior Springs (285), to Kansas City (316).

Fourth option—St. Charles to Fulton, then No. 15 to Jefferson City and on via California and Tipton (329 miles).

SOUTHWEST MISSOURI.

To Rolla, Springfield and Joplin—Same route as to Jefferson City via Manchester, but swing off into Highway No. 14 at Union to St. Clair, Sullivan, Cuba and St. James to Rolla (124), south from Rolla on No. 7 through Licking and Houston to Cabool; west on No. 16 through Mountain Grove and Seymour to Springfield (272); west on No. 58 through Mount Vernon and Sarcoxie to Joplin (356). Gravel to St. Clair, gravel and dirt in sections to Rolla. Then gravel to Houston, except a dirt fill at Edgar Springs, then dirt to Cabool and gravel to Springfield. Then good chat road to Joplin.

Option from Rolla to Springfield via Jerome, Dixon, Waynesville, Richland and Lebanon and Buffalo. About the same kind of road as other route.

Option from Springfield to Joplin—Follow river road No. 58, on good chat through Mount Vernon, Sarcoxie, Carthage and Webb City.

Hollister and Lake Taneycomo Region—Go south from Springfield on No. 3 through Ozark and Bengal to Hollister (about 70 miles); good gravel road.

Monett—Southwest for 50 miles on good gravel from Springfield.

Neosho—South from Joplin 20 miles on No. 1 over gravel road.

A vacation tour or motor camping trip down this route through and into the Ozarks is entirely practicable. The roads have been greatly improved within the last year, and one can make the trip without damaging car or tires as in the past. This route takes one into the heart of the Ozark playground.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI.

To Poplar Bluff—Take Lemay Ferry road through Maxville, Hillsboro, De Soto (44 miles), Flat River (70), Farmington (80), Fredericktown (96), Coldwater, Greenville (129) and Williamsville to Poplar Bluff (160). Follow Route No. 9 from De Soto to Fredericktown and No. 23 the rest of the way. Rock and gravel road all the way, except a mile of dirt fill just south of Meramec River and a few minor dirt stretches between Fredericktown and Williamsville. It can be made in any kind of weather.

To Arcadia—Lemay Ferry road to Flat River, then through Bismarck, Iron Mountain and Ironton to Arcadia (100 miles).

To Cape Girardeau—For some time to come the best way is by Illinois roads and ferry. Cross Free Bridge to Tenth street in East St. Louis, to State street, right to 43d stree, rigtht 2 blocks, left on Park drive to Edgemont, right on West Main street to Belleville. Through public square and follow Route No. 15 through Mascoutah, Okawville to Ashley, then south on No. 2 through Duquoin and Carbondale to Anna, then west and south on gravel road to the ferry (140 miles). All-weather route.

Second option—Same route as above to Belleville, then follow red and yellow markers south through Smithton, Hecker, Red Bud, Ruma, Evansville and Chester to another ferry, crossing river to Perryville and then south on No. 25 to Jackson and Cape Girardeau (126 miles); good when dry.

Third option—Same route as to Poplar Bluff to Farmington, where swing on dirt road to Ste. Genevieve, Perryville and Jackson to the Cape (158 miles); impassable beyond Farmington in wet weatheru.

To Sikeston—Illinois route to Cape Girardeau, then south on No. 9 through Morley.

To Charleston—Same route as above to Sikeston, then east on No. 16; hard-surfaced roads from the Cape.

To New Madrid—South from Sikeston on No. 9.

To Caruthersville—Follow No. 9 from New Madrid through Portageville and Hayti.

From Sikeston to New Madrid is gravel. Dirt beyond New Madrid to Caruthersville.

ILLINOIS.

To Belleville—Cross bridge to East St. Louis, then to State street—brick and part concrete to Forty-third street—turn to the right two blocks—to Park Drive, which is all good, excepting a quarter mile, and connects at Edgemont with concrete road to Belleville. Direct route over State street is now in poor condition.

To Collinsville—National Old Trail, concrete; good except at East St. Louis city limits and Collinsville Hill. Five-mile marked detour, concrete, cinders and one mile of dirt.

To Alton—Brick; good.

To Edwardsville—Via Granite City from Mitchell; open; good.

Collinsville to Edwardsville—Concrete; open; good.

To Chautauqua—St. Charles Rock road to St. Charles, Mo.; at end of bridge over Missouri turn right in Second street past car shops, then take Boshertown road to Boshertown, Orchard Farm and West Grafton (about 34 miles); ferry from West Grafton runs hourly during daylight. At Grafton swing right and on to Chautauqua. Not a wet-weather trip because of dirt road beyond Orchard Farm.

TO CHICAGO.

Via Marshall, as follows: Free Bridge into Tenth street, East St. Louis, at end of street job 100 feet left, then right into Ninth street, and follow it into Collinsville road and Route No. 11; Highland (35 miles), Greenville (54), Vandalia (75), Effingham (107), to Marshall, where swing left into No. 1 through Paris (173), Danville (209), Watseka (258), Momence (290) and Steger, into and through Chicago Heights, to 147th street, swinging left and following No. 11 into Western avenue, then right into Garfield avenue, which is Fifty-fifth street, left into Michigan avenue and downtown (343 miles).

Via Peoria—At Ninth street and Salisbury, St. Louis, cross McKinley Bridge onto Broadway in Venice, to Madison avenue, following No. 4 markers through Granite City to Mitchell (13 miles); turn right on concrete to Edwardsville (23 miles), Staunton (40), and Carlinville (62) to Springfield, which is 108 miles from St. Louis, then Route No. 24 from Mason City (144); and Peoria (180 miles from St. Louis), then No. 29 to Bureau, then No. 7 through La Salle, which is 233 miles from St. Louis; Ottawa (269), and Joliet (317), where Route No. 4 is taken to Justice Park and right in Kean avenue to Ninety-fifth street, left into Western avenue, left to Garfield avenue, right to Michigan boulevard (366).

Via Bloomington — Same route to Springfield (108 miles), as if going via Peoria. At Springfield take No. 24 and temporary No. 4 for 11.8 miles, then right at large detour sign to Williamsville (124), then north on No. 4 through Lincoln (140), Bloomington (172), Pontiac (208), Joliet (265), Justice Park (287), and into downtown Chicago over the same route as via Peoria (303 miles, including detours).

To Cairo—Same route as through Ashley and Carbondale to Cape Girardeau (listed under Southeast Missouri), except continue South on No. 2 from Anna to Cairo (157 miles); good all way.

To Fairfield—Same route as to Cairo, except at Ashley continue on No. 15 through Mount Vernon and to end of concrete at Fairfield (100 miles).

IOWA.

Via the Lincoln Trail—Take Chicago route through Springfield to Peoria, where go north on No. 29 to end of concrete north of Bureau. Then follow marked gravel detour to Princeton, then west on concrete on No. 7 through Sheffield and Genesee to Rock Island, where cross the Mississippi River on bridge to Davenport, Ia., then north on gravel to De Witt and the trail (346 miles.)

To Cedar Rapids (392 miles)—West on Lincoln Highway from De Witt through Wheatland dirt beyond De Witt; partly under construction; detours good.

To Keokuk — Take Missouri route to Hannibal, where cross river and go on Mississippi Scenic Highway to Quincy (150 miles) then 52 miles north on Scenic Highway and recross river at Keokuk (202); gravel to Quincy; dirt thence to Keokuk.

To Council Bluffs (500 miles)—Take Missouri route to Maryville via Moberly, Macon and Chillicothe, and from Maryville follow the "O. St. L." Highway. Dirt route; good when dry.

Option to Council Bluffs—North from Macon, Mo., on No. 7 through Kirksville, Mo. (225 miles), and Lancaster to Ottumwa, Ia. (290), then west on Iowa Route No. 8 through Chariton (347), Osceola, Creston (403), Red Oak and Glenwood to Council Bluffs; dirt roads; good when dry.

To Des Moines—North from Macon, Mo., as above, to Ottumwa, then north to Oskaloosa, west to Knoxville and northwest to Des Moines (393); mostly dirt; good when dry.

Option to Des Moines—Illinois route through Springfield and Peoria to Davenport, Ia., as above, then follow Iowa No. 7 through Iowa City, Marengo and Newton to Des Moines (420); dirt most of way beyond Davenport.

WISCONSIN.

There are several routes to Wisconsin. One may use any of the options to Chicago, then follow concrete to Milwaukee along Lake Michigan and concrete to Fond du Lac, Oshkosh and Appleton and to Green Bay, or direct along the Lake Michigan shore concrete to Green Bay.

Most popular, however, is a route following the Chicago road through Springfield and Peoria to La Salle, Ill. (253 miles), then north on No. 2 (gravel) to Mendota, then north on gravel and dirt marked "Temporary No. 2" to Franklin Grove, west on Lincoln Highway concrete to Dixon, northeast on gravel and dirt through Oregon to Rockford, then county concrete road to Beloit and north on Wisconsin No. 13 concrete to Evansville, then good gravel to Madison (291 miles). At Madison one can pick up good roads in any direction. A popular run is straight up No. 10 to Merrill and then over No. 63 to Rhinelander (599) and the lakes region.

To Kilbourn and The Dells—Follow No. 12 from Madison through Sioux City and Barabou to Kilbourn (455).

MINNESOTA.

St. St. Paul and Minneapolis—Same route as to Madison, Wis., then No. 12 through Sauk City, Baraboo, Kilbourn, Mauston, New Lisbon, Tomah, Black River Falls, August, Eau Claire, Baldwin, and Hudson to St. Paul (659).

Option—Leave Wisconsin Highway No. 12 at Baraboo and follow No. 33 through Reedsburg, Union Center and Cashton to La Crosse. Cross the Mississippi River and go north on Minnesota No. 3 to Winona, west on No. 7 to Rochester and north to St. Paul. This is the more scenic way. The roads are good on either route.

MICHIGAN.

To Grand Haven, Muskegon, Ludington, Traverse City, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Mackinaw City. Any route to Chicago, then Dunes highway to Michigan City and north over the West Michigan pike. Good roads all the way for 785 miles from St. Louis; mostly hard-surfaced.

To Detroit—Chicago route through Marshall and Danville, Ill., to Steger, then east to Michigan City, where take Michigan Route 11 through Benton Harbor, then No. 17 through Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Jackson and Ann Arbor to Detroit (604 miles). Hard surfaced road.

Option to Detroit — Straight through Marshall, Terre Haute, Indianapolis and over Route No. 3 to Dayton, O., then north through Piqua, Lima, Findley and Toledo (505) to Detroit (569). More St. Louisans use this route than the one through Michigan.

To Grand Rapids—Leave West Michigan pike at Saugatuck and go east on No. 51. No. 54 leads north from Grand Rapids into the Michigan fishing country. It is reported in good condition.

OHIO.

To Cleveland via Columbus—Through Collinsville, Marshall, Terre Haute, Indianapolis, Dayton, Brandt and Springfield, O. (380) to Columbus (424), then north on the "C. C. C." highway through Loudenville, Mount Vernon, Ashland, Wooster and Mendina to Cleveland (580). Hard-surfaced road all the way.

INDIANA.

To Indianapolis—Chicago route through Marshall to Indiana line, then Indiana No. 3 through Terre Haute, Brazil and Putnamville (240 miles). Hard road.

To Vincennes—Same as above to Terre Haute, then south; good roads (235 miles).

To French Lick—Same as Indianapolis route to Putnamville, where swing south through Spencer, Bloomington and Mitchell to Paoli, west to West Baden and on to French Lick (about 290 miles).

KENTUCKY.

To Louisville—Direct to Indianapolis, then south on No. 1 through Franklin, Columbus, Scottsburg and into Louisville (about 339 miles). Good roads. Detours good.

Roads through the Kentucky bluegrass region are generally good. Roads to the south have some good stretches, but are generally very rough.

TENNESSEE.

To Memphis—Follow Illinois route to Cape Girardeau, Mo. (listed under Southwest Missouri); then south through Sikeston, New Madrid, Mo.; Blytheville, Ark.; Osceola, Marion to Memphis. (About 336 miles.) Sixty miles dirt between New Madrid and Osceola; rest is concrete and gravel.

Nashville—To Belleville, Mount Vernon and Fairfield to Mt. Carmel. Cross Wabash River to Princeton, Ind., and on to Evansville. Cross the Ohio to Henderson and south through Madisonville and Hopkinsville to Nashville. Concrete to Fairfield, three detours to Mt. Carmel, gravel to Henderson, rock and gravel to Nashville, then dirt to Hopkinsville. Not to be tried in wet weather.

Option—Old National trail to Marshall, Ill., and Terre Haute, then south to Vincennes, Princeton and rest of way same route. Dirt Henderson to Hopkinsville.

EASTERN POINTS.

To New York City—National Old Trails through Marshall, Indianapolis, Columbus, O.; Zanesville, Wheeling, W. Va.; Uniontown, Hagerstown, Md.; Chambersburg, Gettysburg, Philadelphia and New Brunswick, N. J. Hard road (1031 miles).

To Buffalo—National Old Trail to Columbus, O., north to Cleveland and along Lake Erie to Buffalo. Hard road. (805 miles).

To Toronto—Route noted under Michigan to Detroit, then into Canada and over rough rock road to Toronto. (900 miles). Also via Buffalo.

To Thousand Islands—To Buffalo, as above, then Rochester, Oswego, Pulaski, Watertown to Clayton. Good roads. (About 1000 miles.)

To Adirondacks, Lake George and Lake Champlain—To Buffalo and east through Rochester, Syracuse and Utica to Schenectady, then north via Balston Spa on hard road to Lake George and on into Adirondacks and to Plattsburg (1300 miles). Or from Lake George to Ticonderoga and north through Port Henry along the shore of Lake Champlain to Plattsburg and Rouse's Point, then south in Vermont through Burlington and Rutland.

'STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN' BILL FOR MOTORISTS IN ARKANSAS PASSES HOUSE

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 5.—A bill requiring the driver of any motor vehicle to "stop, look and listen" before crossing any railroad track in the State, was passed in the House of Representatives Friday, by a vote of 51 to 4. A fine of $10 is imposed for violation of the act, $7 of which goes to the common school fund of the State and $3 to the county school fund of the county in which the violation occurs.

The bill, written by Representative Jones of Clark County, says: "Any owner or driver or any person who operates any automobile, truck or motorcycle shall stop before crossing any passenger or freight-carrying railroad. Said owner or operator of any gas or motor vehicle shall stop not nearer than 15 feet from said railroad crossing when looking for an approaching train."

LARGE SAVING OF TIME AND MONEY ON AIRLINE ROUTE

that traffic is ordinarily subjected to in passing along main streets. This will permit the motorist to maintain a uniform speed throughout his journey.

Big Time Saver.

The shortened distance will mean a saving in time of at least one hour and 20 minutes for each person traveling the through distance. It also will mean a saving in first cost of construction and annual cost of maintenance. It is estimated that the saving in first cost of construction, due to the decreased mileage, will be $1,360,000. This does not cover the entire saving resulting from the 40 miles decrease in road mileage. There also is to be considered the saving in maintenance, reduction in sinking fund payments and a saving in total cost of operation of motor vehicles using the road.

The Money Saving.

As these letter expenses occur every year, it is necessary to state the entire economy of the shorter route in terms of annual saving, thus:

ROADWAY.
Interest saved $1,360,000 at 4½ per cent)	$ 61,200
Maintenance saved (40x$250)	10,000
Sinking fund payment (50 per cent of investment in 25 years)	27,200
	$ 98,400
OPERATION OF VEHICLES.
(1000 ton-miles per day at 10c per mile—$100).
40 miles at $100 for 365 days	$1,460,000
Total annual savings....	$1,558,400

A Ford touring car with three passengers traveling a mile produces a ton-mile of transportation—heavier cars and trucks in proportion to their gross weight. The ton-mileage assumed is a very conservative figure for this through route and will likely be exceeded in a few years time. It is thus seen that the total annual savings will exceed $1,500,000 and will increase as the traffic increases.

This highway will serve directly or by means of short feeders the following counties and population.

Counties Served	Population	Number of Cars
Jackson	367,846	70,803
Lafayette	39,006	5,073
Johnson	24,899	4,069
Saline	28,826	4,885
Pettis	33,813	5,731
Cooper	19,308	2,512
Howard	13,997	2,093
Boone	29,672	4,201
Callaway	23,007	2,746
Montgomery	15,233	2,068
Warren	8,490	1,265
St. Charles	22,828	3,541
St. Louis	100,737	20,818
St. Louis (City)	772,897	102,340
	1,500,359	232,145

Population of State, 3,404,055.
Total cars in State, 478,600.

It should be noted that 44 per cent of the State's population is tributary to this trunk line and that this population embraces 49 per cent of the registered motor vehicle owners.

Construction Progress.

The improvement of this highway has been carried on continuously since the first road bonds were sold. There have been committed to contract 46 projects totaling 196 miles and costing $4,559,767. This is 85.5 per lent of the entire mileage subjeit to improvement. Ninety-four miles of this represents grading projects and 102 miles hard surfacing projects either completed or under contract on June 1, 1924.

New projects are being placed under contract as rapidly as right of way can be secured and plans prepared. Present plans are to place the entire mileage under contract for grading and bridging before next winter.

Short Route Benefits.

The benefits that will follow completion of this highway, though many, fall within two classes—the benefits to the user of the road and the benefits to the contiguous properties and communities along the road.

The user will have his operating cost cut 2½ cents per ton-mile, his traveling time reduced one hour and 20 minutes on a through trip, and he will have the advantage of a dependable, all-weather, 365-day-in-the-year road.

The farmer can get his livestock and produce to the larger markets at the most favorable time without delay and inconvenience.

The communities along the route will feel the increased demand of the tourists for supplies and accommodations. Business will take on new life and property values will respond by taking an upward trend. Many instances might be cited in support of these general statements, however. The experience of Wentzville is typical and will suffice for the present.

Property Values Rise.

The following extract from a letter of Howard Ellis, banker at New Florence, gives the data:

"I have taken occasion to personally interview land owners at Wentzville and further confirmed their statements from banks and other business men; Walter Schmidt owned a small tract of ground costing about $700. Since the concrete highway has been opened, he has refused $3800. Mr. W. S. Heady purchased a lot for $1400, sold off a building for $100 and has refused $3000 for the lot. Harry Theiman owned a cottage hotel, which was destroyed by fire. Due to the road he has erected a three-story modern hotel at a cost of some $15,000. The number of new residences being constructed is greater than for a number of years."

Honestly Built, Honestly Priced, Honestly Sold

If an automobile dealer offers you more than you, yourself, would pay for the car you tender in trade—

If the allowance he makes for your old car is greater than the price at which other similar cars are advertised for sale in the "used car" sections of your local papers—

Look for the hidden trading margin in the new car he sells.

Stutz prices conceal no abnormal trading margins to baffle the buyer seeking an exorbitant allowance for his old car.

Stutz cars are honestly built, honestly priced and honestly sold, enabling the dealer to give you all your old car is worth and full value in your new car, too.

Fourteen years devoted to honest merchandising have given the Stutz enviable prestige, while natural growth has enabled the Stutz company now to offer Stutz cars—genuine Stutz cars—at lower prices than ever before.

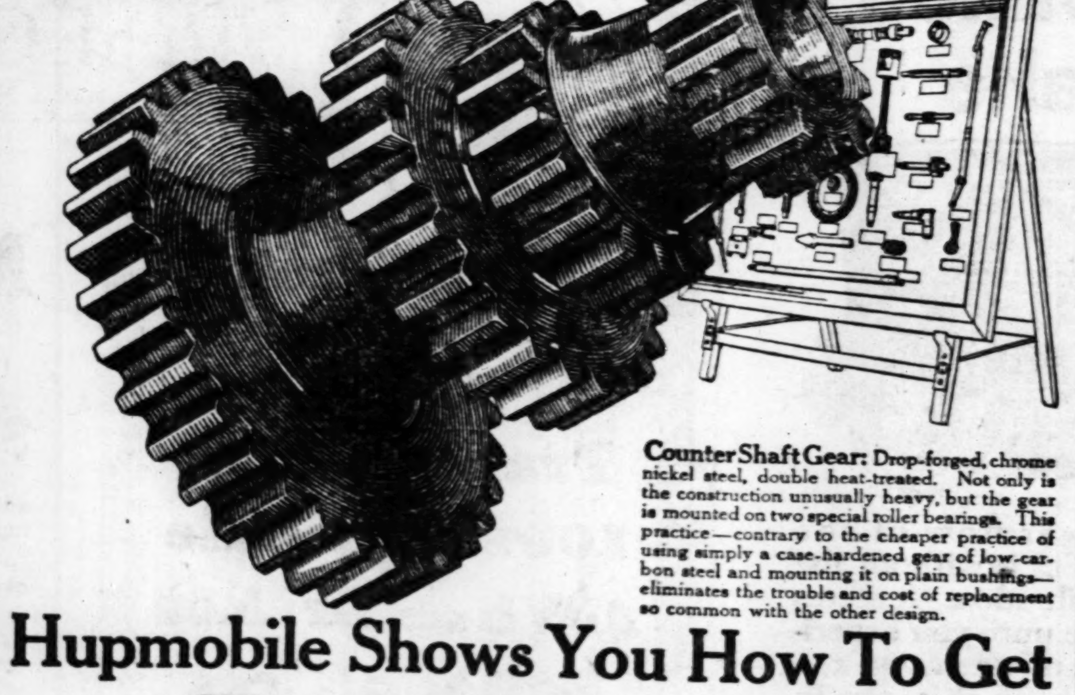
The Sign of the Genuine

Hupmobile



Counter Shaft Gear: Drop-forged, chrome nickel steel, double heat-treated. Not only is the construction unusually heavy, but the gear is mounted on two-bearing plan. This practice—contrary to the cheaper practice of using simply a case-hardened gear of low-carbon steel and mounting it on plain bushings—eliminates the trouble and cost of replacement so common with the other design.

Hupmobile Shows You How To Get The Facts That Count

Before you lay down hard-earned money for an automobile—a Hupmobile or any other—possess yourself of vital facts.

For the first time in motor car annals, Hupmobile has shown the way to get at facts that count.

Facts that will tell you quickly and clearly why one car is better than another—why fair externals may conceal inherent weaknesses—why many things are of less importance than processes of manufacture—why a couple of hundred dollars more is not extravagance but a necessary expenditure.

Step into the Hupmobile salesroom and ask to see the Parts Display.

On these boards, you will find displayed all the principal parts of the Hupmobile. Each is ticketed with a card that tells plainly and concisely in black type how it is made and what it is made of.

Each card also describes in red type the lesser materials and processes often used for similar parts in other cars. Come in and see this object lesson in invisible value and invisible costs.

REVIEW OF AUTO PRODUCTION AND SELLING TRENDS

$230,000,000 Sales for Principal Makes in May —Drop in Factory Schedules—Used Car Situation

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, July 5.—The general trend of the new designs in automobiles is not a secret. At least six, and possibly nine, manufacturers are prepared to put out "straight eight" models, and there is evidence that these will be equipped in a good many cases with balloon tires and improved brakes of various mechanical construction as standard equipment.

It is understood that the mechanical difficulties with some of the "straight eights" at first have been overcome. One of these was the difficulty of adequate carburetion. Until readjustment of manifolds and other refinements, the two end cylinders in some cases were "starved" of gas while the middle six cylinders were being given a full supply.

This had been noticed earlier in the racing models, on some of which the difficulty was met by adding carburetors for each cylinder or pair of cylinders.

Sales of Cars Increase.

The trend toward the small bore, high compression cylinders in the racing models is rapidly affecting the stock cars. This tendency has been increased by tests made by the Government Bureau of Standards which proved beyond question that the thermal efficiency of a gasoline engine could be increased materially by pushing up the compression ratio. The tests also prove, however, that the higher compression result is an added tendency to pre-ignition and detonation, necessitating use of special fuels. Aviation engine tests have been of great assistance in establishing these facts.

The warmer weather recently has been an undoubted stimulus to sales, which showed a marked increase last month. Sales aggregated between $230,750,000 and $231,000,000 for the principal makes, a drop of less than 5 per cent, as compared with June, 1923.

Production continued to decline, showing a fall of over 15 per cent as compared with the previous month and about 20 per cent from the level of the corresponding month of last year. The general price trend was upward.

Used Car Situation.

The normal ratio between cars in stock and cars moving to consumers has not yet been attained, but is rapidly approaching a safer level.

The manufacturers of parts have felt the recession in production perhaps more severely than any one automobile company, since the majority of them sell to more than one manufacturer. Truck manufacturers and sales have not suffered to the same extent as those of automobiles and the demand for commercial vehicles continues excellent.

Used cars on hand are about 11 per cent more numerous than in May and this itself is an indication of greater sales activity, since the majority of these machines were taken in as part payment on new cars.

It takes a brave man to compete with Henry Ford, but every once in a while someone tries it. Manufacturers are watching closely the activities of a Wisconsin company which has been organized to sell a car at $295. The trade is inclined to say "Oh, just another," but is not relaxing vigilance since every man in the business is interested to know if anyone can break in on the Ford business.

Heretofore competitors have either gone out of business or turned to higher prices which placed them outside the Ford field. This was the case with the Gray Motor Co. and the Star car brought out by Durant. The policy of higher prices by these companies is asserted to have brought considerable success as the trade reports each is satisfied with the business being done at the higher range.

The new competitor of the Ford, to be made by the Schuler Motor Car Co., it is announced will have a 19-horsepower motor, electric lights and starter and three speed transmission.

LICENSE FEE AN INVESTMENT IN GOOD ROADS, NOT A TAX

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—Money paid to the State by automobile owners as an annual registration fee is not a tax, according to officials of the State Highway Department, but is an investment in good roads.

Officials of the highway department said some protest had arisen over the proposal in the road initiative petitions for a 50 per cent increase in State automobile registration fees. Many owners of automobiles think of the money they spend to obtain their 1924 license plates as a tax or expense.

This is a wrong idea, according to the officials. Under the present road program, more than 80 per cent of the automobile license money paid to the State is an investment in hard-furcased, improved roads, the benefit of which will be available for the remainder of the owner's life, if he continues to live in this State.

benefits to the user of the road and the benefits to the contiguous properties and communities along the road.

The user will have his operating cost cut 2½ cents per ton-mile, his traveling time reduced one hour and 20 minutes on a through trip, and he will have the advantage of a dependable, all-weather, 365-day-in-the-year road.

The farmer can get his livestock and produce to the larger markets at the most favorable time without delay and inconvenience.

The communities along the route will feel the increased demand of the tourists for supplies and accommodations. Business will take on new life and property values will respond by taking an upward trend. Many instances might be cited in support of these general statements, however. The experience of Wentzville is typical and will suffice for the present.

Property Values Rise.

The following extract from a letter of Howard Ellis, banker at New Florence, gives the data:

"I have taken occasion to personally interview land owners at Wentzville and further confirmed their statements from banks and other business men; Walter Schmidt owned a small tract of ground costing about $700. Since the concrete highway has been opened, he has refused $2200. Mr. W. S. Heady purchased a lot for $1400, sold off a building for $200 and has refused $3000 for the lot. Harry Theiman owned a cottage hotel, which was destroyed by fire. Due to the road he has erected a three-story modern hotel at a cost of some $15,000. The number of new residences being constructed is greater than for a number of years."

LICENSE FEE AN INVESTMENT IN GOOD ROADS, NOT A TAX

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—Money paid to the State by automobile owners as an annual registration fee is not a tax, according to officials of the State Highway Department, but is an investment in good roads.

Officials of the highway department said some protest had arisen over the proposal in the road initiative petitions for a 50 per cent increase in State automobile registration fees. Many owners of automobiles think of the money they spend to obtain their 1924 license plates as a tax or expense.

This is a wrong idea, according to the officials. Under the present road program, more than 80 per cent of the automobile license money paid to the State is an investment in hard-surfaced, improved roads, the benefit of which will be available for the remainder of the owner's life, if he continues to live in this State.

On Auto Row

EMPLOYES of the State Highway Department in the various construction divisions in the State have been instructed to make lists of all automobile owners who have failed to obtain their 1924 State license tags or are using only one tag on an automobile, and to file complaints with Prosecuting Attorneys in the counties. The men in the road patrols and construction gangs have been ordered to check up licenses of all cars passing along the roads, in the campaign to compell payment of State license fees by all Missouri automobile owners. The campaign was started by the commission because money paid for State automobile licenses goes into the State road fund.

Problem in Amalgamation.

The amalgamation of the Automobile Association of America and the National Motorists Association, which is to result in a convention in Detroit this week, appears not to have been completely effective. At any rate dispatches say the National Motorists Association has reorganized with Richard H. Lee of New York as president, and claims that it is backed by 30 automobile clubs, representing 100,000 members.

Buick Dealers' Meeting.

To keep the new Buick models under cover until opening day on Tuesday, the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. painted its windows white June 28. On alternate windows was also painted a red question mark, "You'll Know Tuesday." When the Buick dealers came to St. Louis on Monday for their annual meeting the showroom was opened and after they were taken to the Chase Hotel for luncheon. Walter H. Vesper, vice president, presided at the meeting and outlined some of the features of the new Buick line. F. W. A. Vesper, president, then gave the dealers a resume of the new Buick dealers' contract and touched upon plans for the coming year. Distribution and allotment of the new cars were covered by W. H. Willcockson, secretary of the company. Nearly 100 dealers attended the meeting. A private showing of the new cars was held Monday evening for all the Buick retail salesmen in St. Louis, with 75 men present.

New Motor Bus Engine.

The Continental Motors Corporation has announced for passenger bus service a 3¾x5-inch, six-cylinder engine that develops 70 horsepower. The new engine is for intercity express work requiring long nonstop runs.

Auto to Be Given Away.

A Chevrolet sedan has been donated to the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis, to be given away as the principal one of more than 25,000 presents which purchasers of souvenir programs will receive at the annual tuberculosis ball game at Sportsman's Park July 17. It was donated by the Orthwein Motor Corporation. Society girls will sell the programs at the ball park on the day of the game. Among the thousands of other gifts are automobile accessories. The Chevrolet sedan will be driven to the ball park on the day of the game. Prior to that time it will be parked for short periods each day in front of 609 Locust street.

Sails for "Ad" Convention.

E. LeRoy Pelletier, advertising manager of the Rickenbacker Motor Co., sailed Friday for London, England, to address the convention of Associated Advertising Clubs of the World on July 16. He is one of six speakers selected from America to represent the "Newspaper Departmental" at this greatest gathering of advertising men. He will spend about two months. He proposes to learn how to merchandise in Europe, at the same time telling Europeans how American newspapers have proven best for the strategy and quick-action necessary for merchandising in vast volume.

Production Record for New Car.

What is believed to be a production record was made before the middle of June when the 10,000th Chrysler six rolled off the assembly line at the factory in Detroit. Chrysler production now is averaging slightly more than 150 cars a day, says S. B. Ward, head of the Ward Motor Co., Inc., St. Louis distributor. Plant changes will speed up production and officials estimate that 15,000 Chryslers will be produced by Aug. 1. It is worth noting that within less than six months after starting work the Chrysler company has sold more than $15,000,000 worth of cars.

Object to Being Stared At.

Motor campers who use the Forest Park camp say it is the only one at which they have stopped where they are subjected to the annoyance of continual scrutiny from persons motoring around the circle within which the tents are pitched. Complaint also is made that every Sunday afternoon persons wander casually through the camp, even stopping to stare unabashed into tents. "This is the only camp I have seen all the way from California where there are no electric lights," said one camper.

Franklin Resumes Production.

Assembly work was resumed at the Franklin factory at Syracuse, N. Y., last week, following completion of the inventory for which production was halted temporarily a few weeks ago. Retail deliveries of Franklin dealers are running at the rate of more than 800 a month and orders to the factory are increasing. The factory is taking on more workmen and production is to be increased as rapidly as conditions warrant.

Clincher Balloons for Light Cars.

"The clincher balloon cord has long since emerged from the experimental stage," declares J. F. Schaefer, vice president of the Cooper Corporation, in charge of its tire manufacturing division at Findlay, O. The thousands now in service have proven their worth to motorists in performance and comfort. The clincher balloon, to replace the 30x3½ clincher cord, is a full balloon tire, and requires only 20 to 30 pounds inflation instead of the usual 40 to 60 pounds, besides having twice the bearing surface. The flexible side walls insure the greatest possible cushioning effect and the least possible internal friction and absorption power. A desirable feature of the clincher balloon on present rims is that the change-over can be made without delay or expense, no new equipment being required. Just slip on the balloon as you would a regular high-pressure cord upon your present rim. Clincher balloons are ideal for Ford, Chevrolet and other light cars, as they not only eliminate jolting, bouncing and rattling, but also hold the road and avoid skidding. Furthermore, the saving in depreciation and upkeep cost alone will pay for the tires, making the comfort pure gain." The Brenner Auto Supply Co. is distributors for the Cooper tire in St. Louis.

Breaks Retail Sales Record.

Retail sales of Paige and Jewett cars in the first six months of 1924, as reported by dealers to the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., were with n 200 cars of 20,000. This total compares with 17,806 Paiges and Jewetts sold at retail in the first six months of last year.

New Auto Race Track.

Expenditure of $300,000 for an automobile racing track and buildings is planned at Charlotte, N. C. The track will be a mile and a quarter long, and the first race over it is scheduled for Aug. 1, with pirst prize of $20,000.

Being Passed No Joy There.

A measure which has passed third reading in the Legislature of the Canadian province of Nova Scotia requires the driver of a car which is about to be passed by another to slow down to 15 miles an hour.

New Retail Sales Manager.

Harry C. Herring is now retail sales manager for the Diesing Motor Sales Co., Rickenbacker distributor. He has been in the automobile business many years, and formerly was sales manager for the South Side Motor Sales Co.

Ford Officials Deny Rumor.

Officials at the Ford Plant at Highland, Mich., continue to deny a rumor that Ford contemplates building a six-cylinder car to sell around $1000.

Organizes Optimist Club.

Believing that business conditions are determined by an attitude of mind and that conditions are good or bad in the proportion the public thinks they are, the Chicago Branch of the Oakland Motor Car Co. has organized a True Blue Optimist Club among its dealers. Every dealer joining this club must agree that "neither he nor anyone else in his organization will talk about hard times, nor listen to such talk from other people, but on the other hand will talk prosperity and good times to a number of people every day, and will go out after business with the feeling that, taking everything into consideration, the country is in good shape."

Balloon Tire Grows in Favor.

A number of automobile factories which have not adopted balloon tires as standard equipment report that at least 60 per cent of their production calls for that type of tire.

Shows Big Sales Increase.

Sales of Rickenbacker cars have increased in the St. Louis district 200 per cent over last year, "Jim" Ward, of the Diesing Motor Sales Co., reports. Ward sees no reason for business pessimism, saying that business has been very good and has remained consistently good. Indicative of the national sales status of the Rickenbacker, he remarks, is the fact that the factory has just declared another quarterly 2 per cent dividend.

How Anti-Knock "Gas" Works.

The difference in the action of ethyl gas from that of untreated gasoline, chemists state, is much the same as the difference between the action of smokeless and black powder. When black powder is used, there is a sudden explosion, the full force being expended at onec on the projectile. This force diminishes as the projectile travels toward the muzzle of the gun, allowing more space for the gasses and permitting the pressure to decrease. Smokeless powder burns more slowly. The first push is not so great, but the force of the gasses increases, reaching maximum power as the projectile is leaving the gun barrel. So, smokeless powder gives a progressive, higher and more sustained velocity and greater power. Untreated gasoline has much the same tendency to explode its force in one heavy blow as has black powder. This is particularly apparent when the compression of an engine is increased or the load suddenly made more heavy. This short explosive characteristic is manifested outwardly by the sound of a fuel knock, the noise resulting from the force of the shattering explosion being transmitted to the cylinder walls. Ethyl gas, in its action, as closely follows the workings of smokeless powder. It burns more closely with a cumulative force that, instead of trying to shatter the cylinder walls, tends to center its power on the piston head.

Ovations for 10,000,000th Ford.

The 10,000,000th Ford, which rolled off the assembly line June 4, is being hailed everywhere with enthusiasm on its Lincoln Highway tour from New York to San Francisco. Motion pictures are being taken for a complete record of the trip.

New Balloon Sizes Recommended.

The executive committee of the Rubber Association of America, Inc., has recommended three additional standard baloon tire sizes—33x6 for 31x5 rim; 30x4.75 for 29x4 rim, and 31x4.40 clincher.

Big Factory Force Addition.

The Studebaker Corporation expects to add 1200 men to its payroll this week and to put on 2000 more between July 15 and Aug. 1, with other increases until October, when it expects the peak of business.

Auto Racing at Denver.

A two-mile speedway is contemplated at Denver by an association which is holding races on a one-mile dirt track at Overland Park, the city's motor camp. Sig Haughdal has just made a record of 49 1-5 seconds for this track.

New Car Buying Scheme.

A Baltimore company is introducing a new financing plan to relieve automobile dealers of all liabilities and obligations after cars leave their floors. The company takes care of all collections, and is to reject no business because of dissatisfaction with the status of a dealer or his ability to reimburse it if a buyer's notes are not paid on time, and will even handle the resale of a repossessed car. The whole deal is really between finance company and purchaser, cars being sold on down payments of a quarter, a third or a half, the balance being spread over six, eight, 10 or 12 months, according to the size of the first payment.

Signs Contract for 1925.

S. B. Ward, president of the Ward Motor Co., Inc., on July 1 executed his first 1925 Chrysler and Maxwell contract with an associate dealer when he signed up O. P. Thompson of Carlinville, Ill.

Gossip of New Cheap Car.

Detroit automotive circles are taking seriously gossip that W. C. Durant is preparing to market a new light car in the Overland-Chevrolet class.

Car Quickly Built in Street.

The Buick demonstration tour mechanics, who are traveling the country and building Buick cars from local dealers' stock parts, built a car complete in 44½ minutes in City Hall place, Philadelphia. The car was assembled from a truck load of parts taken from the Philadelphia distributer's stock and rolled away on its own power.

Flywheel in Middle of Crankshaft

A four-cylinder racing engine being tested in England has its flywheel in the middle of the crankshaft and running in a case separated from the crankcase. With a bore of 2.73 inches and stroke of 5.12 inches, it turns up to 5000 r. p. m. and develops 100 horsepower.

Tourist Makes Fast Time.

A daily driving average of 454½ miles was made recently by J. W. Parsons and family of Seattle on a 5000-mile trip through Washington, Oregon, California and Arizona and back. Driving a Stutz six, they ran 959 miles to Oakland, Cal., in two days, and the next night were in Barstow, Cal., 481 miles from Oakland. The next night saw them in Williams, Ariz., 382 miles farther on. They spent a day at the Grand Canyon, and the next day made 440 miles to Nogales, covering one 220-mile stretch in an even five hours. On the trip back via Yuma they drove 15 miles in second gear on one stretch, and climbed from 257 feet below sea level through the mountains to 4900 feet altitude, in high. The trip, of course, included much hard going in the Mojave Desert and parts of Arizona.

Wins Economy Prizes.

First prizes for economy and endurance in their classes were won by standard stock Studebaker cars in the recent 1882-mile El Paso endurance run, the Weber Motor Car Co. of St. Louis is informed. The light six used only 95 gallons of gasoline and six quarts of oil on this extraordinarily rough trip, an average of 19.8 miles to the gallon of "gas" and 313 to the quart of oil.

New Busses Conquer Hills.

Steep hills and hard grades, which compel the ordinary bus to run in low and second noisily and slowly, are a problem to Northern New Jersey bus lines. In one section it has been solved by a fleet of six-cylinder buses with engines developing more than 100 horsepower. These buses climb the long grades swiftly and silently in high and stand sustained speeds of 45 to 50 miles an hour.

Pithy Counsel.

"Say it with brakes—save the flowers" and "In a pinch good brakes are your only hope," says the bulletin of the Milwaukee Motor Club.

PARALLELS ITS OWN LINES WITH BUSES

Indiana Traction Company Decides to Cater to Preference of Public.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—"If the people want to ride on rubber, we will provide that facility," said Harry Reid, president of the Interstate Public Service Co., which runs a traction line between Indianapolis and Louisville, in announcing the purchase of 11 motor buses to operate between Indianapolis and Franklin as an adjunct to the main line of the traction company. Later, it is possible the company will operate buses as far as Columbus, O.

Reid said the purchase was the first active step to meet bus competition which has cut into the traction transportation business to Franklin.

Some time ago the company entered into traffic arrangements with truck line companies radiating from Seymour which are said to have facilitated freight shipments from the territory, giving producers a quick market for perishable foodstuffs in Indianapolis.

This is the first traction line in Indiana to enter the bus business actively with lines paralleling its tracks. Heretofore the main contention of the traction lines of the State has been that it was unfair to run buses parallel to traction lines on free highways paid for by the people and "compete unfairly with tranction lines." A large part of the main State highways radiating from here are paralleled by traction lines.

AMUSING AS WELL AS EXASPERATING INCIDENT IN CALIFORNIA QUARANTINE

One of the most amusing, as well as exasperating, incidents of the foot and mouth disease quarantine is reported by a tourist who came through St. Louis Sunday. "We struck a place in the mountains," he said, "where the disinfecting was carried on in a one-room house. The walls were pierced with holes, four to a side. The tourists stood inside the room and stuck their heads out the holes, which had rubber capes pulled tight around their necks with draw strings. Then a formaldehyde smudge was lighted underneath them. Can you imagine that house with the 16 heads sticking out of the walls and a smudge pot smoking and roasting each of them? Several persons' eyes were injured by the fumes, and one man sued the county. Finally the practice was stopped.

Recognition

Recognition for a well engineered car of admitted quality and distinction, built by an organization honestly striving to put into it the greater value that tomorrow's automobile must offer, was bound to come.

It has come to the new Columbia Six with surprising swiftness. May stands among the greatest sales months in Columbia history, outstripping even the 66% increase shown in April.

To see the new Columbia Six is to appreciate the reason for the rapid growth in sales of this finer car. Come in and decide for yourself.

Real Comfort for Five

With the convenience and economy that only a coupe can give

The new 2-door, 5-passenger Gardner Coupe provides the chummy companionship, sedan comfort and coupe convenience you've always wanted — for your family, and for those special occasions when you'd like abundant room for business friends, or an extra couple to share your outings.

Five full-grown people ride in lounge-like comfort on seats deeply upholstered in rich velvet velour, and tilted just right to assure abundant leg-room, even for the tallest. The two front seats fold and tip forward for easy entrance and exit thru doors 31½ inches wide.

Sliding in felt-lined channels, those four big side windows are rumble-proof and rattle-proof. The two in the doors are equipped with rotary lifts—a few quick turns and the cool breeze plays upon you—turn back, just as quickly and easily, and the sudden rain beats futilely against the glass. Weather-proof protection! And with it, clear vision for everyone in the car.

A cowl ventilator and two-piece windshield temper summer's heat —give protection against winter's chilly blasts. Disconcerting drip across the driver's vision is forestalled by a metal sun-visor with drain.

Under the hood is that triumph of engineering skill—the famous 5-bearing crankshaft Gardner motor. That's why this car takes steep grades easily—picks up from a 5-mile crawl to 25 miles an hour in 7 7-10 seconds—sweeps along the open road at a mile-a-minute gait—all in high and without annoying vibration!

In fairness to yourself, drive this car today. Take the whole family for a ride. Learn what sedan comfort with coupe convenience and economy really means. Telephone us for a demonstration—now!

YALE MEASURES SHOCKS IN AUTO LIKE EARTHQUAKE

Motor Car Seismograph Is Devised to Test Highways as Jolt Causers and Improve Jar Absorbers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 5.—What constitutes riding comfort in an automobile? Is it smoothness of motion? And if so, does up and down motion have a greater disturbing effect on the rider than motion backward and forward, sudden starting and stopping and turns, or is motion from side to side more disconcerting? And exactly what is the mysterious part played by noise in our comfort? These are some of the questions being investigated by Prof. E. H. Lockwood and Prof. L. B. Kimball of the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University.

The automobile seismograph is an instrument which has been devised by Prof. Lockwood to test the up-and-down motion of various automobiles, and to prove what shock absorbers and other devices bring the smoothest motion; also to test the roughness of given stretches of roadway, the relative roughness of tarvia and concrete.

It works in much the same way as the earthquage seismograph, which is used at Washington, to register every earthquake, no matter how small. It consists, essentially, of a weight hung on a spring so delicately that it barely touches the bottom of the instrument. It is placed on the floor of the automobile. When the car goes over a big bump the weight receives a great jar, and if the bump is small, with little or no up and down motion, the weight will move just a little.

Carefully Records Bumps.

The weight is connected with a delicate apparatus which registers the violence and number of the jounces in figures so that you can read it at any time just as you read a speedometer. The father you go the higher the reading will get. So if you are to test the relative bumpiuess of different makes of cars you must drive them for the same distance on the same road and then consult the reading of the seismograph.

Of the automobiles tried, a certain meter cab proved to have the most up and down motion on a rough country road. But on the city pavement the meter cab was not so bumpy as a number of cheap pleasure cars. The bill of taxi companies for smashed hats due to vertical motion is said to run into the thousands. Hence this is a vital problem, not only for the passengers, but also for the cab companies.

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

LEARNING TO DRIVE—WELL.

"SUPPOSE you're an expert driver by now?" I bantered, greeting Smith upon completion of his driving lessons.

"The instructor told me I was the most adept pupil he had had this year," Smith boasted.

I smiled at this. "That's what they all say," I added. "And why shouldn't they? It is their business to sell cars and please their customers even if they have to flatter them."

"Oh, so you don't believe I can drive?" Smith asked, surprised to think that I had questioned his ability. "All right," he said, "I'll just prove it to you."

My car was standing there at the curb. It was not the make of car he had ordered, but the shift was the same, and there was nothing radically different in the controls. So Smith took the wheel and I sat beside him. I waited while his nervous hands wandered over the instrument board in the confused act of looking for the choker and the ignition switch at the same time.

"Do things deliberately," I said. "Make sure you're in 'neutral,' turn on the ignition, pull out the choker, advance the gas, retard the spark and press your foot on the starter button."

Smith went through the starting procedure, taking about four times as long as necessary.

"It'll all come to you after you have driven a while," I added, trying to build up his confidence. "There is nothing to it when it becomes mechanical."

Before I had finished the car went off with a series of jolts that shook us up rather badly and didn't help the engine any.

"Easy!" I cautioned. "When the car bucks like this throw out the clutch and give the engine a chance to get up speed. In driving a car keep your mind on the speed of the engine. First you had it going too fast and now it is going too slow. Suppose you pull up to the curb again and I'll show you how to run the engine as a stationary power plant."

Smith thought he knew all this, but as he followed my suggestion he allowed the engine to stall three times; once because he had the choker out too far and flooded the curburetor; again because he did not choke it enough, and finally because he was opening the throttle wide with the spark too far retarded. If he could not run the engine properly while the car was at a standstill, his trouble would only be trebled in actual driving.

After we had got over the difficulties of starting a cold engine, Smith did better. This encouraged him to boast that he was going to take me right down into the traffic.

"I'm willing," I agreed, "if you'll show me that you can stop the car."

eH laughed at this. "Why, that's the easiest part about it!"

That being so, I pointed to a telegraph pole some 30 feet ahead and gave him the command to stop. We were then going about 18 miles an hour. I watched him. First he asked me, "What telegraph pole?" and then "Why?" By that time we were 10 feet past the place where I wanted him to stop. We then agreed that I should give the signal to stop and that he should bring the car to a standstill as soon as possible after receiving the command.

"Stop!" I shouted at a time when he least expected it. This time ne did not camouflage his nervousness with a lot of foolish questions, but the idea took a long while to travel through his system. Finally after looking around for the foot pedal, he jammed on the brakes and the car stopped. I had marked the place where I had given the signal by a tree. He had taken 40 feet of space in which to stop.

"You should have been able to stop in half that distance. You have no right to enter traffic and endanger other drivers unless you can. Driving in traffic is good practice, but don't attempt it until you first know how to stop. You can practice that on an open boulevard."

"But I had the wheels locked," Smith complained. "Why didn't the car stop right away?"

"You slid the tires," I explained, "whereas you should have applied the brakes on and off. Your way of doing it is bad for the tires and folly in slippery weather."

It was actually two weeks after this that Smith took me for a ride in traffic. He was learning.

Nest week: THE CAR IS DELIVERED.

NEW BUICK SIX IS SHOWN IN ST. LOUIS

Eight Models on New "Standard Six" Chassis — Hood and Radiator Unchanged.

Eight new body models on a new Buick chassis of 114⅝-inch wheel base, embodying a new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine with three-inch bore and four and one-half inch stroke, were displayed Tuesday by the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. The new six is known as the standard six. The models consist of a five-passenger double-service sedan, a two-passenger roadster, a two-passenger enclosed roadster with heater, a five-passenger touring, a five-passenger enclosed touring with heater, a two-passenger double-service coupe, a five-passenger sedan and a four-passenger coupe. Probably the most striking features of the new models are the completely enclosed sedan and coupe on the open cars, and the low-pressure tires on all models. The radiator and hood lines have not been changed.

The engine is a valve-in-head type with automatic pressure lubrication throughout, cylinder head removable and automatic spark advance. The clutch and transmission form integral parts of the engine, which is suspended at three points from the main frame. The crank shaft is a drop-forging, extra heavy and balanced with four large bearings. The pistons and connecting rods are properly weighted and carefully manufactured. Large valves are operated by noiseless, adjustable push rods through rocker arms, which are automatically lubricated from the engine. This engine produces 50 actual brake horsepower.

Clutch is of the multiple disc, dry plate type.

The service brakes are Buick type, external contracting, operating on drums of unusual size and area on all four wheels. The hand brakes, of internal expanding type, operate on rear wheel brake drums only.

Tops on open cars have a new design quarter curtain, made of special waterproof fabric.

Models 24, 24A, 25 and 25A have two-piece ventilating type windshield with inside operating, adjustable friction stops to hold glass in position. These models are equipped with cowl ventilators and windshield wiper.

All closed models are equipped with sunshade, automatic windshield wiper and a new style one-piece windshield, easily raised or lowered for ventilation by handle in similar manner to windows.

All models have drip-pan for carburetor and completely insulated wiring. Buick owners are entitled to the lowest rate for fire and theft insurance.

As standard equipment on all models are carried dim and full headlights with antiglare lenses. Parking lights on cowl, tail lamp and instrument board lamp. Motor-driven horn, 75-mile speedometer, gasoline gauge, tire carrier with extra demountable rim, jack, new type high pressure grease gun, full kit of tools, pump, tire repair kit, transmission lock, cowl or windshield type ventilator, rear vision mirror, running board, scuff plates, new sunshade and dome light on all closed models, windshield wiper, automatic windshield wiper on all closed models.

In going into production on the new standard six, the Buick factory has made greater strides than ever before in getting cars into the hands of branches and distributers for the territory dealers. Between noon on Monday, June 30, and 5 p. m. on July 1, 59 new Buick automobiles were delivered to territory and St. Louis dealers out of the Vesper-Buick stock, while orders were placed for more than double that number. Every one of the retail dealers in St. Louis reported sales on July 1 of two to 10 of the new standard six models.

Attendance July 1 at the 10 Buick salesrooms in metropolitan St. Louis totaled 1436 persons up to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Between that time and 10:30 p. m. more than 600 more persons visited the showrooms.

WISCONSIN CITY MAKES TOURIST FEEL AT HOME

Merchants and Officials Co-operate in Helping to Make Visit Pleasant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RACINE, Wis., July 5.—A plan is being tried in Racine, which is not only courteous to the motorists who pass through the city, but is profitable to the automotive merchants and other business houses and hotels.

The association of commerce, retail merchants and city officials are co-operating in extending a welcome to out-of-town visitors. Guest cards are distributed by the merchants and mailed by them to their out-of-town customers. These cards are in the form of a key, symbolic of open hospitality, and are to be attached to the steering wheel.

One of these official cards, when so attached, gives its possessor assurance that policemen, firemen, merchants and citizens generally not only welcome him, but are willing to help to make his stay pleasant.

A Mechanical Inspector.

Since an instrument known as the vialog has been in use by the engineers of the Highway Department of New York State there has been reported considerable improvement in the construction work by contractors. This device, which measures accurately the surface irregularities of the Empire State's highways, is viewed by the department as one of its best inspectors.

GOES TO STUDY MOTOR TRANSPORT IN EUROPE

National Automobile C. of C. Executive to Report to American Industry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, has sailed for Europe as delegate of the American automobile industry, sent in response to the invitation of delegates from foreign countries who attended the recent World Motor Transport Congress in Detroit.

Many of the 156 delegates from 56 countries to the congress declared that their nations were being held back economically because of lack of transportation facilities. They invited the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce to send representatives to guide them in formulating plans to promote motor transport.

Accordingly, Reeves will visit England, France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland, Holland and Austria. He plans to spend two months studying the European situation, and will confer with Government officials, bankers, automobile manufacturers, dealers, motor clubs and highway associations executives.

It is expected that the report Reeves makes on his return to this country will have a decided influence on plans of American automobile and truck factories to develop the foreign market.

CONSTANTLY IMPROVED
BUT NO YEARLY MODELS

There are obvious benefits to the purchaser in Dodge Brothers policy of making constant, gradual refinements in their product instead of changing from one design to another year after year.

Chief among these is the fact that the car may be operated throughout the full limit of its usefulness without the extra depreciation loss which results from a rapid succession of radically different models.

LAKE MICHIGAN'S SAND DUNES ARE WORTH VISITING

Largest of Them All to Be Made Accessible to Motorists by Muskegon Boulevard System.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MUSKEGON, Mich., July 5.—Muskegon, summer playground of hundreds of thousands of persons from all parts of the country, within the next few years is to have an external boulevard system 90 miles long, with 60 miles of the route within sight of water and with seven approaches to a developed Lake Michigan shore.

The projected boulevard system has been made possible through the recent gift to the city by the Pere Marquette Railway of 113 acres of sand dune land bordering on Lake Michigan.

The most important feature of the boulevard system will be the making of Michigan Dunes Park accessible. This is an 855-acre tract of sand dune land described by geologists and botanists as destined to become one of the outdoor show places of America. The park, which is but a 20-minute automobile ride from downtown Muskegon and adjoins the land recently deeded to the city by the railroad, contains some of the highest sand dunes on the continent. It is the only park in the country where are located side by side the permanent, or wooded, and shifting types of sand dunes.

Some 300 Feet High.

The dunes have been forming for centuries, still are forming, in fact, as sand from the bottom of Lake Michigan is scooped up, particle by particle, washed ashore, and then, after drying, is moved inland by the wind. For uncounted generations this sand movement has been going on. The wind has piled the sand in great heaps, some of them more than 300 feet high and several hundred feet from the shore of the lake.

The dunes in Michigan Dunes Park provide a contrast in nature that is rarely encountered. Except in sheltered places, the shifting dunes are as barren of plant life as a desert, only a few of the more hardy creeping vines and grasses finding sustenance in the sandy wastes.

Within a stone's throw of the sand wilderness are the permanent dunes, originally heaps of barren sand like their neighbors, but their tops and sides encrusted with a deep layer of rich mold, the remains of thousands of plant generations. Here virtually every tree, shrub and plant known to this climate grows in profusion. Trees that all but top the nearby sand piles jut into the sky. Below, the ground is carpeted with flowering plants. Wild animals make their homes in this jungle. An occasional tree stump, reminder of the passing of a woodsman in earlier days, and a few trails over which the more daring of motorists travel, are the only changes that have taken place since the coming of the white man.

Grim Contrasts.

Bit by bit, year after year, the sand from the desert spaces moves toward the forests. Grain on grain it creeps forward, restlessly driven by winter gale and summer breeze. It swirls through ravines and over open plains until at last it finds a resting place against the tangled forest growth, then sifts into the wooded areas over growing things, strangling, crushing, burying.

The pile against the door of the forest grows a little larger every year. Each season the sand moves a step further into the woodland. Where today is a patch of flowering plants, next year will have been added to the wastes. A century hence, today's forests may have been trampled into blackened trunks and branches by the continued weight of countless sand grains.

While Nature, using the sand as her agency, is blotting out forests and crushing creeping vines into lifeless mold, she is busy in the waste spaces, creating new oases to take the places of those she is destroying. Tiny spots in the shifting dunes that are sheltered from the wind receive the seeds of desert grasses. These take root and spread quickly over a considerable territory. The grasses protect the sand from the wind action, and another year brings a new plant life. The plants live out their span and die, leaving their remains to enrich the sand. As the years pass the soil becomes fertile, trees take root and flourish. A new permanent dune has been built while another forest a hundred feet away has been smothered by the sand. Thus the fight for existence goes on endlessly.

The State of Michigan plans to build cement boulevards in the park and to set apart a small portion of the tract for use as a tourist camp. In other respects, it is to be left in its natural state. Nature is to be permitted to go on with her building and destroying throughout the ages.

Two Touring Tips.

Speed is relative. You can save a lot of time on your trip by stepping on the gas a little at the start, rather than trying to work up to a lively speed by degrees. If you give the car a burst of speed at 40 you'll be surprised to find how comfortable your riding will be when you cut it down to 30.

Slow moving cars on the highways are often operated by dreamers. When a driver has a destination in view he hurries unconsciously, but when he is just out for the air he's very likely to be a bit oblivious of the interests of others. His laxity is your danger. Get by him if you possibly can. And be sure that he hears your horn before you try passing.

THE SUNDAY MOTORIST

In Behalf of Safety.

THE miles per hour figures of the speedometer could be supplemented in the interests of safty if the stopping distances for the respective speeds were also recorded. When 10 miles per hour appeared on the dial the sight of the figure 9.2 would remind the driver that he must allow approximately 10 feet for stopping in event of emergency.

At 15 miles per hour the figure 20.8 would also appear, indicating that 20 feet must be allowed for stopping. Thus when the speedometer registered 35 miles per hour and the supplementary dial said 113 the driver would begin to appreciate the fact that speeding is not how fast one goes but how quickly one can stop.

Possibly some day the stopping distances will be marked on the speedometer dial, and also some provision whereby the driver can conveniently test his brakes to make sure that he actually stops within the approved distances. As matters stand he is obliged to make marks on the paving, and unless the test is carefully worked out with the assistance of others the inspection is not always accurate. If he arranged to operate the odometer like a stop-watch and have a special dial to show the number of feet traveled by the car in stopping there would unquestionably be more carefully adjusted brakes and fewer accidents.

Never Fail to Signal.

Even the experienced driver lapses into the habit of failing to signal his intention to turn left if he is following the beaten track of the main highway. He should remember that the man behind may be a local driver who, planning to take the dirt continuation of the road straight ahead, figures that those ahead of him are going the same way. Everybody isn't traveling the broad highway all the time. Signal always.

The Old Mechanic Says:

Every now and then some chap rolls in here with the complaint that his gas mileage is down and out. He cuts down on the carburetor to a point where he almost has to prime the engine when it's 90 in the shade. He picks out all the down grades he can find so as to coast. He buys the best grade of gas and is sure he gets full measure. Still no results so far as his gas mileage goes.

It usually takes me about two seconds to lift the hood and prove to him that most of his trouble is low lubrication. I not only prove to him that he's shy of oil in the crankcase but that the little he's got is half raw gasoline. I clean out the case and make him invest in six or seven quarts of the best oil I've got in the place and then make him promise to add a fresh quart every time he thinks the gas mileage is too low.

Next I get my grease gun and prove to him that the fan bearin's starvin' for grease. This usually surprises him because he's one of those fellers who figure that all these engine accessories run on wind. Then I oil the generator bearings and the water pump shaft, and wind up by squirting oil over the valve stems.

This is one of the most important features of the job. How can any owner expect t' get good mileage with valves that stick open half the time? Cuts down valve friction, too, when you keep the stems well oiled. When you cut friction you save gas.

Of course I always go over the whole job, transmission, universals and all. But it's the little things that count. That's why I go so far as to see that the speedometer cable is well greased. If you're goin' to neglect these things you might as well drill a hole in the gas tank and let her drip.

Your Brother's Keeper.

On certain kinds of roads and under certain conditions it is a matter of common safety for drivers to keep safer distances apart, but one is frequently annoyed by having in his wake some driver who chooses to ignore this fact. If this is the case you can easily be your brother's keeper, and your own, too, by speeding up a little now and again so as to keep further ahead of him. Where the going is too treacherous to warrant this occasional speeding up then stop a moment and allow him to pass. You can then keep a safe distance behind him, and to your mutual benefit.

Done Every Day Here.

The news that radio waves are suspected of being the cause of mysterious stalling of auto engines in a French town is interesting, but not significant. Less wonderful things than radio waves do it every day.

Want It Stolen?

The following suggestions are given for the benefit of those who would like to get rid of their cars, and in the hope that the majority who want to keep them will get the drift of it:

Park the car in the same place every day, and leave it exactly the same length of time.

Never look back at the car after having parked it.

Forget to lock it, and leave the door ajar.

Find lonely places to leave it.

Have no identification marks on it.

Park it on a hill, where they won't even have to crank the engine.

Why We Bought
the Most Car in the World for the Money

Overland owners are satisfied owners. They continually say so—by word of mouth and by letters. Thousands of letters on file, with dealers, at the branches and at the factory tell why Overland owners bought "the most car in the world for the money." Quotations from a very few of the St. Louisans' letters are given here.

"I do not think I shall ever tire of my present Overland car. It may be necessary to trade it in some day, but when I do, it will be another Overland. It is certainly the most automobile in the world for the money."
M. MATHIS,
3100 N. Broadway.

"It affords me great pleasure to report my experience with one of your Overland Touring cars which I have been driving daily for the last eighteen months, during which time I have spent little or nothing for repairs."
ANTON BAUR.
1320 S. Vandeventer.

"I have always driven and owned much larger cars, but after looking over the Overland, I bought one and I am sure that I will never be without one."
HARRY BOECKMAN,
2715 Franklin Av.

"I cannot say too much in praise of my Overland car. It is really a much better car than you claim for it in your advertising. It has given me 100% service, and a great many economical miles."
A. E. BURCH,
4380 Olive St.

"I think that the Overland is the best dollar for dollar value in the automobile market. It cannot be equaled at anything like the money."
B. COHEN,
5 Fraternal Bldg.

"My Overland car is all that can be desired. It is economical and sturdy. I take more pleasure in driving it than any car I ever owned."
WM. LYNCH,
1911 Hebert.

"The Overland car is the winner. I will never be without one. I cannot see how you make such a satisfactory car at the price."
C. L. SWARTZ,
Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

"My friends told me to buy an Overland. They told me it was the best car in the world, and I proved it to myself by buying one."
A. J. NUELLE,
R. F. D. 7,
Affton, Mo.

"I have just purchased my third Overland, and while the other two were very satisfactory and very economical, I feel that I have now bought the most automobile in the world for the money."
FRANK M. GROTT,
573-575 Arcade Bldg.

"My Overland car was certainly a good investment. I find that in performance it equals cars that cost several hundred dollars more, and has several features that you cannot get except in higher-priced machines."

BEN MILLER Wants YOUR HEAD

July 2, 1924.

Willys-Overland Co.,
Toledo,
Ohio.

Gentlemen:

In reply to your card asking if repairs made at your St. Louis Service Department were satisfactory I want to say that these repairs were of only minor importance and were, of course, all O. K.

Because you have sent me this inquiry I want to tell you, however, of my experience with my Overland Sedan. This is one of the two cars I own, the other being a larger car. I have owned the Overland Sedan for two years and use it every day down-town and on Sundays out in the country, on my Sunday driving taking any old road no matter what condition it is in.

I have always gotten good mileage and the up-keep is very low. My Overland does everything that I ask of it. It is a great automobile.

Thanking you for your interest in my car, I am

Yours very truly,

Ben Miller

P. S. You may be sure that whenever I buy another small car it will be an Overland.

SUPER HIGHWAYS TO MEET TRAFFIC NEEDS PROPOSED

Roadways for Fast and Slow Motor Vehicles a Feature of Plan Proposed for Detroit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, July 5.A super highway plan for Detroit, to provide for transportation in the suburban area as the city expands, is proposed by the Detroit Rapid Transit Commission. The commission would have the city buy rights of way, before values rise, for a series of streets wide enough to carry four rapid transit lines, two roadways for fas moving automobiles and two roadways for slow moving vehicles, such as trucks.

Of Interest to Auto Owners.

Of chief interest to motorists is the proposal that the two motor speedways in each street be so built as not to be subject to interruption by cross traffic. According to the Engineering News-Record, separation of through from cross traffic would be accomplished by elevating the two motor speedways as well as the four rapid transit tracks above the cross streets at half-mile intervals. Crosstown traffic would pass under the motor and rapid transit lines through archways which would provide for access to the rapid transit stations. Thus foot passengers would not have to cross the motor speedway.

The super-highway district would be divided into areas three miles square, or of about nine square miles, bounded on all four sides by super-highways. The super-highway system would not include the thoroughfares through the subdivisions of those areas surrounded by the super-highways themselves, but the plan considers it desirable that the intermediate section line roads located on the mile divisions be made 120 feet wide and the half-mile streets be 86 feet wide. If the mile streets were given a width of 120 feet, then it would be practicable, if traffic conditions warrant, to convert them into express motor traffic streets by elevating the express lanes over the half-mile cross streets, as would be done in the case of the super-highway.

Advantages of Plan.

The advantage of this plan, it is explained, lies in the fact that besides providing a right of way for wide streets it also provides space for rapid transit lines in the center of these new highways, which can be built at grade when they are required, thus avoiding the necessity of building either subways or elevated railways. The cost of such rapid transit lines at grade is estimted at $1,100,000 a mile, as against $5,500,000 for similar four-track subways. So five miles of surface rapid transit could be built for the same money that would be required for one mile of subway if the new streets did not provide this space for rapid transit lines.

Of course, within the city proper, rapid transit lines would have to be built as subways. The plan recognizes this fact and provides for the transition from 120-foot streets with four-track subways to a 204-foot super-highway near the outskirts of the present city.

CALIFORNIA, BEGINNING TO MAKE STEEL, DREAMS OF ITS OWN AUTO FACTORIES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.

AN INDUSTRIAL development that may eventually affect the automobile, industry is the start just made at producing steel in California by the Columbia Steel Corporation. Using coal and iron from Utah mines, the corporation is producing 300 tons of steel a day.

If a California steel industry can be built up with costs similar to those in Eastern and St. Louis steel centers, the Pacific Coast will be freed from high freight costs on steel, and large expansion of plants using steel, from foundries to automobile factories, will be possible.

WATER 25 CENTS PER GALLON ON ONE TRAIL

Tourists Encounter 127-Degree Weather in Mojave Desert—Burns Arms on Sides of Car.

A trail for most motorists to avoid is that running north from the Santa Fe Trail a few miles west of Needles, Cal., through Las Vegas, Nev., and Mesquite, Nev., according to a motorist who spent Sunday in St. Louis.

"We had grief almost the whole distance," he said. "We were out of luck in the Mohave Desert, for the temperatures soared unbelievably nigh. It was 127 in the shade when we hit Ludlow, Cal., and my wife burned her arm against the side of the car.

"Much of the going was very rough and taxing. Water was scarce. In fact, we had to pay 25 a gallon for it in several places, and in one place we could not get any.

"We made out all right coming east from Salt Lake City, the road through Devil's Slide, Evanston Laramie to Denver being very fair. The roads were good also from Denver to Kansas City. But I really believe the Missouri roads were as bad, if not worse, than those in Nevada."

THREE-CENT GASOLINE TAX IN EFFECT IN KENTUCKY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON(Ky., July 5.—A 3-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline has gone into effect in Kentucky, wholesalers and jobbers of gasoline have been notified. The law permits no exemptions. A 20 per cent penalty for failing to obey the act will be imposed.

NEW HIGHWAY TO OPEN CAROLINAS TO MIDDLE WEST

"Dixie A," From Cincinnati to Asheville and Florida to Save Them Hundreds of Miles Driving.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 5.—A new vacation land will be opened to motorists of Missouri and other Middle Western states as a result of the cutting of 600 to 900 miles from the distance to Asheville and the Carolina mountain region through a movement to establish "Dixie A" Highway to Florida and pave 24 miles of virtually impassable roads in Laurel, Knox and Rockcastle Counties in Kentucky. The same saving of mileage, of course, will obtain to Florida as compared with the present best route—that via Washington, D. C.

"There are several districts in Kentucky with stretches of good roads, but the whole State system is a patchwork with no connections across the state, north or south, or east or west," says N. Buckner, managing director of the Western North Carolina Motor Club.

"Road construction work must continue simultaneously from 57 centers. It is easily seen how little can be done with $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 a year for maintenance and construction at 57 points.

Big Annual Loss.

"Detour Kentucky" has been the routing instruction from the motor clubs and other touring agencies for several years with the result that Kentucky has lost $20,000,000 a year or more on a basis of last year's business alone, and this only from quick money spent by long distance travel in passing through western, middle and eastern sections of the state. And this, too, not taking into consideration the larger loss that comes through investments that would have come through these same motor travelers in business, industry, homes and agriculture.

"But how does this affect the question of the 24 bad miles in Kentucky from the Ohio River to Cumberland Gap? To the individual community, construction and improvement of the 24 miles of bad road was impossible. To a group of communities working together in perfect harmony, in

A WORTH-WHILE long distance motoring tour for July, August or September is from St. Louis to Council Bluffs, Ia., and then over the Custer Battlefield Highway to the Black Hills, and Custer State Park, Devil's Tower, Custer Battlefield and Glacier National Park. The distances from St. Louis are: To Council Bluffs, 500 miles; to Black Hills, 1182; to Devil's Tower, 1200; to Custer Battlefield, 1498; to Glacier Park, 1994 miles. Between a third and a half of the Custer Battlefield Highway, which begins at Omaha and Council Bluffs, is surfaced. The rest is dirt roads which are pretty well maintained, are marked for dangerous curves and have excellent grades. One can travel the entire distance to Glacier Park without crossing a mountain range. The motorist will average a town or city every 45 minutes at least, and seldom will need more than an extra gallon of water. One can go to Glacier Park and then south to include Yellowstone Park and on south to Denver, or can swing off the Custer Highway at Billings to Yellowstone Park.

The Black Hills, which are the highest mountains east of the Rockies and north of Texas, with Harney peak 7244 feet high, are of extraordinary ruggedness and beauty, with picturesque canyons and many caves, among these Crytal Cave with 1500 chambers. Wind Cave has over 100 miles of explored passages and more than 3000 rooms. Deadwood is in the very heart of the Black Hills gold fields and is redolent of memories of Calamity Jane, wild Bill, Preacher Smith and many an other hero and desperado of the gold days.

Between Sundance and Moorcroft one can take a short side trip to the Devil's Tower, a natural monument 1200 feet high that is unique among scenic features. It is a center of Indian lore and superstition. Originally a mountain rose above the plain that was the vent for a subterranean furnace. The vent filled with molten rock which gradually hardened. Then during the ages the softer outside of the mountain wore away, leaving the rock shaft towering above the prairie.

Then there is the battlefield where the Indians overwhelmed General Custer and his force and the Big Horn national forest near Sheridan, Wyo., which has peaks over 13,000 feet high and numerous glaciers and fishing streams that well repay a side trip.

HOW THE SUPERCHARGER ON WINNING INDIANAPOLIS RACING CAR OPERATES

The supercharger which enabled Joy Boyer, piloting a Deusenberg eight special to win the Indianapolis race, is a device for getting more fuel into the cylinders than the pistons can suck in through the carburetors. It is a fan device, whirling at several times engine speed and operating only after the engine revolutions pass a certain speed.

Some stock cars made in Europe have such superchargers, and the idea figured in the first American grand prize race. It also was used on Mercedes cars in the Indianapolis race a year ago.

Corum Is Leading Racing Drivers of This Country

WASHINGTON, July 5.—"There is a healthy rivalry among drivers for the highest number of championship points in A. A. A. sanctioned race meets, and it should be noted by motorists, that, in addition to skill, such points depend upon safe and clean driving. Foul play in driving disqualifies a contestant.

"A list of championship points to July3 shows Corum in first place with 555 to his credit. Cooper, with 535 points, is a close second, while Fengler is third with 500. Murphy has 295 points; Hartz, 280; Wonderlich, 250, and Hill, 170. Milton has 50, Vail, 32; Boyer, 10, and Durant, 5. But the season is young and the situation may be quite different when other important events have been run off, including the Pike's Peak climb, and Altoona, Pa., 250-mile race, both on Sept. 1."

LARGE SAVING OF TIME AND MONEY ON CROSS-STATE ROUTE PREDICTED

Short Mileage Airline Highway from St. Louis to Kansas City to Save 40 Miles and Much Time as Compared With Other Routes.

BY B. H. PIEPMEIER,
Chief Engineer of the Missouri State Highway Department.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—As a direct, short mileage line connecting the largest two cities of the State, State Highway No. 2 is destined to become the main cross-State highway and the heaviest traveled road in the system. Because of this anticipated large volume of traffic, the location of this trunk highway has been a matter of much study and investigation in order to insure economy and best operating conditions for traffic.

A considerable saving in distance has been gained by choosing a direct route and serving tributary communities with spurs or feeders. This directness of route reduces the traveled distance, end to end, 246 miles—a saving of nearly 40 miles over the nearest competing route. Also this highway is located so as to pass a little to one side of the towns along it and thereby save the "slow downs"

The Phaeton

The Chrysler's 3-inch motor is so efficient in its power development that it gives a high-gear speed range of 2 to over 70 miles per hour, combined with gasoline economy safely over 20 miles to the gallon. That's the result of balance, elimination of friction, utilization of fuel, perfect carburetion and correctly applied thermodynamics—the result, in a word, of scientific engineering.

NEED RETURN PERMIT TO MOTOR IN CANADA

American Tourists Will Get Into Real Trouble if They Fail to Heed New Rule.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5.—The new customs regulation that American motorists entering Canada must get permits to return, is necessary in handling motor traffic over the border, and protests are not justified, according to the Automobile Club of Buffalo. Motorists planning to tour in Canada should govern themselves accordingly or find themselves in a maze of troubles.

The club has issued the following statement regarding the regulation:

"Reciprocal arrangements for touring privileges on a 30-day basis without bonding and without license fee, was the result of more than 15 years of consistent endeavor by the organized car owners of Canada and the United States. The requirement of filling out a permit form at the border was instituted when the reciprocal arrangement took effect.

"One of the new laws provides that the certificate of registration must accompany the car at all times, and that the driver must be prepared to present the certificate of registration upon request of the proper authorities. It is obvious, therefore, that this provision alone would influence a change in customs regulations that would enable the motorist to comply with the law."

NEW HIGHWAY TO OPEN CAROLINAS TO MIDDLE WEST

perfect co-operation of effort, the 24-mile barrier began to shrink in importance.

Vast Income From Tourists.

"The Board of Governors of the Asheville Western North Carolina Motor Club in Asheville, Western North Carolina, a great motor travel center like Florida, recognized the loss the "Land of the Sky" was sustaining by reason of the widely disseminated "Detour Kentucky" and the large extra mileage required to reach there. The investigation conducted by its officers developed the extraordinary data that approximately 220,000 cars rolled into Florida in the 1922 and 1923 season, having grown from 57,000 cars four years before. Estimates to June indicate 300,000 cars in Florida during the season of 1923-1924, and that approximately 65 per cent of them are from the Middle West and states immediately adjoining.

They travel four people to the car, average 125 miles a day and spend an average of about $30 a day. It is said that Ohio and Michigan send more cars to Florida resorts than any other states with Illinois and New York close to third position.

The Western Carolina people held up to the leading civic clubs, bankers and business men this tremendous loss in business to them because of the "detour Kentucky" propaganda, which also meant pass up the Land of the Sky, too.

In the triangle from Cincinnati to Detroit and Cleveland on the one hand, a territory which the Land of the Sky section had been cultivating for several years, and which promised rich reward in return for the effort to provide an open short route for Middle Westerners to their favorite vacation haunts means a saving of an average of $300 a car on the round trip, in addition to an average of about 10 days. Figuring the modest sum of 20c a mile a day of from 600 to 900 miles each day, or 1200 to 1800 miles saved round trip, the saving to the motor travelers, estimating say 70,000 cars from the Middle West territory, will reach the rather startling total of more than $2,500,000.

This short scenic highway will save an average of 900 miles each way from the Chicago district and around 600 miles each way to the Ohio and Michigan motor traveler to Western North Carolina and Florida resorts over the present eastern road through Washington. A saving of from 1200 to 1800 miles on the vacation round trip, it is estimated, will automatically increase number of cars by 25 per cent.

This road will permit Middle Westerners and many Northern motorists to visit Cincinnati and its famous zoo and scenic hill and river drives, the Blugrass region of Kentucky, Berea and Boone Gap made famous by the great pioneer of early days; the historic Cumberland Gap at the corner of three states, Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee, where was fought a sanguinary battle between the States, and where passed Daniel Boone in his pilgrimage from North Carolina to Kentucky; the Great Smoky Mountains of East Tennessee and the beautiful "Land of the Sky" in the "Heart of the Blue Ridge" Mountains of Western North Carolina, with its Chimney Rock and Broad River Gorge known as the "Grand Canyon of the East," the Pisgah National Forest and Game Preserve with its Government maintained scenic motor highways, and a trip over the Mount Mitchell motor road to the Top of Eastern America, 6711 feet high, the view from which covers 62 other peaks more than a mile high.

Road Conditions
Where to Go and How

THE following summary of routes and road conditions has been prepared by the Automobile Editor and George Drummond, manager of the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri With its aid, motorists can easily plan their vacation and week-end tours as well as business trips

Generally speaking, roads west of the Mississippi River are dirt and travelable only in dry weather. Their condition changes with the weather. A road good today may be bad after rain, and a road poor when wet may be good when dry. To get the latest bulletins, call at the Automobile Club of Missouri, 4228 Lindell boulevard, or phone it at Lindell 8220, just before starting a trip.

East of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio River, highways are hard surfaced to the Atlantic Coast and Canada. It is wise, however, to get the latest news about detours and road construction so as to insure a comfortable trip.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY ROADS.

LEMAY FERRY ROAD — Open; good condition to Meramec River. Heavy fill south of Meramec for next mile.

TELEGRAPH ROAD—Good.

GRAVOIS ROAD—Open; concrete.

MANCHESTER ROAD—Open to Big Bend road. Closed from this point to North and South road. Open to Melrose road—turn south to Allenton, west to Pacific and Manchester road.

CLAYTON ROAD—Open. Rough in spots to North and South road; good to Denny. Rough rest of way.

OLIVE STREET ROAD—Concrete to Denny. Good from Denny to Missouri River except rough in spots near Chesterfield.

ST. CHARLES ROAD—Concrete; good.

FLORISSANT ROAD—Open; good.

NEW HALL'S FERRY ROAD—Good; open all the way.

BIG BEND ROAD—Open; good.

NORTH AND SOUTH ROAD—Fair.

PRICE ROAD—Fair.

DENNY ROAD—Open; good.

KEHR'S MILL ROAD—Fair.

EATHERTON ROAD—Fair.

BELLEFONTAINE ROAD—Open; good.

ANTIRE ROAD—Good as a whole; rough in spots.

NORTH MISSOURI.

St. Louis to Hannibal (130 miles)—Easton avenue and St. Charles road to St. Charles, west on State Highway No. 9 to marked detour at St. Peters; back onto concrete to marked detour at O'Fallon to Flint Hill. Follow No. 9 (gravel road) through Troy and Auburn to Eolia, then gravel and dirt through Bowling Green to Frankfort, and gravel to New London and Hannibal.

To Hannibal via Louisiana—North from Eolia on gravel over the Red Ball Train to Louisiana and then via New London.

Both options passable in all weather, save two detours mentioned and short dirt stretches between Eolia and Frankfort.

To Macon (188.5 miles) via Moberly—From St. Charles go west on Road No. 2 to marked detour at St. Peters, back to concrete and take marked detour at O'Fallon through Flint Hill to Wentzville. Then concrete to Foristell and thence dirt and gravel in sections to High Hill, where leave No. 2 and follow No. 45 through Montgomery City to Wellville, then No. 22 through Mexico and Centralia to Renick, then north on No. 7 through Moberly to Macon. Dirt road from High Hill to Macon, but good in dry weather.

To Chillicothe (248 miles)—Take route to Macon, then due west on No. 8 through Brookfield and Meadsville. Dirt, good when dry.

To Maryville (350 miles)—From Chillicothe go northwest on the "O. St. L." trail through Gallatin, Pattonsburg, Albany and Stanbury. Dirt, good when dry.

TO KANSAS CITY.

Via Jefferson City—Clayton road, North and South road, Manchester road to Melrock road, then detour south to Allenton and go west to Pacific and back into Manchester road a mile west of Gray's Summit. Go west on No. 12 through Jeffriesburg, Leslie, Drake, Mt. Sterling, Linn and Jefferson City (140 miles). Gravel except six miles of dirt west of Mt. Sterling. Practicable going to Jefferson City in any weather. From Jefferson City follow No. 12 through California, Tipton, Sedalia, Warrensburg and Lone Jack to Kansas City (321 miles).

Via Fulton—Follow Route No. 2 west from St. Charles through Wentzville, Warrenton, Columbia (146), Boonville (174), Marshall (213) and Higginsville to Kansas City (312 miles).

Via Moberly—West from St. Charles to High Hill (82 miles), then No. 22 to Montgomery City (91), Mexico (124), Centralia (139), Moberly (170), then No. 10 to Keytesville, Brunswick, Carrolton (235), Excelsior Springs (285), to Kansas City (316).

Fourth option—St. Charles to Fulton, then No. 15 to Jefferson City and on via California and Tipton (329 miles).

SOUTHWEST MISSOURI.

To Rolla, Springfield and Joplin—Same route as to Jefferson City via Manchester, but swing off into Highway No. 14 at Union to St. Clair, Sullivan, Cuba and St. James to Rolla (124), south from Rolla on No. 7 through Licking and Houston to Cabool; west on No. 16 through Mountain Grove and Seymour to Springfield (272); west on No. 38 through Mount Vernon and Sarcoxie to Joplin (356). Gravel to St. Clair, gravel and dirt in sections to Rolla. Then gravel to Houston, except a dirt fill at Edgar Springs, then dirt to Cabool and gravel to Springfield. Then good chat road to Joplin.

Option from Rolla to Springfield via Jerome, Dixon, Waynesville, Richland and Lebanon and Buffalo. About the same kind of road as other route.

Option from Springfield to Joplin—Follow river road No. 58, on good chat through Mount Vernon, Sarcoxie, Carthage and Webb City.

Hollister and Lake Taneycomo Region—Go south from Springfield on No. 3 through Ozark and Bengal to Hollister (about 70 miles); good gravel road.

Monett—Southwest for 50 miles on good gravel from Springfield.

Neosho—South from Joplin 20 miles on No. 1 over gravel road.

A vacation tour or motor camping trip down this route through and into the Ozarks is entirely practicable. The roads have been greatly improved within the last year, and one can make the trip without damaging car or tires as in the past. This route takes one into the heart of the Ozark playground.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI.

To Poplar Bluff—Take Lemay Ferry road through Maxville, Hillsboro, De Soto (44 miles), Flat River (70), Farmington (80), Fredericktown (96), Coldwater, Greenville (129) and Williamsville to Poplar Bluff (160). Follow Route No. 9 from De Soto to Fredericktown and No. 23 the rest of the way. Rock and gravel road all the way, except a mile of dirt fill just south of Meramec River and a few minor dirt stretches between Fredericktown and Williamsville. It can be made in any kind of weather.

To Arcadia—Lemay Ferry road to Flat River, then through Bismarck, Iron Mountain and Ironton to Arcadia (100 miles).

To Cape Girardeau—For some time to come the best way is by Illinois roads and ferry. Cross Free Bridge to Tenth street in East St. Louis, to State street, right to 43d street, right 2 blocks, left on Park drive to Edgemont, right on West Main street to Belleville. Through public square and follow Route No. 15 through Mascoutah, Okawville to Ashley, then south on No. 2 through Duquoin and Carbondale to Anna, then west and south on gravel road to the ferry (140 miles). All-weather route.

Second option—Same route as above to Belleville, then follow red and yellow markers south through Smithton, Hecker, Red Bud, Ruma, Evansville and Chester to another ferry, crossing river to Perryville and then south on No. 25 to Jackson and Cape Girardeau (126 miles); good when dry.

Third option—Same route as to Poplar Bluff to Farmington, where swing on dirt road to Ste. Genevieve, Perryville and Jackson to the Cape (158 miles); impassable beyond Farmington in wet weather.

To Sikeston—Illinois route to Cape Girardeau, then south on No. 9 through Morley.

To Charleston—Same route as above to Sikeston, then east on No. 16; hard-surfaced roads from the Cape.

To New Madrid—South from Sikeston on No. 9.

To Caruthersville—Follow No. 9 from New Madrid through Portageville and Hayti.

From Sikeston to New Madrid is gravel. Dirt beyond New Madrid to Caruthersville.

ILLINOIS.

To Belleville—Cross bridge to East St. Louis, then to State street—brick and part concrete to Forty-third street—turn to the right two blocks—to Park Drive, which is all good, excepting a quarter mile, and connects at Edgemont with concrete road to Belleville. Direct route over State street is now in poor condition.

To Collinsville—National Old Trail, concrete; good except at East St. Louis city limits and Collinsville Hill. Five-mile marked detour, concrete, cinders and one mile of dirt.

To Alton—Brick; good.

To Edwardsville—Via Granite City from Mitchell; open; good.

Collinsville to Edwardsville—Concrete; open; good.

To Chautauqua—St. Charles Rock road to St. Charles, Mo.; at end of bridge over Missouri turn right in Second street past car shops, then take Boshertown road to Boshertown, Orchard Farm and West Grafton (about 34 miles); ferry from West Grafton runs hourly during daylight. At Grafton swing right and on to Chautauqua. Not a wet-weather trip because of dirt road beyond Orchard Farm.

TO CHICAGO.

Via Marshall, as follows: Free Bridge into Tenth street, East St. Louis, at end of street job 100 feet left, then right into Ninth street, and follow it into Collinsville road and Route No. 11: Highland (35 miles), Greenville (54), Vandalia (75), Effingham (107), to Marshall, where swing left into No. 1 through Paris (173), Danville (209), Watseka (258), Momence (290) and Steger, into and through Chicago Heights, to 147th street, swinging left and following No. 11 into Western avenue, then right into Garfield avenue, which is Fifty-fifth street, left into Michigan avenue and downtown (343 miles).

Via Peoria—At Ninth street and Salisbury, St. Louis, cross McKinley Bridge onto Broadway in Venice, to Madison avenue, following No. 4 markers through Granite City to Mitchell (13 miles); turn right on concrete to Edwardsville (23 miles), Staunton (40), and Carlinville (62) to Springfield, which is 108 miles from St. Louis, then Route No. 24 from Mason City (144), and Peoria (180 miles from St. Louis); then No. 29 to Bureau, then No. 7 through La Salle, which is 233 miles from St. Louis; Ottawa (269), and Joliet (317), where Route No. 4 is taken to Justice Park and right in Kean avenue to Ninety-fifth street, left into Western avenue, left to Garfield avenue, right to Michigan boulevard (366).

Via Bloomington — Same route to Springfield (108 miles), as if going via Peoria. At Springfield take No. 24 and temporary No. 4 for 11.8 miles, then right at large detour sign to Williamsville (124), then north on No. 4 through Lincoln (140), Bloomington (172), Pontiac (208), Joliet (265), Justice Park (287), and into downtown Chicago over the same route as via Peoria (305 miles, including detours).

To Cairo—Same route as through Ashley and Carbondale to Cape Girardeau (listed under Southeast Missouri), except continue South on No. 2 from Anna to Cairo (157 miles); good all way.

To Fairfield—Same route as to Cairo, except at Ashley continue on No. 15 through Mount Vernon and to end of concrete at Fairfield (100 miles).

IOWA.

Via the Lincoln Trail—Take Chicago route through Springfield to Peoria, where go north on No. 29 to end of concrete north of Bureau. Then follow marked gravel detour to Princeton, then west on concrete on No. 7 through Sheffield and Geneseo to Rock Island, where cross the Mississippi River on bridge to Davenport, Ia., then north on gravel to De Witt and the trail (348 miles).

To Cedar Rapids (392 miles)—West on Lincoln Highway from De Witt through Wheatland dirt beyond De Witt; partly under construction, detours good.

To Keokuk — Take Missouri route to Hannibal, where cross river and go on Mississippi Scenic Highway to Quincy (150 miles) then 52 miles north on Scenic Highway and recross river at Keokuk (202); gravel to Quincy; dirt thence to Keokuk.

To Council Bluffs (500 miles)—Take Missouri route to Maryville via Moberly, Macon and Chillicothe, and from Maryville follow the "O. St. L." Highway. Dirt route; good when dry.

Option to Council Bluffs—North from Macon, Mo., on No. 7 through Kirksville, Mo. (225 miles), and Lancaster to Ottumwa, Ia. (290), then west on Iowa Route No. 8 through Chariton (347), Osceola, Creston (403), Red Oak and Glenwood to Council Bluffs; dirt roads; good when dry.

To Des Moines—North from Macon, Mo., as above, to Ottumwa, then north to Oskaloosa, west to Knoxville and northwest to Des Moines (393); mostly dirt; good when dry.

Option to Des Moines—Illinois route through Springfield and Peoria to Davenport, Ia., as above, then follow Iowa No. 7 through Iowa City, Marengo and Newton to Des Moines (420); dirt most of way beyond Davenport.

WISCONSIN.

There are several routes to Wisconsin. One may use any of the options to Chicago, then follow concrete to Milwaukee along Lake Michigan and concrete to Fond du Lac, Oshkosh and Appleton and to Green Bay, or direct along the Lake Michigan shore concrete to Green Bay.

Most popular, however, is a route following the Chicago road through Springfield and Peoria to La Salle, Ill. (233 miles), then north on No. 2 (gravel)—to Mendota, then north on gravel and dirt marked "Temporary No. 2" to Franklin Grove, west on Lincoln Highway concrete to Dixon, northeast on gravel and dirt through Oregon to Rockford, then county concrete road to Beloit and north on Wisconsin No. 13 concrete to Evansville, then good gravel to Madison (291 miles). At Madison one can pick up good roads in any direction. A popular run is straight up No. 10 to Merrill and then over No. 63 to Rhinelander (599) and the lakes region.

To Kilbourn and The Dells—Follow No. 12 from Madison through Sioux City and Barabou to Kilbourn (455).

MINNESOTA.

St. St. Paul and Minneapolis—Same route as to Madison, Wis., then No. 12 through Sauk City, Baraboo, Kilbourn, Mauston, New Lisbon, Tomah, Black River Falls, August, Eau Claire, Baldwin, and Hudson to St. Paul (659).

Option—Leave Wisconsin Highway No. 12 at Baraboo and follow No. 33 through Reedsburg, Union Center and Cashton to La Crosse. Cross the Mississippi River and go north on Minnesota No. 3 to Winona, west on No. 7 to Rochester and north to St. Paul. This is the more scenic way. The roads are good on either route.

MICHIGAN.

To Grand Haven, Muskegon, Ludington, Traverse City, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Mackinaw City. Any route to Chicago, then Dunes highway to Michigan City and north over the West Michigan pike. Good roads all the way for 785 miles from St. Louis; mostly hard-surfaced.

To Detroit—Chicago route through Marshall and Danville, Ill., to Steger, then east to Michigan City, where take Michigan Route 11 through Benton Harbor, then No. 17 through Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Jackson and Ann Arbor to Detroit (604 miles). Hard surfaced road.

Option to Detroit — Straight through Marshall, Terre Haute, Indianapolis and over Route No. 3 to Dayton, O., then north through Piqua, Lima, Findley and Toledo (505) to Detroit (569). More St. Louisans use this route than the one through Michigan.

To Grand Rapids—Leave West Michigan pike at Saugatuck and go east on No. 51. No. 54 leads north from Grand Rapids into the Michigan fishing country. It is reported in good condition.

OHIO.

To Cleveland via Columbus—Through Collinsville, Marshall, Terre Haute, Indianapolis, Dayton, Brandt and Springfield, O. (380) to Columbus (424), then north on the "C. C. C." highway through Loudenville, Mount Vernon, Ashland, Wooster and Medina to Cleveland (580). Hard-surfaced road all the way.

INDIANA.

To Indianapolis—Chicago route through Marshall to Indiana line, then Indiana No. 3 through Terre Haute, Brazil and Putnamville (240 miles). Hard road.

To Vincennes—Same as above to Terre Haute, then south; good roads (235 miles).

To French Lick—Same as Indianapolis route to Putnamville, where swing south through Spencer, Bloomington and Mitchell to Paoli, west to West Baden and on to French Lick (about 290 miles).

KENTUCKY.

To Louisville—Direct to Indianapolis, then south on No. 1 through Franklin, Columbus, Scottsburg and into Louisville (about 339 miles). Good roads. Detours good.

Roads through the Kentucky bluegrass region are generally good. Roads to the south have some good stretches, but are generally very rough.

TENNESSEE.

To Memphis—Follow Illinois route to Cape Girardeau, Mo. (listed under Southwest Missouri); then south through Sikeston, New Madrid, Mo.; Blytheville, Ark.; Osceola, Marion to Memphis. (About 336 miles.) Sixty miles dirt between New Madrid and Osceola; rest is concrete and gravel.

Nashville—To Belleville, Mount Vernon and Fairfield to Mt. Carmel. Cross Wabash River to Princeton, Ind., and on to Evansville. Cross the Ohio to Henderson and south through Madisonville and Hopkinsville to Nashville. Concrete to Fairfield, three detours to Mt. Carmel, gravel to Henderson, rock and gravel to Nashville, then dirt to Hopkinsville. Not to be tried in wet weather.

Option—Old National trail to Marshall, Ill., and Terre Haute, then south to Vincennes, Princeton and rest of way same route. Dirt Henderson to Hopkinsville.

EASTERN POINTS.

To New York City—National Old Trails through Marshall, Indianapolis, Columbus, O.; Zanesville, Wheeling, W. Va.; Uniontown, Hagerstown, Md.; Chambersburg, Gettysburg, Philadelphia and New Brunswick, N. J. Hard road (1031 miles).

To Buffalo—National Old Trail to Columbus, O., north to Cleveland and along Lake Erie to Buffalo. Hard road. (805 miles).

To Toronto—Route noted under Michigan to Detroit, then into Canada and over rough rock road to Toronto. (900 miles). Also via Buffalo.

To Thousand Islands—To Buffalo, as above, then Rochester, Oswego, Pulaski, Watertown to Clayton. Good roads. (About 1000 miles.)

To Adirondacks, Lake George and Lake Champlain—To Buffalo and east through Rochester, Syracuse and Utica to Schenectady, then north via Balston Spa on hard road to Lake George and on into Adirondacks and to Plattsburg (1300 miles). Or from Lake George to Ticonderoga and north through Port Henry along the shore of Lake Champlain to Plattsburg and Rouse's Point, then south in Vermont through Burlington and Rutland.

'STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN' BILL FOR MOTORISTS IN ARKANSAS PASSES HOUSE

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 5.—A bill requiring the driver of any motor vehicle to "stop, look and listen" before crossing any railroad track in the State, was passed in the House of Representatives Friday, by a vote of 51 to 4. A fine of $10 is imposed for violation of the act, $7 of which goes to the common school fund of the State and $3 to the county school fund of the county in which the violation occurs.

The bill, written by Representative Jones of Clark County, says: "Any owner or driver or any person who operates any automobile, truck or motorcycle shall stop before crossing any passenger or freight-carrying railroad. Said owner or operator of any gas or motor vehicle shall stop not nearer than 15 feet from said railroad crossing when looking for an approaching train."

LARGE SAVING OF TIME AND MONEY ON AIRLINE ROUTE

that traffic is ordinarily subjected to in passing along main streets. This will permit the motorist to maintain a uniform speed throughout his journey.

Big Time Saver.

The shortened distance will mean a saving in time of at least one hour and 20 minutes for each person traveling the through distance. It also will mean a saving in first cost of construction and annual cost of maintenance. It is estimated that the saving in first cost of construction, due to the decreased mileage, will be $1,360,000. This does not cover the entire saving resulting from the 40 miles decrease in road mileage. There also is to be considered the saving in maintenance, reduction in sinking fund payments and a saving in total cost of operation of motor vehicles using the road.

The Money Saving.

As these letter expenses occur every year, it is necessary to state the entire economy of the shorter route in terms of annual saving, thus:

ROADWAY.
Interest saved $1,360,000 at 4½ per cent)	$ 61,200
Maintenance saved (40x$250)	10,000
Sinking fund payment (50 per cent of investment in 25 years)	27,200
	$ 98,400
OPERATION OF VEHICLES. (1000 ton-miles per day at 10c per mile—$100).
40 miles at $100 for 365 days	$1,460,000
Total annual savings	$1,558,400

A Ford touring car with three passengers traveling a mile produces a ton-mile of transportation—heavier cars and trucks in proportion to their gross weight. The ton-mileage assumed is a very conservative figure for this through route and will likely be exceeded in a few years time. It is thus seen that the total annual savings will exceed $1,500,000 and will increase as the traffic increases.

This highway will serve directly or by means of short feeders the following counties and population.

Counties Served	Population	Number of Cars
Jackson	367,846	70,803
Lafayette	39,006	5,073
Johnson	24,899	4,069
Saline	28,826	4,885
Pettis	33,813	5,731
Cooper	19,308	2,512
Howard	13,997	2,093
Boone	29,673	4,201
Callaway	23,007	2,746
Montgomery	15,233	2,068
Warren	8,490	1,265
St. Charles	22,828	3,541
St. Louis	100,737	20,818
St. Louis (City)	772,897	102,340
	1,500,359	232,145

Population of State, 3,404,055.
Total cars in State, 476,600.

It should be noted that 44 per cent of the State's population is tributary to this trunk line and that this population embraces 49 per cent of the registered motor vehicle owners.

Construction Progress.

The improvement of this highway has been carried on continuously since the first road bonds were sold. There have been committed to contract 46 projects totaling 196 miles and costing $4,559,767. This is 85.5 per lent of the entire mileage subjeit to improvement. Ninety-four miles of this represents grading projects and 102 miles hard surfacing projects either completed or under contract on June 1, 1924.

New projects are being placed under contract as rapidly as right of way can be secured and plans prepared. Present plans are to place the entire mileage under contract for grading and bridging before next winter.

Short Route Benefits.

The benefits that will follow completion of this highway, though many, fall within two classes—the benefits to the user of the road and the benefits to the contiguous properties and communities along the road.

The user will have his operating cost cut 2½ cents per ton-mile, his traveling time reduced one hour and 20 minutes on a through trip and he will have the advantage of a dependable, all-weather, 365-day-in-the-year road.

The farmer can get his livestock and produce to the larger markets at the most favorable time without delay and inconvenience.

The communities along the route will feel the increased demand of the tourists for supplies and accommodations. Business will take on new life and property values will respond by taking an upward trend. Many instances might be cited in support of these general statements, however. The experience of Wentzville is typical and will suffice for the present.

Property Values Rise.

The following extract from a letter of Howard Ellis, banker at New Florence, gives the data:

"I have taken occasion to personally interview land owners at Wentzville and further confirmed their statements from banks and other business men; Walter Schmidt owned a small tract of ground costing about $700. Since the concrete highway has been opened, he has refused $2000. Mr. W. S. Heady purchased a lot for $1400, sold off a building for $300 and has refused $2000 for the lot. Harry Theiman owned a cottage hotel, which was destroyed by fire. Due to the road he has erected a three-story modern hotel at a cost of some $15,000. The number of new residences being constructed is greater than for a number of years."

Counter Shaft Gear: Drop-forged, chrome nickel steel, double heat-treated. Not only is the construction unusually heavy, but the gear is mounted on two special roller bearings. This practice—contrary to the cheaper practice of using simply a case-hardened gear of low-carbon steel and mounting it on plain bushings—eliminates the trouble and cost of replacement so common with the other design.

Hupmobile Shows You How To Get The Facts That Count

Before you lay down hard-earned money for an automobile—a Hupmobile or any other—possess yourself of vital facts.

For the first time in motor car annals, Hupmobile has shown the way to get at facts that count.

Facts that will tell you quickly and clearly why one car is better than another—why fair externals may conceal inherent weaknesses—why many things are of less importance than processes of manufacture—why a couple of hundred dollars more is not extravagance but a necessary expenditure.

Step into the Hupmobile salesroom and ask to see the Parts Display.

On these boards, you will find displayed all the principal parts of the Hupmobile. Each is ticketed with a card that tells plainly and concisely in black type how it is made and what it is made of.

Each card also describes in red type the lesser materials and processes often used for similar parts in other cars. Come in and see this object lesson in invisible value and invisible costs.

Honestly Built, Honestly Priced, Honestly Sold

If an automobile dealer offers you more than you, yourself, would pay for the car you tender in trade—

If the allowance he makes for your old car is greater than the price at which other similar cars are advertised for sale in the "used car" sections of your local papers—

Look for the hidden trading margin in the new car he sells.

Stutz prices conceal no abnormal trading margins to baffle the buyer seeking an exorbitant allowance for his old car.

Stutz cars are honestly built, honestly priced and honestly sold, enabling the dealer to give you all your old car is worth and full value in your new car, too.

Fourteen years devoted to honest merchandising have given the Stutz enviable prestige, while natural growth has enabled the Stutz company now to offer Stutz cars—genuine Stutz cars—at lower prices than ever before.

EVIEW OF AUTO PRODUCTION AND SELLING TRENDS

$230,000,000 Sales for Principal Makes in May —Drop in Factory Schedules—Used Car Situation

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, July 5.—The general trend of the new designs in automobiles is not a secret. At least six, and possibly nine, manufacturers are prepared to put out "straight eight" models, and there is evidence that these will be equipped in a good many cases with balloon tires and improved brakes of various mechanical construction as standard equipment.

It is understood that the mechanical difficulties with some of the "straight eights" at first have been overcome. One of these was the difficulty of adequate carburetion. Until readjustment of manifolds and other refinements, the two end cylinders in some cases were "starved" of gas while the middle six cylinders were being given a full supply.

This had been noticed earlier in the racing models, on some of which the difficulty was met by adding carburetors for each cylinder or pair of cylinders.

Sales of Cars Increase.

The trend toward the small bore, high compression cylinders in the racing models is rapidly affecting the stock cars. This tendency has been increased by tests made by the Government Bureau of Standards which proved beyond question that the thermal efficiency of a gasoline engine could be increased materially by pushing up the compression ratio. The tests also prove, however, that the higher compression result is an added tendency to pre-ignition and detonation, necessitating use of special fuels. Aviation engine tests have been of great assistance in establishing these facts.

The warmer weather recently has been an undoubted stimulus to sales, which showed a marked increase last month. Sales aggregated between $230,750,000 and $231,000,000 for the principal makes, a drop of less than 5 per cent, as compared with June, 1923.

Production continued to decline, showing a fall of over 15 per cent as compared with the previous month and about 20 per cent from the level of the corresponding month of last year. The general price trend was upward.

Used Car Situation.

The normal ratio between cars in stock and cars moving to consumers has not yet been attained, but is rapidly approaching a safer level.

The manufacturers of parts have felt the recession in production perhaps more severely than any one automobile company, since the majority of them sell to more than one manufacturer. Truck manufacturers and sales have not suffered to the same extent as those of automobiles and the demand for commercial vehicles continues excellent.

Used cars on hand are about 11 per cent more numerous than in May and this itself is an indication of greater sales activity, since the majority of these machines were taken in as part payment on new cars.

It takes a brave man to compete with Henry Ford, but every once in a while someone tries it. Manufacturers are watching closely the activities of a Wisconsin company which has been organized to sell a car at $295. The trade is inclined to say "Oh, just another," but is not relaxing vigilance since every man in the business is interested to know if anyone can break in on the Ford business.

Heretofore competitors have either gone out of business or turned to higher prices which placed them outside the Ford field. This was the case with the Gray Motor Co. and the Star car brought out by Durant. The policy of higher prices by these companies is asserted to have brought considerable success as the trade reports each is satisfied with the business being done at the higher range.

The new competitor of the Ford, to be made by the Schuler Motor Car Co., it is announced will have a 19-horsepower motor, electric lights and starter and three speed transmission.

LICENSE FEE AN INVESTMENT IN GOOD ROADS, NOT A TAX

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—Money paid to the State by automobile owners as an annual registration fee is not a tax, according to officials of the State Highway Department, but is an investment in good roads.

Officials of the highway department said some protest had arisen over the proposal in the road initiative petitions for a 50 per cent increase in State automobile registration fees. Many owners of automobiles think of the money they spend to obtain their 1924 license plates as a tax or expense.

This is a wrong idea, according to the officials. Under the present road program, more than 80 per cent of the automobile license money paid to the State is an investment in hard-furcased, improved roads, the benefit of which will be available for the remainder of the owner's life, if he continues to live in this State.

benefits to the user of the road and the benefits to the contiguous properties and communities along the road.

The user will have his operating cost cut 2½ cents per ton-mile, his traveling time reduced one hour and 20 minutes on a through trip, and he will have the advantage of a dependable, all-weather, 365-day-in-the-year road.

The farmer can get his livestock and produce to the larger markets at the most favorable time without delay and inconvenience.

The communities along the route will feel the increased demand of the tourists for supplies and accommodations. Business will take on new life and property values will respond by taking an upward trend. Many instances might be cited in support of these general statements, however. The experience of Wentzville is typical and will suffice for the present.

Property Values Rise.

The following extract from a letter of Howard Ellis, banker at New Florence, gives the data:

"I have taken occasion to personally interview land owners at Wentzville and further confirmed their statements from banks and other business men; Walter Schmidt owned a small tract of ground costing about $700. Since the concrete highway has been opened, he has refused $2800. Mr. W. S. Heady purchased a lot for $1400, sold off a building for $200 and has refused $3000 for the lot. Harry Theiman owned a cottage hotel, which was destroyed by fire. Due to the road he has erected a three-story modern hotel at a cost of some $15,000. The number of new residences being constructed is greater than for a number of years."

REVIEW OF AUTO PRODUCTION AND SELLING TRENDS

$230,000,000 Sales for Principal Makes in May —Drop in Factory Schedules—Used Car Situation

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, July 5.—The general trend of the new designs in automobiles is not a secret. At least six, and possibly nine, manufacturers are prepared to put out "straight eight" models, and there is evidence that these will be equipped in a good many cases with balloon tires and improved brakes of various mechanical construction as standard equipment.

It is understood that the mechanical difficulties with some of the "straight eights" at first have been overcome. One of these was the difficulty of adequate carburetion. Until readjustment of manifolds and other refinements, the two end cylinders in some cases were "starved" of gas while the middle six cylinders were being given a full supply.

This had been noticed earlier in the racing models, on some of which the difficulty was met by adding carburetors for each cylinder or pair of cylinders.

The trend toward the small bore, high compression cylinders in the racing models is rapidly affecting the stock cars. This tendency has been increased by tests made by the Government Bureau of Standards which proved beyond question that the thermal efficiency of a gasoline engine could be increased materially by pushing up the compression ratio. LICENSE FEE AN INVESTMENT IN GOOD ROADS, NOT A TAX

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—Money paid to the State by automobile owners as an annual registration fee is not a tax, according to officials of the State Highway Department, but is an investment in good roads.

Officials of the highway department said some protest had arisen over the proposal in the road initiative petitions for a 50 per cent increase in State automobile registration fees. Many owners of automobiles think of the money they spend to obtain their 1924 license plates as a tax or expense.

This is a wrong idea, according to the officials. Under the present road program, more than 80 per cent of the automobile license money paid to the State is an investment in hard-furcased, improved roads, the benefit of which will be available for the remainder of the owner's life, if he continues to live in this State.

On Auto Row

EMPLOYES of the State Highway Department in the various construction divisions in the State have been instructed to make lists of all automobile owners who have failed to obtain their 1924 State license tags or are using only one tag on an automobile, and to file complaints with Prosecuting Attorneys in the counties. The men in the road patrols and construction gangs have been ordered to check up licenses of all cars passing along the roads, in the campaign to compell payment of State license fees by all Missouri automobile owners. The campaign was started by the commission because money paid for State automobile licenses goes into the State road fund.

Problem in Amalgamation.

The amalgamation of the Automobile Association of America and the National Motorists Association, which is to result in a convention in Detroit this week, appears not to have been completely effective. At any rate dispatches say the National Motorists Association has reorganized with Richard H. Lee of New York as president, and claims that it is backed by 30 automobile clubs, representing 100,000 members.

Buick Dealers' Meeting.

To keep the new Buick models under cover until opening day on Tuesday, the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. painted its windows white June 28. On alternate windows was also painted a red question mark, "You'll Know Tuesday." When the Buick dealers came to St. Louis on Monday for their annual meeting the showroom was opened and after they were taken to the Chase Hotel for luncheon. Walter H. Vesper, vice president, presided at the meeting and outlined some of the features of the new Buick line. F. W. A. Vesper, president, then gave the dealers a resume of the new Buick dealers' contract and touched upon plans for the coming year. Distribution and allotment of the new cars were covered by W. H. Willcockson, secretary of the company. Nearly 100 dealers attended the meeting. A private showing of the new cars was held Monday evening for all the Buick retail salesmen in St. Louis, with 75 men present.

New Motor Bus Engine.

The Continental Motors Corporation has announced for passenger bus service a 3¾x5-inch, six-cylinder engine that develops 70 horsepower. The new engine is for intercity express work requiring long nonstop runs.

Auto to Be Given Away.

A Chevrolet sedan has been donated to the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis, to be given away as the principal one of more than 25,000 presents which purchasers of souvenir programs will receive at the annual tuberculosis ball game at Sportsman's Park July 17. It was donated by the Orthwein Motor Corporation. Society girls will sell the programs at the ball park on the day of the game. Among the thousands of other gifts are automobile accessories. The Chevrolet sedan will be driven to the ball park on the day of the game. Prior to that time it will be parked for short periods each day in front of 609 Locust street.

Sails for "Ad" Convention.

E. LeRoy Pelletier, advertising manager of the Rickenbacker Motor Co., sailed Friday for London, England, to address the convention of Associated Advertising Clubs of the World on July 16. He is one of six speakers selected from America to represent the "Newspaper Departmental" at this greatest gathering of advertising men. He will spend about two months. He proposes to learn how to merchandise in Europe, at the same time telling Europeans how American newspapers have proven best for the strategy and quick-action necessary for merchandising in vast volume.

Production Record for New Car.

What is believed to be a production record was made before the middle of June when the 10,000th Chrysler six rolled off the assembly line at the factory in Detroit. Chrysler production now is averaging slightly more than 150 cars a day, says S. B. Ward, head of the Ward Motor Co., Inc., St. Louis distributor. Plant changes will speed up production and officials estimate that 15,000 Chryslers will be produced by Aug. 1. It is worth noting that within less than six months after starting work the Chrysler company has sold more than $15,000,000 worth of cars.

Object to Being Stared At.

Motor campers who use the Forest Park camp say it is the only one at which they have stopped where they are subjected to the annoyance of continual scrutiny from persons motoring around the circle within which the tents are pitched. Complaint also is made that every Sunday afternoon persons wander casually through the camp, even stopping to stare unabashed into tents. "This is the only camp I have seen all the way from California where there are no electric lights," said one camper.

Franklin Resumes Production.

Assembly work was resumed at the Franklin factory at Syracuse, N. Y., last week, following completion of the inventory for which production was halted temporarily a few weeks ago. Retail deliveries of Franklin dealers are running at the rate of more than 800 a month and orders to the factory are increasing. The factory is taking on more workmen and production is to be increased as rapidly as conditions warrant.

Clincher Balloons for Light Cars.

"The clincher balloon cord has long since emerged from the experimental stage," declares J. F. Schaefer, vice president of the Cooper Corporation, in charge of its tire manumacturing division at Findlay, O. The thousands now in service have proven their worth to motorists in performance and comfort. The clincher balloon, to replace the 30x3½ clincher cord, is a full balloon tire, and requires only 20 to 30 pounds inflation instead of the usual 40 to 60 pounds, besides having twice the bearing surface. The flexible side walls insure the greatest possible cushioning effect and the least possible internal friction and absorption power. A desirable feature of the clincher balloon on present rims is that the change-over can be made without delay or expense, no new equipment being required. Just slip on the balloon as you would a regular high-pressure cord upon your present rim. Clincher balloons are ideal for Ford, Chevrolet and other light cars, as they not only eliminate jolting, bouncing and rattling, but also hold the road and avoid skidding. Furthermore, the saving in depreciation and upkeep cost alone will pay for the tires, making the comfort pure gain." The Brenner Auto Supply Co. is distributors for the Cooper tire in St. Louis.

Breaks Retail Sales Record.

Retail sales of Paige and Jewett cars in the first six months of 1924, as reported by dealers to the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., were within 200 cars of 20,000. This total compares with 17,806 Paiges and Jewetts sold at retail in the first six months of last year.

New Auto Race Track.

Expenditure of $300,000 for an automobile racing track and buildings is planned at Charlotte, N. C. The track will be a mile and a quarter long, and the first race over it is scheduled for Aug. 1, with pirst prize of $20,000.

Being Passed No Joy There.

A measure which has passed third reading in the Legislature of the Canadian province of Nova Scotia requires the driver of a car which is about to be passed by another to slow down to 15 miles an hour.

New Retail Sales Manager.

Harry C. Herring is now retail sales manager for the Diesing Motor Sales Co., Rickenbacker distributor. He has been in the automobile business many years, and formerly was sales manager for the South Side Motor Sales Co.

Ford Officials Deny Rumor.

Officials at the Ford Plant at Highland, Mich., continue to deny a rumor that Ford contemplates building a six-cylinder car to sell around $1000.

Organizes Optimist Club.

Believing that business conditions are determined by an attitude of mind and that conditions are good or bad in the proportion the public thinks they are, the Chicago Branch of the Oakland Motor Car Co. has organized a True Blue Optimist Club among its dealers. Every dealer joining this club must agree that "neither he nor anyone else in his organization will talk about hard times, nor listen to such talk from other people, but on the other hand will talk prosperity and good times to a number of people every day, and will go out after business with the feeling that, taking everything into consideration, the country is in good shape."

Balloon Tire Grows in Favor.

A number of automobile factories which have not adopted balloon tires as standard equipment report that at least 60 per cent of their production calls for that type of tire.

Shows Big Sales Increase.

Sales of Rickenbacker cars have increased in the St. Louis district 200 per cent over last year, "Jim" Ward, of the Diesing Motor Sales Co., reports. Ward sees no reason for business pessimism, saying that business has been very good and has remained consistently good. Indicative of the national sales status of the Rickenbacker, he remarks, is the fact that the factory has just declared another quarterly 2 per cent dividend.

How Anti-Knock "Gas" Works.

The difference in the action of ethyl gas from that of untreated gasoline, chemists state, is much the same as the difference between the action of smokeless and black powder. When black powder is used, there is a sudden explosion, the full force being expended at onec on the projectile. This force diminishes as the projectile travels toward the muzzle of the gun, allowing more space for the gasses and permitting the pressure to decrease. Smokeless powder burns more slowly. The first push is not so great, but the force of the gasses increases, reaching maximum power as the projectile is leaving the gun barrel. So, smokeless powder gives a progressive, higher and more sustained velocity and greater power. Untreated gasoline has much the same tendency to explode its force in one heavy blow as has black powder. This is particularly apparent when the compression of an engine is increased or the load suddenly made more heavy. This short explosive characteristic is manifested outwardly by the sound of a fuel knock, the noise resulting from the force of the shattering explosion being transmitted to the cylinder walls. Ethyl gas, in its action, as closely follows the workings of smokeless powder. It burns more closely with a cumulative force that, instead of trying to shatter the cylinder walls, tends to center its power on the piston head.

Ovations for 10,000,000th Ford.

The 10,000,000th Ford, which rolled off the assembly line June 4, is being hailed everywhere with enthusiasm on its Lincoln Highway tour from New York to San Francisco. Motion pictures are being taken for a complete record of the trip.

New Balloon Sizes Recommended.

The executive committee of the Rubber Association of America, Inc., has recommended three additional standard baloon tire sizes—33x6 for 31x5 rim; 30x4.75 for 29x4 rim, and 31x4.40 clincher.

Big Factory Force Addition.

The Studebaker Corporation expects to add 1200 men to its payroll this week and to put on 2000 more between July 15 and Aug. 1, with other increases until October, when it expects the peak of business.

Auto Racing at Denver.

A two-mile speedway is contemplated at Denver by an association which is holding races on a one-mile dirt track at Overland Park, the city's motor camp. Sig Haughdal has just made a record of 49 1-5 seconds for this track.

New Car Buying Scheme.

A Baltimore company is introducing a new financing plan to relieve automobile dealers of all liabilities and obligations after cars leave their floors. The company takes care of all collections, and is to reject no business because of dissatisfaction with the status of a dealer or his ability to reimburse it if a buyer's notes are not paid on time, and will even handle the resale of a repossessed car. The whole deal is really between finance company and purchaser, cars being sold on down payments of a quarter, a third or a half, the balance being spread over six, eight, 10 or 12 months, according to the size of the first payment.

Signs Contract for 1925.

S. B. Ward, president of the Ward Motor Co., Inc., on July 1 executed his first 1925 Chrysler and Maxwell contract with an associate dealer when he signed up O. P. Thompson of Carlinville, Ill.

Gossip of New Cheap Car.

Detroit automotive circles are taking seriously gossip that W. C. Durant is preparing to market a new light car in the Overland-Chevrolet class.

Car Quickly Built in Street.

The Buick demonstration tour mechanics, who are traveling the country and building Buick cars from local dealers' stock parts, built a car complete in 44½ minutes in City Hall place, Philadelphia. The car was assembled from a truck load of parts taken from the Philadelphia distributer's stock and rolled away on its own power.

Flywheel in Middle of Crankshaft

A four-cylinder racing engine being tested in England has its flywheel in the middle of the crankshaft and running in a case separated from the crankcase. With a bore of 2.73 inches and stroke of 5.12 inches, it turns up to 6000 r. p. m. and develops 100 horsepower.

Tourist Makes Fast Time.

A daily driving average of 454½ miles was made recently by J. W. Parsons and family of Seattle on a 5000-mile trip through Washington, Oregon, California and Arizona and back. Driving a Stutz six, they ran 959 miles to Oakland, Cal., in two days, and the next night were in Barstow, Cal., 481 miles from Oakland. The next night saw them in Williams, Ariz., 382 miles farther on. They spent a day at the Grand Canyon, and the next day made 440 miles to Nogales, covering one 220-mile stretch in an even five hours. On the trip back via Yuma they drove 15 miles in second gear on one stretch, and climbed from 257 feet below sea level through the mountains to 4900 feet altitude, in high. The trip, of course, included much hard going in the Mojave Desert and parts of Arizona.

Wins Economy Prizes.

First prizes for economy and endurance in their classes were won by standard stock Studebaker cars in the recent 1882-mile El Paso endurance run, the Weber Motor Car Co. of St. Louis is informed. The light six used only 95 gallons of gasoline and six quarts of oil on this extraordinarily rough trip, an average of 19.8 miles to the gallon of "gas" and 313 to the quart of oil.

New Busses Conquer Hills.

Steep hills and hard grades, which compel the ordinary bus to run in low and second noisily and slowly, are a problem to Northern New Jersey bus lines. In one section it has been solved by a fleet of six-cylinder buses with engines developing more than 100 horsepower. These buses climb the long grades swiftly and silently in high and stand sustained speeds of 45 to 50 miles an hour.

Pithy Counsel.

"Say it with brakes—save the flowers" and "In a pinch good brakes are your only hope," says the bulletin of the Milwaukee Motor Club.

PARALLELS ITS OWN LINES WITH BUSES

Indiana Traction Company Decides to Cater to Preference of Public.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—"If the people want to ride on rubber, we will provide that facility," said Harry Reid, president of the Interstate Public Service Co., which runs a traction line between Indianapolis and Louisville, in announcing the purchase of 11 motor buses to operate between Indianapolis and Franklin as an adjunct to the main line of the traction company. Later, it is possible the company will operate buses as far as Columbus, O.

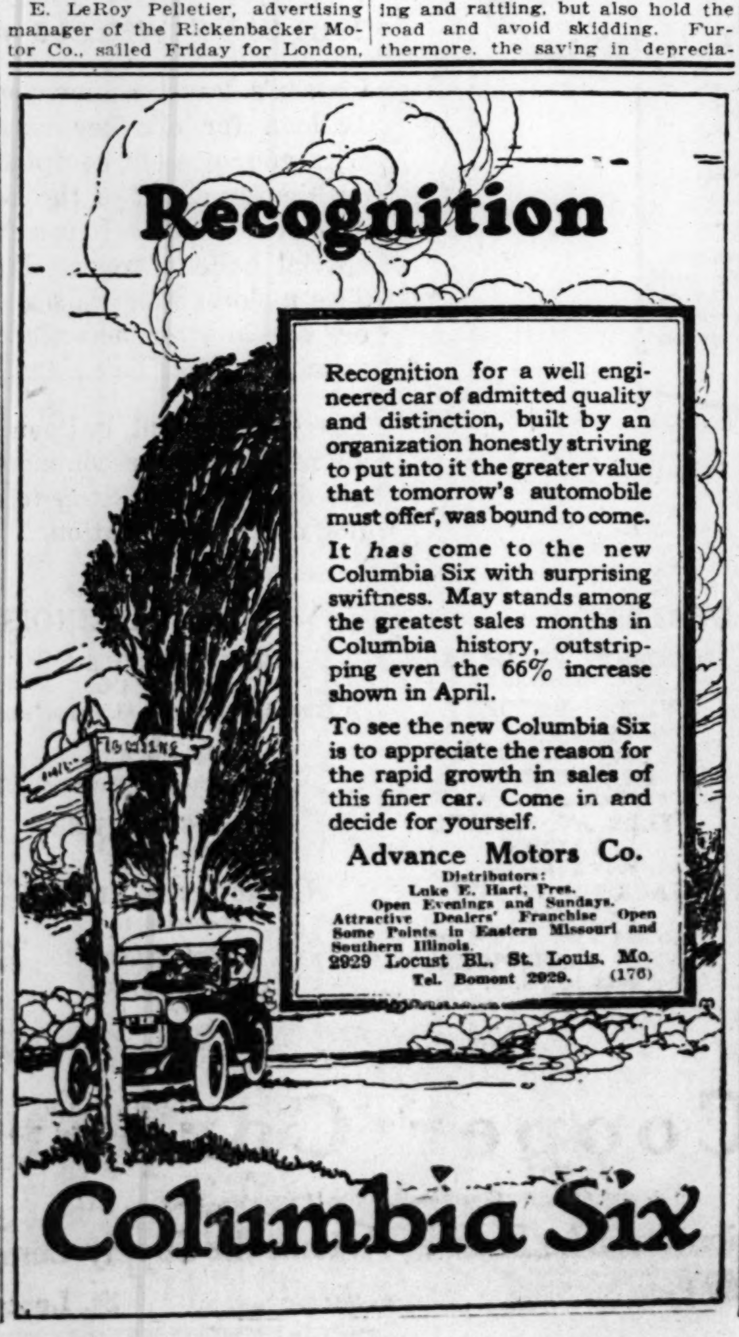
Reid said the purchase was the first active step to meet bus competition which has cut into the traction transportation business to Franklin.

Some time ago the company entered into traffic arrangements with truck line companies radiating from Seymour which are said to have facilitated freight shipments from the territory, giving producers a quick market for perishable foodstuffs in Indianapolis.

This is the first traction line in Indiana to enter the bus business actively with lines paralleling its tracks. Heretofore the main contention of the traction lines of the State has been that it was unfair to run buses parallel to traction lines on free highways paid for by the people and "compete unfairly with tranction lines." A large part of the main State highways radiating from here are paralleled by traction lines.

AMUSING AS WELL AS EXASPERATING INCIDENT IN CALIFORNIA QUARANTINE

One of the most amusing, as well as exasperating, incidents of the foot and mouth disease quarantine is reported by a tourist who came through St. Louis Sunday. "We struck a place in the mountains," he said, "where the disinfecting was carried on in a one-room house. The walls were pierced with holes, four to a side. The tourists stood inside the room and stuck their heads out the holes, which had rubber capes pulled tight around their necks with draw strings. Then a formaldehyde smudge was lighted underneath them. Can you imagine that house with the 16 heads sticking out of the walls and a smudge pot smoking and roasting each of them? Several persons' eyes were injured by the fumes, and one man sued the county. Finally the practice was stopped.



Recognition

Recognition for a well engineered car of admitted quality and distinction, built by an organization honestly striving to put into it the greater value that tomorrow's automobile must offer, was bound to come.

It has come to the new Columbia Six with surprising swiftness. May stands among the greatest sales months in Columbia history, outstripping even the 66% increase shown in April.

To see the new Columbia Six is to appreciate the reason for the rapid growth in sales of this finer car. Come in and decide for yourself.

Real Comfort for Five
With the convenience and economy that only a coupe can give

The new 2-door, 5-passenger Gardner Coupe provides the chummy companionship, sedan comfort and coupe convenience you've always wanted—for your family, and for those special occasions when you'd like abundant room for business friends, or an extra couple to share your outings.

Five full-grown people ride in lounge-like comfort on seats deeply upholstered in rich velvet velour, and tilted just right to assure abundant leg-room, even for the tallest. The two front seats fold and tip forward for easy entrance and exit thru doors 31½ inches wide.

Sliding in felt-lined channels, those four big side windows are rumble-proof and rattle-proof. The two in the doors are equipped with rotary lifts—a few quick turns and the cool breeze plays upon you—turn back, just as quickly and easily, and the sudden rain beats futilely against the glass. Weather-proof protection! And with it, clear vision for everyone in the car.

A cowl ventilator and two-piece windshield temper summer's heat—give protection against winter's chilly blasts. Disconcerting drip across the driver's vision is forestalled by a metal sun-visor with drain.

Under the hood is that triumph of engineering skill—the famous 5-bearing crankshaft Gardner motor. That's why this car takes steep grades easily—picks up from a 5-mile crawl to 25 miles an hour in 7 7-10 seconds—sweeps along the open road at a mile-a-minute gait—all in high and without annoying vibration!

In fairness to yourself, drive this car today. Take the whole family for a ride. Learn what sedan comfort with coupe convenience and economy really means. Telephone us for a demonstration—now!

YALE MEASURES SHOCKS IN AUTO LIKE EARTHQUAKE

Motor Car Seismograph Is Devised to Test Highways as Jolt Causers and Improve Jar Absorbers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 5.—What constitutes riding comfort in an automobile? Is it smoothness of motion? And if so, does up and down motion have a greater disturbing effect on the rider than motion backward and forward, sudden starting and stopping and turns, or is motion from side to side more disconcerting? And exactly what is the mysterious part played by noise in our comfort? These are some of the questions being investigated by Prof. E. H. Lockwood and Prof. L. B. Kimball of the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University.

The automobile seismograph is an instrument which has been devised by Prof. Lockwood to test the up-and-down motion of various automobiles, and to prove what shock absorbers and other devices bring the smoothest motion; also to test the roughness of given stretches of roadway, the relative roughness of tarvia and concrete.

It works in much the same way as the earthquage seismograph, which is used at Washington, to register every earthquake, no matter how small. It consists, essentially, of a weight hung on a spring so delicately that it barely touches the bottom of the instrument. It is placed on the floor of the automobile. When the car goes over a big bump the weight receives a great jar, and if the bump is small, with little or no up and down motion, the weight will move just a little.

Carefully Records Bumps.

The weight is connected with a delicate apparatus which registers the violence and number of the jounces in figures so that you can read it at any time just as you read a speedometer. The father you go the higher the reading will get. So if you are to test the relative bumpiness of different makes of cars you must drive them for the same distance on the same road and then consult the reading of the seismograph.

Of the automobiles tried, a certain meter cab proved to have the most up and down motion on a rough country road. But on the city pavement the meter cab was not so bumpy as a number of cheap pleasure cars. The bill of taxi companies for smashed hats due to vertical motion is said to run into the thousands. Hence this is a vital problem, not only for the passengers, but also for the cab companies.

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

LEARNING TO DRIVE—WELL.

"SUPPOSE you're an expert driver by now?" I bantered, greeting Smith upon completion of his driving lessons.

"The instructor told me I was the most adept pupil he had had this year," Smith boasted.

I smiled at this. "That's what they all say," I added. "And why shouldn't they? It is their business to sell cars and please their customers even if they have to flatter them."

"Oh, so you don't believe I can drive?" Smith asked, surprised to think that I had questioned his ability. "All sight," he said, "I'll just prove it to you."

My car was standing there at the curb. It was not the make of car he had ordered, but the shift was the same, and there was nothing radically different in the controls. So Smith took the wheel and I sat beside him. I waited while his nervous hands wandered over the instrument board in the confused act of looking for the choker and the ignition switch at the same time.

"Do things deliberately," I said. "Make sure you're in 'neutral,' turn on the ignition, pull out the choker, advance the gas, retard the spark and press your foot on the starter button."

Smith went through the starting procedure, taking about four times as long as necessary.

"It'll all come to you after you have driven a while." I added, trying to build up his confidence. "There is nothing to it when it becomes mechanical."

Before I had finished the car went off with a series of jolts that shook us up rather badly and didn't help the engine any.

"Easy!" I cautioned. "When the car bucks like this throw out the clutch and give the engine a chance to get up speed. In driving a car keep your mind on the speed of the engine. First you had it going too fast and now it is going too slow. Suppose you pull up to the curb again and I'll show you how to run the engine as a stationary power plant."

Smith thought he knew all this, but as he followed my suggestion he allowed the engine to stall three times; once because he had the choker out too far and flooded the curburetor; again because he did not choke it enough, and finally because he was opening the throttle wide with the spark too far retarded. If he could not run the engine properly while the car was at a standstill, his trouble would only be trebled in actual driving.

After we had got over the difficulties of starting a cold engine, Smith did better. This encouraged him to boast that he was going to take me right down into the traffic.

"I'm willing," I agreed, "if you'll show me that you can stop the car."

eH laughed at this. "Why, that's the easiest part about it!"

That being so, I pointed to a telegraph pole some 30 feet ahead and gave him the command to stop. We were then going about 18 miles an hour. I watched him. First he asked me, "What telegraph pole?" and then "Why?" By that time we were 10 feet past the place where I wanted him to stop. We then agreed that I should give the signal to stop and that he should bring the car to a standstill as soon as possible after receiving the command.

"Stop!" I shouted at a time when he least expected it. This time he did not camouflage his nervousness with a lot of foolish questions, but the idea took a long while to travel through his system. Finally after looking around for the foot pedal, he jammed on the brakes and the car stopped. I had marked the place where I had given the signal by a tree. He had taken 40 feet of space in which to stop.

"You should have been able to stop in half that distance. You have no right to enter traffic and endanger other drivers unless you can. Driving in traffic is good practice, but don't attempt it until you first know how to stop. You can practice that on an open boulevard."

"But I had the wheels locked,' Smith complained. "Why didn't the car stop right away?"

"You slid the tires," I explained, "whereas you should have applied the brakes on and off. Your way of doing it is bad for the tires and folly in slippery weather."

It was actually two weeks after this that Smith took me for a ride in traffic. He was learning.

Nest week: THE CAR IS DELIVERED.

CONSTANTLY IMPROVED
BUT NO YEARLY MODELS

There are obvious benefits to the purchaser in Dodge Brothers policy of making constant, gradual refinements in their product instead of changing from one design to another year after year.

Chief among these is the fact that the car may be operated throughout the full limit of its usefulness without the extra depreciation loss which results from a rapid succession of radically different models.

NEW BUICK SIX IS SHOWN IN ST. LOUIS

Eight Models on New "Standard Six" Chassis — Hood and Radiator Unchanged.

Eight new body models on a new Buick chassis of 114⅝-inch wheel base, embodying a new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine with three-inch bore and four and one-half inch stroke, were displayed Tuesday by the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. The new six is known as the standard six. The models consist of a five-passenger double-service sedan, a two-passenger roadster, a two-passenger enclosed roadster with heater, a five-passenger touring, a five-passenger enclosed touring with heater, a two-passenger double-service coupe, a five-passenger sedan and a four-passenger coupe. Probably the most striking features of the new models are the completely enclosed sedan and coupe on the open cars, and the low-pressure tires on all models. The radiator and hood lines have not been changed.

The engine is a valve-in-head type with automatic pressure lubrication throughout, cylinder head removable and automatic spark advance. The clutch and transmission form integral parts of the engine, which is suspended at three points from the main frame. The crank shaft is a drop-forging, extra heavy and balanced with four large bearings. The pistons and connecting rods are properly weighted and carefully manufactured. Large valves are operated by noiseless, adjustable push rods through rocker arms, which are automatically lubricated from the engine. This engine produces 50 actual brake horsepower.

Clutch is of the multiple disc, dry plate type.

The service brakes are Buick type, external contracting, operating on drums of unusual size and area on all four wheels. The hand brakes, of internal expanding type, operate on rear wheel brake drums only.

Tops on open cars have a new design quarter curtain, made of special waterproof fabric.

Models 24, 24A, 25 and 25A have two-piece ventilating type windshield with inside operating, adjustable friction stops to hold glass in position. These models are equipped with cowl ventilators and windshield wiper.

All closed models are equipped with sunshade, automatic windshield wiper and a new style one-piece windshield, easily raised or lowered for ventilation by handle in similar manner to windows.

All models have drip-pan for carburetor and completely insulated wiring. Buick owners are entitled to the lowest rate for fire and theft insurance.

As standard equipment on all models are carried dim and full headlights with antiglare lenses. Parking lights on cowl, tail lamp and instrument board lamp. Motor-driven horn, 75-mile speedometer, gasoline gauge, tire carrier with extra demountable rim, jack, new type high pressure grease gun, full kit of tools, pump, tire repair kit, transmission lock, cowl or windshield type ventilator, rear vision mirror, running board, scuff plates, new sunshade and dome light on all closed models, windshield wiper, automatic windshield wiper on all closed models.

In going into production on the new standard six, the Buick factory has made greater strides than ever before in getting cars into the hands of branches and distributers for the territory dealers. Between noon on Monday, June 30, and 5 p. m. on July 1, 59 new Buick automobiles were delivered to territory and St. Louis dealers out of the Vesper-Buick stock, while orders were placed for more than double that number. Every one of the retail dealers in St. Louis reported sales on July 1 of two to 10 of the new standard six models.

Attendance July 1 at the 10 Buick salesrooms in metropolitan St. Louis totaled 1436 persons up to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Between that time and 10:30 p. m. more than 600 more persons visited the showrooms.

WISCONSIN CITY MAKES TOURIST FEEL AT HOME

Merchants and Officials Co-operate in Helping to Make Visit Pleasant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RACINE, Wis., July 5.—A plan is being tried in Racine, which is not only courteous to the motorists who pass through the city, but is profitable to the automotive merchants and other business houses and hotels.

The association of commerce, retail merchants and city officials are co-operating in extending a welcome to out-of-town visitors. Guest cards are distributed by the merchants and mailed by them to their out-of-town customers. These cards are in the form of a key, symbolic of open hospitality, and are to be attached to the steering wheel.

One of these official cards, when so attached, gives its possessor assurance that policemen, firemen, merchants and citizens generally not only welcome him, but are willing to help to make his stay pleasant.

A Mechanical Inspector.

Since an instrument known as the vialog has been in use by the engineers of the Highway Department of New York State there has been reported considerable improvement in the construction work by contractors. This device, which measures accurately the surface irregularities of the Empire State's highways, is viewed by the department as one of its best inspectors.

GOES TO STUDY MOTOR TRANSPORT IN EUROPE

National Automobile C. of C. Executive to Report to American Industry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, has sailed for Europe as delegate of the American automobile industry, sent in response to the invitation of delegates from foreign countries who attended the recent World Motor Transport Congress in Detroit.

Many of the 156 delegates from 56 countries to the congress declared that their nations were being held back economically because of lack of transportation facilities. They invited the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce to send representatives to guide them in formulating plans to promote motor transport.

Accordingly, Reeves will visit England, France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland, Holland and Austria. He plans to spend two months studying the European situation, and will confer with Government officials, bankers, automobile manufacturers, dealers, motor clubs and highway associations executives.

It is expected that the report Reeves makes on his return to this country will have a decided influence on plans of American automobile and truck factories to develop the foreign market.

LAKE MICHIGAN'S SAND DUNES ARE WORTH VISITING

Largest of Them All to Be Made Accessible to Motorists by Muskegon Boulevard System.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MUSKEGON, Mich., July 5.—Muskegon, summer playground of hundreds of thousands of persons from all parts of the country, within the next few years is to have an external boulevard system 90 miles long, with 60 miles of the route within sight of water and with seven approaches to a developed Lake Michigan shore.

The projected boulevard system has been made possible through the recent gift to the city by the Pere Marquette Railway of 113 acres of sand dune land bordering on Lake Michigan.

The most important feature of the boulevard system will be the making of Michigan Dunes Park accessible. This is an 855-acre tract of sand dune land described by geologists and botanists as destined to become one of the outdoor show places of America. The park, which is but a 20-minute automobile ride from downtown Muskegon and adjoins the land recently deeded to the city by the railroad, contains some of the highest sand dunes on the continent. It is the only park in the country where are located side by side the permanent, or wooded, and shifting types of sand dunes.

Some 300 Feet High.

The dunes have been forming for centuries, still are forming, in fact, as sand from the bottom of Lake Michigan is scooped up, particle by particle, washed ashore, and then, after drying, is moved inland by the wind. For uncounted generations this sand movement has been going on. The wind has piled the sand in great heaps, some of them more than 300 feet high and several hundred feet from the shore of the lake.

The dunes in Michigan Dunes Park provide a contrast in nature that is rarely encountered. Except in sheltered places, the shifting dunes are as barren of plant life as a desert, only a few of the more hardy creeping vines and grasses finding sustenance in the sandy wastes.

Within a stone's throw of the sand wilderness are the permanent dunes, originally heaps of barren sand like their neighbors, but their tops and sides encrusted with a deep layer of rich mold, the remains of thousands of plant generations. Here virtually every tree, shrub and plant known to this climate grows in profusion. Trees

It is the only park in the country where are located side by side the permanent, or wooded, and shifting types of sand dunes.

Some 300 Feet High.

The dunes have been forming for centuries, still are forming, in fact, as sand from the bottom of Lake Michigan is scooped up, particle by particle, washed ashore, and then, after drying, is moved inland by the wind. For uncounted generations this sand movement has been going on. The wind has piled the sand in great heaps, some of them more than 300 feet high and several hundred feet from the shore of the lake.

The dunes in Michigan Dunes Park provide a contrast in nature that is rarely encountered. Except in sheltered places, the shifting dunes are as barren of plant life as a desert, only a few of the more hardy creeping vines and grasses finding sustenance in the sandy wastes.

Within a stone's throw of the sand wilderness are the permanent dunes, originally heaps of barren sand like their neighbors, but their tops and sides encrusted with a deep layer of rich mold, the remains of thousands of plant generations. Here virtually every tree, shrub and plant known to this climate grows in profusion. Trees that all but top the nearby sand piles jut into the sky. Below, the ground is carpeted with flowering plants. Wild animals make their homes in this jungle. An occasional tree stump, reminder of the passing of a woodsman in earlier days, and a few trails over which the more daring of motorists travel, are the only changes that have taken place since the coming of the white man.

Grim Contrasts.

Bit by bit, year after year, the sand from the desert spaces moves toward the forests. Grain on grain it creeps forward, restlessly driven by winter gale and summer breeze. It swirls through ravines and over open plains until at last it finds a resting place against the tangled forest growth, then sifts into the wooded areas over growing things, strangling, crushing, burying.

The pile against the door of the forest grows a little larger every year. Each season the sand moves a step further into the woodland. Where today is a patch of flowering plants, next year will have been added to the wastes. A century hence, today's forests may have been trampled into blackened trunks and branches by the continued weight of countless sand grains.

While Nature, using the sand as her agency, is blotting out forests and crushing creeping vines into lifeless mold, she is busy in the waste spaces, creating new oases to take the places of those she is destroying. Tiny spots in the shifting dunes that are sheltered from the wind receive the seeds of desert grasses. These take root and spread quickly over a considerable territory. The grasses protect the sand from the wind action, and another year brings a new plant life. The plants live out their span and die, leaving their remains to enrich the sand. As the years pass the soil becomes fertile, trees take root and flourish. A new permanent dune has been built while another forest a hundred feet away has been smothered by the sand. Thus the fight for existence goes on endlessly.

The State of Michigan plans to build cement boulevards in the park and to set apart a small portion of the tract for use as a tourist camp. In other respects, it is to be left in its natural state. Nature is to be permitted to go on with her building and destroying throughout the ages.

Two Touring Tips.

Speed is relative. You can save a lot of time on your trip by stepping on the gas a little at the start, rather than trying to work up to a lively speed by degrees. If you give the car a burst of speed at 40 you'll be surprised to find how comfortable your riding will be when you cut it down to 30.

Slow moving cars on the highways are often operated by dreamers. When a driver has a destination in view he hurries unconsciously, but when he is just out for the air he's very likely to be a bit oblivious of the interests of others. His laxity is your danger. Get by him if you possibly can. And be sure that he hears your horn before you try passing.

THE SUNDAY MOTORIST

In Behalf of Safety.

THE miles per hour figures of the speedometer could be supplemented in the interests of safty if the stopping distances for the respective speeds were also recorded. When 10 miles per hour appeared on the dial the sight of the figure 9.2 would remind the driver that he must allow approximately 10 feet for stopping in event of emergency.

At 15 miles per hour the figure 20.8 would also appear, indicating that 20 feet must be allowed for stopping. Thus when the speedometer registered 35 miles per hour and the supplementary dial said 113 the driver would begin to appreciate the fact that speeding is not how fast one goes but how quickly one can stop.

Possibly some day the stopping distances will be marked on the speedometer dial, and also some provision whereby the driver can conveniently test his brakes to make sure that he actually stops within the approved distances. As matters stand he is obliged to make marks on the paving, and unless the test is carefully worked out with the assistance of others the inspection is not always accurate. If he arranged to operate the odometer like a stop-watch and have a special dial to show the number of feet traveled by the car in stopping there would unquestionably be more carefully adjusted brakes and fewer accidents.

Never Fail to Signal.

Even the experienced driver lapses into the habit of failing to signal his intention to turn left if he is following the beaten track of the main highway. He should remember that the man behind may be a local driver who, planning to take the dirt continuation of the road straight ahead, figures that those ahead of him are going the same way. Everybody isn't traveling the broad highway all the time. Signal always.

The Old Mechanic Says:

Every now and then some chap rolls in here with the complaint that his gas mileage is down and out. He cuts down on the carburetor to a point where he almost has to prime the engine when it's 90 in the shade. He picks out all the down grades he can find so as to coast. He buys the best grade of gas and is sure he gets full measure. Still no results so far as his gas mileage goes.

It usually takes me about two seconds to lift the hood and prove to him that most of his trouble is low lubrication. I not only prove to him that he's shy of oil in the crankcase but that the little he's got is half raw gasoline. I clean out the case and make him invest in six or seven quarts of the best oil I've got in the place and then make him promise to add a fresh quart every time he thinks the gas mileage is too low.

Next I get my grease gun and prove to him that the fan bearin's starvin' for grease. This usually surprises him because he's one of those fellers who figure that all these engine accessories run on wind. Then I oil the generator bearings and the water pump shaft, and wind up by squirting oil over the valve stems.

This is one of the most important features of the job. How can any owner expect t' get good mileage with valves that stick open half the time? Cuts down valve friction, too, when you keep the stems well oiled. When you cut friction you save gas.

Of course I always go over the whole job, transmission, universals and all. But it's the little things that count. That's why I go so far as to see that the speedometer cable is well greased. If you're goin' to neglect these things you might as well drill a hole in the gas tank and let her drip.

Your Brother's Keeper.

On certain kinds of roads and under certain conditions it is a matter of common safety for drivers to keep safer distances apart, but one is frequently annoyed by having in his wake some driver who chooses to ignore this fact. If this is the case you can easily be your brother's keeper, and your own, too, by speeding up a little now and again so as to keep further ahead of him. Where the going is too treacherous to warrant this occasional speeding up then stop a moment and allow him to pass. You can then keep a safe distance behind him, and to your mutual benefit.

Done Every Day Here.

The news that radio waves are suspected of being the cause of mysterious stalling of auto engines in a French town is interesting, but not significant. Less wonderful things than radio waves do it every day.

Want It Stolen?

The following suggestions are given for the benefit of those who would like to get rid of their cars, and in the hope that the majority who want to keep them will get the drift of it:

Park the car in the same place every day, and leave it exactly the same length of time.

Never look back at the car after having parked it.

Forget to lock it, and leave the door ajar.

Find lonely places to leave it.

Have no identification marks on it.

Park it on a hill, where they won't even have to crank the engine.

Why We Bought the Most Car in the World for the Money

Overland owners are satisfied owners. They continually say so—by word of mouth and by letters. Thousands of letters on file, with dealers, at the branches and at the factory tell why Overland owners bought "the most car in the world for the money." Quotations from a very few of the St. Louisans' letters are given here.

"I do not think I shall ever tire of my present Overland car. It may be necessary to trade it in some day, but when I do, it will be another Overland. It is certainly the most automobile in the world for the money."
M. MATHIS,
3100 N. Broadway.

"It affords me great pleasure to report my experience with one of your Overland Touring cars which I have been driving daily for the last eighteen months, during which time I have spent little or nothing for repairs."
ANTON BAUR,
1320 S. Vandeventer.

"I have always driven and owned much larger cars, but after looking over the Overland, I bought one and I am sure that I will never be without one."
HARRY BOECKMAN,
2715 Franklin Av.

"I think that the Overland is the best dollar for dollar value in the automobile market. It cannot be equaled at anything like the money."
B. COHEN,
5 Fraternal Bldg.

"The Overland car is the winner. I will never be without one. I cannot see how you make such a satisfactory car at the price."
C. L. SWARTZ,
Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

"I have just purchased my third Overland, and while the other two were very satisfactory and very economical, I feel that I have now bought the most automobile in the world for the money."
FRANK M. GROTT,
573-575 Arcade Bldg.

"I cannot say too much in praise of my Overland car. It is really a much better car than you claim for it in your advertising. It has given me 100% service, and a great many economical miles."
A. E. BURCH,
4380 Olive St.

"My Overland car is all that can be desired. It is economical and sturdy. I take more pleasure in driving it than any car I ever owned."
WM. LYNCH,
1911 Hebert.

"My friends told me to buy an Overland. They told me it was the best car in the world, and I proved it to myself by buying one."
A. J. NUELLE,
R. F. D. 7,
Affton, Mo.

"My Overland car was certainly a good investment. I find that in performance it equals cars that cost several hundred dollars more, and has several features that you cannot get except in higher-priced machines."
J. J. WENGERT,
1409 N. Market.

Gentlemen:

In reply to your card asking if repairs made at your St. Louis Service Department were satisfactory I want to say that these repairs were of only minor importance and were, of course, all O. K.

Because you have sent me this inquiry I want to tell you, however, of my experience with my Overland Sedan. This is one of the two cars I own, the other being a larger car. I have owned the Overland Sedan for two years and use it every day down-town and on Sundays out in the country, on my Sunday driving taking any old road no matter what condition it is in.

I have always gotten good mileage and the up-keep is very low. My Overland does everything that I ask of it. It is a great automobile.

Thanking you for your interest in my car, I am

Yours very truly,

Ben Miller

P. S. You may be sure that whenever I buy another small car it will be an Overland.

WORK COMMENCED ON NEW DENVER STATION

New Broadcaster Will Be Complete in Every Detail, Including Two Studios.

Work has been started on the Denver (Colo.) broadcasting station of the General Electric Co. In the late fall or early winter a new voice will be on the air. This station will complete the General Electric' nation-girdling system of three stations, the first of which, WGY, opened at Schenectady, N. Y., early in 1922, and the second, KGO, at Oakland, Cal., early in 1924.

In the construction of the Denver station full advantage will be taken of the experience gained in the operation of both the Schenectady and Oakland broadcasting plants. Every technical advance proved by extended use will be included in the equipment and the entire plant, like the Oakland station, will be housed in its own building. Provision will be made in the equipment to go to higher power than is now permitted should the regulations of the Department of Commerce be changed.

The station, a two-story structure, will be located on a 300x250-foot plot, four miles from the heart of Denver and on the main Eastern motor highway. The studio building will be 58x47 feet and the first floor will be divided into reception room and offices for the executives, the correspondence and the program forces. On the second floor will be two studios, a waiting room and a control room for the station's amplifying equipment.

The first and main studio will be 55x22 feet in size, big enough to comfortably accommodate large musical organizations. The deadening or reverberation period will be made variable through the use of movable hangings and floor coverings. As a program varies from speaker to band, or soloist to orchestra, different degrees of deadening are required to secure perfect tone quality and the Denver station will be so equipped that it may be readily changed to care for the different extremes of sound. The ceilings and parts of the side wall will be sound-deadened by means of a one-inch felt covering over which decorative tapestry cloth will be hung.

Separated from the main studio by the control room will be a second smaller studio. This arrangement has proved most successful at KGO in that one number may follow another with only the spacing of an announcement between them. This means that the listener is saved the annoyance of waits between numbers. The second studio also permits an artist to rehearse or tune his instrument before performing for "the air." The location of the control room between the two studios enables the operators who control the amplifying and microphone equipment to observe activities in either studio.

The power house will be a one-story building, 93 feet long and 42 wide and will be directly back of and connected to the studio building. The power house will be divided into two sections, a motor generator room and a power room. In the motor generator section will be eleven motor generator sets which are required to furnish current for filament lighting, plate current for the power amplifier tubes, generator field excitation and grid bias potentials. This room will also house the power transformers, the distribution panels and the starting compensators for the motors.

In the power section and located along opposite sides of the room will be two complete transmitting equipments, either of which may be placed in service at the will of the operator at the control panel. Should any difficulty arise with one set the other may be put into operation without interruption of program.

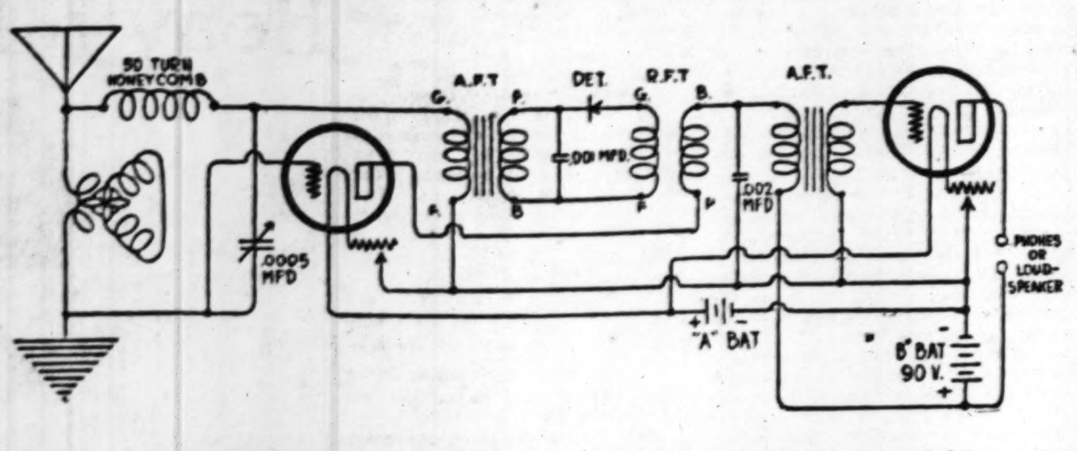
The amplified voice currents from the control room in the studio building will be brought to the power station operators' power control board from which point they may be connected to the transmitter in use.

The power tubes will be of the water-cooled type nominally rated at 20-k.-w. These higher-powered tubes are used at a lower output than their rating in order that greater reliability and freedom from distortion may be obtained. A departure from the usual circuit arrangements will be made in the Denver station in that a master oscillator circuit will be utilized to assist in obtaining constant frequency for transmission and freedom from harmonics. The output of both transmitters may be connected to an artificial antenna unit which will be located directly under the lead-out insulators. The purpose of this feature is to test the equipment without radiation. Through this unit either set may be connected to the antenna and counterpoise.

The 15,000-volt plate supply for the water-cooled tubes will be furnished through a kenetron rectifier consisting of a six-phase, 220-volt to 15,000-volt transformer, the output of which will be rectified through six UV 219 kenetron tubes. Any ripple will be eliminated by means of smoothing reactors and a bank of condensers.

Unlike WGY, where the towers are located on top of a five-story building, a quarter of a mile from the control room or KGO, where the towers are built on the ground, also a quarter of a mile from control room and studio, the towers of the Denver station will be built on the ground, one on each side of the studio building. The antenna wires will be directly above the power house. The towers will be of steel, 150 feet high and triangular in shape. They will support a three-wire, multiple-tuned antenna. Distance between towers will be 240 feet and the spreaders will be 120 feet apart, one down lead going directly into the power room over the artificial antenna unit, and the second down lead will terminate in the tuning equipment, located in a small building at one end of the antenna. The counterpoise, consisting of a network of wires insulated from the ground and supported [illegible] feet above the ground by steel poles, will be used as a part of the antenna system, replacing the usual ground connection.

Two-Tube Reflex Circuit With Crystal Detector



The circuit illustrated consists of one stage of radio frequency amplification, crystal detector, one stage of reflexed audio frequency and one stage of straight audio frequency amplification.

Parts required are: Variometer, 50-turn honeycomb coil, .0005 mfd. variable condenser, 2 sockets, 2 tubes, 2 audio frequency transformers, radio frequency transformer, crystal detector, 2 rheostats, .001 mfd. fixed condenser, .002 mfd. fixed condenser, "A" battery and 90-volt "B" battery.

The variometer may be any standard make. "A" tubes are recommended, although any "hard" tubes will work. After the set is wired, it would be advisable to experiment by reversing the leads to the first audio frequency transformer and to the radio frequency transformer. Also try reversing the crystal detector.

Note: It is important that the rotating plates of the variable condenser be connected to the honeycomb coil, rather than to the ground, as is customary.

RADIO TIME SIGNALS USED TO SET CLOCKS

Arlington Dots Harnessed to Automatically Set Timepieces Twice Daily.

Arlington time signals transmitted by radio every noon and 10 p. m. may soon be adopted to set your clocks automatically. It is somewhat of a bore to listen for 5 minutes preceeding the receipt of the long dash from NAA, which indicates standard Eastern time twice daily, and then set your clocks or watch as accurately as possible. It is necessary to have the exact time at sea, where it is used in navigation, and all the preliminary dots from NAA are followed and counted carefully by radio operators and navigators so the ship's chronometer may be checked accurately. But many shore radiophans would prefer a stand-by signal followed by a quick announcement, "10 o'clock."

A recent experiment in radio clock setting performed at the Bureau of Standards, will be beneficial and pleasing to all listeners-in, radio operators, amateurs and experimenters. With special apparatus your clock, properly connected, may be set for you twice daily by radio. Arlington has been transmitting time signals received by wire from the Naval Observatory standard clocks since 1912, and has been regulating Western Union and Postal Telegraph master clocks by wire since 1916. There is nothing new in transmitting time signals or in setting clocks, as thousands of clocks throughout the country are so set daily by wire.

But Dr. J. H. Dellinger of the Bureau of Standards, has just reported the setting of a Lighthouse Service electric program clock installed in the laboratory at the bureau by radio signals from Arlington. This is different and new. What is more, properly installed clocks may soon be set by radio for railroad stations, ships at sea and in outlying sections where no other communications exist. This method may be applied to ringing alarms at noon and 10 p. m., if desired, and could be employed at other hours of the day if Arlington sent more frequent signals.

The essential elements, Dr. Dellinger says, are: a good radio receiving set, with an efficient antenna; a radio relay; a retardation relay and a suitable clock. The bureau was experimenting with a Lighthouse Service clock used for carrying out daily programs and capable of setting or control by an electrical relay. The bureau also had a radio relay which would operate the clock relay when a certain signal was received by radio. These pieces of apparatus were hooked up and a special series of radio relays interposed and so adjusted as not to operate during the receipt of the preliminary dot signals from NAA. They functioned when the dash came, however, and operated the main relay setting the clock at the hour—that is, noon or 10 p. m. The radio relay was connected up to the receiving set in place of the usual phones. Dr. Dellinger, also pointed out that further adjustments could be effected so as to turn on the tubes of the receiving set by radio impulses, and such as the series of dots five minutes prior to the receipt of the hour dash, thus automatically operating the set when the owner was absent, provided it was properly tuned and insuring the time correction of the clock.

A device is attached to the clock at the bureau, stops the hands at exactly 12 noon and 10 at night in the event it is fast. When this is the case, the operation of the train of relays, simply releases the hands at the proper hour, when the dash is received. The complete circuit is not perfected nor is the apparatus on the market yet for the ordinary radio fans, but it is understood that it is easily hooked up, providing the proper clock apparatus and relays are at hand. The system may soon be put in use at laboratories desiring exact time and by other industries requiring exact standard time in several places.

STANDARD SIGNALS TO BE TRANSMITTED

Bureau of Standards Announces Schedule of Frequencies for Coming Months.

The Bureau of Standards has just announced a schedule of special signals of standard frequency for use in testing laboratories and transmitting stations in standardizing wave meters and adjusting transmitting and receiving apparatus. The advantage to the fans of these signals lies in the fact that selectivity is increased when a particular station adheres to its particular frequency. Following is the schedule for July, August and September:

Eastern Standard Time.	July 7	Aug. 5	Sep. 5	Sep 22
11:00 to 11:08 p. m.	1363 (220)	125 (2400)	300 (1000)	550 (545)
11:12 to 11:20 p. m.	1430 (210)	133 (2254)	315 (952)	650 (461)
11:24 to 11:32 p. m.	1500 (200)	143 (2097)	345 (869)	750 (400)
11:36 to 11:44 p. m.	1600 (187)	155 (1934)	375 (800)	833 (360)
11:48 to 11:56 p. m.	1700 (176)	166.5 (1800)	425 (705)	1000 (300)
12:00 to 12:08 a. m.	1800 (167)	205 (1463)	500 (600)	1200 (250)
12:12 to 12:20 a. m.	1900 (158)	260 (1153)	600 (500)	1350 (222)
12:24 to 12:32 a. m.	2000 (150)	315 (952)	666 (450)	1500 (200)

MOONLIGHT WIRELESS TESTS

Experimenters Will Study Problems Affecting Transmission.

Believing that problems affecting the transmission and reception of signals are a long way from being solved to the satisfaction of the radio public, the technical department of the American Radio Relay League is giving increasing thought to the development of its experimental section.

Various phenomena connected with radio reception will be studied under a variety of weather conditions by men whose different geographic locations add much to the importance and value of the data gained in this manner. The effect of the moon's phases upon reception, signal strength in daylight, dead spots, and efficiency of wave lengths below 90 meters will be explored.

NEUTRODYNE PRODUCTION

Announcement is made by R. T. Pierson, president Hazeltine Corporation, that schedule of production of neutrodyne receiving sets, combining all of the 14 sublicensees of the Haezltine Corporation, for the year 1924 will be over 12 times the production attained by all sublicensees in 1923. Plants and installations to this capacity now have been completed. Retail sales value of factory built neutrodyne receiving sets sold during 1923 was recently placed at $3,295,000.

NAVY RADIO STATIONS BECOMING MODERNIZED

New and Improved Equipment Supplanting Older Installations.

Modernization of radio equipment in the navy both afloat and ashore is making for great efficiency in continuous communications, recent reports from the Navy Department announce. By the time of the next general maneuvers the majority of our fighting craft will be equipped with the last word in tube transmitters, as well as more efficient receiving sets, and have their circuits so adjusted as to be able to send and receive several messages at once. Submarine vessels have improved their radio communication systems both as to range and reliability more than any other class of craft.

Most of the high-powered shore naval stations are now equipped with new or improved transmitters, and considerable intereference has been eliminated. At Heeia, H. T., a new set has been installed, and similar equipment for Pearl Harbor is now being put in place. These transmitters will eliminate considerable "mush" and harmonics, and improve local reception. All other naval stations will soon receive apparatus of this sort.

A new coupled radio circuit at Annapolis, Md., has been set up and tested, eliminating interfering radiations, but the range has been somewhat reduced. Radio messages for the commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, however, broadcast from Annapolis, has been sent directly, insuring immediate delivery.

At naval radio central in Washington, the Creed Recording Apparatus for high-speed code reception, coupled with the Taylor differential receiver as a static eliminator, has worked out exceptionally well. Tests made on June 10, on a tape recorder, brought in 95 per cent of the messages at the rate of 30 words a minute from Station UFT, Sainte Assise, France when regular reception was poor from Cavey, Balboa and San Diego on account of heavy static. Another test showed 100 per cent reception from France at from 40 to 50 words per minute, while ordinary reception was impossible. When present experiments are completed, the navy looks for reception in Washington from San Diego and other distant points at a rate of 100 to 150 words per minute. The tests showed that the greater the speed, the less the interference of static is recorded.

On the Trans-Pacific work, the navy now uses five eastward schedules a day in place of two, between Cavite and San Francisco, with increasing efficiency. A report from Hawaii states that recently the entime broadcast from the Arlington 6 KW tube set reached the Hilo station during daylight with good signal strength. Washington, on the other hand, has received Cavite direct, but this was called a freak transmission.

A new 100 KW arc set which was installed at Mare Island, in May, gives San Francisco two 100 KW sets, one for use to Honolulu and the other on the Washington circuit direct.

A circuit from the Dutch station at Malabar in Java, to San Francisco has been perfected, and a westbound, relay circuit from San Francisco, via Honolulu, Guam, and Cavite, to Malabar, will be opened soon, a naval announcement states.

Commenting on the Navy's service across the Pacific to Manila, a press association said that this work was the best job the navy was doing on the West Coast. Were it not for this service, the association official said, the newspapers in Manila would be practically cut off from press communication with the United States, and have to rely upon foreign news services from the Far East.

RADIO ABROAD

Radio has been legalized in Portugal. The Government of that country has just issued authority to install and operate radio telephone apparatus, which for the first time gives amateurs the legal right to install receiving sets.

The Irish are having trouble trying to decide who is to pay for broadcasting. A committee of the Dail Eireann recommended that radiocasting be made a state affair. Business men in Ireland oppose such a course, claiming it would constitute too big a drain on the Government. The problem will be settled within a few weeks.

Radio ras taken another step toward displacing the cables. The Great Northern Telegraph Co. of England has announced its intention to purchase the Scotland Stonehaven radio station. It is believed the Stonehaven station will be used for commercial purposes.

Atoms and the atomic structure have come to the attention of the radio engineers so much of late that it is interesting to note what one distinguished English scientist, Dr. F. W. Aston, has to say on the power contained in these atoms.

It is a practical certainty, he remarked, that four neutral atoms of hydrogen gas weigh more than one neutral atom of helium gas, though they contain the same fundamental units. If we could transmute four atoms of hydrogen into one atom of helium, matter would be destroyed. This would release an almost inconceivable amount of power. A pint of water, could the hydrogen in it be converted into helium, would propel the Mauretania across the Atlantic and back at full speed. A half a drop of water inside a vacuum tube would operate the tube, without batteries, for several human litefimes.

Some interesting observations on the soldering of copper wire have been reported to the Academy of Sciences in Paris by Thadee Peczalski. This scientist has concluded, as the result of a long series of experiments, that the mineral salts frequently used in fluxes for soldering or for welding, actually penetrate to some extent into the substance of the copper.

He has discovered, for example, that when an electric arc is struck between copper electrodes made of metal that has been soldered or welded with mineral fluxes, the conductivity of the arc is lessened; an effect which he ascribes to the atoms of mineral salts absorbed by the copper from the flux and then set free by the high temperature of the electric arc.

The use of such mineral salt fluxes is found to have, in addition, an effect on the hardness of the copper on which they have been used. It is probable, however, that the absorption of the other substances by the copper does not proceed much beyond the layers of metal closest to the surface.

The effect of this absorption upon the electrical conductivity for direct currents is apparently very slight. What happens with radio-frequency currents, which are known to travel mainly in the surface layers of a conductor, has not yet been determined.

It is reported that an attempt was made to destroy the great radio station at Koenigswuesterhausen, Germany. In fact, one mast was actually brought down. The guards frightened away the intruders by firing their revolvers. No motives have been discovered for this peculiar attempt at destruction.

The most surprising thing this week in the "death ray" situation is the fact that the majority of us mere mortals have been so stupid as not to have invented our own pet private killer of the sort. Two weeks ago it was announced in these columns that nearly every European Power had at least one death-ray inventor. Now England has been stricken with another one.

Ten loud speakers ranged in a circle around the band stands of several parks are replacing the summer band concerts in a number of English towns. The expense to the municipality is less and the quality of music that can be provided is much improved.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer.

Q. (1) Can you furnish me with blue prints and specifications for an eight-tube super-heterodyne receiver with a list of the necessary parts? (2) What parts of a three-tube Erla reflex set could I use in building a super-heterodyne?

J. H.

9. (1) Diagram and explanation of the construction of an eight-tube super-heterodyne receiver appeared in the March 29, 1924, issue of the Saturday Radio Guide (Post-Dispatch). We do not have radio blue prints for distribution. The information you desire is also contained in "The Super-Heterodyne Manual," by Victor Grieff, published by the Receptrad Press, 57 Bank street, New York City, N. Y. It may be obtained at a number of radio dealers in St. Louis. (2) Your three vacuum tubes, three sockets, rheastats, telephone jacks, audio frequency amplifying transformers, "A" and "B" batteries, head phones or loud speaker and .0005 mfd. variable condenser may be used in a super-heterodyne receiver. It is assumed that you used either 199 or "A" tubes in your reflex receiver. It would be advisable to use the same kind in your "super" set.

Q. I have become interested in radio through the recent acquisition of some radio apparatus. Can you give me a diagram and particulars on how to hook up a set? The parts consist of a loose-coupler without switcharm or contact points, a crystal detector and headphones.

M. F.

A. We would suggest that you take the parts to a radio dealer who will assemble them for you, as well as make any necessary repairs on the loose-coupler. A diagram for a crystal receiver with adjusting buzzer appeared in the Nov. 25, 1923 issue of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Q. What size wire should be used in winding a vario-coupler?

W. B.

A. Twenty-four for the secondary and 22 for the primary will serve.

Q. Is there a broadcasting station "KKK?" I believe I heard an announcer say, "This is Station "KKK."

A. A. M.

A. We have no record of the station you mention.

Q. (1) Can the C-301-A tube be used with dry cells, and how many connected in series would be necessary for proper filament voltage? I have a five-tube set. (2) Have been using a 50-foot single wire aerial with a 30-foot lead in. Would I get better results if I increased the aerial to 100 feet, using the same lead-in? (3) What is the proper resistance condenser and grid-leak to use with 23-plate variable condenser?

I. B.

A. (1) Yes, dry cells may be used for the operation of "A" tubes, but if you are using five tubes, it would be much more satisfactory to use a storage battery, as dry cells are comparatively short-lived when used for supplying the filaments of the larger tubes. Four connected in series, would suffice, although four more in addition, connected in parallel with the first four, making a series-parallel connection would be the best. (2) During the summer months you would have the best results using the short aerial, as a longer one would "pick up" more interference and static, without materially increasing the range of your set. (3) The resistance of a grid-leak is entirely dependent upon the tube with which it is used. In fact, so much so, that whenever the detector tube is changed the grid-leak should be readjusted. No definite value of resistance can be given as the "best." It can only be determined by experimentation with each individual tube.

Q. The following questions are submitted concerning the Australian circuit which was published in the radio section of the Post-Dispatch, June 15: (1) Will this set work satisfactorily using one WD-12 tube and one UV-199 tube? (2) Can one rheostat be used to control the two tubes in this set, if two UV-199 tubes were used?

R. J.

A. (1) Yes. It would be advisable to use the WD-12 as the detector and the UV-199 tube as the amplifier. (2) If different types of tubes are used two rheostats should be employed, but with two "199's" or two WD 12's might be controlled with the same resistance, although better filament control would be possible with two separate rheostats.

Tube Connections.

The connection tips of the vacuum tubes sometimes become corroded or dirty, and the tube will not make proper connection in the tube socket. To correct this, take a piece of fine emery cloth and shine up the lead on the tips till they are bright, and then put the tube back in the socket and notice the difference in the strength of signals.

RADIO CONFERENCE LATE IN SEPTEMBER

Numerous Advantages Probable as Result of Latest Postponement.

Just before Secretary Hoover left last week for a two months' vacation, it became known that he would not call the third radio conference before September.

His decision followed a conference with governmental officials, including Judge Davis, Solicitor of the Commerce Department, and Chief Supervisor of Radio, Terrell. It developed that the press of important matters, the campaign, the heat, the details of the radio program, and several other difficulties interfered with holding the proposed radio conference in Washington this summer. The Secretary has practically decided to call the conference late in September, although no official pronouncement has been made.

This postponement is not without its advantage. The radio section of the Bureau of Navigation is being expanded and may have to be moved; the agenda for the radio sessions has not yet been worked out, and reports from the many interests to be invited, giving their views on subjects to be considered by the conference, are desired. The Pan American Electrical Communication Conference in Mexico has not yet reported its attitude toward radio in the Americas, and many governmental officials active in radio work and development are still in Mexico City.

It is also believed that any recommendations made by the conference as to radio legislation would be more favorably received by Congress if presented fresh in the fall, rather than if drawn up now and held over until winter.

It is understood that, while the conference will be open to the public, only representatives of the several branches of the industry, the amateurs, broadcasters, engineers and listeners-in will be invited officially to participate in the deliberations. Special attention will be given to marine communications; that is, ship-to-ship and ship-to-shore communications, in the interest of safety at sea.

Battery Connections.

Many of the noises in a radio set can be traced to loose connections. Because these noises resemble static, it is [illegible] source for them is thought. Poor battery connections cause more "static" than any other one thing. Storage battery connections should be made by means of a clip which can be made to grip the terminals of the battery. Before connections to the battery each terminal should be given a medium coating of white vaseline. This prevents corrosion. It is preferable that the "B" battery connections also be made of a smaller clip than used on the storage battery; these clips should have a strong gripping power.

RADIO CONFERENCE LATE IN SEPTEMBER

Numerous Advantages Probable as Result of Latest Postponement.

Just before Secretary Hoover left last week for a two months' vacation, it became known that he would not call the third radio conference before September.

His decision followed a conference with governmental officials, including Judge Davis, Solicitor of the Commerce Department, and Chief Supervisor of Radio, Terrell It developed that the press of important matters, the campaign, the heat, the details of the radio program, and several other difficulties interfered with holding the proposed radio conference in Washington this summer. The Secretary has practically decided to call the conference late in September, although no official pronouncement has been made yet.

This postponement is not without its advantage. The radio section of the Bureau of Navigation is being expanded and may have to be moved; the agenda for the radio sessions has not yet been worked out, and reports from the many interests to be invited, giving their views on subjects to be considered by the conference, are desired. The Pan American Electrical Communication Conference in Mexico has not yet reported its attitude toward radio in the Americas, and many governmental officials active in radio work and development are still in Mexico City.

It is also believed that any recommendations made by the conference as to radio legislation would be more favorably received by Congress if presented fresh in the fall, rather than if drawn up now and held for three or four months.

It is understood that, while the conference will be open to the press and public, only representatives of the several branches of the industry, the amateurs, broadcasters, engineers and listeners-in will be invited officially to participate in the deliberations. Special attention will be given to marine communications; that is, ship-to-ship and ship-to-shore communications, in in the interest of safety at sea.

SPECIFICATIONS FOR TUBES ARE ANNOUNCED

Type Similar to WD-11 With Knife-Blade Contact Is Adopted.

The Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee at its meeting Friday, June 20, 1924, adopted a report submitted by its Subcommittee on Technical Problems, recommending specifications for a receiving tube for use by the Government departments and establishments. The tube adopted is electrically very similar to the present WD-11 tube and the base is of a size which will fit UV-199 sockets made by a number of manufacturers.

The new Government tube makes a radical change in the method of obtaining contact between the tube base and socket. A knife-blade type of contact is employed. A horizontal projection is formed at the end of the four base terminals, the socket for use with this tube having four pairs of spring clips with which these knife-blade projections engage. The diameter of the base is one-inch and the over-all height of the tube is not more than 3½ inches.

The filament requires 0.25 ampere with a nominal voltage of 1 0 volt. It will generally be used with 60 volts on the plate and a negative grid voltage of 3 volts.

The specifications adopted provide that the manufacturer shall submit a sample lot of 50 tubes for test. Tests to determine whether the tubes submitted meet these specifications will be conducted jointly by the Bureau of Standards, Signal Corps and the Bureau of Engineering (Navy Department). If the sample lot complies with the specifications, bids on these tubes will be acceptable for purchase by the Government departments.

The specifications cover the electrical characteristics which are essential, and the mechanical dimensions which must be followed in order to insure that the tubes will be interchangeable. It is left to the manufacturers to work out the detailed means by which this performance and construction may be accomplished.

The Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee has been assisted in the preparation of these specifications by the representatives of the manufacturing companies from which tubes have previously been purchased by the Government. It is understood that several manufacturers are prepared to produce tubes which meet these specifications and that two or three departments have delayed the placing of orders until these specifications were completed.

While the adoption of these specifications by the Interdepartment Radio Advisory Committee does not make their use mandatory, the fact that the principal purchasing departments participated actively in their preparation insures that they will be generally adopted. These specifications will be considered for adoption as a Government standard in the near future by a committee on radio apparatus, which has recently been formed by the Federal Specifications Board.

Each of the larger purchasing departments will probably issue these specifications in its own customary form. Copies of the specifications adopted by the Interdepartment Radio Advisory Committee may be secured from the secretary, Indepartment Radio Advisory Committee, room 603B, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON "TUNED IN" TO CONVENTION

Chief Executive Had Loud Speaker Installed in Cabinet Room of White House.

During the broadcasting of the Democratic national convention practically all official Washington stopped work a few minutes, every now and then to listen in on the "enemy camp meeting."

At the White House, however, where a loud speaker was installed in the Cabinet Room, the racket from demonstrations and the haranging of the speakers created so much disturbance as to interfere with the regular executive work, and it is understood the President had the apparatus turned off. Earlier in the week, during the press conference, the noise from the convention penetrated the President's own office to such an extent that members of the press asked the chief executive to speak louder. He did so until an attache closed the door to the Cabinet Room. It was perhaps just as well, for some of the Democratic remarks were far from complimentary toward the present administration.

A loud-speaking set was in operation in Secretary of War Week's office, another set entertained officers and employes of the Navy Department, while in the Commerce Department a superheterodyne set attracted many listeners. Secretary Hughes had a receiver in operation in one of the small reception rooms, where he usually receives the press, and many reporters stood by when not phoning in departmental announcements. The Agricultural Department, the Postoffice, Weather Bureau, Army Communication Headquarters also have receiving sets, and it is understood that good-sized crowds were in attendance when the signals were coming in.

At the National Press Club those correspondents left in Wahington to cover such news as broke during convention, foregathered to keep in touch with the political proceedings in New York.

CENSUS OF RECEIVERS MADE

Government Making Survey of Receivers Made in 1923.

The Bureau of Census is finishing up a census of radio sets and apparatus manufactured during the calendar year of 1923. This survey applies only to apparatus manufactued, and not to sets in use or the distribution of stme.

The enumeration being taken is part of a general census on the electrical machinery and apparatus industry. The specific products to be tabulated under radio apparatus include: receiving sets, tube and crystal, loud speakers, head phones, transmitting sets, transformers, rheostats, lightning arresters and miscellaneous parts. Motor generators come under the general head of electric generators, and radio tubes are classified under vacuum tubes, with x-ray tubes. Both the number of pieces of apparatus manufactured and the total value are being recorded. It is understood that a final report will not be made for at least a month or two.

Soldering Copper and Brass.

For all electrical work, where copper and brass are to be soldered, only rosin should be used. Any paste or liquid will corrode the metals, and it is a difficult job to get all the paste off after a joint is made.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

The Benjamin Electric Manufacturing Co. have placed on the market a non-microphonic vacuum tube socket which has been highly praised by radio experts. It is moulded of genuine bakelite and is available in any sizes to fit all standard tube bases. The tube holding element floats on light springs which act as shock absorbers. As a result, tube noises, resulting from tuning, vibration and jarring, is entirely eliminated. These sockets are especially desirable for use in portable receivers. The contact springs are provided with slots which automatically clean the prongs of the tube each time it is inserted in the socket. The contacts cannot come loose because they are firmly fastened with riveted eyelets. Bus-bar wiring attached to the binding posts can, in no way, affect the shock absorbing action of the socket, as the springs serve a dual purpose of absorbing all vibration, and carrying the current from the binding posts, to socket springs. These sockets are known as the "Cle-ra-tone," and are on sale at a number of local radio dealers.

Dutch radio valves (tubes), can now be obtained in St. Louis. They compare favorably with the products of two well-known manufacturers as was proven in recent tests. Dutch valves may be obtained in four models, as follows: D-201-A. Will work equally well for audio or radio frequency amplification. Filament voltage 5-6. Current consumption rated at ¼ ampere. Plate voltage, 22½-90. D-200 is essentially a detector tube. It operates on 6 volts and consumes 1 ampere. Plate voltage 22½. D-199 is practically the same as the D-201-A, except that the filament voltage is 3 to 4, while the current consumption is rated about 1-10 ampere. As it is a smaller tube, its capacity is somewhat less than those of the "A" type. The D-12 is the "peanut" tube. It is both an amplifier and a detector, operating on a 1⅛-volt dry cell and consuming ¼ ampere current. plate voltage 22½-90. All of these tubes are fitted with standard bases, although the D-199 may be obtained with small sized bases.

The Kilo-Coupler is made up of 40 turns of wire on a four-inch bakelite cylinder with 40 more turns on a 1⅞-inch rotor cylinder inside. It is designed to cover broadcast frequencies and is manufactured by the David Killoch Company.

The sheltran audio frequency transformer made by the Crosley Radio Corporation has been changed somewhat in its outward "dress," although its electrical design remains the same. As a result of the changes, the transformer is very compact and will fit in a space 2 inches by 2½ inches and the base is drilled and threaded so as to make it easily fastened to a panel or base with only a small machine screw. The leads now come from one end and are plainly marked for both primary and secondary and numbered P—1, P—2, S—1 and S—2. The new arrangement of the leads from the primary and secondary makes it possible to use less wire in connecting to other apparatus and the soldering to these four terminals is quickly done. Nuts are furnished for those who do not desire to make permanent connections to the transformer. The ratio of this transformer remains the same, 3 to 1.

Reckoning the Upkeep.

The upkeep and expense of a radio set varies in proportion to the number of tubes in use. There is little expense involved in repairs to the set itself. Replacement of batteries is the principal item that enters into the cost of operation. The upkeep expense of a crystal set is practically nil, as nothing must be replaced except an occasional crystal costing 15 or 25 cents.

A Lucky Dog

I ran across Richards last week as he was coming out of the front door of a local hotel. Jolly old Richards—I hadn't seen him for two years.

You see, we used to work for the same house. He and I were the only bachelors in the place. We used to knock about together evenings.

Merry days, those! But neither of us ever saved a cent. Richards was always broke by Friday, and so was I.

Finally the old boy got a position elsewhere—about the same salary; but there was a girl in the office—the chief's secretary.

Well, anyway, in a month or so we heard he was married. I remember wondering how he had the nerve to do it, broke as he always was.

* * * *

Of course, he insisted the other night that I run out home to dinner with him—he and Mrs. R., it seems, have a corking little bungalow.

Naturally I went—my thoughts busy with some of the "high lights" of the good old days. "You know," grinned Richards, when I dropped a hint of one of the old-time frolics, "I like 'em as well as ever, but dang it, man, I like this shack better."

I don't wonder either. The wizard has got the bungalow nearly paid for. (I'm still busted every Friday night.) Moreover, he's been offered two thousand more than he paid for it but he won't sell.

And you'd understand why if you ever saw that little garden of his, or the living room lit up at night.
A wife and a bungalow in the suburbs. Richards was always a lucky dog.

* * * *

The above story is true—but the conclusion is false. Richards is not "lucky"—he is wise. We often mistake Luck for Pluck.

Luck and good business judgment are two very different things.

A man who has the wisdom to buy property in St. Louis or in the suburbs, and who saves money and becomes happy (as he is bound to) may be called "lucky."

But his luck consists in having a discriminating mind, shrewd judgment—and sufficient energy to investigate the opportunities that appear every day in the Real Estate columns of the Post-Dispatch.

You will be the lucky man TOMORROW, if you act upon this suggestion TODAY.

Total	$976.89

The week's additions to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund amounted to only $56.64, making the total sum in the fund to date just $976.89, which is more than $250 short of the total on July 6 last year. The cost of supplying ice to 585 families during the month just past approximates $1600, and unless the friends of the babies rally to their assistance the work in their behalf this season will be seriously curtailed during July and August, the two most trying months of the heated period.

A number of benefit affairs were reported last week, indicating that St. Louis children are taking cognizance of the fact that, despite cool weather, the need for ice distribution among the tenement children continues. It is hoped that adult contributors to the fund will respond promptly also, preventing delay in the work of the fund.

Little Girls Aid Fund.

Three little girls made the high-mark donation of the week, when they earned $9.78 selling lemonade and candy from a stand at 4621 McPherson avenue. Their names follow: Francine Hammer, Elinor Levis and Betty Enwere.

A check for $3.65 came from Ruth Schieber, Virginia Chappel, Margaret Schieber, Dorothy Chappell, Lucille Lasbury, Marie Graser, Alberta Calmer, Cathern Dalis and Lucille Greiner, who gave a matinee and an evening performance at 1525 Union boulevard.

Five boys realized $3.25 by giving a show and sent the money to the Ice Fund. The workers were: Llewellyn Sale, Richard Cronheim, Leslie Lieber Jr., Samuel Langsdorf Jr. and Nickey Scharff.

A show at 5909 Washington boulevard brought $1.71. It was given by Caroline Veatch, Frank and Ruth Novosan, Margaret Gillam and Eugene Caffarata.

Hazel, Ellen and Carol Harley conducted a stand and sold refreshments at 5626 Kennerly avenue and earned $1 for the Fund."

Play Presented.

Carol and Elenore Meier, Mary Francis Hazelton, Billy Carrel, aMrgaret and Ruth Joy presented a play at 221 Wesley avenue, Ferguson, and sent the proceeds of 75 cents to the Ice Fund. A similar enterprise in Kinloch, Mo., under the management of Beatrice Nagle, Mary Nagle, Viola Amos, Catherine Amos, Marie Amos, Lois May Boyd, Chas. Leroy Boyd. Francis Amos and Edna Amos earned 50 cents for the fund.

Mary Nancy Gerber and Esmerda Mayes managed a lemonade stand which brought $2 for the fund.

Cash donations include $10 from the Lopequi Club of the Y. W. C. A., formerly the Stix Baer and Fuller Mother's Club; $5 from Edw. G. Platt Jr.; $5 from the Rev. O. W. H. Lindemeyer, 3448 Texas avenue; $5 from Mrs. Louis Renard 4463 Westminster place; $2 from Wieder and Virginia Dillie Sievers. 4957 McPherson avenue; $5 from the Christian Workers Society of Harney Heights; and $1 each from Jacob Ruwart, 6069A Shulte avenue and J. E. Thomson, Buckingham Hotel.

COWBOY'S POETRY GETS HIM COMPLIMENT FROM KIPLING

British Author Listens to Recital by "Skeeter Bill" in Box at Rodeo Show.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 5.—One sunny afternoon last week, two poets sat in the rodeo arena at the British Empire exhibition at Wembley and had a long chat about bronchos, steers and poetry. One of the poets was Skeeter Bill, cowboy versifier, while the other, less known of the ranching world but familiar elsewhere, was Rudyard Kipling.

The Englishman wanted to hear Skeeter recite some of his verses and the cowboy modestly complied.

"Your poetry is good because it is real," was the attentive author when the cowboy had finished. "You are a real poet because you write of things just as you see them."

Skeeter returned the compliment with admiring remarks.

Quality Remains When Price Is Forgotten

GOOD Furniture is an investment that pays daily dividends in satisfaction, comfort and enjoyment. The lure of a seeming bargain should not divert your thoughts from the all-important question of quality.

Any Price You Pay for Cheap Furniture Is High

We hold no brief for high prices—but furniture may be too cheap to be good. Mere surface gaudiness and price-appeal may dazzle the shopper who is not a judge of furniture—but it is false economy to buy cheap, poorly-built furniture.

Quality Furniture at the Cost of Commonplace

The gaudy and bizarre find no place on our floors. The most inexperienced shopper can buy here with the assurance that everything we sell is good—correct in design—and correct in price. Furniture need not be expensive to be good. You will find here many stylish Suites, fine examples of good cabinet making, elegant woods—marked to meet your most optimistic price expectations.

Performs 45,000 Appendicitis Operations

Berlin Doctor Retires After Operating 32 Years

Dr. Joseph Rotter, a noted German specialist, has retired after having performed 45,000 operations for appendicitis, according to newspaper reports.

A Treacherous Disease.

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by so-called stomach trouble, constipation or similar disturbances. Often when there is a warning feeling of uneasiness in the abdomen, appendicitis can be guarded against in the same manner in which one guards against the spread of throat infection, because that is just what appendicitis is—an infection in the intestines spreading to the appendix. When one has sore throat, one can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to fight the germs and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. The same procedure is necessary to fight the intestinal germs and guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing [illegible] can dislodge. It brings out all [illegible] thus immediately relieving pressure [illegible] the heart. It is astonishing the [illegible] amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more [illegible] matter it brings out which was [illegible] you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports from Physicians

"The Goldfis "Tiger Lo On Pho

"A Son of the Sahara," " "By Right of the Strong Breath" Are Also Amo

The screen adaptation of "The Goldfish," goes on this week at the Grand Central Theater. It is a First National picture starring Constance Talmadge with Jack Mulhall in the leading male role.

The title is taken from a premarriage agreement entered into by a young married couple. Before the wedding they decide that if either becomes dissatisfied and wants to leave he or she will signify this desire by merely presenting the other with a goldfish, thus eliminating all argument and unnecessary emotional tangles.

They quarrel and a mysterious man enters the wife's life to inform her that she "has great possibilities for advancement if she will eliminate her present mistake," meaning her husband. This transpires and she is twice married and divorced after that, progressing all the time as promised by the professor. All the while, however, she still longs for her first husband and there is a happy ending.

Victor Herbert Memorial Week is observed by the orchestra and Stuart Barrie, organist. Every note of music played at the theater is Herbert's.

"A Son of the Sahara" is featured at the Lyric Skydome and Capitol. It was "shot" in its entirety in Arabia with genuine desert settings, real Arabs and camels.

Bert Lytell, Claire Windsor, Walter McGrail, Rosemary Theby and Montagu Love have the principal roles. Miss Windsor plays an English heiress whose father years before was responsible for the death of a popular Sheik. Lytell, French by birth but reared by the executed Sheik, is a combination city gentleman and desert chieftain. McGrail is a French officer in love with the English girl and Miss Theby is Lytell's harem slave.

"A Son of the Saraha" remains for four days only at the Skydome and West End Lyric, giving way on Wednesday to the film version of George M. Cohan's play, "George Washington Jr.," with Wesley Barry and Gertrude Olmstead.

The week's feature at the Rivoli is "Between Friends," with a notable cast including Lou Tellegen, Norman Kerry, Alice Calhoun and Anna Q. Nilsson. This is a picturization of a novel by Robert W. Chambers.

A George Melford production, "Tiger Love," is the Paramount picture being shown at the Missouri Theater this week. Tony Moreno and Estelle Taylor are the featured players. "Tiger Love" is the adaptation of the light opera "The Wildcat," by Manuel Penella. It is the story of a haughty daughter of Spanish aristocracy loved by a dashing bandit of the Robin Hood type, who steals from the rich and gives to the poor. Spain is the background for this romantic photoplay.

It is the story of a haughty daughter of Spanish aristocracy loved by a dashing bandit of the Robin Hood type, who steals from the rich and gives to the poor. Spain is the background for this romantic photoplay.

The Wildcat, while on one of his nocturnal plundering expeditions, meets Marcheta, daughter of an aristocrat, whose home he is robbing. Marcheta, filled with fear, cannot help but admire the daring of this fearless bandit. The Wildcat reflects her sentiment, and they both sense a love for each other.

Marcheta is chosen by her father to marry Don Ramon. A gorgeous wedding feast, characteristic of old Spain, is prepared and on the eventful day the Wildcat, hearing of the proposed ceremony, gathers his band and comes to rescue his bride. Yerkes' Flotilla Orchestra is the Missouri's stage offering.

The Delmonte is putting on two feature pictures—both full length—this week, together with a Sunshine comedy, a singer and the usual news filbs, which contain more shots of the Democratic national convention.

The feature films are "His Forgotten Wife," with Madge Bellamy as the star, and "The Right of the Strongest," in which E. K. Lincoln is the featured player.

The story of "His Forgotten Wife" tells of a war hero who loses his memory, but is nursed back to health and marries his nurse. He and his wife find hard times in New York and the soldier goes to work as a butler in the house where he was once the master. There are some complicated situations which work out all right, for in the end the man recovers his mind and also his property and the villains in the piece are properly foiled.

"By Right of the Strongest" is described as a romantic melodrama, the action dealing with the

Read Papers, or You Can't Laugh at Rogers

By HEYWOOD BROUN.
Drama Editor of the New York World.

NEW YORK, July 5.

ALTHOUGH Will Rogers is just about the most popular and successful comedian on the American stage, he seldom gets his best results on opening nights.

"If I had to play before first night audiences all the time," says Rogers, "I wouldn't last a week in the show business."

Now Rogers has played before all sorts of audiences and requires no specialized group. Certainly his appeal is not limited to Broadway. His method is broad enough to embrace the attention of practically all kinds of theatergoers. And yet first nighters he does not hit head-on.

As a matter of fact, there is one requirement for the enjoyment of Rogers. If the members of the audience haven't read the newspapers, Rogers can't get them. Any newspaper from any part of the country will do, but the monologue is absolutely dependent on a familiarity with current news. Rogers changes his material almost daily. He is the box-score final edition comedian.

It may be that the regular first nighters are not much addicted to the news, or at any rate they are concerned chiefly with some small department of the news—theatrical or financial—or something of that kind. Rogers draws chiefly on politics as the basis of his views and observations.

At the New Amsterdam Theater, on the opening night, he was several jumps ahead of his audience. A comment on the misadventures of Lodge in the Cleveland convention brought almost no response. The audience had heard of Lodge, but it was exceedingly hazy as to what had happened at Cleveland. On the second night everything was changed. The background of this group was quite different from that of the first-nighters. These people knew all about Coolidge and Dawes, and the discomfiture of the old-line leaders in the Republican convention. This was a group that Rogers could work with.

In recent years Rogers has gone quite largely into the lecture business and more particularly after-dinner speaking. His services are

Frances Peralta Will Sing in "Carmen"

FRANCES PERALTA, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing the title role of "Carmen" in the production of that opera announced for the Municipal Theater, the week of Aug. 24. This announcement is made by Guy Golterman, who is in charge of the production.

Other members of the Metropolitan organization who will take part in the "Carmen" production are Roberto Moranzoni as conductor and Bonfiglio, premier male dancer of the Metropolitan. Armando Agnini, stage manager, will also be borrowed from the Metropolitan.

As eight performances are to be given, a double cast will be engaged, and the names of other singers engaged will be announced later. The engagement of Miss Peralta follows her successful debut in "Carmen" at the Polo Grounds, New York, before an audience of 20,000.

Miss Peralta sang in the first operatic production in the St. Louis Municipal Theater, that of "Aida," the night of June 5, 1917, when the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World was in attendance. She alternated in the title role, at the later performances, with Marie Rappold. She has been a member of the Metropolitan organization since Christmas, 1920, her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House having been in Boito's "Mefistofele."

Frances Peralta, dramatic soprano, to sing "Carmen" in Municipal Theater, week of Aug. 24.

Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller" On Open Air Stage

Dorothy Maynard Will Have Dual Leading Role in Light Opera, With Comedy Staff Working Full Time.

LIGHT opera returns to the Municipal Theater this week, with the production of Victor Herbert's "The Fortune Teller." This work, which has been sung on downtown stages here by Alice Nielsen, was presented in the 1921 season of the Municipal Opera. It has been declared to rival "Robin Hood" for the distinction of being the best operetta created in America. Reginal de Koven was the composer of "Robin Hood," and Harry B. Smith wrote the librettos of both operas.

"The Fortune Teller" was Herbert's third operetta. The original cast included Miss Nielsen, Eugene Cowles and Joseph Cawthorn, and later Marguerita Sylva succeeded Miss Nielsen.

The story is located in Hungary, and the principal characters are Sandor, a gypsy musician; Fresco, ballet master and stage manager of the Grand Opera House in Budapest; Count Berezowski, who fancies he is a great composer and pianist; Capt. Ladislas, a hussar; Musette, a gypsy fortune teller; Boris, her father, chief of the tribe; Mlle. Pom-Pom, a comic opera prima donna, and Irma, a pupil at Fresco's ballet school. As the plot turns upon the close resemblance between Irma and Musette, Dorothy Maynard will play both roles, besides donning trousers in one emergency to impersonate her twin brother.

Irma, the Fortune Hunter, is heiress to a great estate. The proof of her birth is contained in an emerald bracelet, and Count Berezowski, who happens upon the secret, tries to win her hand, and bribes Fresco to aid him. But Irma is in love with Capt. Ladislas. Her brother, Feedor, also an officer in the hussars, has run away from his regiment to visit Mlle. Pom-Pom, and Capt. Ladislas comes to seek him at the ballet school. He plans an elopement with Irma, as a means of saving her from the Count.

A gypsy band arrives, including Musette, Brois and Sandor. Musette is so much like Irma that Fresco is deceived at first; on discovering his mistake he bargains with Boris to substitute Musette for Irma. The gypsy girl pretends to agree.

As the wedding of Musette and Berezowski is about to take place, Sandor, obtaining an interview with Musette, induces her to leave with him. Irma appears and is taken by Fresco for Musette. Both Ladislas and Sanor lay claim to Irma, the latter mistaking her for Musette.

Easy to Fool Them.

To escape, Irma puts on her brother's uniform, and affairms that she is the missing Feodor. She is arrested as a deserter, after which matters are cleared up.

This will be the second production of the season in which Miss Maynard has taken the leading role, the first having been "Firefly." It is announced that Dorothy Francis, prima donna soprano of the company, will return to the cast next week in "Lilac Domino." Raymond Crane will have the role of the fortune-hunting Count, and W. J. McCarthy will appear as Fresco, ballet master. Flavia Arcaro will be Mlle. Pom-Pom, and Detmar Poppen, Charles Hart and Roland Woodruff will have other principal roles.

The airs in "The Fortune Teller" include the popular song, "Gypsy Love," "Always Do as People Say You Should," "Czardas" and "Only in the Play."

"Prince of Pilsen," one of the most successful productions of the present season, will close tonight.

What They Are DOING IN Movie Studios

Adolph Menjou, who recently signed a long-term contract with Paramount, is to play the role of the philanderer in William de Mille's next production, "The Fast Set," the screen play by Clara Beranger from Frederick Lonsdale's stage success, "Spring Cleaning." Betty Compson is to play the role of the frivolous wife. Elliott Dexter has been engaged for the role of the husband.

Work has begun on settings for Mr. De Mille's next picture, "The Fast Set," which is an adaptation by Clara Beranger from Frederick Lonsdale's New York stage success, "Spring Cleaning."

The Paramount film version of William J. Locke's story, "The Mountebank," is to be released under the title, "The Side Show of Life." Ehnest Torrence and Anna Q. Nilsson have the featured roles.

After 10 days of exterior work at Eaton's Neck, Long Island, Agnes Ayres, Antonio Moreno, Tyrone Power, Maurice Costello, some sailorsc and Irvin Willat, director, returned to the Paramount Long Island studio to complete the filming of "Story Without a Name." Much of their time while away was spent sitting on the deck of a yacht waiting for the sun to come out.

Ernest Torrence, being 6 feet 3 inches in height, has already earned the distinction of being one of the tallest men in motion pictures, but in "The Side Show of Life." Ernest Torrence and Anna tion for Paramount which features Mr. Torrence and Anna Q. Nilsson, he will appear even taller. In his characterization as the clown in this picture, which was adapted from the famous William J. Locke story and play, "The Mountebank," Ernest has to wear a wig that increases his height to 7 feet 4 inches.

"Lily of the Dust" has been decided upon as the final title of Pola Negri's next Paramount picture. This production was started some time ago by Dimitri Buchowetzki, under the temporary title, "Compromised." Later this was changed to "The Passionate Journey" before production work was completed, and now "Lily of the Dust" has been definitely decided upon.

"Tongues of Flame," the last novel written by the late Peter Clark MacFarlane, has been purchased by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and will be made into a Paramount picture, with Thomas Meighan as the star.

READ PAPERS, OR YOU CAN'T LAUGH AT ROGERS

in great demand at large functions, and his style is precisely adapted to the needs of such occasions. Nevertheless, he is quite ready to admit one ghastly failure in a venture of this sort. He was engaged to talk at a dinner given by one of the most famous society leaders of New York, and he found that his material got no response whatsoever.

"Once that night," he said, "I was starting some line about the Irish, and one of the guests called out, 'You've got to be careful what you say about the Irish around here.' I told her, 'Lady, you've got to be careful what you say about the Irish any place.' They laughed at that, and it was he firs and the only laugh I got.

"Of course, I was terribly discouraged and I thought that maybe there was something wrong with the monologue and the whole way I do my stuff. But the next night I went up to Sing Sing with a show and they got every line. I didn't even have to wait for them. Most of the time they were ahead of me. They knew what I was talking about. When I got home I started to figure it out and I decided that those people at the party were no good to me as an audience because they never had time to read the newspapers. Up at Sing Sing they did."

Once again it has been proved that the presence of visitors in New York is less useful to the theater than the proper psychology. Any sort of outside excitement keeps people from thinking about the theaters and, consequently, from going to them. Throughout the convention business has been very bad, even for the biggest successes. On several evenings there have been no night sessions at the convention, but even then few people have found their way into the theater. Apparently they have stayed at home and talked politics. Or, at any rate, they have stayed at home.

My first opinion of the convention was that it was a poor show and did not deserve a long run. But after the Saturday night session I thought better of it. No theater has ever housed any drama as gripping as the klan debate and vote in the Democratic convention. If this same suspense and excitement could be captured by any playwright his show never would stop running.

Grand Opera House Bill.

A St. Louis family, the McLeods, father, mother and four children, will be at the Grand Opera House today, heading the nine-act vaudeville and picture program. They appear in "A Family Affair," a concoction of songs, chatter and dances. Other acts are Anna Vivian, rifle shot; Charles Leland and Rena St. Claire in "The Nut and the Reason"; Jean Boydell, "Pepologist"; and Trovato, violinist and comedian.

clash between a group of squatters in the mountains of Alabama and a young engineer, played by Lincoln, who comes to take their land away from them for a big water-power corporation. What he really does take, in the end, is the girl who was his bitterest enemy at the start.

The first Al Christie feature comedy, "Hold Your Breath," tops the bill at the Kings Theater. Dorothy Devore, who plays the leading role, has been dubbed "the female Harold Lloyd" by reason of her many daring, hair-raising and perilous stunts on the walls and roof of a 20-story sky-scraper in the congested down-town district of Los Angeles, where the scenes were taken. This is the story of a girl who starts out to hold down her brother's reportorial job on a paper. She does, but she rouses the whole town and almost breaks her neck before she succeeds. Walter Heirs plays the part of her fiance, who vainly attempts to follow her in her daring climbs, but without success, so he strews loads of hay and calls out the fire department to rescue her from her perilous position on an electric sign along the side of the skyscraper.

As an added feature is the first showing of "The Declaration of Independence" made by Yale University Press as one of the Chronicles of America series, in which are shown such well-known figures in American history as John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and John Hancock.

"EARLY PLAYS FROM THE ITALIAN," by R. Warwick Bond.

The plays given here are "Supposes" by Ariosto as translated and produced by George Gascoyne in 1566; "The Bugbears" and "Misogonus" both of about the same period. A long introductory essay points out elements of the Latin and early Italian comedy which are used by English dramatists.

"VOYAGES TO THE MOON AND SUN," by Cyrano de Bergerac; translated by Richard Aldington.

The translator has included a short "Life" of this most eccentric and fascinating seventeenth century humorist who was commonly considered mad.

"OCCUPATIONAL INFORMATION IN THE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL," by Thomas Cooke McCracken.

A concise little book which gives practical suggestions for occupational lessons for all grades.

"HOWELLS, JAMES, BRYANT AND OTHER ESSAYS," by William Lyon Phelps.

The author writes with freshness of style and vigor of enthusiasm about the lives and works of Bryant, Whitman, Thoreau, Lowell, Henry James, Howells, and Harrient Beecher Stowe. Many statements given as fact in accepted "histories of literature" are refuted by this author.

"THE LURE OF OLD PARIS," by C. H. Crichton.

The Boston Herald says, "It is mainly a book of Old Paris, the Paris that is eternal and unchanging, not the wartime or post-wartime city. Major Crichton fills every page with appeal for those who know Paris or those who are looking forward to visiting it."

MARGARET ETHEL MacDONALD, by J. Ramsey MacDonald.

A biography of his wife by the present Prime Minister of England, which tells much about her education, reading and social work.

"FIVE YEARS OLD OR THEREABOUTS," by Margaret Drummond.

Discusses the problems of the education of the pre-school child, and devotes a chapter to the nursery schools of England.

"MAN AS A GEOLOGICAL AGENT," by R. L. Sherlock.

What would the earth be like if man had never appeared on it to interfere with Nature? This is the theme of this detailed study of the changes made in the earth's surface by man since prehistoric times.

Soldier Indicted for Murder.

HONOLULU, June 20.—The Territorial grand jury indicted Private Z. B. Golden of the 55th Field Artillery, Fort Ruger, for murder in connection with the death of Private Richard Keating of Tunckhannock, Pa. Keating was found June 7 beaten to death with a rock. Golden's home is in Hice, La.

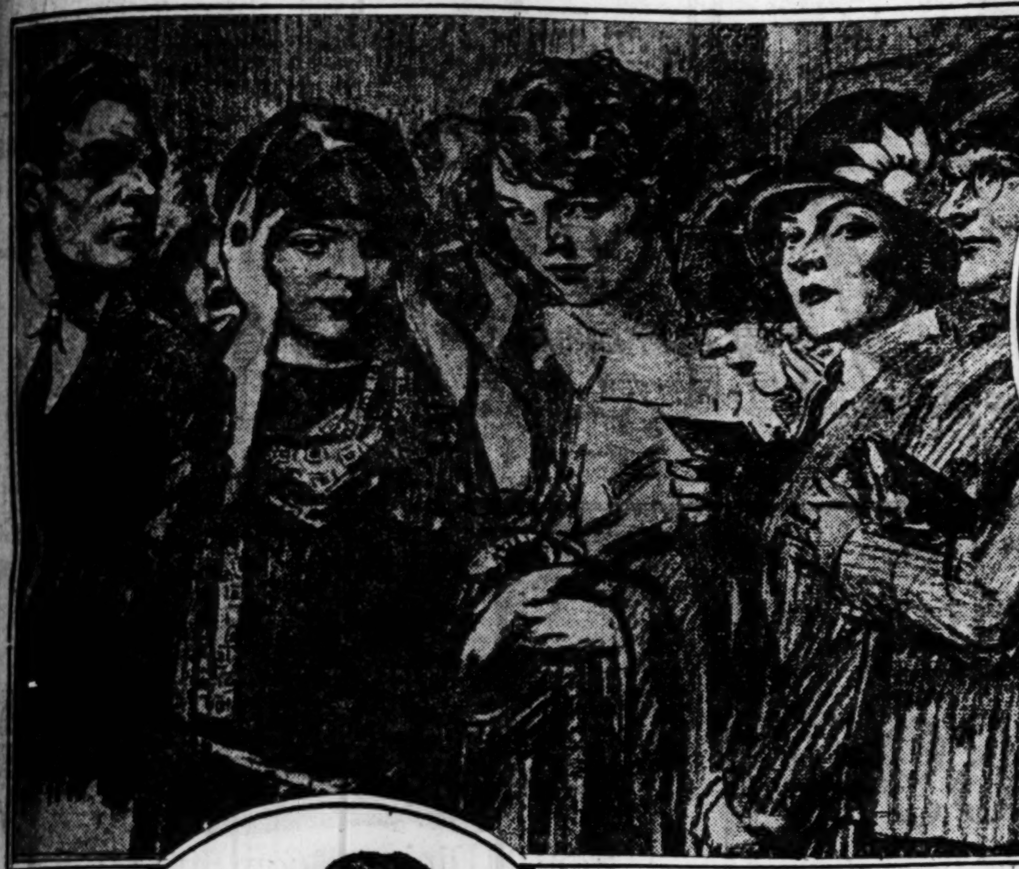
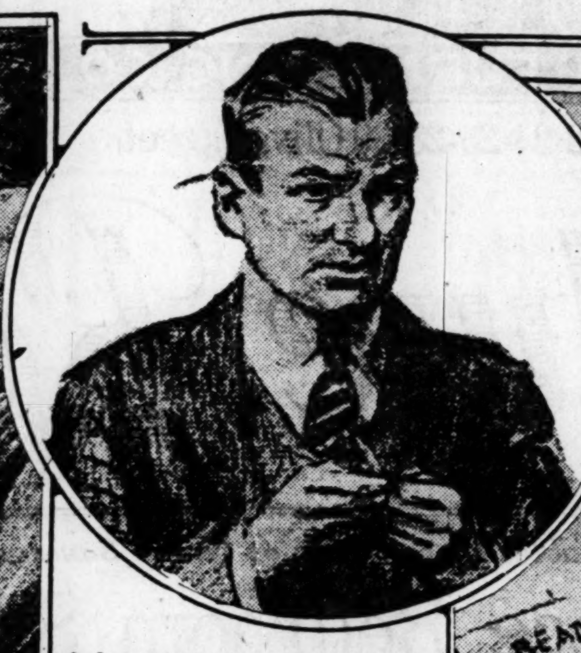
FIVE-THIRTY CLOSING

(Copyright, 1924.)

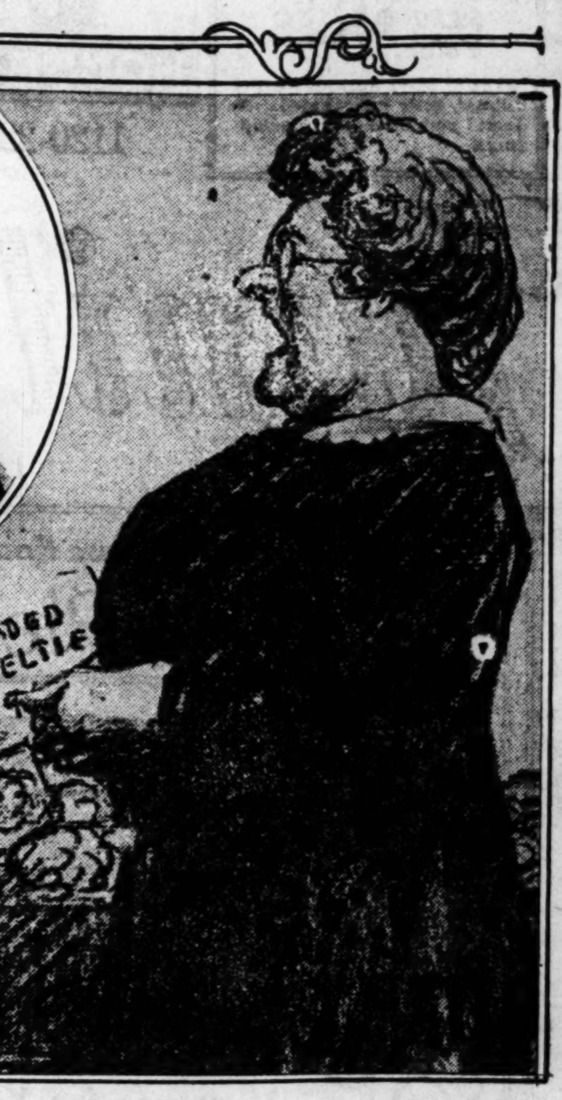
Drawn by W. E. Hill for the Sunday Post-Dispatch



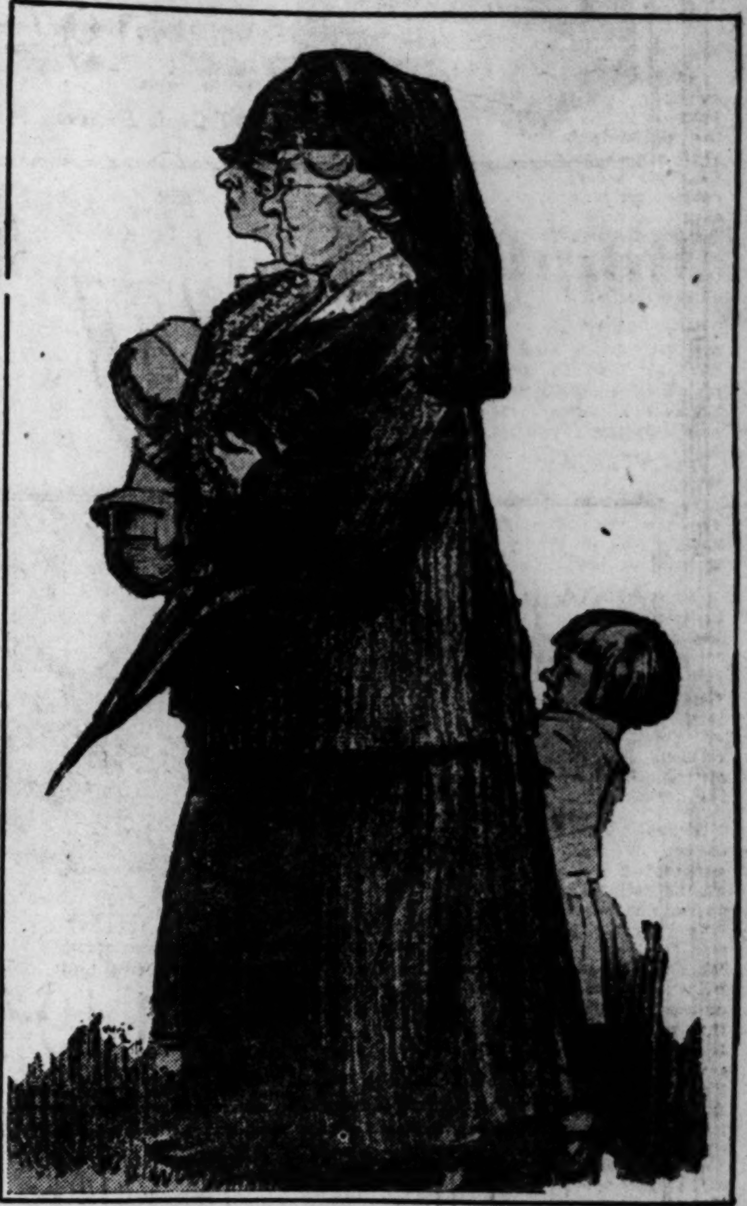
A 5:30 elevator load of tired salesladies. Nothing to do till tomorrow.



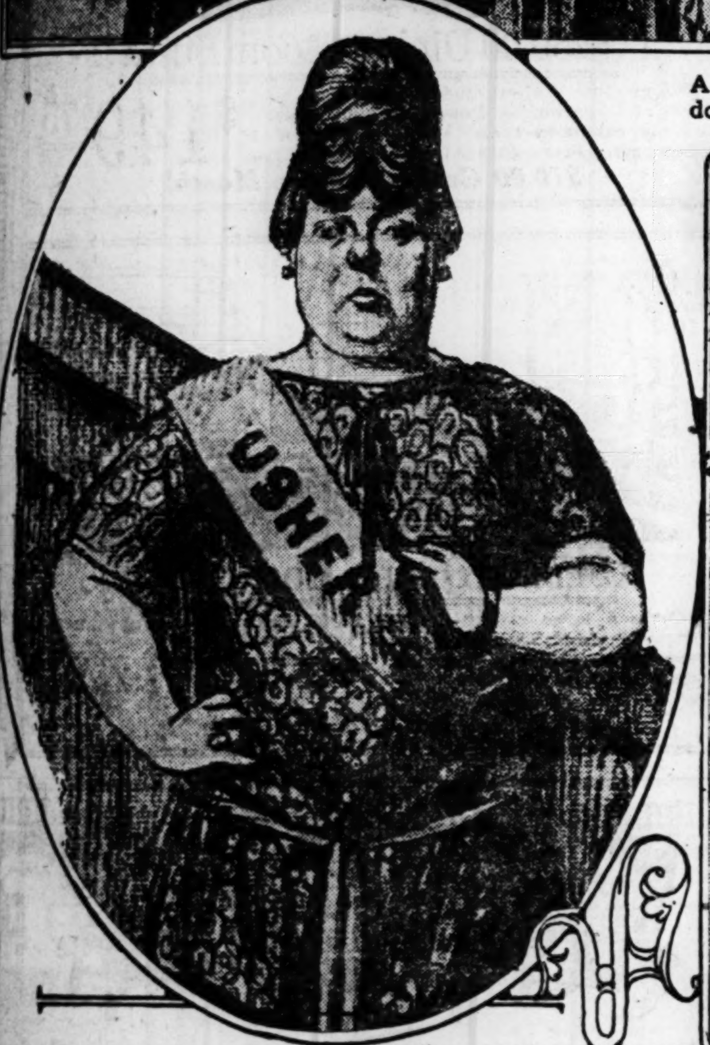
A faraway look creeps into the floorwalker's eye in the late afternoon, and he does a little manicuring.



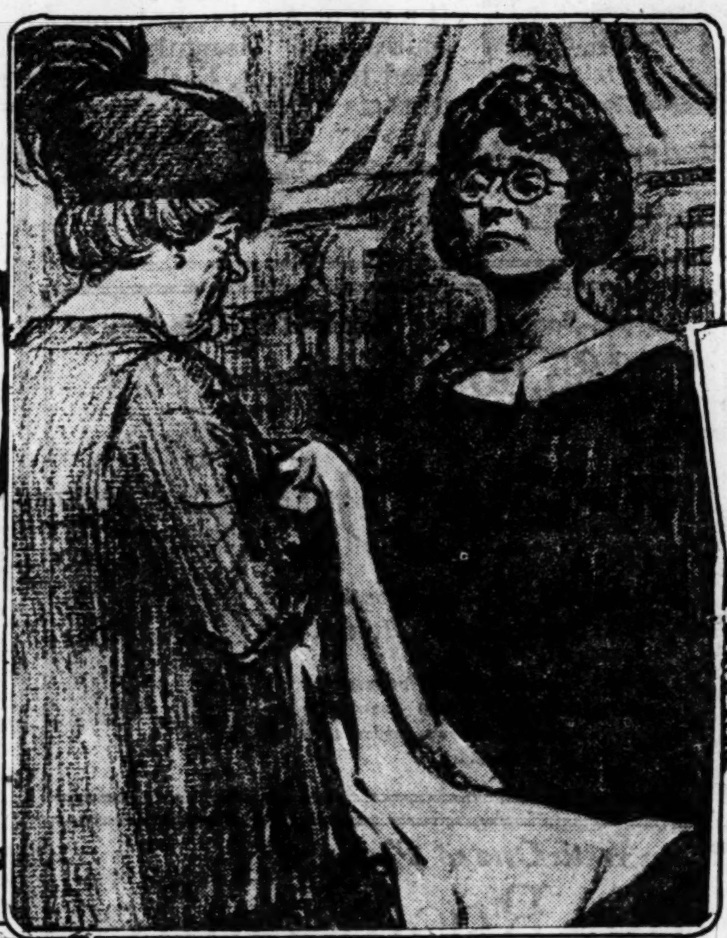
Just a good healthy late afternoon yawn. Mr. Seitz is so bored with watching over the beaded novelties.



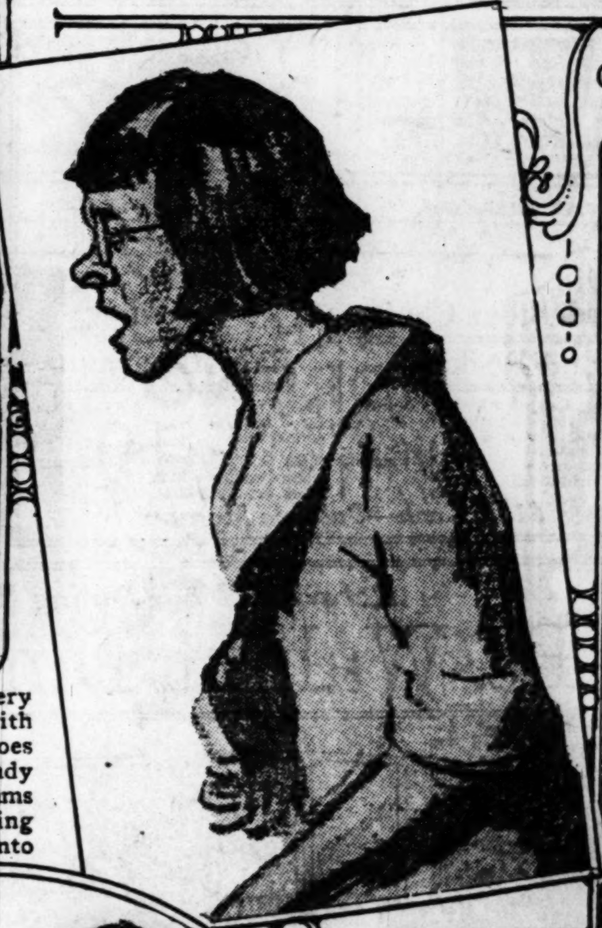
"That's just like you mamma, you wait till we get it home and then you say you don't like it on me!" Mamma, grandma and babe at the end of a hard day's shopping and not in the best of humor.



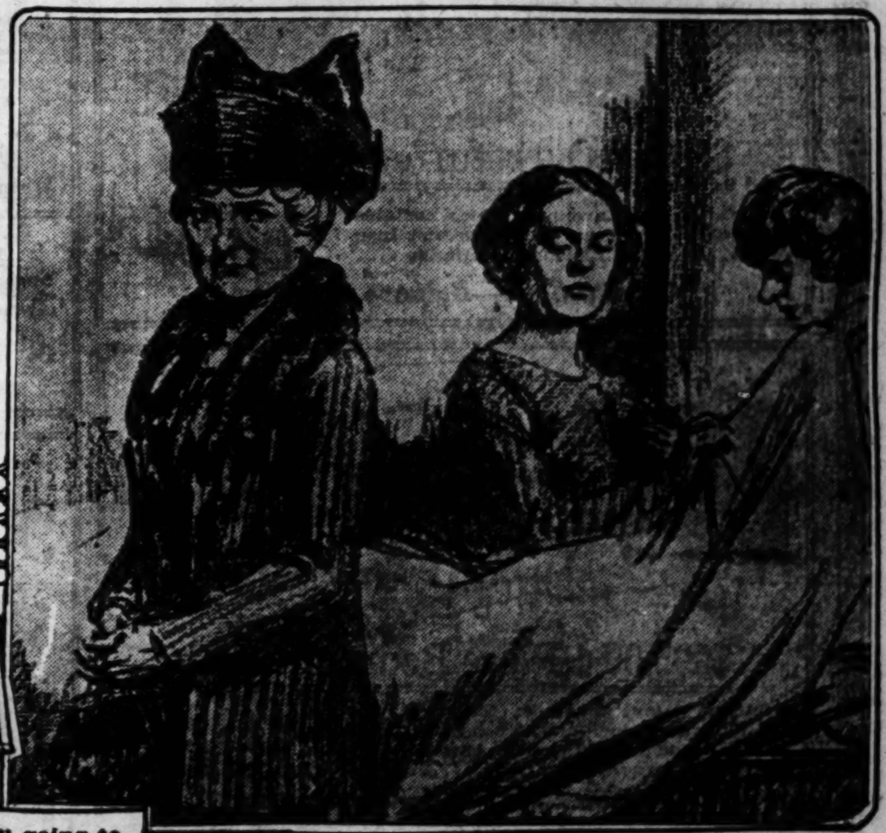
Meet Mrs. Mabel McCurdy, who presides over the destinies of those who use the escalator Late afternoon of a July day finds Mrs. McCurdy in the position where, to use her own words, it seems like her arches would give way any moment



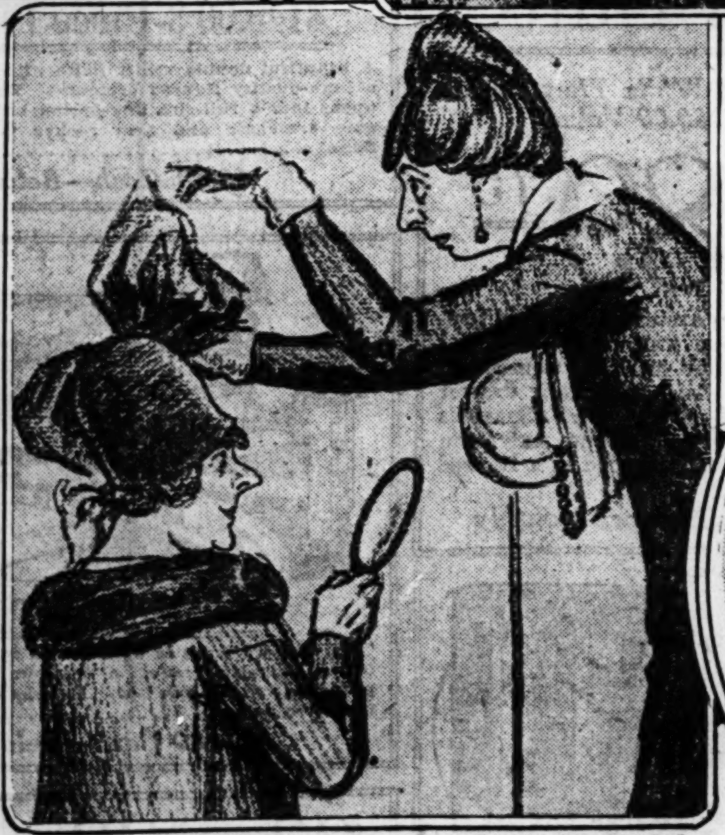
"All these patterns are very popular—they go well with anything—and anything goes with them." The saleslady who lives with the ginghams is very tired. She is saying just anything that comes into her head.



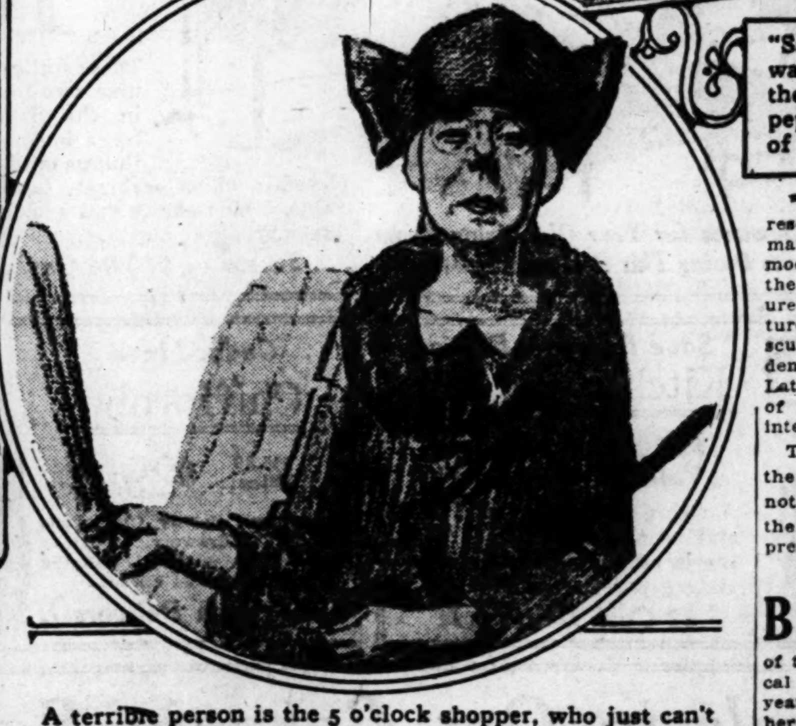
"Sadie, aren't you going to wait for Mamie?" Nellie, the beautiful cash girl, peps right up at the sound of 5:30 p. m.



The nervous shopper is fearful of being locked in. They are beginning to cover things up, and her change hasn't come yet.



Versed in the ways of super salesmanship is the saleslady in the hat department At 25 minutes past 5 p. m. she will jam a hat on the lady shopper from out of town (who simply must have a hat in a hurry) with the magic words, "Madam, I reelly think this is the hat for you!" And by 5:30 the hat is sold—that is until next morning, when the lady shopper will probably stop in to return the hat Her husband didn't like it.



A terrible person is the 5 o'clock shopper, who just can't decide whether the blue, or the pink, or then again the mauve would look the best. She wants samples, It transpires that she is "just looking."

IN STUDIO AND GALLERY

AN exhibition of prints arranged by the Print Makers' Society of California now occupies the special exhibition galleries of the City Art Museum for the month of July. The display includes etchings aquatints, block prints, mezzotints, lithographs, engravings and soft ground etchings by the foremost European and American workers in the graphic arts. The collection is comprehensive and significant of the high standards being maintained today in these fields of art.

In the American division, one is delighted to find charming etchings by well known painters and sculptors such as Frank W. Benson and Carl Oscar Borg, best known for their oils and represented in the Fourth International Water Color Show just closed in St. Louis, having been in progress at the museum during June; Emil Fuchs, famed sculptor whose works were recently exhibited at Kocian's, Alfred Hutty, William Auerbach Levy and Theresa Bernstein, whose figure piece in oil, "The Milliners," will be remembered from the 1923 American Show at the City Art Museum. Arthur Heintzelman and Power O'Malley exhibit beautiful works. Bertha Jacques, a Chicago artist and craftsworker, with whom several St. Louisans are acquainted, contributes two etchings.

Troy Kinney, one of America's foremost contemporary etchers, exhibits three exceptionally fine prints portraying attitudes of the dance. With a simplicity of line that in itself is a high achievement, he draws for us the spirit of the dance, not the body of the dancer. In his "Spanish Dance" this is well illustrated. Without definite delineation, one senses the swish of red skirts around dainty feet, the shadows that flit through heavy black lace, the lithe, supple motions of a spirited Spanish beauty pirouetting to the soft strains of a languid guitar. Like the spirit of some lyric phrase, a slender figure in another Kinney's prints, skips lightly forward toward the wind, her veil blown back in misty ripples.

Gustave Goetsch and C. K. Gleeson, St. Louis artists and craftsworkers, are represented in this exhibition by examples of their work in etching which compare with some of the best prints in the show. Goetsch's etchings possess great subtlety and the general artistry which characterizes his work in the several other mediums in which he is proficient. Gleeson's surety and control of line again distinguishes his work exhibited here.

In the English division of the exhibition, work by William Walcot, William Robins and Eileen Soper, the child prodigy, claims greatest prominence. Several of these prints will be familiar to St. Louisans having admired impressions of the same plates at the Kocian Galleries. William Walcot's "Egyptian Palace" can never be forgotten because of its detailed beauty as well as the impressive charm of the ensemble. Eileen Soper's delicate and naive transcriptions of child life are incomparable. An insight into the joys and sorrows of childhood is given to us in a manner long forgotten by the adult world. Little Miss Soper's quality of line and technique is beyond criticism.

The French, German, Italian and Swedish sections of the show all present interesting features. Aquatints, lithographs and block prints from these countries are quite beautiful.

This exhibition of prints affords an excellent opportunity for the commencement of small private collections. They are for sale at remarkably low prices, being sold through the California Society, and the universal excellence of the entire number makes a mistake in selection impossible.

A DISPLAY of reproductions of famous cameos is now being shown in gallery 32 of the City Art Museum instead of the illustrations of objects presented to the Louvre since the outbreak of the war, which was previously announced for July. The Louvre objects' illustrations will now comprise the minor exhibit during August.

The cameos and gems here represented are chiefly classical Roman, although occasionally more modern pieces are interspersed. For the most part, devotion to portraiture predominates, although miniature reproductions of famous sculpture groups are seen. Students of Roman history and of Latin will find portrait medallions of 11 Roman Emperors to be of interest.

The collection is the property of the Washington University and has not been publicly displayed since the moving of the museum to its present location.

BLANCHE SKRAINKA exhibits 35 of her paintings and sketches in the art department of the Public Library. Various local exhibitions during the past few years have contained examples of her works which have borne little similarity one to another. This inclusive collection supplies the opportunity of comparison. Some of Mrs. Skrainka's pictures now shown are completed works, while others are but hurried sketches to be used as notes for future serious work. This display will continue through the month of July.

FOR a summer exhibition, the Kocian Gallery is arranging a retrospective show of early St. Louis painters' works. Occasionally a Meeker, Wolf, Harney, Hastings or Tracy comes to light, but a comprehensive show of this sort is very unusual and one to be heartily commended. Already an interesting collection has been placed in the downtown gallery, and other examples privately owned in St. Louis are being borrowed, to complete a full representation.

Justifying wide admiration for its fine work, its color and the precision of its technique, is the large Tracy which occupies central position on the back wall of the gallery. It is a woodland landscape of picturesque arrangement where a small stream runs swiftly in its narrow channel at the foot of a steeply cut cliff where overhanging vines and mosses bespeak its geographical location. In the foreground, several figures, all carefully drawn, are seen in a skiff. No portion of the entire painting lacks interest. The greatness of subject contributes to the complexity of composition, and all the more credit is due the artist who handled the complicated arrangement with such skill.

This exhibition, when completed, will form the major summer display at this gallery, minor displays of prints occurring from time to time in the interim.

Negotiations are being made with Frank Brangwyn's business agent for the original drawings for the Missouri State Capitol decorations to be lent to Kocian for exhibition in St. Louis. Brangwyn seldom exhibits his work, but it is hoped that under the circumstances of Kocian's activity in the matter of the decorations, the artist will comply with the request.

U. S. SAILORS MAKE MASS ATTACK ON FRENCH LANGUAGE

Lonesome Middies on Liberty Parties Wander Cheerlessly About Streets of Ports.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 5.—A mass attack on the French language has been launched by the middies and gobs who in successive liberty parties have been pouring in for the last few days from the American warships riding anchor at Brest, Havre and Cherbourg. It is still going merrily on over the week-end, and the end is not yet in sight as the squadron will be present at the Olympic regatta at Havre later in the month.

The boys have been generally well behaved and of spick and span appearance, taking to the boulevard asphalt like the deck of a dreadnought. The absence of any adequate provisions to guide and care for such a nautical invasion, however, has made some of the old timers here regret the war-time attentions of the Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, Knights of Columbus and Jewish welfare board for men on leave in Paris.

The fate of those lads debarking from Brest at the Montparnasse station in the southwestern part of the city, where Breton dialects are generally spoken, is particularly pitiful. Even if the holidaying tars steer eastward into the Montparnasse artists' quarter where many American artists, litterations and would-be poets foregather, the language difficulty still remains, as the "high brow" American set there cannot understand the gobs and the gobs cannot or do not want to understand their lofty foreheaded compatriots.

The consequence is that nightly a procession of aimlessly wandering sailormen passes up and down the rather joyless streets of Montparnasse asking every passerby who looks like an American: "Say feller, where's the main stem of this burg, from here?"

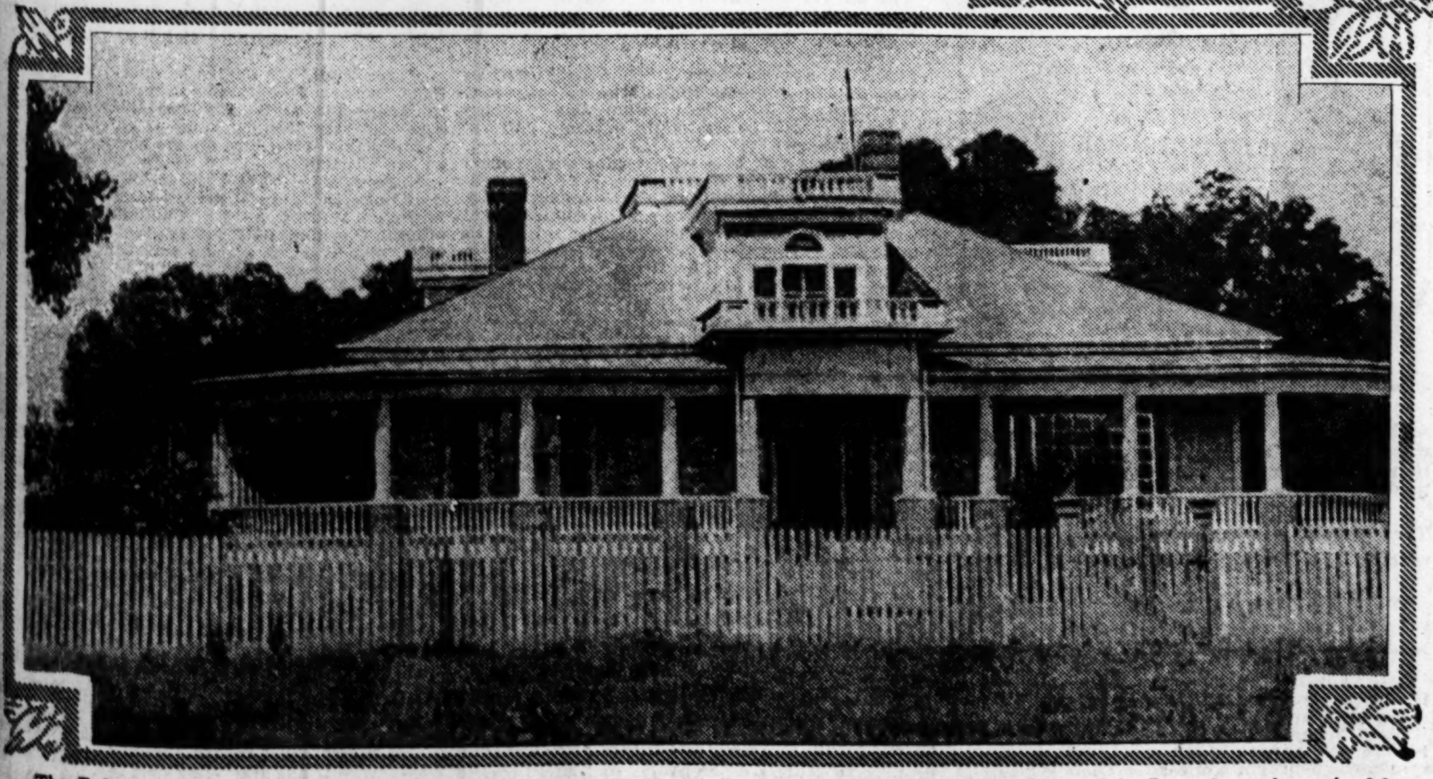
How Rich Lumberman's Wife Gave Her Young Rival a $75,000 Flogging

SUIT FOR DAMAGES REVEALS UNWRITTEN LAW STORY THAT STIRS LOUISIANA

Husband in the Case Flees When Victim of Lashing Is Carried Into His Presence by Indignant Spouse and He Is Told to "Look at Your Sweetie Now," and His Going Is Speeded by a Revolver Shot—Assailant, Who Is a Grandmother, Administered Whipping on Country Road After She and Two Other Women Had Overpowered Mechanic's Wife and Hauled Her Away in an Automobile.

MRS. LILLIAN BONNETTE,
Louisiana woman who has sued for $75,000 alleging that a rich lumberman's wife with the help of two other women, kidnaped and flogged her.

The Bonnette bungalow from which the mechanic's wife was taken by Mrs. Gertrude Ball and her accomplices and severely beaten.



The Ball home, of spacious Southern style, with broad "galleries," across the Red River from Alexandria, La., where the retired lumberman and his family lived in harmony until his alleged attentions to young Mrs. Bonnette disrupted the household.

BY F. A. BEHYMER,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ALEXANDRIA, La., July 5.

THE land of Louisiana has its written law and its unwritten law—its written law for the protection of all and the redress of the wrongs of all and the unwritten law for personal vindication where the written law seems of no avail.

Mostly, in times past, the unwritten law has been invoked by the man who has felt his personal honor invaded beyond the written law's relief. Now it is a woman who takes the law into her own hands and, in primitive fashion, flagellates the other woman. And, called to account in criminal and civil procedure, she pleads her grievance as her justification.

For Mrs. Gertrude D. Ball, member of one of the best Louisiana families and wife of one of its prominent and wealthy men, makes no denial that she, with the assistance of her daughter, Mrs. Amelia Jordan, and a friend, Mrs. Lessie Hatchett, took Mrs. Lillian Bonnette from her home and flogged her, for which she and the others have been indicted for assault and sued for $75,000 damages. And as for her defense, it is that the other woman has wronged her beyond the law's power of appraisal or restitution.

The other woman, denying offense, is asking the courts to punish her assailant with the penalties that the writen law provides and to compel the payment of such damages as the written law sanctions.

Rapides Parish, on both banks of Red River, and the rich lumber regions of Central Louisiana are stirred as they seldom have been stirred.

It was in the lumber business that John Ball, aided by his wife, made his fortune. When he married Gertrude David, 35 years ago, their fortune was in the future but there was richness of opportunity in the forests of Louisiana and John Ball went boldly after the wealth that the wilderness held for men of bold emprise. And where he went his wife was by his side.

Wife Helped to Build Fortune

She says now that when they began life together at her husband's lumber camp, it was happiness for her to help in the camp commissary to save the clerk-hire which her husband, at first, could ill spare. Through the years, with his wife helping him along the way, John Ball prospered, and when, as they passed the middle post and started down the twilight trail, with her children about her, the children she had borne John Ball, and her children's children, for she is a grandmother now, they had wealth and leisure, and life on the Ball estate, at the edge of Pineville, across Red River from Alexandria, was placid and pleasant. Ball's fortune is estimated at not less than $500,000 by his neighbors.

Mrs. Ball had known no grief except that caused by the accidental death of her youngest son a few years ago and that was grief which her husband shared and that made it less difficult to bear. So, a year ago, she was a gracefully aging woman of 52, retaining much of the attractiveness of her younger years, as happy as a woman could be who still mourned for her son.

Then into her life, destroying the peace of her home and embittering her heart, as such a thing must, came the knowledge that she no longer had the loyalty of her husband, as she had had it when they toiled together and won success together. Information came to her that John Ball, 56 years old, partially retired lumberman and banker, was unaccountably devoting himself to a younger and, because younger, a more beautiful woman, or such, at least, might be assumed to be the judgment of the man.

She charged him with dalliance and she says he made no convincing denial. So her confidence was gone, and with it her happiness, and for nearly a year she endured a situation whose increasing humiliation made endurance increasingly diffcult.

On April 5 she filed suit for divorce, covering the cause with the generalities which the law allows. That seemed to bring Ball, who had been little moved by his wife's reproaches, to a realization of the situation and Mrs. Ball says he came to her, confessing his faults and promising renewed fealty and she forgave him and dismissed the suit.

How Wife's Anger Was Kindled

Lillian Cantin's mother died when Lillian was an infant. Fred Cantin, her father, was a millwright, whose employment took him here and there. He placed the child, after a while, in the care of the sisters and she was reared in the convent school and would soon have been graduated, but romance had come to her, as romance comes to girls, even through convent walls, and in her senior year at school she ran away and was married to Sam Bonnette, a well-intentioned youth, capable of becoming an excellent automobile mechanic, which he has since become, providing modestly for his wife and the two children that came, a girl and boy, now 9 and 7 years of age.

Sam Bonnette established a pleasant bungalow home for his family on an elevated acreage beside the Military road, overlooking Greenwood Cemetery, three miles from town. It is a home prettily and daintily furnished, revealing the convent training of its mistress.

Mrs. Bonnette, now 30 years old, by reason of her convent association with many of the girls of Alexandria and Rapides parish, coupled with cleverness and attractiveness, had a more assured position than, probably, her husband's status as an excellent automobile mechanic would have conferred upon her.

Ball knew her as a pretty girl from the convent school, mingling with the other pretty girls of Alexandria, and in the days when he was engrossed with affairs he gave her no greater attention than he gave to other light-hearted girls, friends of his own light-hearted children. If, with increasing leisure, he gave increasing rein to his susceptibilities, he may have taken note, as anyone might have done, that Mrs. Lillian Bonnette, remembered as pretty Lillian Cantin, had developed a full-figured and blooming maturity.

Mrs. Bonnette had a friend, Lessie Burnaman, some 10 years younger than she but of large and handsome mold which contradicted her youthfulness.

For several months Mrs. Hatchett who is divorced made her home at the Bonnette bungalow and had the confidence of Mrs. Bonnette. But there came a rift in their friendship and she went away.

That she communicated to Mrs. Ball confidences purporting to have been received from Mrs. Bonnette is an accepted inference in the community, in view of her relation to events that followed, but on Mrs. Ball's behalf positive denial is made that Mrs. Ball received any such confidences from Mrs. Hatchett.

But information did reach Mrs. Ball which caused her to doubt the good faith of her husband in the promises he had made to her. She observed, when she and her husband went about in their luxurious car, sometimes to Greenwood Cemetery to stand by the grave of their son, sometimes elsewhere, that Mrs. Bonnette was near in her own little car. It may have been coincidence. Mrs. Ball thought it was flaunting of youth and beauty. There were brought to her words of challenge and defiance which Mrs. Bonnette, aware of Mrs. Balls' distrust, may or may not have uttered.

Not one thing, but numerous circumstances taken together, preyed upon Mrs. Ball until she came to at last to feel her situation unendurable. She deemed the law inadequate. There is a Ku Klux Klan in Rapides parish and, although Mrs. Ball and all concerned are Catholics, there is a story that indirect overtures were made for the organization to handle the situation. Mrs. Ball frankly says she "wanted" the klan to take action but, when her wish was not realized, she took the initiative herself. But U. T. Downs, former exalted cyclops of the klan, now Sheriff of Rapides parish, denies that any such request came to the klan and declares that, if presented it would have been peremptorily refused because, he says, "klansmen of this parish are among the best citizens, men of high standing and reputation, and it is a slander upon their characters to even intimate that they would engage in any act of lawlessness."

Mrs. Ball's daughter, Amelia, wife of Harry Jordan, lives with her in the Ball home and has been her confidante and champion in the situation affecting her father and his purported shortcomings. She is a young woman of striking appearance and gracious, as her mother is gracious, but with a betokened determination, subject to summons on occasion, even greater than that of her mother.

Wife Face to Face With Rival

Whether the decision reached on the afternoon of April 25 was because of specific provocation or grew out of the accumulated burden of humiliation, driving Mrs. Ball to distraction and steeling her daughter in her championage, has not been disclosed. But on that afternoon the biggest of the Ball cars was brought out and with Mrs. Jordan at the wheel and Mrs. Ball by her side, it plowed through the sandy road along the bank of Red River and out upon the paved ways of Pineville, Alexandria's beyond-the-river suburb. Mrs. Hatchett, deemed useful if denials were to be confuted, was picked up on the way and presently the big car drew up at the Bonnette bungalow on the Military road.

Mrs. Bonnette was there, clad only in night robe, not entirely recovered, as she now sets forth in her petition for damages, from the effects of an operation. The three women stood at her door and knocked and Mrs. Bonnette bade them wait a moment and donned a kimono and slippers and came to where they waited on the porch.

There were accusations and denials, with rising anger on the part of the accusers and increasing distress on the part of the accused. Then the three women set upon Mrs. Bonnette and overpowered her and bound her hands and gagged her, and she says they beat her and pulled her hair in doing so. Then they searched the bungalow and possessed themselves of her husband's revolver and a necklace and fur piece which Mrs. Ball conjectured were gifts.

Mrs. Bonnette's children were there, Kathryn and Sammy, and they screamed and fought, with their feeble might, but Mrs. Bonnette was dragged to the car and forced into it and it sped away, on out the Military road, three miles or so, while Mrs. Bonnette, she says, was held down by the hair of her head, on the floor of the closed car.

Where habitations were few the car was stopped at the side of the road and Mrs. Bonnette was taken into the piney woods and there, "hog-tied," as her petition relates, her body was bared and the women took turns at beating her with a horsewhip and quirt while two revolvers, one her husband's, were held upon her, with threats to shoot her, until she succumbed from the blows, when they carried her back to the automobile and threw her into it.

Pistol Bullet Speeds Husband

The car was driven further into the country and then turned back, but before reaching the Bonnette home another road was taken to Pineville. Through Pineville the car sped and to the Ball home. Ball was there and Mrs. Bonnette says the women called to him to come out and see "your sweetie," as she lay nude in the bottom of the car.

The situation, it seems, was more than Ball felt capable of coping with. He departed precipitately and a bullet sent after him facilitated his flight.

Meanwhile, when the Ball car departed from the Bonnette bungalow, Kathryn, the 9-year-old daughter, frantically called her father on the telephone and told him what had occurred. He raced home but, from the incoherent accounts the children gave, he could gather little and his search for the women was vain.

He called up Mrs. Henry Barron, sister of John Ball, and told her what had happened and besought her intervention. With her grown son she drove to the Ball home. She found Mrs. Bonnette lying in the Ball car and Mrs. Ball and her daughter denouncing Ball and was present when Ball departed, followed by the encouraging bullet. She and her son placed Mrs. Bonnette in their car and took her home.

The news of the flogging flew over Alexandria and reached the ears of District Attorney Dear and members of the grand jury, then in session. Witnesses were summoned and indictments were found against Mrs. Ball and Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Hatchett on charges of assaulting and mistreating Mrs. Bonnette, assaulting her with a dangerous weapon and larceny of a pistol valued at $25, a fur scarf valued at $12 and a string of pearls valued at $18, and against Mrs. Ball and Mrs. Jordan for assaulting John Ball by shooting.

Local newspapers in Louisiana are discreet in delicate matters of this kind and refrained from publishing information about the occurrence, which, however, gained wide circulation by the word of mouth method which obtained before newspapers were printed.

Overtures with a view to a settlement that it was hoped would result in dismissal of the prosecutions were made and reached a stage where an agreement had been signed and a sum of money deposited in a local bank, on acceptance of which the Bonnettes were expected to leave the State, but there was a hitch and Mrs. Bonnette did not accept the money and her husband regained possession of the agreement and kept it, so that it cannot be produced in disparagement of Mrs. Bonnette's present claim for $75,000 damages, but proof concerning it will be offered.

It was not until the damage suit against the three women was filed by Attorneys Hawthorn and Stafford that cognizance of the situation was taken, in impeccably sedate style, by the local press.

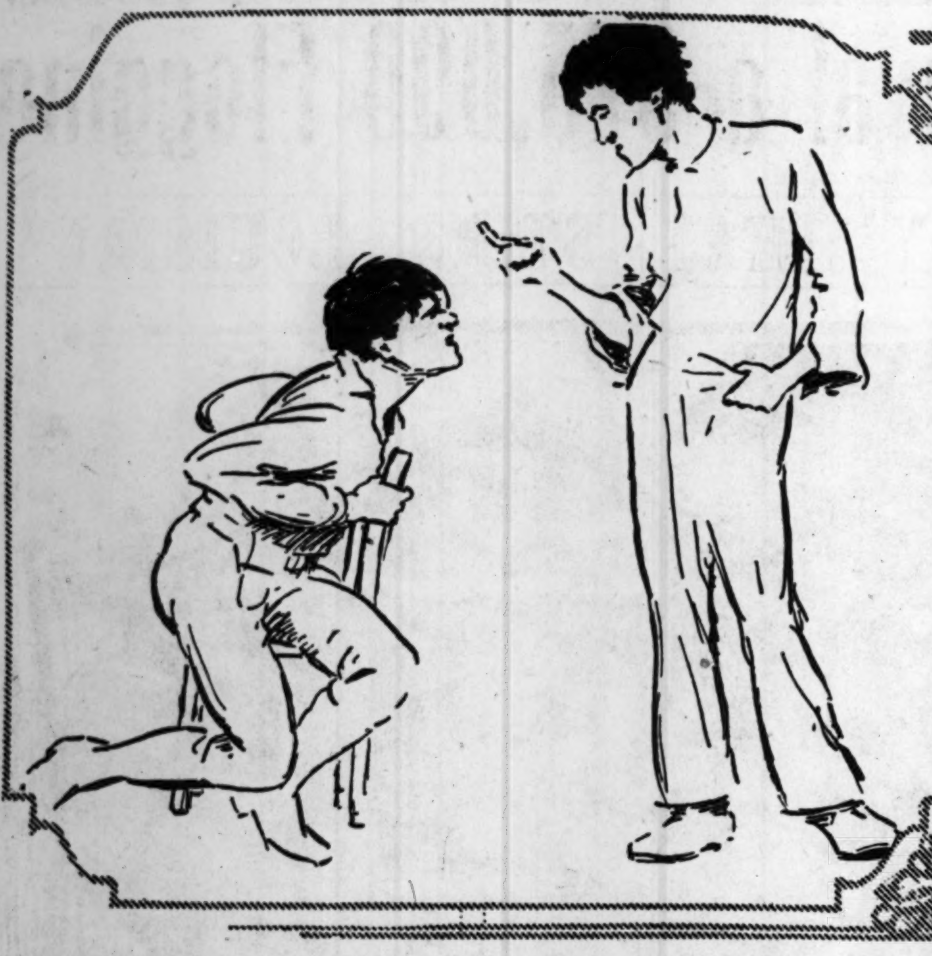
Mrs. Bonnette, now showing none of the effects of her experience, is at her bungalow home, sustained by the confidence of her husband, who will believe no ill of her.

Life is again serene at the spacious and perfectly appointed Ball home on the river bank between the plantation and the town. Mrs. Ball and her daughter, with faultless poise, receive on the wide gallery the stranger who comes, with apologies for intrusion, to inquire about occurrences strangely at odds with the dignity of this home and the graciousness of its women.

The conversation there on the wide gallery is pleasant, touching only lightly on the unpleasant things which occasion the call, and then a walk in the garden, where the fruits of the Southland are ripening. And there a tame bobwhite, content with captivity but calling for its mate.

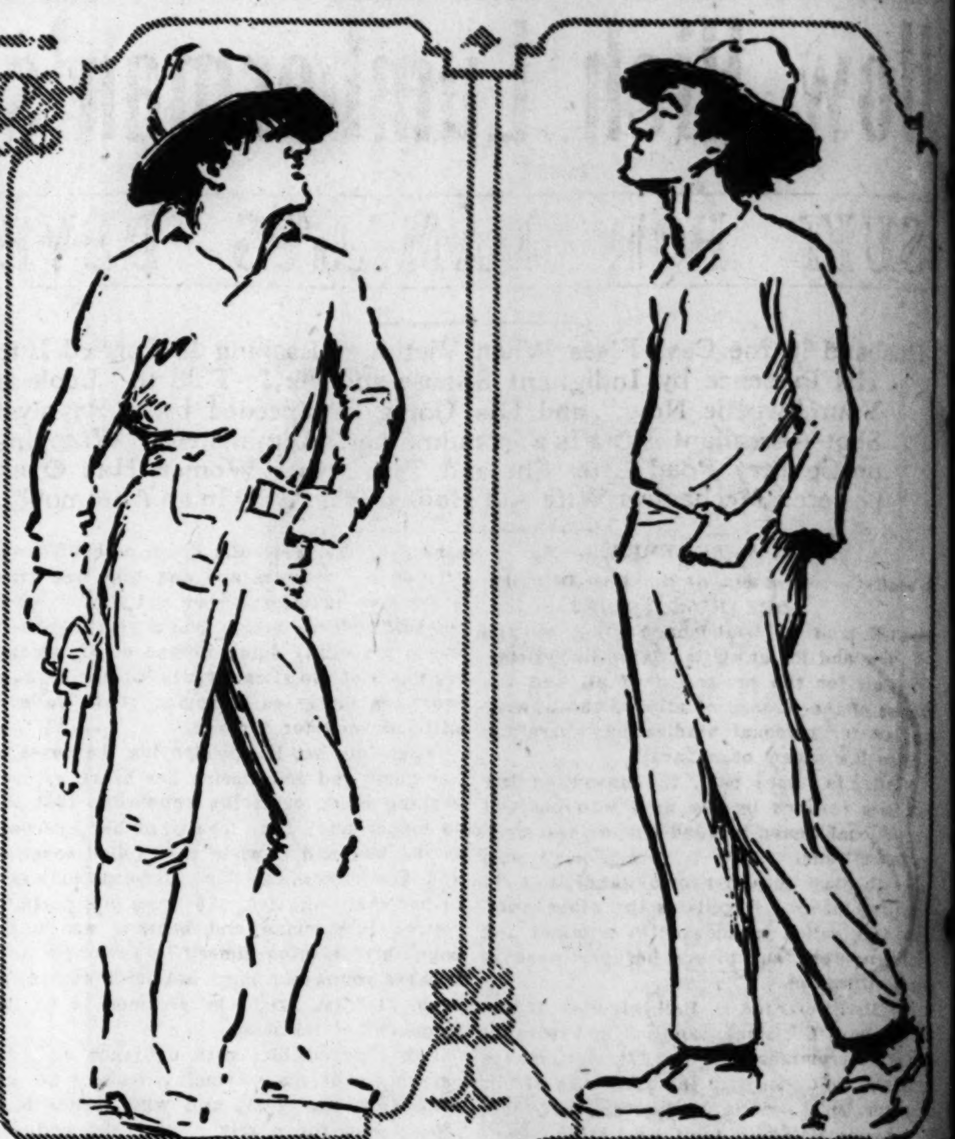
ATHEIST'S PLAY RIDICULES RELIGION, BUT WINS PRIZE FOR "RAISING STANDARD OF GOOD MORALS"

"Hell Bent fer Heaven," Awarded Honor in Pulitzer Contest, a Study of Hypocrisy That Masks as Saintliness



Rufe Pryor, with the diabolical technique of an Iago, incites the drunken Andy to revive the old family feud by murdering Sid Hunt.

HATCHER HUGHES,
Columbia University English professor, who wrote "Hell Bent fer Heaven," his first independent play. Although an avowed atheist, he admits he caught himself praying once—in the battle of the Argonne, when a shell exploded near him. "When we die, we die," he says, "and that's the end of it."



Andy Lowry, the robust mountaineer, who is fired to murder by Rufe's reminder that "the last time the Hunts an' Lowries fit they 'us three more Lowries killed 'n they wus Hunts."

Rufe Pryor (right), the hypocritical villain of the piece, is smug under his cloak of religion.

David Hunt, the white-haired patriarch of the mountains and survivor of the old feud, is the only character in the play who sees beneath Rufe's "holier than thou" attitude.

How Prof. Hatcher Hughes of Columbia University Was Declared the Victor in Contest After Judges Had Agreed That Honor Should Go to Another Writer—Notwithstanding Theme, Final Arbiters Decided It Came Within the Provisions of the Will of the Late Owner of The Post-Dispatch and The New York World Establishing the Prize.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.

THE singular feat of a self-avowed atheist, a scoffer at religion, turning out a play with religion as its dominant motif and presenting his case in such a manner as to capture the Pulitzer prize for the work "best representing the value and power of the stage in raising the standard of good morals, good taste and good manners," is the achievement this year of Hatcher Hughes, Columbia University professor and outspoken unbeliever, who has won a station among America's foremost playwrights with his vivid drama of the Carolina mountains, "Hell Bent fer Heaven."

Talking the talk of the mountaineer, pivoting upon the backwoodsman's motivating trinity of feuds, "moonshine" and meetin' house scripture, this virile masterpiece sketches a novel portrait of the "fiend angelical" and in Blue Ridge verbiage achieves a compelling twentieth century version of the Shakspearean dictum: "'Tis too much proved, that, with Devotion's visage and pious action we do sugar o'er the devil himself."

It is hardly surprising that this preachment against hypocrisy and false piety, coming as it does from an atheist, should center its fire on the hypocrisy of a religious fanatic who, in order to prosper in his infatuation for a young woman, devises and directs malevolence while all the time convincing himself that he is obeying the "written word." But it is unusual perhaps that a radical on so delicate a topic as religion should not "o'erstep the modesty of nature" and make too eloquent his plea. Religion is dangerous ground for extremists—either pro or anti. Yet here is the case of an extremist delivering his harangue with such authenticity and temperance as to carry his point with the most ardent fundamentalist and coincidentally to step into national prominence as the author of the work which, more than any other of the year, possesses capacity for "raising the standard of good morals."

How It Nosed Out Its Rival

And this play, "Hell Bent fer Heaven," now available in book form from the presses of Harper & Bros., New York, has had a unique history as a play—all aside from its paradoxical distinction of atheistic morality. To begin with, it was the first independent piece of dramaturgy ever attempted by the author. Then it shattered theatrical precedent again by surviving the customarily disastrous ordeal of a special matinee. Brought out in a tentative way at one of these debilitating "specials" and booked for but one repetition, it forced its ascension to a regular place in the list of New York's attractions—a feat which in itself speaks of merit in abundance. And finally, after a jury of experts had already awarded the Pulitzer prize to another work, its hold on public attention impelled its reconsideration with the result that it carried away the trophy.

A brief but spirited controversy was occasioned by this unconventional alteration of a jury's verdict. The body, consisting of Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, Owen Johnson, novelist, and Clayton Hamilton, playwright and dramatic critic, had held its deliberations and by a vote of two to one had recommended to the faculty of the Columbia School of Journalism, which makes the award, that "The Show-Off," a comedy by George Kelly, be accorded the honor. At the suggestion of Dr. Brander Matthews of Columbia, however, the award was held up pending reconsideration of the Hughes play. The advisory board and other qualified commentators entered the discussion and "Hell Bent fer Heaven" emerged the victor.

The ever-recurring touches of mountain color which lend a tone of authority to this satire on primitive religion and its fallacies testify to the heritage of the author. His types, his character delineation and hill dialect at once stamp him as one to the region born—and such he was. The people of his drama are the people he knew in his boyhood in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina. Forty years ago he was born on a farm only a few miles distant from the scene of his play. His early education was that afforded by the backwoods district school and his associations were those of a locality chiefly celebrated for its feuds, its "mountain dew" and its murderous assaults on the English language.

Hatcher Hughes was one of the few boys of his sturdy race to gain, or for that matter, to desire, access to the outside world—the world of the "furriner." He left his native mountains as a youth to attend the University of North Carolina. He was graduated there with the Bachelor of Arts degree in 1907 and was made an instructor in English. Two years later he resigned to pursue graduate work in drama under Dr. Matthews at Columbia University and in 1912 was made an assistant professor there. He organized the Columbia courses in playwriting and has been a member of the faculty continuously since that time, except for a time during the World War when he served as a Captain with the Eighteenth Division overseas.

Aside from his teaching duties, Hughes was for four years director of the Morningside Players, made up of Columbia students, and it was under his tutorship that Elmer Rice had his first play produced by this organization. Rice has since gained prominence on Broadway as the author of "On Trial" and "The Adding Machine." Probably the most successful work with which he boasted a connection, however, was one in which he shared honors with Hughes as collaborator. In 1920 the two wrote "Wake Up, Jonathan," the medium through which Mrs. Fiske added another signal success to her long list of triumphs. In "Hell Bent fer Heaven," Hughes labored alone and with such effectiveness that critics now freely predict that he will ultimately scale a greater height in American letters than any other man now writing for the stage.

Says Underdog Abuses Christianity

The theory stressed in this essay on backwoods fanaticism is that there exist sinister and unfit types of physical and moral weaklings who employ Christian doctrine as a means to malevolent objectives and accomplish their aims through the protection afforded by a mellow, sentimental philosophy that mistakes itself for godliness. Rufe Pryor, the "villain" of the piece, is such a type. Hardly could there be found a more fitting example of a man who "looks like the innocent flower, but is the serpent under it."

"This is the type," declares the author, "that must be obliterated. It is a type unfitted to survive, and yet it does survive because Christianity, in affording protection for the under dog, deludes itself into the belief that a sheep's clothing is worn only by a sheep, that scripture-quoting is an infallible token of reverence. Rufe Pryor, and people like him, cannot compete with the healthier and stronger on equal terms, but nevertheless they flourish because they are artificially protected. They, like the stunted ones of the city, are products of the underworld, the slums—for the mountains have their slums and underworld just as does the city—and their continued coddling is due to the softness of Christian ethics. This is the point the play attempts to set forth. Rufe Pryor has no chance with the girl against the strong, healthy boy who is in love with her, so he resorts to religion as a weapon. He must have it—it gives him a force that is not within him and these people upon whom he practices respond to it because they are primitively religious. They stand in awe of scripture."

It is a typical mountain home of logs and rough boards in which the drama has its setting. The time is late afternoon on a midsummer day and the place is astir with expectation as the time approaches for the arrival of young Sid Hunt, just returned from war, a hero, by reason of the fact, as he later explains, that after encountering a detachment of Germans he was the first to look back.

There is old David Hunt, Sid's grandfather, the white-haired patriarch of the hills, who survived the bloody Hunt-Lowry feud of the old days and at 80 finds himself content to devote his gunning activities to hunting "that hawk that's been arter the young turkeys." Then there is Meg Hunt, Sid's mother, a strong, active housewifely woman of 40, who is anxiously awaiting her husband's return with their long-absent son.

The conversation turns to speculations concerning the world conflict's affect upon Sid.

A Scripture Reading Soldier

Meg: I wonder what he'll be like now. Mebby the war's changed him.

David: Mebby so.

Meg: When it fust started I mind they wus lots in the papers about our soldiers a-goin' into battle a-prayin' an' readin' their Bibles. Sid allus was good about readin' his Bible.

David (chuckling): Yeh, 'specially the fightin' parts. But don't you worry about Sid. He'll settle down. They's plenty o' time fer that. I use to be jist like him when I was a lad, an' now look at me. You don't see me a-tearin' around the country on hossback a-cussin' an' raisin' Ole Ned.

Meg: No; but I wouldn't put it past you if you had the strength.

David: Hey?

Meg: It's your flesh that's got religion, not your sperit.

David (laughing goodhumoredly): I ain't denyin' it, though I reckon you'd like it better if I 'us ashamed o' havin' been young an' strong. You're jist like all women, Meg. When they find a man's got a little sap in him they think he's headed straight fer the devil.

Horses are heard in the distance and Meg springs up excitedly. Matt is seen returning alone, but before disappointment can get a grip on the mother, Sid, a handsome, vigorous young fellow, enters through the kitchen, where he took time to snatch up a large piece of pie, and the greetings are on.

Meg (hugging Sid): What'd you sneak in through the kitchen an' skeer me like this fer? I though you hadn't come.

Sid: I didn't sneak. I jist natchelly come around to the place whar the cookin's done. (Shaking hands with David.) H'lo, Gran'pap. How air you?

David: I can still lick any 80-year-old man my size in the mountains if I can ketch him.

Sid (laughs and turns to Meg): Well, Mam, it seems right natchel to see you gain. How you been makin' out?

Meg: I've been just about as common. I worried lots about you. An' you ain't a-lookin' none too fat. I'll bet you hain't had nothin' fit to eat sence you left home.

Sid: Shucks, I'm all right. Better'n when I went away.

David: You 'pear to me to be about as sassy as ever. I reckon you knowed you'us a hero.

Sid: Yeh, I read about it in the papers.

David: The things they've printed about you's enough to make a healthy man spew. I'll bet if the truth 'us knowed you didn't do half as hard fightin' as I done in the Confederate war.

Sid (grins mischievously): You didn't have as many notches on your gun when you got back.

David: Mebby I wusn't as big a liar afore I went.

The banter continues until Meg interrupts.

Meg: Lord, Sid hain't no more'n stepped in the house an' you start fightin' your ole wars all over again.

David (chuckles wisely): She's dis'p'inted in you, Sid. You're too robustious to suit her. She's been hopin' you'd come back sorter peakin' an' pinin' so she could mammy you an' fatten you up.

Meg (looking at him with a startled expression): Whatever put that notion in your head?

David: Well, I've noticed that you allus pay more attention to the runts among the pigs an' chickens than you do to the healthy uns. (At this Rufe Pryor appears at the top of the stairs unobserved by the others. He is 30, of medium height, with pale face and shifty manner.)

Meg: They need more—jist like humans. When the Savior was on earth he ministered to the halt an' blind an' didn't bother 'bout t'others. What's the use in doin' fer folks like you an' Matt? You've neither of you been sick a day in your life.

Rufe (comes downstairs, smiling at David with an expression of great compassion and humility): I reckon that's a hint that I'm bein' treated too well here.

David: No; I didn't even know you was in hearin' distance, Rufe. I thought you 'us out thar tendin' the store.

Rufe: Well, whether you meant it or not, I want you to know 'at I agree with you. I know I don't deserve the blessin's of a home like this an' a woman in it that's as good to me as my own mammy that died when I 'us little. If she'd ha' lived I might ha' been more deservin'.

The matter is passed over and the subject of conversation turns to Rufe's "delicate" health, with some light shed on the real reason why he wasn't in the army; then, greatly to Rufe's discomfort, to Jude Lowry, who "sure would ha' scratched somebody's eyes out" if Sid had brought a French girl back with him "like some o' the others done." Rufe's air of martyrdom finally exasperates Matt, who angrily orders him to bring in Sid's pack and Meg again flares up in defense of the weakling.

Matt: I never knowed nobody to git me riled up like he does. (To Sid): That's the kind o' help I've had while you 'us away.

Sid: Yeh, I've seed folks like him—kinder tetchy.

Meg: It's enough to make him tetchy, with your paw an gran paw a-pickin' on him all the time jist 'cause he ain't big an' strong as they air.

David: You don't ketch me a-pickin' on chil'en jist 'cause they ain't as big an' strong as we air. I've noticed when folks git picked on it's gene'ly 'cause they deserve it.

Meg: You could git along 'ith Rufe if you tried.

Matt: Yeh, I expect we could if we laid awake nights figgerin' how to keep from hurtin' his feelin's—like you do. 'Tain't only he's tetchy—though God knows I'm sick o' hearin' him bellyache—but he's lazy er born tired, I dunno which. Why, he ain't wuth his salt.

David: 'Specially sence he got that camp-meetin' brand o' religion. I've never seed a man so hell bent fer heaven as he is.

Rufe Is a Pious Bootlegger

The upshot of the fracas is that Rufe is bluntly discharged by Matt. Sid, however, explaining that he wants to do "some runnin' around before goin' to work," prevails upon his father to give the man another chance. Matters are adjusting themselves when Andy Lowry, the rural mail carrier, drops in, and, a little later, his sister, Jude. Andy is a little flushed with liquor, but not drunk, and discussion moves rapidly along with chief attention given to "shootin' irons." Eventually a target match is proposed, but Rufe knows Andy's weakness and lures him away to "sample some licker me an' Bill Hedgpeth unkivered one day 'bout three years ago when we 's dynamitin' fish."

Rufe: Well, my advice to everybody is to let licker alone. But if folks is bound they're goin' to drink the stuff, I s'pose tain't no more'n right to help 'em git sompen good.

Andy (slapping him on the back): Spoke like a true Christian!

Rufe: That's what I try to be, Andy. An' ef that licker o' mine 'll help you out I don't want to make nothin' on it. The only thing is—I bought Bill Hedgpeth's share, an' ef I'm a-goin' to be out of a job soon I would kinder like to git back jist what I paid fer it.

Andy: Well, you won't have no trouble a-squarin' yourself if it tastes anything like you say.

Rufe: You don't have to take my word fer it. I got a sample bottle. Come on up an' try it.

They go upstairs and Sid, meanwhile, devotes his attention to Jude, and has almost gained her promise to marry him when they are interrupted by the return of Rufe and Andy, the latter intoxicated. With a bantering remark concerning the latter's condition, Sid goes out with Jude to the nearby store.

Andy (looking after him drunkenly): Does he think I'm drunk, too?

Rufe (glaring darkly): I dunno what he thinks. (Insinuatingly): But did you hear what he 'us a-saying to Judge jist now?

Andy: To Jude? (He draws himself up stiffly.) Wus it anything o' 'en the way?

Rufe: I think so. He 'us a-talkin' about marryin' her. (Andy relaxes with an expression of boredom.) But mebby you don't object to the Hunts an' Lowries a-swoppin' blood that way instid o' the way they use' to.

Andy (starts violently): Swoopin' blood? Wus Sid a-talkin' about the Hunts an' Lowries a-swoppin' blood like the' use' to?

Rufe: 'Tain't like you to be skeered of him, Andy.

Andy: Umn? Whas 'at? (Drunkenly seizes Rufe by the collar.) Any man 'at says I'm afraid o 'Sid Hunt's a God-dam' liar.

Rufe: I didn't say it. (Andy relaxes his grip and Rufe glances suggestively in the direction that Sid has gone.) But I know the man that did.

Andy: Umn? You know the man 'at said I— Who is he?

Rufe: I ain't tellin' no tales, but he don't live more'n a thousand miles from here.

Andy: Wus it Sid hisself?

Rufe: I ain't a-saying who it wus. But as your friend, Andy, I'm a-goin' to warn you o' one thing: Don't you start nothin' 'ith Sid that you ain't prepared to end. Rickollect the last time the Hunts an' Lowries fit they 'us three more Lowries killed 'n they wus Hunts.

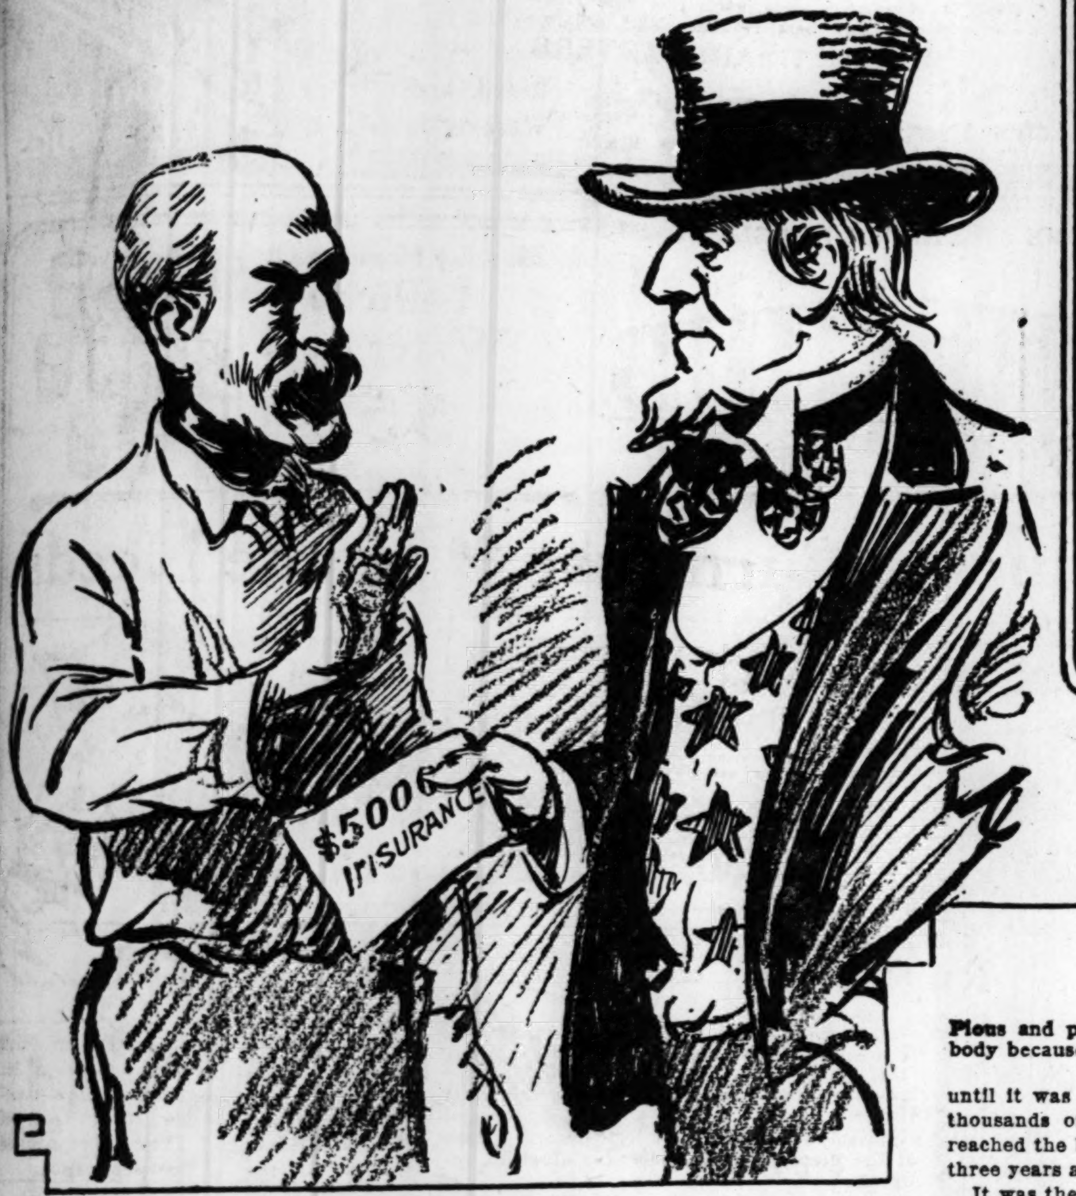
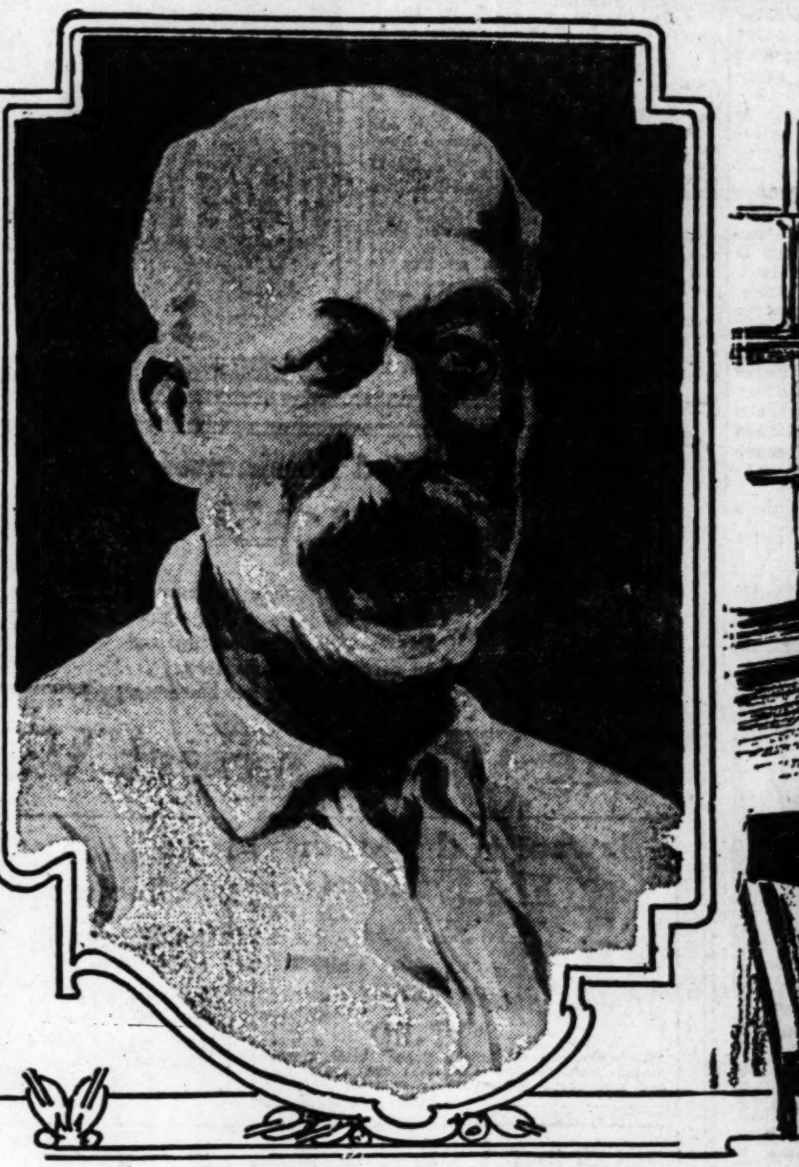
STRANGE STORY OF FATHER WHO KEEPS BODY OF SOLDIER BOY FOR RESURRECTION

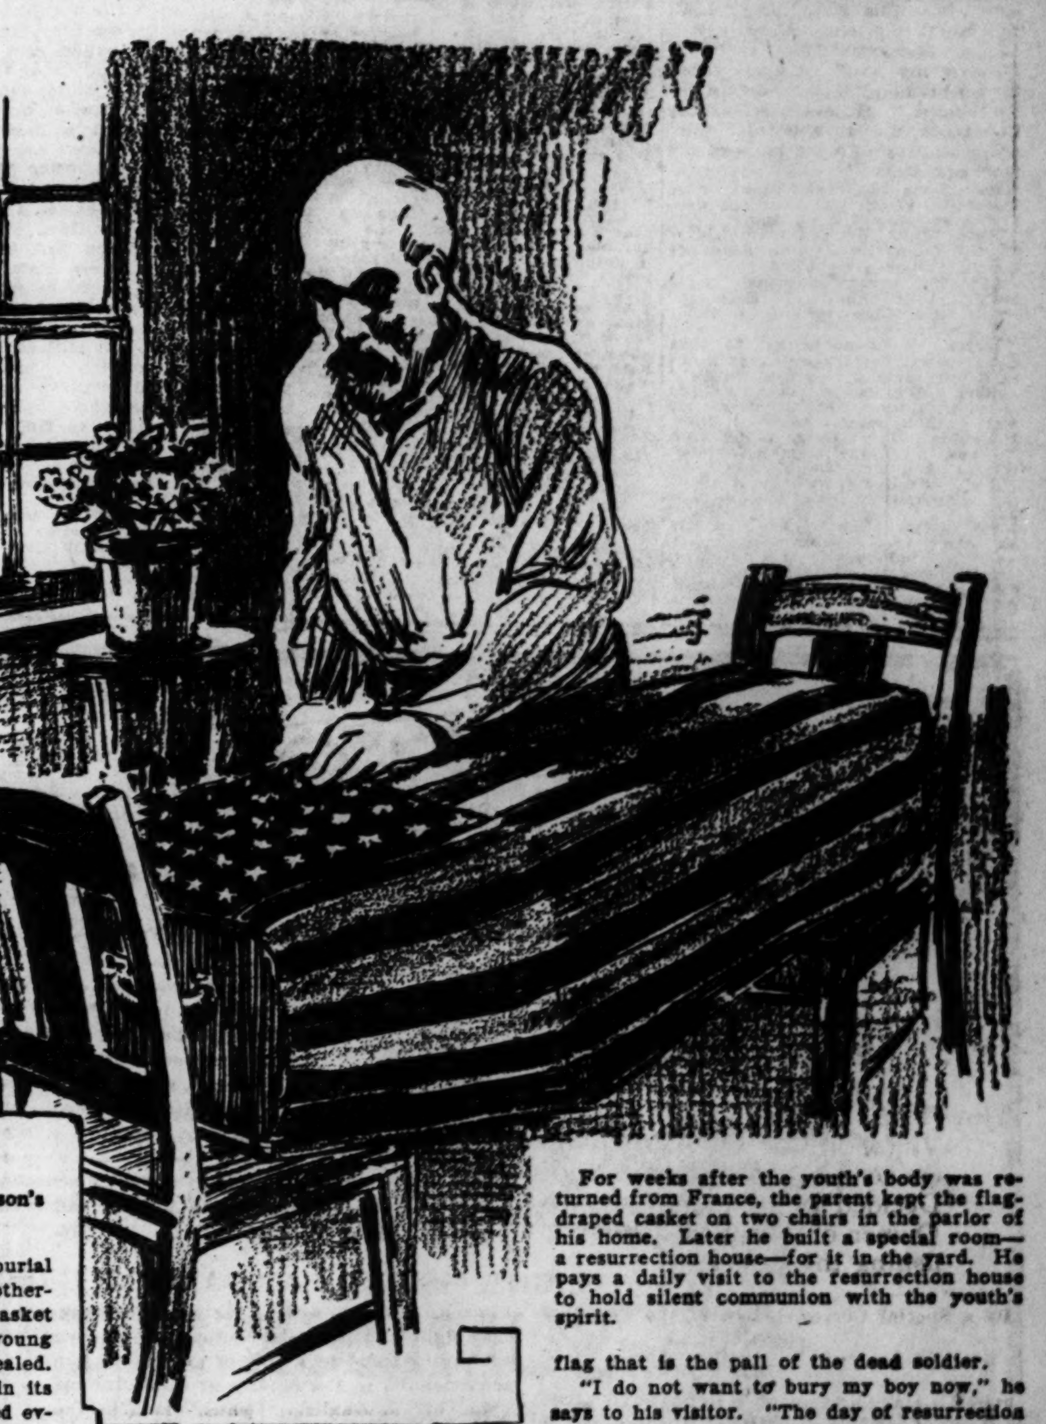
BUILT HOUSE IN HIS YARD FOR METAL CASKET IN WHICH REMAINS WERE SHIPPED FROM FRANCE



The father persistently refuses to accept insurance on his soldier son's life because "it wouldn't be right to let the Government pay for his death in the line of duty that every youth owes to his country—and it couldn't pay for it anyway."



JOHN SPEAKS,
Pious and picturesque figure of the North Carolina hills, who refuses to bury his son's body because of his conviction that the day of resurrection is almost at hand.



For weeks after the youth's body was returned from France, the parent kept the flag-draped casket on two chairs in the parlor of his home. Later he built a special room—a resurrection house—for it in the yard. He pays a daily visit to the resurrection house to hold silent communion with the youth's spirit.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

STATESVILLE, N. C., July 5.

UP in the blue of the North Carolina hills where men are pious and the pinch of past and present hardship is soothed by an ecstatic faith in a happier future, there is one day of all days that fires the imagination of the religious mountaineer and keeps him content to forego the worldly things of life in hope of a greater reward beyond. This is the day, promised by the Scriptures and pointed to by the circuit rider, when the trumpet shall sound and the graves shall open to yield up their dead to judgment.

To not a few of these primitive, but sincere, believers, this day of resurrection is all but here. By the time the rhododendron blooms again on the hillsides, they affirm, the blast of Gabriel will echo down from the mountain passes and both the quick and the dead will be carried aloft to walk on streets of gold or be dispatched to lower regions to travail in the very material fiery torment that has its undisputed place in the faith of all good Carolina Methodists and Baptists.

John Speaks, unique character of Iredell County, rugged as the little farm on which he tills his hillside patches of corn and tobacco, is one of these quaint watchers for the dawn of the glorious morning. To him the sky is already gray in the East. For several years he has been listening for the trumpet, so in 1921, when they brought home to him the body of his son, killed in the battle of the Argonne, he waived the formalities of burial. Little use, he told inquisitive neighbors, in covering a body with clay when only a few months or years at most remained for its abode on earth. It should await the promised entry into eternal life with only the steel army casket for a covering and the flag that was draped around it.

Unmoved by His Neighbors' Protests

And that is why the traveler, journeying out to the farm of John Speaks, 22 miles from here, may observe in the yard a quaint little house which is unlike any house he has ever seen before. It is not an abode of the living; neither is it a tomb or mausoleum in the accepted sense of the terms. It is rather a house of resurrection in which all that is earthly of Bugler Thomas Speaks awaits the call of Gabriel. There in the single room that is almost bare save for its gruesome tenant and a few trivial relics of childhood, the skeleton will rise at no greatly distant date, the father believes, to greet the angels who may come to restore it to its fullness and bear it away.

Protests of friends and neighbors against this strange mode of sepulture have moved John Speaks not a whit. He never has bowed to community conventions, and it is not likely that he ever will. He is as immovable as his native hills. Long ago his eccentricities made him a conspicuous figure in the locality which is his world. His neighbors would get together at the store and gossip about his unheard-of practices; then they would remonstrate with him, but gossip and remonstrance went alike to no purpose. He was good, according to his lights, and intended to remain so. Nothing could make him deviate from the path of right as he saw it and if he saw it differently from other men, that was his business.

For one thing, in spite of his naive devotion and his assiduous reading of the Bible, he had for a long time run cross-current to the strong sentiment of the community by refusing to attend church or Sunday school or affiliate with any religious organization.

The mountain man who professes religion, yet will not attend church or at least shout and sing with the brethren at camp meeting is a rarity indeed. "Quair" is the mildest characterization he can hope to achieve by such independence.

But John Speaks had his own ideas about shouting and singing and praying in public as a form of devotion. "It's all babbling—false worship," he said, and for its shortcomings he substituted services of his own devising, which he conducted in his home. Little wonder that such nonconformity in a community where tradition is rigid and the people subservient to its dictates should stamp him as eccentric.

Then came the war-time tragedy that was to make his eccentricity take on the proportions of a public scandal.

John Speaks' boy, Thomas, was only 15 years old when America entered the world conflict. As might have been expected of a Carolina boy with fighting blood in his veins, he wanted to go in the infantry. But he was too young; the recruiting officers wouldn't have him. Then, much against his father's wishes, he enlisted as a bugler and left Statesville among the first troops that were sent overseas. When he was only 16 he was killed in action in the Argonne Forest. That was on Oct. 4, 1918.

Buried first in France, the body of young Thomas remained in a French cemetery until it was brought back with the bodies of thousands of other American war dead. It reached the boy's home Aug. 13, 1921, almost three years ago.

It was then that solemn John Speaks, plodding away in his cornfield, stepped into greater notoriety than he had known before. Immediately upon its arrival, he had the steel casket opened. He wanted to make sure that it really contained the body of his son. Then, having made identification complete by examination of dental work on the teeth of the skeleton, he had the coffin securely sealed once more and set it, supported on chairs, in the best room his weather-beaten farmhouse afforded—the parlor.

A Macabre Piece of Furniture

In the North Carolina hills, as in many other rural districts, it is customary for the bereaved family thus to place the body of its dead in state pending the funeral. Mirrors are turned face to the wall, clocks are stopped and neighbors come in at nightfall to "sit up" with the corpse. To the Speaks home sympathetic neighbors came as custom prescribed, willing and eager to do all that neighbors could do to assist the sorrowing household. They found the coffin on chairs and other funereal details complied with as tradition demanded. But, to their complete amazement, they found that no funeral was contemplated; neither was there to be any "sitting up." The members of the family were moving solemnly but unconcernedly about the macabre piece of furniture in performance of their household duties.

When the visitors had recovered from their surprise and were finally convinced that there was to be no "buryin'" they rose in prompt and determined revolt. Such a thing was unheard of, in the North Carolina hills or anywhere else. They remonstrated with the father and, when that had no effect, took their report to the county health authorities. John Speaks was actually keeping the body of his son in the parlor and wouldn't consider burying it, because of a notion that Gabriel was just in the offing with his trumpet blast. It might very well be that the day of judgment was just ahead. Nobody would undertake to dispute that, but the idea of postponing funerals on account of it was a different matter. People always had had funerals for their dead in North Carolina; there seemed to be no reason why John Speaks should presume to change the practice.

No Law to Compel Burial of Body

The authorities went to investigate and John Speaks confirmed the startling rumors. No, he wouldn't bury his boy's body. He would keep it with him until his own death or until the resurrection, and he was certain that event was not far off. Probably it would take place before another year and in that event it seemed entirely unnecessary to put under six feet of earth a body which would have to be raised again almost before the grass could grow on the mound. For that matter, since there was so much fuss about a burial, the body already had been buried once in France and it seemed to him that once should be sufficient.

The health officers were stumped. They found there is no law here compelling burial unless the health of the living would otherwise be jeopardized. And the metallic casket containing all that was mortal of young Thomas Speaks was hermetically sealed. There was nothing insanitary involved in its presence in the house. It merely violated every tradition of the neighborhood and, as far as that goes, of the Christian world. And John Speaks was not to be moved by any tradition which ran counter to his own ideas.

If the law required it, he said, or if the county authorities decided it was necessary, on sanitary grounds, he would consent to burial. But he did not intend to comply with any mere popular demand in the matter.

The authorities, after full investigation, declined to intervene. It was wholly of his own motion that John Speaks later built the little house in his yard and moved his boy's body to it from his best room.

Meanwhile he had still further increased his renown or notoriety as an eccentric by refusing to accept the war risk insurance on his boy's life. The United States Government stood ready and waiting to pay him $5000 on receipt of proof that Thomas Speaks was dead. Such a sum would have meant something approaching affluence on that farm of 100 acres, where the womenfolk of the family toiled in the fields between their bouts with the housework. But John Speaks refused to send in the proof, or touch the money. The argument that his son had paid for it through deductions the Government had made from his army pay influenced the father not the slightest.

He said it would not be morally right to let the Government pay for his boy's death, which came in the line of duty while he was performing service that every young man owes to his country. And he said the combined resources of all the banks and treasuries in the country could not repay him for the loss he had suffered. He still persistently refuses to make application for the insurance.

The weather-beaten farmhouse of John Speaks is in Union Grove Township, near Jennings Postoffice, 20 miles north of Statesville. It stands a few hundred yards off the Winston-Salem Highway on an eminence commanding a wide sweep of lovely Iredell. Eight children were born to John Speaks and his wife there. Seven are still living, but only the youngest of them, a daughter, is left at home now. John Speaks himself was born nearby 52 years ago and has spent his entire life in that community.

Never Jests, Never Is Gay

Visitors are at once impressed with the man's sincerity. There is no pose about him, or any thought of effect. He is very kindhearted, and shows guests every possible courtesy and consideration. But jest, or gayety of any kind, seems foreign to his nature.

The little house that John Speaks built against the day of his boy's resurrection stands in his yard only a few steps from the house. He carries the key of its door constantly in his pocket, and visits there every day, as do the others of the family.

It is a miniature structure about eight feet square, neatly weather-boarded. There is a window at each end and a small porch on the front. Simple plantings of flowers and shrubbery have been laid out at each side of the entrance.

Inside, the metal casket lies across the room, draped with the Stars and Stripes and resting on the wooden box in which it was shipped from France almost three years ago. When the flag is lifted a metal strip across the top of the casket is revealed and it bears the succinct inscription:

"Thomas Boyd Speaks, bugler, Company L, Eighteenth Infantry."

The father has hung on the walls of the room a hat, a cap and some other articles of apparel once worn by his soldier son. Some of these precious relics are pitiful in their triviality. There is a clothes brush. There is a plank on which the boy once carved some lettering.

But John Speaks is not pathetic. He touches with work-stiffened fingers the bright flag that is the pall of the dead soldier.

"I do not want to bury my boy now," he says to his visitor. "The day of resurrection is coming soon, I believe. If it does not, I wish to keep him with me until I am dead and have his bones buried with me. I do not want my boy's body left out when I die. After I am gone the farm might change hands and I would not want his body neglected or abused."

Giving the protecting flag a final straightening touch, he follows his guest out. Carefully he locks the door of the strangest little house in all the world and puts the key in his pocket. Then he plods away to hoe corn in the fields that stretch between his orchards.

For the present at least, the body of Thomas Speaks, bugler and soldier, killed in action in the Argonne, will rest undisturbed in the little house John Speaks built. When it comes to deviating from the path of sense and right, as he sees sense and right, John Speaks is like the hills he lives on—impossible to move.

drunken man): Did Sid brag about that?

Rufe: I ain't a-sayin' what Sid done. I'm a-talkin' to you now as a friend fer your own good.

Andy: Rufe, are you fer me er ag'in' me?

Rufe: I'll stick by a friend, Andy, till jedgment day.

Andy: Then gimme your hand. Fer jist as shore as sunrise I'm a-goin' to ekalize things.

Rufe: My advice to you, Andy, is to drop this. The Hunts are dangerous folks. Sid in pertickler, now 'at he's been through the war. You'd a heap better pocket your pride and live in peace with him if you can, fer if he gits started he won't stop at nothin'. I know him.

Andy: But you don't know me, Rufe. You think I'm skeered. Well, jist wait. This is a free country an' everybody in it ought to be ekal. Three more Lowries 'n Hunts—that ain't ekal. (He weeps in rage.)

A Veritable Mountain Iago

The curtain rises on act II with Andy waiting to kill Sid on sight. As the latter enters from the store, Rufe slinks away. Sid, believing Andy's wild talk about "ekalizing things," is only the raving of a drunken man, humors him and obeys the order to dance "like the Hunts made my gran'daddy dance afore they shot him." As Sid dances, Jude throws herself in front of Andy and Sid overpowers him, but spurns an opportunity to kill him and eventually gives him back his pistol.

The Hunts convince Andy that no harm to him is intended and Sid prepares to take him home across the mountain. Rufe, meanwhile, grasps an opportunity and again with the adroitness of an Iago sets about to play on Andy's suspicions.

Andy: I ain't a-goin' to rake up the past, if Sid don't. An' I guess he won't now that he's a-goin' to marry Jude.

Rufe (starting): Oh, is he a-goin' ter marry her?

Andy: Yeh, they got it all fixed up.

Rufe: That'd orter help some. (Then with a nervous laugh): I see you got your pistol back. (Comes toward Andy lowering his voice): Andy, if I tell you sompen' as a friend, will you swear on the Bible never to breathe it to a soul?

Andy: My word's as good as my oath.

Rufe: I'm a-takin' a big chance to tell you. But you've allus been my friend, Andy. An' I'll stick by a friend tell jedgment. They're all I got left in the world.

Andy (impatiently): Well, come on. What are they up to?

Rufe: Jist now—afore you come in——

Andy: Yeh?

Rufe: Sid an' his daddy an' the ole rooster 'us holdin' a inquest over you.

Andy: A inquest.

Rufe: That's what I'd call it.

Andy: What 'us the verdick—death from natchel causes?

Rufe: They didn't edzactly say that.

Andy: But you know what they meant?

Rufe: We never know nuthin' in this world. But my advice to you is not to let Sid ketch you by yourself in a lonesome spot in the woods 'less you want to wear a wooden overcoat.

Andy: If that's his game, why didn't he let daylight through me when he had a good excuse? An' what'd he gimme back my pistol fer?

Rufe: You don't know Sid like I do. He's deeper'n he looks. If he'd a-killed you while ago when he had a chance, Jude'd never ha' married him. But he's made hisself solid 'ith her now by lettin' you off. He can afford to wait to put you to sleep tell tney ain't nobody lookin,' though that ain't pesterin' his mind much, fer he knows the law cain't tetch him.

Andy: Why cain't it?

Rufe: 'Cause you threatened his life in the presence o' witnesses.

Andy: What'id you do if you 'us in my place?

Rufe: I ain't a-sayin' what I would do, but I know one thing I wouldn't. I wouldn't wait fer him to git the drop on me. I'd be the early bird.

Andy: No, I won't shoot first, 'less he starts it. But I'm a-goin' to keep my eyes glued on him, an' the first suspicious move he makes one or t'other of us 'll be buzzards' meat.

Rufe: That's all right—if he don't take a crack at you from the bushes.

It has grown dark and a thunderstorm has come up. Andy refuses importunities to stay till the rain is over and Sid departs with him. Presently the little cabin home is thrown into an uproar of excitement when Sid's horse is seen returning without the rider.

The father and grandfather grimly take up their rifles and start for the Lowry cabin to settle the matter with the slayer if Sid has been slain, and the women follow, Meg imploring the men not to revive the feud and Jude declaring that "ef Sid's dead, I'll kill the man 'at killed him ef it's my own brother." Rufe is left alone, piously chanting that "It's writ that the heathen shall rage an' the wicked destroy one another." He recoils with a cry of terror when the door opens and Sid walks in.

It develops that on the way over the mountain Sid had reached in his back pocket for a knife to repair his saddle girth, and "afore you could say scat, Andy jerked out a pistol an' put a bullet through my hat." Sid had then turned his horse loose and "cut fer the bushes." He accuses Rufe of fomenting the trouble and purposes starting at once to head off Matt and David.

Sid: Does that telephone wire along the river run from the dam to the settlement over thar?

Rufe: Why? Are you a-thinkin' o' phonin' from the dam to head off Matt an' your gran'-daddy?

Sid: That's my business. As I mind it, the phone's in that tool house on a ledge right down under the dam.

Rufe: You'd never git to that house now. You'd have to walk out to it on boards across that sluice o' water. It's dangerous when the river ain't up. You might jist as well commit suicide as try it now. I wouldn't do it to save my own brother, let alone a man 'at had tried to kill me. An' all you'll git out o' Andy is a passel o' lies about me. Natchelly he'll say I agged him on.

Sid (seizing him by the throat): An' damn you, I believe that's jist what you did do.

Rufe (screams hysterically): No, I didn't, Sid. I swear to God I didn't. All I said wus that you 'us a dangerous man an' not to cross you. That if you got started——

Sid (tightening his grip): So I'm right! You wus at the bottom of it. Did you do it a-purpose?

Rufe: God fergive you, Sid, fer such a thought.

Sid: An' God damn you. (He hurls Rufe into a corner and rushes out. Rufe cowers in fear, then suddenly rises to his knees and clasps his hands in prayer.)

Rufe: Did you hear what he said, God? I can put up 'ith his insults to me, but when it comes to blasphemin' Thy holy name, it does look like its time to call a halt. But You know what You're a-doin', God, an' I don't. I'm only a ignerunt sinner. It bothers me, though, Lord, that You let the wicked prosper more'n the righteous. They git the best o' everything in this world now. It wusn't so in Bible times, Lord. Then You cut the wicked down afore the congregation o' Israel. An' the dread o' You an' the fear o' You wus on all people. But now Your name is a byword among sinners. You hyeard that Yourself jist now. (His voice has been increasing in volume until it culminates in an emotional climax.) * * * I ain't presumin' to give You advice, Lord. You know Your own business. But if Yo'd make an edzample o' this blasphemer—if You'd strike him down in the abomination of his wickedness by a bolt o' lightnin', It'ld serve as a warnin' to all like him. An' they'd be sich another revival o' old-time religion in these mountains as You've never seed sence the earthquake. In Your holy word, Lord, I know You commanded Your servants to slay all blasphemers. Mebby You think that's enough. An' mebby it ought to be. (He pleads with great fervor.) If it's Your will that this blasphemer shall die, I've got a whole box of dynamite out in the store, with a time fuse long enough so I can git back here afore it explodes. I can blow up the dam while he's under thar a'telephonin' an' the waters 'o Your wrath'll sweep over him like they did over Pharaoh an' his hosts in olden times. An' the fear o' You an' the dread o' You'll be on all nations agin: (A heavy gust of wind strikes the house, followed by thunder and lightning. Rufe rises to his feet in fear; then his fear is transformed to joy. I hear you Lord, an' like Joshua o' old, I go to do Your will. (He rushes out.)

The Dam Is Blown Up.

The third act finds Matt and David returning to the cabin driving Andy before them at the point of a gun and followed by Meg and Jude. Andy is sullen and enigmatic in his explanation of the attempted murder. Rufe slinks in presently and starts with excitement when a loud explosion is heard.

While the family, after binding Andy in the cellar, hurries about trying to save the calves and turkeys from the river flood which is unaccountably rising, Sid, bruised wet and ragged, enters again. Rufe paralyzed with horror by what he mistakes for the ghost of the man he thinks he has murdered, confesses his deed, but still attributes it to divine orders. Andy has been freed and forgiven and the wrath of the household has turned upon Rufe when the final scene arrives—a flood caused by the blowing up of the dam.

Meg: Has the water surrounded the house?

Matt: Yeh, it's six feet deep twixt here and the nearest hill.

Meg: Then they ain't nothin' left fer me an' Jude to do but pray, fer we can't swim.

Sid: Cheer up, Mam. Things ain't so bad as that yit. As I 'us comin' down the river in that turmoil o' water I hooked on to a loose boat and fetched it ashore with me. It's tied out thar now.

Meg: Is there room in the boat to take everything with us, Sid?

Sid: No, nothin' but ourselves.

David: Well, I'm a-goin' to take this ole gun if I have to swim.

Sid: Come on, Andy, I want you to handle an oar.

Rufe (shouts from the cellar): You ain't a-goin' to leave me here to drownd? I cain't swim neither.

Andy: What makes you think you're goin' to drownd? Keep right on trustin' Him up yonder. He'll save you if you've done as much fer Him as you say you have. (They hurry out to the boat and Rufe is heard praying in the cellar.)

Rufe: O God, save me! You can save me if You will. I dunno how, but I know You can. I have never doubted You, an' I aint a-goin' to doubt You now jist because I'm in a tight place. But everybody ain't like me, God. They's lots o' folks that has to have proof. An' if You save the others and don't save me, like the fool they're a-goin to say in their hearts they ain't no God. (He opens the door and runs to the window, then shrinks back). They're right. They ain't no God. (A malignant expression sweeps over his face.) Ef they is He hain't got no use fer folks like me. He's fer them that's on top. That's what He is. (He rises to his feet and hurls defiance toward heaven!) Damn You, God. (He collapses in terror.) Now I've done it. I've committed the unpardonable sin. (Then he screams hysterically as the curtain falls): Help! Help! Come here, everybody, come here!

Demand, According to Suburban Trend — Walbridg

By Berry Moore.

St. Louis County is one of the most active real estate centers, according to James M. Rohan, president of the St. Louis Land Title Co., with offices at Clayton.

Tracts are being sought in this area, according to Rohan, for investment, as well as for sites for homes. Negotiations embrace both small and large acreage. Noteworthy demand is reported for tracts ranging from 25 to 100 acres available for development as residential parks or as pretentious estates, but land on this scale is in strong hands, to be surrendered only at attractive prices. The movement reflects the suburban trend, Rohan declares.

A feature of the week was the purchase by Guy Oliver, president of the Oliver Electric Co., of the new residence of M. P. Walbridge, president of the Merrell Drug Co., on the east side of Price road, between the Clayton and the Ladue roads.

Realty on More Active Basis.

As has been told, Fred Z. Salomon recently purchased the pretentious Sam Plant house, with six acres of ground, on the east side of Cella road, between Clayton road and the grounds of the St. Louis Country Club.

As a whole, real estate was on a more active basis during the last week. This was attributed primarily to the fact that funds available for investment are more abundant just now, owing to maturities and semiannual interest and dividend disbursements.

Transactions were on a comparatively broad scale. Negotiations in a large number of instances, retarded by adverse weather conditions, were brought to a successful conclusion. This was especially true as to those involving flats, apartments, and dwellings. Demand for buildings along this line was noteworthy as compared with three or four weeks ago, evidencing the underlying strength of the market.

There is, however, a diversity of opinion as to values, which, together with the difference of owners,

MULLIN-WALTERS HANDLES THREE BUSINESS LEASES

The Levin-Goodman Manufacturing Co., Spizer Gale Manufacturing Co. and Gale Sobel Co. leased the entire ground floor and basement in the seven-story building at 1121 Washington avenue. This property was formerly occupied by the King Brand Clothing Co., which recently moved its main offices and salesroom to Jefferson City, Mo.

The Levin-Goodman Co. deals in curtains, draperies, blankets and household linens. The Spizer-Gale Co. handles a general line of ladies', children's and infants' ready-to-wear garments. The Gale-Sobel Co. handles men's and boys' clothing.

The first mentioned firm now is located in the building at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Lucas avenue, while the last two firms are occupying the three-story and basement building at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Lucas avenue. These firms were compelled to seek larger quarters on account of increase in business. It is their intention to occupy their new quarters after Aug. 1. They will make extensive alterations and repairs, installing a new, modern front and all new fixtures.

The officers of the Levin-Goodman Co. are Abraham Levin, Louis Goodman and A. Goodman; of Spizer-Gale, Abe Spizer and Hyman Gale; of Gale Sobel, Harry I. Gale and Ben Sobel.

All parties to the transaction were represented by the Mullin-Walters Realty Co.

EPSTEIN REPORT SALE OF 24-FAMILY APARTMENT

Stanley Epstein reports the sale of a 24-family apartment on the 4600 block on Washington boulevard, known as the Melville apartments. The building will not be completed until autumn. The buyer was George Duemler for a consideration reported at about $125,000. Duemler, who was represented by Arthur Goodman, intends to sell the apartments under a co-operative plan.

Stanley Epstein represented the builders, the Margel Realty Co., which is constructing a similar building at 714 Interdrive, and is contemplating the erection of a number of similar structures in the West End, which will be financed and under the management of Stanley Epstein.

THE PUFF OF DEATH

Insects take their breath through pores, and one whiff of El Vampiro kills them. Don't have the danger and mess of a poison powder or liquid. El Vampiro is harmless to man and animal. Puff it into the crevices and around beds, and you will kill every insect that crawls. Puff it into the air for flies. There's no mess. Frees pets of pests. At the nearest store, in the YELLOW bellows box, 10c and 30c sizes. Also in the big sifter-top can for $1.25. If you prefer a liquid spray for flies, there's Liquid El Vampiro, and it's just as potent. Allaire, Woodward & Company, Peoria, Ill.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY CENTER OF REAL ESTATE ACTIVITY

Demand, According to J. M. Rohan, Reflects Suburban Trend — Guy Oliver Buys Walbridge Home.

By Berry Moore.

St. Louis County is one of the most active real estate centers, according to James M. Rohan, president of the St. Louis Land Title Co., with offices at Clayton.

Tracts are being sought in this area, according to Rohan, for investment, as well as for sites for homes. Negotiations embrace both small and large acreage. Noteworthy demand is reported for tracts ranging from 25 to 100 acres available for development as residential parks or as pretentious estates, but land on this scale is in strong hands, to be surrendered only at attractive prices.

The movement reflects the suburban trend, Rohan declares.

A feature of the week was the purchase by Guy Oliver, president of the Oliver Electric Co., of the new residence of M. P. Walbridge, president of the Merrell Drug Co., on the east side of Price road, between the Clayton and the Laduc roads.

Realty on More Active Basis.

As has been told, Fred Z. Salomon recently purchased the pretentious Sam Plant house, with six acres of ground, on the east side of Cella road, between Clayton road and the grounds of the St. Louis Country Club.

As a whole, real estate was on a more active basis during the last week. This was attributed primar- to the fact that funds available for investment are more abundant just now, owing to maturities and semiannual interest and dividend disbursements.

Transactions were on a comparatively broad scale. Negotiations in a large number of instances, retarded by adverse weather conditions, were brought to a successful conclusion. This was especially true as to those involving flats, apartments, and dwellings. Demand for buildings along this line was noteworthy as compared with three or four weeks ago, evidencing the underlying strength of the market.

There is, however, a diversity of opinion as to values, which, together with the difference of owners, is restricting to an appreciable extent the volume of transactions.

Plenty of Capital Available.

The situation as to real estate is gratifying in contrast with that in other lines. An upturn in general business would be the signal, it is believed, for renewed activity in real estate.

As a matter of fact, there is an abundance of capital for investment and speculation, as the result of the respite in general business. It is available for all legitimate real estate purposes, provided it can be placed on a conservative basis. Otherwise, this money would not unreservedly be a source of real estate supply.

Many meritorious building projects, postponed for financial reasons, doubtless will be revived under the circumstances, with the assurance of more or less success. This is regarded as logical in view of the fact that in not a few instances these projects are of a character of which the city is in urgent need. The number includes several contemplated office, hotel and theater buildings on an ambitious scale. The lack of office space is acute in the extreme.

SAN REMO APARTMENTS ON EUCLID AVENUE ARE SOLD

Sale is announced by the F. W. Bray Realty Co. of the San Remo apartments at 904 and 908 North Euclid avenue, for Art B. Mooney to a client of W. E. Minton. The building contains 12 apartments of four rooms each. The gross rent is $9250 per year. Other sales by Bray are: 3867-69 Flad avenue, a four-family flat, for Lena Wagner to Olivia Schowe; lot at 3545 Itaska avenue, for Elizabeth Stapleton to Arthur A. Krueger and Sophie Krueger; 1809 Coleman street, a single flat, for J. A. Hall and Julia Hall to Damiano Castro and Rosa Castro; 2513-15-17-19-21-23-25-27 Bacon street, two double flats, for a client of Wolf-Pollack to Dora L. Mooney.

SEVERAL FLATS SOLD BY WILLIAM RODIEK & CO.

The sales of William Rodiek & Co. include the following: A large residence, 2313 South Grand boulevard, lot 56 by 200 feet, for Charles Stehle and wife to Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., represented by the Mercantile Trust Co.; single flat, 5206 Pennsylvania avenue, for Theophile Mesnier and wife to Rudolph Heinzel and wife; a mercantile building, 2618 South Broadway, for Wolf Evans and wife to Joseph Bourd and wife; a double flat, 1919-21 Sidney street, for Mina Mueller to Peter Noveretta and wife; a brick cottage of four rooms and bath, 4120 Fairfax avenue, for Dorothea Mueller to Henry Johnson and wife.

AUCTION OF CLUB SITES ON MERAMEC RIVER TODAY

About 25 first-class clubhouses and 400 club sites will be offered at auction on the premises near Fenton and opposite Meramec Highlands, today. A large number of these lots and clubhouses are on the Meramec River with bathing beaches, boating and other natural recreation facilities, with modern conveniences.

There will be a band concert on the ground, and refreshments. Five club sites will be given free to the people on the ground.

The nationally known auctioneer, Col. C. P. Madden, ex-Mayor of Danville, will conduct the sale. This sale is being handled by Walton & Mottas, who are specializing in river properties this season.

EXERMONT PARK IN COUNTY AN ATTRACTIVE ADDITION

25-Acre Tract on Warson Road Subdivided Into 14 Lots—New Houses Being Put Up.

Exermont Park on the east side of Warson road, just north of the Conway road and directly west of the ground of the St. Louis Country Club forms one of the most attractive additions in St. Louis County.

The tract was developed under the supervision of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., represented by William R. Cady, real estate officer, for a syndicate of which Norman Comfort is the head. Surface improvements include winding drives and landscape work.

The tract, comprising 25 to 30 acrse, is subdivided into 14 lots ranging in size from one and a half to four acres, which are being sold through the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

A number of attractive houses are being erected in this addition, including those for Norman Comfort, Bennett C. Clark, son of the late Honorable Champ Clark, and Humphrey Price.

The Comfort house is at the northeast corner of Picardy lane and Warson road. This will be an attractive Colonial house, with large living room, center hall and spacious stairway, dining room, kitchen, pantry and large sun parlor on the first floor. The second floor will have four large bed rooms and two beautifully appointed baths, while the third floor will have two rooms and bath for servants. The ground embraces one and three-fourths acres.

The house for Bennett C. Clark is being built on the east side of Warson road, north of the Conway road. Construction is of stucco and half timber. This will contain large living room, dining room, kitchen, pantry and solarium on the first floor. The second floor will have five large bedrooms and two baths.

The house being constructed for Humphrey Price was designed by Maritz & Young, architects. The site is on the east side of Warson road, just south of Picardy Lane. Plans call for a two-story stucco residence with tile roof.

The first floor will include large living room, dining room, kitchen, pantry and sun parlor. Four large bedrooms and two baths will complete the second floor.

ADELSON FIRM ACQUIRES LEASE ON NEW QUARTERS

An organization known as The Adelson, headed by Harry P. Folk, has acquired a lease of the second floor of the seven-story building at the northeast corner of Washington avenue and Eleventh street, for a branch distributing house under the name of "Adelson."

Folk, until recently a member of the firm of Rosenthal-Sloan Millinery Co., will have the management of the new establishment. He is well-known in all branches of the millinery industry. The Adelson organization is comprised of a group of three factories in New York City. The main showroom of the organization is located at 500 Seventh avenue, New York City. The purpose of the branch house is to carry a complete stock of tailored and trimmed hats for immediate shipment. The lease was made by the Mercantile Trust Co.

J. W. EDWARDS JOINS FARM LOAN CONCERN

Is Made Resident Vice President of New England Securities Co.

J. W. Edwards has been made resident vice president of the New England Securities Co. of Kansas City, having recently resigned his position with the Commonwealth Farm Loan Co., with which he was identified in an important capacity for 25 years.

The New England Securities Co., an old established farm loan concern, has taken offices for its St. Louis branch in the new Title Guaranty Building, at 810 Chestnut street, with Edwards in charge. It makes loans on farm land in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas. The local office of the New England company was in the old Title Guaranty Trust Building at Seventh and Chestnut streets, formerly occupied by the Title Guaranty Trust Co., from which it derived its name.

Edwards served as appraiser for the Commonwealth Farm Loan Co., and is regarded as an authority on the values of farm land throughout the country. Prior to his connection with the Commonwealth Farm Loan Co., he served for several terms as assistant recorder of deeds at Bowling Green, Pike County, Missouri, the experience incident to which has been of decided advantage to him in the farm loan field.

E. W. Grant to Go to Brazil.

Edward W. Grant, secretary and treasurer of the Wagner-Grant-Bell Real Estate Co., yesterday departed for New York, where he will sail on the steamer Western World for Brazil. He will be accompanied by his brother, John W. Grant.

J. I. EPSTEIN JR. JOINS HIS FATHER'S REAL ESTATE FORCE

J. I. Epstein Jr. has joined the sales force of his father's office. Epstein was just graduated from Pennsylvania University, having completed the course of commerce and finance which well qualifies him for matters coming up in a real estate office.

J. I. Epstein reports the sale of a vacant lot on the southeast corner of Cologne and Eichelberger avenues, fronting 40 feet on Cologne; sold through J. I. Epstein Jr. to A. Schreck for a client of the office. Also sold 1811 Carr street, a two- north side of Enright avenue between Heman and Syracuse avenues, for the Gerhard Sisters to Eugene Freund, who has plans ready for the erection of a two-story building consisting of two stores on the first floor and offices on the second floor. A lease was closed for one of the stores to a responsible tenant. Slso sold 1811 Carr street, a two-story four and four-room flat, renting for $960 per annum, for Catherine Hagerty to Nathan Romanof for investment. Also sold a 50-foot lot on the north side of Warwick avenue in "Aldine place," to a client who has plans for a modern residence. Also sold 260 feet of ground on the south side of Cote Brilliante avenue in "Aldine place," to the Mav Building and Investment Co., a client of Anderson-Stocke-Buerman, who plan the erection of several four-family flats.

FORD HOTEL SUPPLY CO. LEASES LUCAS AVE. BLDG.

The Ford Hotel Supply Co. has taken a long term lease on the six-story and basement building at 709-11 Lucas avenue.

The company started in business on Third street in a small store in 1906 and at that time handled only china, glass and silverware. They incorporated in 1908 and leased the building at 921 North Broadway, their present location, and added a complete line of ranges and kitchen equipment and utensils, and also started to manufacture steam tables and coffee urns and all equipment necessary for the modern hotel and restaurant kitchen.

Their new building will give them 40 per cent more square-foot area and will contain the offices and salesrooms. They will occupy the new building on or about Sept. 1, 1924. The lease was negotiated by Martin and Breitt for August and Lillian Shellhorn, trustees.

JOHN S. BLAKE COMPANY REPORTS 8 SALES IN WEEK

The John S. Blake & Bro. Realty Co. reports the following sales:

4071 McPherson avenue, northeast corner of Sarah street, nine-room brick residence; sold for a client of Samuel Liebert to Mrs. Annie Hilbert.

2120-22-24 North Eleventh street, corner Clinton street, brick cottage and two single flats; sold for account of Miss Ruth Held to Miss Elizabeth Nichols.

3740 Cote Brilliante avenue, two-story, two-family frame flat; sold for account of William J. Moxey to Harry F. Uhlhorn.

5007 Ridge avenue, six-room brick cottage; sold for account of Mrs. Harriet E. A. Grinham to John T. Flynn and wife.

3947-47A Fairfax avenue, a two-story brick single flat; sold for H. F. Uhlhorn to Fred G. Nichols.

2723 Sheridan avenue, seven-room brick dwelling; sold for R. Held to A. David.

Vacant lot, 26x193 feet, on north side of Duncan avenue, west of Boyle avenue; sold for the Kupferle Investment Co. to Dave Tonella, who will erect a one-story business building.

Vacant lot on north side of St. Louis avenue, west of Kingshighway; sold for account of Jennie Hanlon to A. W. Mauk, represented by Albert G. Blanke.

$170,000 LOAN COMPLETED FOR BUILDING NEW GARAGE

Albert Von Hoffmann has concluded negotiations With Edward K. Love for a loan of $170,000 to finance a garage to be erected at the northwest corner of Ninth street and Clark avenue.

The building will cover three-quarters of a block and cost $200,000, exclusive of the cost of the site, the value of which is placed at $170,000.

The loan is at 6 per cent and is secured by a first deed of trust on the building and the site. The garage which will embrace the Ramp system, has been leased to the Downtown Garage Co.

SALES FOR WEEK LISTED BY JOHN A. WATKINS & CO.

John A. Watkins & Co. report sales and loans amounting to $61,500 as follows: 3885-87 Folsom avenue, with lot 50 by 125 feet, four flats five rooms each, from John and Sophie Eggers to Esther Keslinsky, $17,000; six-family, five-room and sunparlor apartment on Kingsbury, near Rosedale, $35,000.

GUY OLIVER BUYS WALBRIDGE RESIDENCE

Sale, Effected by Albert T. Terry and Co.—Price Paid Not Disclosed.

Guy Oliver, president of the Oliver Electric Co., has purchased the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Walbridge on the east side of Price road, between the Clayton and Ladue roads, recently completed. Albert T. Terry & Co. effected the sale. The consideration was not announced. A picture of the house is shown in this page.

The residence, of English type, is situated in a rolling section of woodland and so designed as to take advantage of the contours of the land. A drive entering the grounds makes a large circular fore court at the entrance, and from this leads a driveway to the lower level and garage. The house is of brick—laid very roughly and painted white. The roof is of shingle, laid irregularly.

The ground slopes sharply to the rear and the garage, which is fireproof, occupies part of the basement.

Entering the hall, the main feature is the circular iron staircase. Opening off the hall is the living room and opposite, the dining room. A wing is set at an angle to the main house, and contains the service portion, kitchen, maids' bedrooms, bath and dining room. The kitchen is ventilated by an exhaust fan, and is equipped with all modern appliances. The butler's pantry has an electric dishwasher, built-in, with regular plumbing equipment.

The second floor has four large bedrooms with two baths and showers. The main hall is the full width of house and has a balcony overlooking the garden terrace. A sewing room, linen closets and large sleeping porch complete the second floor. A commodious attic space is provided.

The interior finish in the living room is of oak. The hall is also of oak. The rest of the house is in enameled finish. All the floors are of oak.

The house was designed by William T. Trueblood and Hugo K. Graf, architects.

Before Buying That Lot, Have You Considered?

The general locality—what its future development will be and whether it is properly restricted—
Whether it will be free from factory and commercial encroachment?
Is it free from the smoke nuisance?
What class of home owners it is attracting.
Will the improvements be put in as promised—and in the shortest possible time?
Can I borrow enough to build my home when the lot is paid?

BUY AN ACRE OF LAND TODAY

Build your home upon it and live where the air is pure. If farmed in an intensive way, an acre will go far toward furnishing a living for your family. It will grow in value while you sleep. Many are now spending enough each month to pay for such a home. Every acre of land in the immediate suburbs of St. Louis is sure to increase rapidly in value, due to the steady and enormous growth of the city. One good investment is worth a lifetime of toil.

WHERE THE CITY WILL BE TOMORROW

Some of the greatest fortunes of St. Louis were built on this formula. We want you to know the possibilities of how fast money can be made in such investments. It is said that History repeats itself. We have prepared a small booklet giving a history of how the great Astor estate grew in a century to such a huge sum as to astound the world. How it has paid on the original investment over

200% Each Year for Over 100 Years

The story of how this great fortune was made reads like a romance. We want you to read it and will mail you a copy of the story by return mail without expense or obligation on your part. For your copy of this interesting story send in the coupon below. Box H-252, Post-Dispatch, 12th and Olive sts., St. Louis, Mo.

University City

SINGLE FLATS In University City

We invite you to inspect our modern five-room up and down single flats, located in the 6700 block on Crest and Bartmer avenues, adjacent to the beautiful Pershing public school.

These buildings are provided with all of the modern conveniences and are well and substantially built of the finest materials and workmanship and are offered at a price and on terms within the reach of all, under our very easy payment plan which gives you

TEN YEARS TO PAY

Under our very easy purchase plan you have ten years to pay the balance of your building—ten years, during which you will not be confronted with vexatious refinancing worries and expense.

At the end of ten years your building will be free of all mortgage indebtedness—a monument to your thriftiness and good sense.

Under our plan of easy purchase you will be at the same time saving money and providing an income and estate for your dependents—instead of having accumulated a sheaf of worthless rent receipts. BECOME YOUR OWN LANDLORD.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME

The ownership of a home is and has always been the hope and ambition of every good citizen. The methods, however, of acquiring a home have been oftentimes too difficult for the average person—but under our easy purchase plan it is now possible for everyone who pays rent to acquire one of our income producing single flats.

"THE OTHER HALF PAYS"

"The Other Half Pays"—by use of our plan these buildings are so sold to you on monthly payments which are equal to the rent of the building itself—thus, the tenant in your building is helping you to pay for it. The tenant will, at the end of his rental period, have rent receipts—you will have a building.

Visit our large building operations and see for yourself how these buildings are constructed. We have over one million dollars' worth of single flats under construction and completed. Our building operations are open to inspection at any time and we shall be pleased to send a machine for you and have you taken out to this beautiful part of University City without obligating yourself in any way—just call Parkview 1402-J, our Sunday phone. If you cannot get out today call our office during the week and we will call for you at your convenience—just call Olive 1913, our office phone.

ISN'T THIS AN IDEAL PLACE TO LIVE?

Webster Groves is a city of unusual beauty, with its trees, beautiful homes and smooth, well-kept lawns. It has been truly called a city of trees. Here you will find the advantages of both country and city without the drawbacks of either. A commission form of government, an excellent school system, churches of every denomination and splendid transportation facilities. Here, too, you will find a community spirit that means neighborliness and contentment. There are no evil influences in Webster. You owe it to yourself and to your children to bring them up in this healthful, wholesome atmosphere.

If you are looking for a home, look here first. You will find something to satisfy you. Let us show you what we have to offer in this beautiful community. Our organization is efficient and we have facilities for handling carefully and courteously every detail of your transaction.

At Last You Will Find Your Ideal Home

At Gannondale, in the heart of University City, at Delmar bl. and Hanley rd., the choicest spot in all the West End; all improvements are provided; there are beautiful parkways and winding drives; highly restricted.

The homes are Majestic homes; in architectural design and beauty offering not only the newest and most modern, but the greatest range for individual choice; the homes contain from six to ten rooms with garages, sun parlors, etc., and are on large, fully improved lots.

Every newest feature for comfort and convenience is provided; bathrooms, with tile floors and wainscoting, one-piece built-in tubs, showers with combination mixing valves, pedestal lavatories, recessed fixtures, medicine cabinets, clothes chutes.

Interiors are finished in oak, walnut, mahogany, white and other soft tints of enamels, to harmonize with the finest furnishings; highest quality hardwood floors; sunrooms have Murphy in-a-door beds.

Exteriors are finished in varying patterns of matt brick and stucco over brick; tile sweeping roofs are in many shades of tile and slate; all gutters, etc., are copper; even the roofs being applied with copper nails.

Latest automatic control D.-T. hot-water systems; an abundant number of electrical outlets for lamps and electrical equipment; electrical fixtures of the finest design and quality on the market.

The first fifty of the hundred homes that will be in Gannondale are being completed; many of them are already sold and occupied; never before have St. Louis people been offered all the advantages to be found in combination at Gannondale, a community built entire and completed, no uncertainty as to how it may develop; fifty beautiful yet individual homes from which to choose; a location without the city dirt and din, yet with all city conveniences and transportation; and, best of all, because these homes were built in a single group, the cost of building was cut; here you find remarkable values in fine homes and the Majestic plan of financing makes it possible to fit terms to your convenience and spread the payments over many years.

One of the homes has been completely decorated and furnished by the interior decoration staff of the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Company, and is open for inspection.

Don't delay your visit to Gannondale; the homes are going fast. Gannondale is at Delmar bl and Hanley rd (7500 west).

Los Angeles (St. Louis)
Answers Your Call for a Home of Your Own

Perhaps no other city in all the country has the good fortune to have a community like Los Angeles (St. Louis) building in its midst. Surely no other place in St. Louis compares with it.

A wonderful forest fairyland, with blue skies, soft breezes, wild flowers and sunken gardens that beggar description. Schools, churches, community centers, parks, beautiful winding driveways. Five of St. Louis' finest country clubs are neighbors—yet because of the high-speed car lines and boulevard drives, downtown St. Louis is quickly reached.

A thousand California homes will comprise Los Angeles (St. Louis). The first 100 of these homes are under construction now and will be completed shortly. A number of them have already been sold. They have from four to eight rooms, and parlors, sleeping porches, front side and rear porches and are all built on one floor, built of matt brick, laid in many patterns, or mission stucco, over brick, each home is individual in design. The wide, sweeping roofs are of genuine tile. All metal work is heavy copper.

Interiors are finished with the most expensive materials to harmonize with fine furnishings. The floors are hardwood, the thickest made and of highest quality. The tile bathrooms have highest quality one-piece, built-in tubs (some have showers), sanitary medicine cabinet, with bevel plate mirrors.

Abundant electric outfits and electric fixtures of the newest and finest type are provided. The Yale hardware is in crystal and solid bronze. Each home has a perfect heating plant. Steel is used for girders, beams and supports over openings, and for basement sash.

You can have one of these wonderful homes for your own. For in reality it will cost you nothing. Rent money pays all, without second mortgage or loan renewal; no financing to do.

SEE LOS ANGELES (St. Louis) TODAY. Drive out Natural Bridge road to the Lucas and Hunt road, then three blocks west to the big red water tower, the highest spot for miles around. The entrance to Los Angeles (St. Louis) is just a few hundred feet beyond. Or by street car, the Kirkwood-Ferguson line passes right by.

SMALL farms in winterless California. You can work a small farm with less capital investment; and in California you can work outdoors all the year. The State Land Board of California is offering choice 20-acre farms at Ballico, Merced County, small down payment; 36 years' time on balance. Ample water for irrigation; a small one-family farm, cutting out high labor costs, insures success. Equally good opportunity in other sections of the San Joaquin Valley, as well as Southern California, for the man of moderate means who wishes to get a home of his own. California is the richest State per capita in United States of America. Most of this wealth comes from the soil. No winter handicaps. Illustrated folders descriptive of California mailed on request. $100 OR MORE WEEKLY

We are dividing our territory into districts and the distributor appointed for each district will have the exclusive sale of our product which we manufacture. $100 or more weekly is not only possible but a proven fact. Our [illegible] requires but one minute demonstration and sells upon sight to practically every automobile owner. Mr. Graham of Belmont, N. C., a recently-appointed distributer, says: "Best proposition I have ever sold. Made $30 in one day. More than $100 weekly easily made." Mr. Carlisle of Henderson, N. C., writes: "Your product has merit and sales beyond that which is anticipated, increase my territory, etc." Others are doing equally as well. Are you looking for a proposition, where a small capital secured by goods, will start you in a business worth $100 or more weekly? If so, investigate this. The Bailey Manufacturing Co., 322 South College st., Charlotte, N. C.

HOLLY HILLS IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM NEARLY DONE

The Federer Realty Co. reports that the grading work in Holly Hills, the 100-acre subdivision which it is developing west of Grand avenue and adjoining Carondelet Park on the north, is nearing completion after eight months of steady work. This has been one of the largest grading waiting jobs in St. Louis in years, nearly 500,000 yards of dirt having been moved.

The balance of the $500,000 improvement program, which covers sidewalks, gateways, sewers, water, gas and asphalt streets, parkways, street entrances and other decorative features as well as shrubbery, is now started. It is the intention of the company to push these improvements forward to a rapid conclusion as a number of purchasers desire to build at once.

Sales to date in this subdivision are close to the half million dollar mark. The majority of the purchases have been made by prospective home builders who realize that this is the last high-grade subdivision in South St. Louis having the features desired by the home builder, and is particularly attractive because of its proximity to Carondelet Park, a beauty spot unrivaled in St. Louis and having sewers, water and gas in as well as transportation facilities.

During the past four months, more than 50 new homes and bungalows have been erected in this district. The agents predict great building activity in the fall. A number of early purchasers in Holly Hills have turned over their purchases at handsome profits, before the installation of improvements.

WORK IN UNIVERSITY HILLS IS FAST NEARING COMPLETION

University Hills, the new residential park lying on the south side of Delmar boulevard in University City, is fast approaching completion. The addition, which has been laid out on an elaborate scale, is owned by the Cyrus Crane Willmore Co.

An imposing entrance to the addition has been constructed at the Delmar boulevard, while surface improvements include roadway, [illegible] and parkway.

The improvement program includes the sewering of the [illegible] property, with a 63-inch [illegible] ing tile reinforced with [illegible] the sewer line running [illegible] lot instead of terminating in the middle of the street. The sidewalks and curbing are of red granite.

A new school for University City is being contructed in the center of the park.

The addition is more than two-thirds absorbed, the lots having been acquired for both home sites and investment. All building plans must conform with regulations before construction can proceed.

Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, has designed and built five houses for the Willmore company, each different in design and construction, though all are of the popular type of square house. The houses were recently featured in the National Builder magazine.

The Willmore organization has completed plans for widening [illegible] building operations.

The Kirkwood Ferguson line runs through the property. Recent action on the part of the United Railways contemplates the removal of the car tracks from their present location into the center of Pershing boulevard, a 100-foot boulevard skirting the park on the south, a continuation of Pershing avenue to the Hanley road. Kingsbury boulevard, adjoining the park, is proving popular in the development of the district.

The Cyrus Crane Willmore organization owns and controls a third more land in University City than did Mr. Lewis, the founder of University City. The Willmore company developed the University park district last year. There is considerable building activity all over the Willmore properties at the present time and the plans before the trustees who, under the

RUSSELL PARK IS NEW RESIDENCE NEIGHBORHOOD

Russell Park, which was recently put on the market by the Security Guarantor Realty Co., owners, is coming to be acknowledged as the new section of Tower Grove Heights. It adjoins Tower Grove Heights on both Utah place and McDonald street, only two blocks west of Grand avenue.

Numerous business locations and homesites have been purchased in Tower Grove and Cherokee street business men. Russell Park is already surrounded by the best built neighborhood in Central-South St. Louis, and has every environment of an established neighborhood characteristic of the South Side. Churches of all denominations are two to four blocks distant. The public schools are the Horace Mann and the Rose Fanning. The parochial schools are the St. Pius and the Holy Family. All of these are within easy walking distance.

In spite of the inclement weather in the past two months, more than 250 lots have been sold. All improvement work is well under way and the beautifying of the new neighborhood is having its effect. Over half a million dollars worth of building will be under construction within the next few weeks. Building contractors have waited for years for this tract to be placed on the market. Numerous authorities on real estate claim Russell Park will be one of the quickest built up tracts ever placed on the market, owing to the shortage of homes and location of this tract.

Street car accommodations are being given by four car lines, Fourth street line, Tower Grove line, Cherokee line and Grand avenue line, each of which takes not more than 25 minutes to go downtown.

In addition to the ground improvements, the Security-Guarantor Realty Co. is placing brick boulevard entrance pylons on all streets and have also ordered maple trees placed 30 feet apart.

WORK IN UNIVERSITY HILLS IS FAST NEARING COMPLETION

University Hills, the new residential park lying on the south side of Delmar boulevard in University City, is fast approaching completion. The addition, which has been laid out on an elaborate scale, is owned by the Cyrus Crane Willmore Co.

An imposing entrance to the addition has been constructed at 7200 Delmar boulevard, while surface improvements include roadway, drives and parkway.

The improvement program includes the sewering of the entire property, with a 63-inch interlocking tile reinforced with concrete, the sewer line running into each lot instead of terminating in the middle of the street. The sidewalks and curbing are of red granite.

A new school for University City is being contructed in the center of the park.

The addition is more than two-thirds absorbed, the lots having been acquired for both home sites and investment. All building plans must conform with regulations before construction can proceed.

Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, has designed and built five houses for the Willmore company, each different in design and construction, though all are of the popular type of square house. The houses were recently featured in the National Builder magazine.

The Willmore organization has completed plans for widening its building operations.

The Kirkwood Ferguson line runs through the property. Recent action on the part of the United Railways contemplates the removal of the car tracks from their present location into the center of Pershing boulevard, a 100-foot boulevard skirting the park on the south, a continuation of Pershing avenue to the Hanley road. Kingsbury boulevard, adjoining the park, is proving popular in the development of the district.

The Cyrus Crane Willmore organization owns and controls a third more land in University City than did Mr. Lewis, the founder of University City. The Willmore company developed the University park district last year. There is considerable building activity all over the Willmore properties at the present time and the plans before the trustees who, under the

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

IGNORANT. — It is the proper thing for a man to raise his hat upon meeting his wife on the street.

W. R.—Consult the city or telephone directories regarding the address of the person in question.

A DAILY READER. — Address the Prohibition Enforcement Agent, Federal Building, Eighth and Olive streets.

MRS. E. S. — Inquire of your neighboring churches for the information desired.

CURIOUS. — Inquire of some member of the Ku Klux Klan or a member of the Catholic Church for the information.

CHAS. H.—Consult any of the automobile dealers for the information.

KING.—The automobile bus line is not operating between St. Louis and Chicago at the present time.

L. B. J.—The Banner News and the Cosmo-Monitor are published at St. Charles, Mo.

BECKER. — If your questions were received they were answered. Write again.

W. B.—Market street is the dividing line of north and south in St. Louis. Market street is considered No. 1 and the numbers run north and south from that point.

A P.-D. READER.—We do not publish business addresses in this column. Consult the classified section of the city directory for the information desired.

MARY.—Lobster claws may be pulled apart with the fingers. Shrimps, also, when served whole in their shells, may be separated, peeled and eaten with the fingers.

R. J.—The 10-cent piece dated 1820 is worth from 10c to 20c; the large 1-cent piece dated 1850 is worth from 5c to 10c; the silver dollar dated 1841, Liberty seated, is worth $1.10. The 5-cent piece dated 1873 is worth from 5c to 10c.

MRS. N. C.—If you have been unable to obtain the information desired from your florist, inquire at the Missouri Botanical Garden and they will supply you with the information regarding the trees.

E. C. M.—You will pass through the following towns in going to Mt. Vernon, Ill., from St. Louis: East St. Louis, Belleville, Mascoutah, New Memphis, Okawville, Addieville, Nashville, Ashley and Mt. Vernon. Follow State Highway No. 15 out of Belleville to Mt. Vernon. Paved highway practically all the way.

ANXIOUS.—The formula for toilet vinegars follows: Alcohol, 80 per cent; 1600 parts vinegar, 10 per cent, 840 parts, oil of pinu; spumillo, 44 parts; oil of lavender, 4 parts; oil of lemon, 2 parts; oil of bergamot, 2 parts. Dissolve the oils in the alcohol, add the vinegar, let stand for a week and filter.

C. S. — Following is the route from St. Louis to Richmond, Mo.: St. Charles, St. Peters, O'Fallon, Wentzville, Foristell, Wright City, Truesdale, Warrenton, Pendleton, Jonesburg, High Hill, New Florence, Montgomery City, Wellsville, Mexico, Thompson, Centralia, Sturgeon, Clark, Renick, Moberly, Huntsville, Clifton, Salisbury, Brunswick, Dewitt, Carrollton, Norborne, Hardin, Excelsior Springs, Elkhorn and Richmond. Follow National Old Trails road to High Hill, then follow State road 45 to Mexico, 22 to Moberly, 20 to Keytesville, 10 to Excelsior Springs, then on through to Richmond.

READER.—It used to be an offense, and it still is considered impolite, to refuse dishes at the table, because your refusal implies that you do not like what is offered you. If this is true, you should be doubly careful to take at least a little on your plate and make a pretense of eating some of it, since to refuse course after course cannot fail to distress your hostess. If you are "on a diet" and accepted the invitation with that stipulation, your not eating is excusable; but even then to sit with an empty plate in front of you throughout a meal makes you a seemingly reproachful table companion for those of good appetite sitting next to you.

J. W. A.—May 27, 1896, St. Louis was struck by a tornado which occasioned an appalling loss of life and property. About 5 o'clock on the afternoon of that day the storm burst suddenly upon the city, coming from the southwest and, passing down the valley south of the railroad track, laid waste an area about two miles wide by three miles in length. The storm was severely felt in other portions of the city, near the river and north of its general course. In East St. Louis there was a frightful wreckage of buildings of all kinds, attended by great loss of life. A heavy rain storm accompanied the tornado, increasing the horrors of the situation and seriously impeding the work of rescuing the wounded and caring for those who were without shelter.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

G. E. Blackheads are a disorder of the sebaceous glands of the skin, characterized by yellowish or whitish pin head sized elevations, containing in their centers blackish points. Very often the black points appear upon the unchanged skin. The disease is observed on the face, neck, chest and back chiefly. The affection, though comparatively trifling, is often extremely annoying. It is due in part to idiosyncracy, in part to a general sluggish performance, not only of the functions of the skin but also those of the whole body. Those affected are apt to suffer from dyspepsia and with constipation and in young women anemia and menstrual irregularities often exist. It is pre-eminently a disease of puberty, patients being almost invariably young men and women. Local treatment in some cases suffices to relieve the condition. Frequent bathing with hot water will aid in the process of removal. Stimulating ointments especially those containing sulphur are useful, as the following: Precipitated sulphur, 1 drachm; rose water ointment, 1 ounce. Make into an ointment and rub into the affected surface at night. Another excellent preparation is as follows: Vinegar, 2 drachms; glycerine, 3 drachms; kalolini, 4 drachms. This forms a soft paste, to be spread on the surface at night and, if possible, in the morning. If applied on the face the eyes should be kept shut, on account of the pungency of the vinegar. It dislodges the plugs satisfactorily and they should be gently expressed, care being taken not to use much force for fear of inflaming the skin. In very obstainate cases the X-ray, carefully applied, will cure. A tonic internal treatment is sometimes called for.

DEATHS

WILLIAMS—Entered into rest on Friday, July 4, 1924, Andrew J. Williams, beloved husband of Lillie M. Williams, dear son of Charlotte Williams, and our dear brother.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my dear husband, Peter Geiger, who passed away six years ago July 5, 1918. Sadly missed by his wife,
MARGARET GEIGER.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother Emma McLaughlin, who departed this life July 3, 1920. Sadly missed by HUSBAND, DAUGHTER AND SON.

In memory of Eddie Farrell, departed this life July 7, 1902. Gone but not forgotten. Mother, Ellen Farrell and wife, Rose Farrell.

In loving remembrance of my dear daughter, Regina Pittans, who died July 2, 1913. Sadly missed by MOTHER AND BROTHER.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and loving father, Anton Pinker, who departed this life 11 years ago, June 27, 1913. Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Elizabeth Baer, who departed this life five years ago July 6, 1919. Sadly missed by
MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

In loving memory of Ema Sowab, who died July 11, 1923, at 3107 Lismore st.
Though you are gone, but not forgotten,
In our memory you'll demain,
Though the parting was dreadful,
We will some day meet again.
Sadly missed by her
CLUB MEMBERS.

In memory of Edith Mary Hammerschmidt, who died five years ago, July 5:
A sword has pierced my aching heart and made a wound so deep;
The only way it can be healed is when I'm fast asleep.
Sadly missed by the
HAMMERSCHMIDT FAMILY.

In memory of our dear mother, wife and sister, Anna Kosel (nee Blanner), who departed this life one year ago, July 5, 1923:
None know the depth of our regret;
We remember when others forget;
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting with one we loved so well.
Sadly missed by,
HUSBAND, SONS, BROTHERS, AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

In loving remembrance of our dearly beloved husband and father, Julius E. Frey, who died July 3, 1921:
Just three years ago today,
Since my dear husband passed away,
I saw him suffer, heard his sighs,
With aching heart and weeping eyes

I saw him sinking hour by hour,
Yet could not stay death's awful power;
But now he calmly sleeps at last,
All pains, all aches, all suffering past.
His loving WIFE, DAUGHTERS AND SONS-IN-LAW.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Viola Droege, who departed this life July 6, 1923:
Viola, dear, it is just one year
Since you left us broken-hearted,
Those who saw you in your casket,
Pure and white, and oh, so fair,
Thought you were the like of heaven
As you lay so sweetly there.
Your merry laugh we hear no more,
The voice we loved is still
And all thought is left for memory,
In your grave on a distant hill.
Sadly missed by father, mother, sisters and all who loved her of Granite City, Ill.

In sad but loving memory of our dearly beloved son, Peter Mehlberg, who departed this life July 6, 1923:
Our greatest sorrow came to us one year ago.
A heartache no one knows:
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting with one we loved so well.
You are gone but not forgotten,
And your memory shall never fade;
And lonely hearts shall always linger
Where our dear son is laid.
Sadly missed by,
FATHER, MOTHER AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Josie Hesse (nee Finnegan), who departed this life one year ago, July 7, 1923:
A rose that is sweetest and fairest,
In the end is killed by the frost;
And the flower that is dearest and rarest,
Is the loved one that we have lost.
At home in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some day, some time, when our task is done,
With joy we shall meet her there.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

In sad but loving memory of our dearly beloved son and brother,
FRANCIS P. HAWKINS,
who departed this life July 3, 1917:
Our greatest sorrow came to us seven years ago.
A heartache no one knows;
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting with one we loved so well.
You are gone but not forgotten,
And your memory shall never fade;
And lonely hearts shall always linger
Where our dear Francis is laid.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHER, SISTER-IN-LAW AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

WANTED—SALESMEN

TO START AUG. 1ST.

COMMISSIONS paid addressograph salesmen this year will average well over $6000 per man.

Selling addressographs is as fascinating work as it is profitable. If you are a salesman, or have a friend who is a salesman—it costs nothing to investigate and may result in BIGGER earnings and BIGGER opportunities.

1. We are not "hard up" for good salesmen, because 90 per cent of our salesmen remain with the company year in and year out. Less than 10 per cent of our sales force leaves each year—a remarkably low "turn over" in salesmen.
2. But addressograph sales are increasing by leaps and bounds. More and more business men are asking HOW an addressograph will help them SELL and SAVE more. So our present highly successful salesmen are unable to take care of ALL their inquiries and sales opportunities. Therefore we will have a LIMITED number of openings AUG. 1 for unusually high-grade men.
3. Reply by letter ONLY.
4. Age limits, 23 to 35 years.
5. High school education, preferably college.
6. Preference will be given to men WHO HAVE ALREADY made a successful CREATIVE selling, such as office devices or systems, securities, life insurance, etc., rather than those who have been selling COMMODITIES on a salary basis or those men who have NOT had selling experience.
7. Let your letter demonstrate your selling ability—because addressograph salesmen must be able to write CONVINCING selling letters.
8. Enclose latest photograph and specify fully age, education, selling experience, former employers and preference as to city or territory you would care to work in.

Address Mr. L. P. Rossiter, Manager, ADDRESSOGRAPH, 313 N. 10th st., St. Louis.
(Branches in principal cities.)

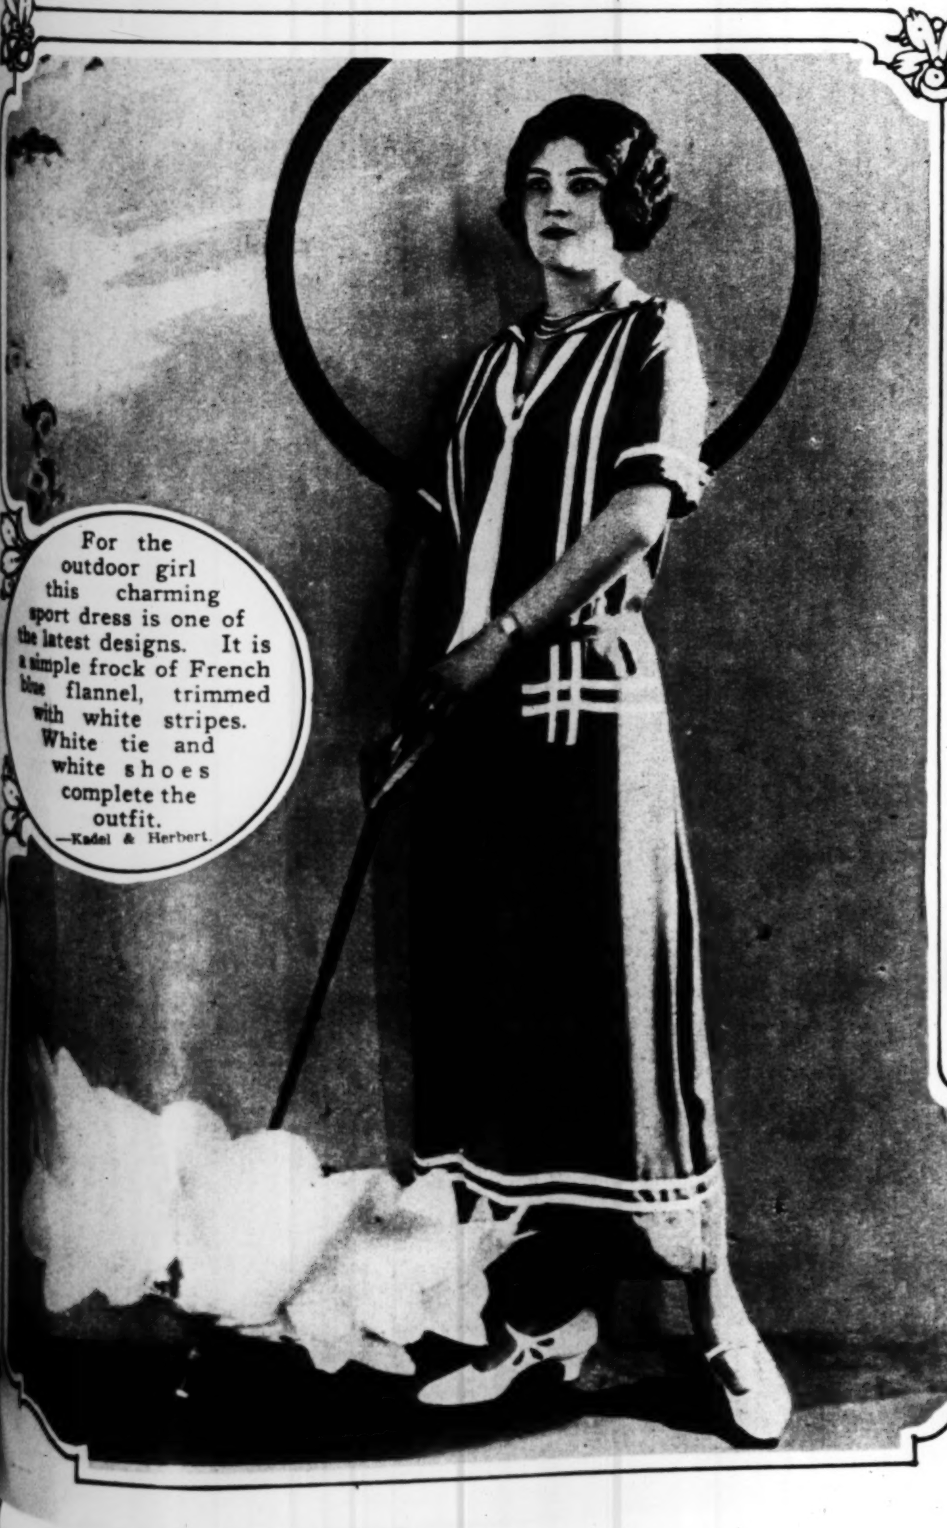
FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful, clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double-strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.



For the outdoor girl this charming sport dress is one of the latest designs. It is a simple frock of French blue flannel, trimmed with white stripes. White tie and white shoes complete the outfit.

Prettier Teeth

Millions now get them by combating film

This is the way to those whiter teeth you see everywhere today. A ten-day test is free.

It can bring to you and yours the same results as millions now enjoy. Accept this offer and learn what this new way means.

Film is dingy

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. It clings to teeth, resists the tooth brush, enters crevices and stays.

Film soon becomes discolored, then it forms dingy coats. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also causes most tooth troubles. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. It breeds millions of germs and they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Few escaped

Under old methods, few escaped these troubles. So dental science sought for ways to daily fight that film.

Two ways were found, and able authorities proved them effective. One acts to disintegrate the film, one to remove it without harmful scouring.

A new-type tooth paste was created to embody these two methods. Its name is Pepsodent. Now careful people of some 50 nations employ it, largely by dental advice.

Corrects mistakes

Pepsodent also corrects mistakes made in tooth pastes heretofore. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva and multiplies its starch digestant.

Those are Nature's great tooth protecting agents in the mouth. Old methods depressed them. This new method gives them manifold effect.

The results of Pepsodent will amaze and delight you. One week will show how much you need it.

Send the coupon for the 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. It will be a revelation to you. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

You see slender women everywhere!

ON Fifth Avenue . . . at Newport . . . Palm Beach—at every rendezvous of refined and fashionable people, you see slender women.

Would you, madame, be among these slender women who seem, not to follow, but to set the fashion? Thanks to Marmola Tablets, you can.

Marmola Tablets offer a pleasant way to reduce—to retain or regain a graceful slender figure without exercises or diets. Thousands of men and women each year regain healthy, slender figures this way.

Try them and see what a pleasure it is to be slender again!

Marmola Tablets are one dollar a box at all drug stores or from us direct in a plain wrapper, postpaid. Marmola Company, 1700 General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich.

The Pleasant Way to Reduce

Peace of Mind
Millions of women are finding it this new way
By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, Graduate Nurse

HERE is a new way in personal hygiene. A way that assures peace of mind, charm and exquisiteness under circumstances impossible under old conditions.

Dances, bridge, the theatre—the demands of business and social duties — meet them now, confidently, unhandicapped. Wear, too, your filmiest frocks, your daintiest gowns!

Correcting a bad habit

80% of the lack of charm, the loss of the immaculacy expected of a woman, according to hygienic authorities, is due to the common use of makeshift "sanitary pads."

60% of many ills common to women, according to numerous medical authorities, are due to the same cause. Using these unsanitary ways is a bad habit.

Millions have turned to a new way. Foremost doctors advise it. Eight in every ten women in the better walks of life have adopted it.

Charm, immaculacy, exquisiteness, under all circumstances, is one reason. Greater respect of self, better health is another.

• • •

This new way is called KOTEX—a discovery of a nurse in war time France. It supplants the old time sanitary pad

Made of Cellucotton—the war's super-absorbent — it absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture.

Hygienically prepared, it does not invite the germs of disease to breed and multiply. Hence it is important in modern health precaution.

No trouble disposing of

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—simply discard it. No embarrassment, no difficulty.

Women who seek daintiness, peace of mind, exquisiteness and safety under all circumstances, use it. Once you do, no other method will ever satisfy. And millions will tell you this.

• • •

All drug and department stores have KOTEX in plain packages. Get it without embarrassment simply by saying "Kotex." 12 snowy white, immaculate folds in the medium package.

I would like to send you a new booklet for women on this subject, written by a doctor. Just write for it. And if you have never tried KOTEX, I will be glad to send you a sample, free.

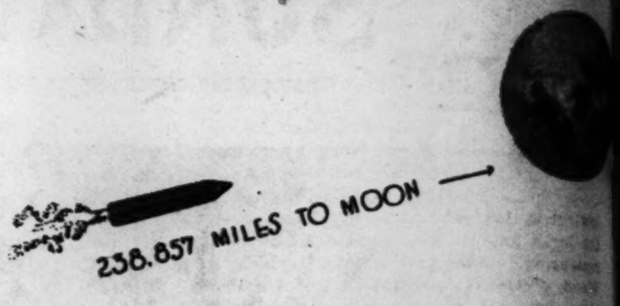
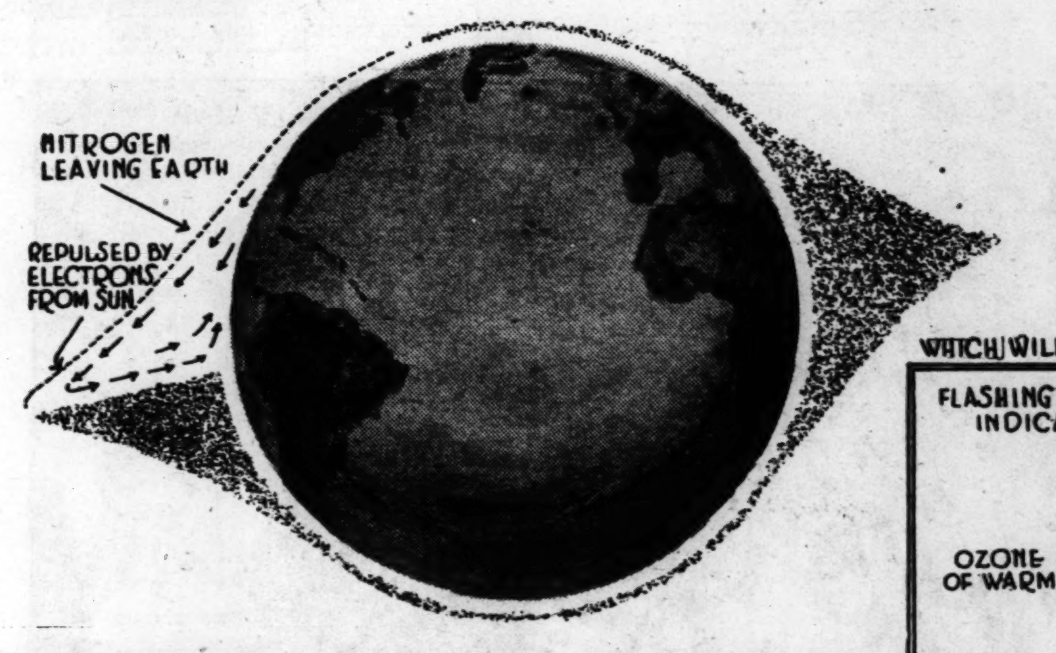
Mysteries of the Unexplored Upper Ai





According to one theory, tiny crystals of nitrogen are electrified by the sun's rays and repelled from earth, only to be discharged and forced back to earth by a protecting circle of electrons, emitted from the sun and becoming effective about 4000 miles above the magnetic equator of the earth. Some scientists believe that a layer of nitrogen "snow" completely surrounds the thin layer of earth's atmosphere, and is thickest above the equator.

Scientist who is building a high-altitude skyrocket tells about some of the questions which may be answered soon—Deductions from two present methods of investigation, by observing meteors and by observing auroral displays, are contradictory—Former method indicates that, at height of 37 miles, there is sudden transition from arctic temperature to that of warm summer day—But students of auroral lights say that temperature falls with increasing height, and that above 56 miles there is a "snow" of frozen nitrogen crystals

Two opposing theories about the upper regions of the air. Study of meteors indicates that the farther from earth the colder the air until a height of 37 miles is reached, when abruptly it becomes like a warm summer day. On the other hand, study of the aurorae indicates that the cold increases steadily to a distance of more than 400 miles, and that extreme temperatures prevail where the other scientists believe the air to be warm.

Under the title, "Science Planning Journey to Region Never Before Explored," an article was published in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine of June 1 last about Prof. Goddard's project to shoot a skyrocket higher than man-made contrivance ever went before. No description of the rocket was available, save that it would be about five feet long, Prof. Goddard remarking that he wanted to give a successful demonstration first. Now he has written this interesting discussion of some of the sky problems which puzzle scientists, and which the long-distance rocket may help to solve. Another article, in the Sunday Magazine of June 15, told how the United States Weather Bureau regularly uses box kites, sounding balloons and pilot balloons in making weather forecasts. Prof. Goddard, whose present undertaking is being financed by Clark University and by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., hopes some time to send a larger and more powerful skyrocket as far as the moon.

By PROF. R. H. GODDARD,
Director of the Physical Laboratories, Clark University, Worcester, Mass.

AMONG the interesting applications of the high-altitude rocket that is being developed is the exploring of the uncharted reaches of the air that extend from 20 miles to 500 miles above the earth's surface, and probably even higher; a region concerning which we know much less than we know about many of the stars which are millions of miles away.

Strange as it may seem, recent scientific conclusions deduced from observations of upper-air phenomena have left the question of this unexplored space in a more unsettled state than it was before these conclusions were reached. There have been two ways of studying the upper air indirectly, one by observations of meteors that flash in the night, and the other by observations of auroral displays. Unhappily, the deductions from these two methods are contradictory.

The only bodies of appreciable size in the high upper air are the meteors, which everyone sees occasionally, as they flash brightly for a moment, and disappear. The average meteor begins to be visible, because of heat generated by air resistance, at a height of about 80 miles, disappearing at about 37 miles.

Although they appear as bright as first-magnitude stars, even to an observer 100 miles away, they are really nothing more than bits of iron or stone about the size of the head of a pin; but they come at such a prodigious speed from outer space, approximately 25 miles per second, that they possess enormous energy of motion, varying as it does with the square of the velocity.

These pinheads from space have enough energy to lift a ton through a height of nearly two feet!

Prof. R. H. Goddard at work in his laboratory, Clark University, upon the rocket with which he proposes to explore the air several hundred miles above the earth—a region now unknown above the 22-mile limit.

Before we consider the story that the meteors tell, however, let us review briefly what it known regarding the air in the short distance above the earth's surface that has actually been studied—a distance of about 22 miles—by means of instruments carried aloft by thin rubber balloons.

The weather changes take place in a layer of air called the "Troposphere." This is seven miles thick, or not much higher than the loftiest mountain. Even our large storms, a thousand miles or more in diameter, are therefore not much more than pancakes of air, about seven miles thick. There is good reason to suppose, incidentally, that the weather changes begin to occur at the top of this layer of air, which suggests the importance of high-altitude weather maps, made from simultaneous upper-air observations over a wide territory.

When instrument-carrying balloons first penetrated beyond this region they brought down the unexpected information that the temperature, instead of falling steadily with height, as had been supposed, actually rises slowly with height; and this region of rather steady low temperature, about minus 63 degrees Fahrenheit, is accordingly called the "Stratosphere."

There is reason for believing that the temperature of "space," if a body were protected from the sun's rays, would be much lower than this, but no instruments have ever risen high enough to show where the Stratosphere ends.

According to the study of meteors that has been made by Profs. Lindemann and Dobson of the University of Oxford, England, the Stratosphere ends at 37 miles, in a very unexpected fashion. The temperature rises abruptly to 80 degrees Fahrenheit, above this level. There is a sudden transition from arctic temperature to that of a warm summer day.

The scientists consider that, for meteors to shine brightly at the great heights at which they are observed, the upper air must be of a hundredfold greater density than has hitherto been supposed (being, nevertheless, of but 1-500,000 the density at sea level, at a height of 60 miles); and instead of consisting of hydrogen and helium, as has universally been considered likely, it must consist of ozone, as this is the only gas which can take up much heat, by absorbing the rays of the sun.

Their most striking conclusion, namely, that the temperature rises abruptly above 37 miles, seems actually to be supported by the fact that very few meteors ever vanish just below this level, which makes it appear as if the meteors plunged into a cool layer of air, and only became heated again after penetrating considerably lower in the atmosphere.

But another story seems to be told by the light from aurorae, which reaches much higher than the visible paths of meteors, and appears to be produced by radio-active and other similar rays from the sun. In fact, Dr. L. Vegard, professor of physics in the University of Christiania, considers from many observations of the color, intensity of light and height of aurorae, that nitrogen predominates in the high atmosphere, and that the temperature falls with increasing height until, at a height of 56 miles, where the air is over 95 per cent nitrogen, the temperature reaches minus 351 degrees Fahrenheit, so low that nitrogen freezes.

Above this level, according to Prof. Vegard's findings, the atmosphere consists of a very rare dust of frozen nitrogen crystals, fairly dense up to 75 miles, and very thin above this height. It is this frozen nitrogen dust which gives the blue color to the sky.

But nitrogen is a much heavier gas than hydrogen, and to account for its appearance as dust 56 miles up to 460 miles, the greatest height at which the auroral light has been observed, Vegard supposes the nitrogen crystals to be positively charged electrically, by the rays of the sun, and repelled upward, rising like a fountain, because of a positively charged layer of air at about 50 miles; the hydrogen and helium, being unfrozen and hence consisting of very minute particles, actually leaving the earth by this electric repulsion.

Radio owes much to this lofty nitrogen "snow."

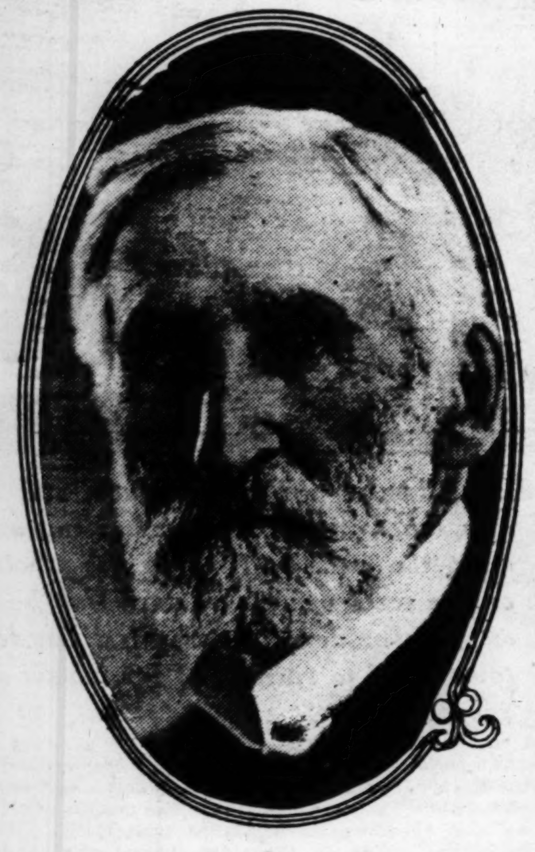
The World's One Big Best-Seller Book-Agent Talks About His Job.

President emeritus of the American Bible Society tells four great reasons why the Bible is the best-selling book in the world—Output now being manufactured under contract as far west as Indiana, to supply the constant demand—Last year 30,000,000 copies were sold, an enormous increase over the year before, and 240,000,000 copies have been distributed in the past eight years—The Bible walks away from all competitors

By JEAN PIPER.



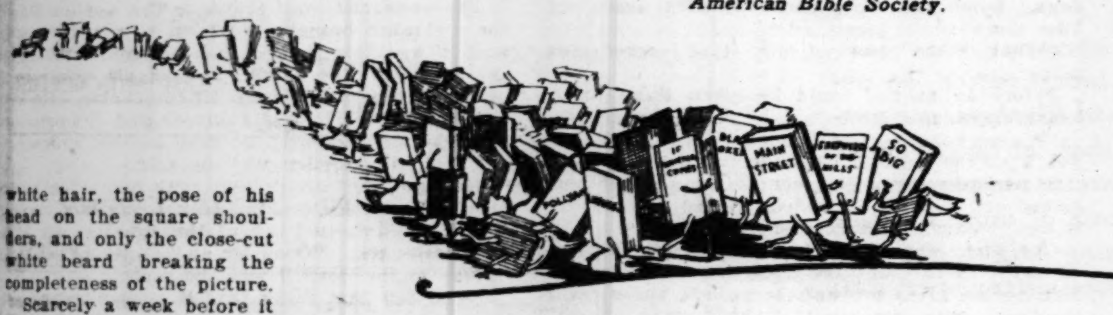
James Wood, president emeritus of the American Bible Society.

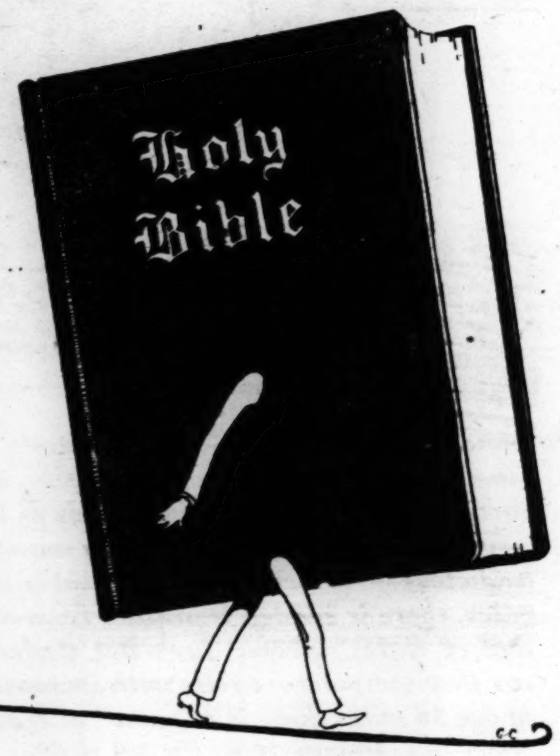
WHEN one goes to interview a man reputed to be 84 years of age and finds him just returning from a tramp with his foreman over his 400-acre farm and sees him striding briskly across his lawn to greet you, nattily attired in soft English tweeds, with low-cut tan oxfords and gray felt hat, a scrutiny of the birth date in the family Bible would be most reassuring. And the wonder grows when James Wood, president emeritus of the American Bible Society, lifts his hat, reveals a handsome, iron-gray head and grips your fingers until they tingle.

Perhaps in all Westchester County, N. Y., there is no place that spells home and the world all in one breath, as does the rough-hewn stone house on top of a high hill on the Old Road, where James Wood has lived through his 84 years and his father before him. The Wood family came from Halifax and England and for 120 years the estate has been in their name. Only one deed of the land stands between them and the Mohican Indians.

It is a mellow house, rich with memories, filled with the atmosphere of much good living, pretentious with its art treasures from Europe, Western Asia and Africa. And James Wood, seating himself comfortably in the great morris chair, with its homey rug thrown carefully across its back and resting his hands on the elongated armrests, looks the epitome of all that was best and wonderful which he had touched in his world travels and brought home.

Sitting there by the open fireplace, talking so fluently and earnestly about his work in the American Bible Society, there suddenly came to the listener a vision of Longfellow. He does resemble Longfellow—his intent yet kindly expression, the broad brow with the wide-set blue eyes, the heavy mass of white hair, the pose of his head on the square shoulders, and only the close-cut white beard breaking the completeness of the picture.





Scarcely a week before it had been a rare privilege to watch Mr. Wood, acting as clerk of the 229th yearly meeting of the Society of Friends, tactfully heal the schism of 100 years that had kept apart the two branches of Quakerism, the Hicksites and the Orthodox, and leading them in a joint meeting, in which, unexpectedly, they welded into one body in their expression on two of the national questions of the day. James Wood has that extremely rare gift of knowing when he has said just enough and following it up with a vigilant silence. This characteristic has made him famous as a leader of men.

"There are four great reasons why the Bible is the best-selling book in the world," said Mr. Wood, settling himself comfortably in the big chair. "First, to satisfy an innate longing. People want something outside of themselves and know it can be found in the Bible; second, a spiritual experience urges them on to verify it through the Bible. A step higher are those who want to confirm doctrinal beliefs, and this is not necessarily through a controversial impetus; and, last, that class highest up and most in number, those who want to know what is in the Bible that has made the people who read it superior to other people. This last is the most tremendous factor in its sale.

"Queen Victoria struck at the heart of the whole matter 40 years ago," he continued, "when Li Hung Chang, Chinese Ambassador of the old Manchu dynasty, came to her saying:

"'Your Majesty, the Emperor of China has sent me to inquire of you what has made your nation so great?' And the Queen replied, laying her hand on the Bible:

"'This book.'"

Last year 2,500,000 volumes were distributed in China, and twice as many could have been circulated if the earthquake had not cut off the supply from the presses in Japan, according to Mr. Wood.

"Do you think people buy the Bible just for literary purposes?" Mr. Wood was asked, and he replied:

"Very few. Only the highly educated are attracted because of its literary merit. The rest of the world get it because they are looking for something they cannot find, which they feel might be found in the Bible."

Here Mr. Wood paused, and with that clarity and system characteristic of him, outlined briefly how the work of printing and distribution of the Bible are carried on.

There are two great Bible societies in the world, he said, the American Bible Society at Astor place, New York City, which was established in 1816, and the British and Foreign Bible Society, 146 Victoria street, London, established in 1808. The Bible is the best selling book in the world, and this year after year.

Last year 30,000,000 copies were sold, and while in eight years Harold Bell Wright's books, the second best sellers, have only mounted up to 10,000,000 sales, the Bible has risen to 240,000,000 copies. In 1923 the American Bible Society alone sold 7,101,289 volumes, as contrasted with 4,563,667 sent out the year before and 2,901,937 were used in the United States and 18,334 in our island possessions.

The translation of the Bible again surpasses that of any other work. It has been translated into 770 different languages and dialects, and according to the reference librarian of the New York City Public Library, Bunyon's Pilgrim's Progress ranks next.

It has been translated into only 107 languages and dialects, making the Bible farther reaching by seven times. The American Bible Society has made 137 of these translations of the Bible, Mr. Wood said.

The subject of translations brought interesting revelations. Mr. Wood suggested a stroll around the lawn to enjoy its beauty, while hearing about the work of the society. From the front veranda a wide stretch of undulating valleys spread, broken at last by five interlocking mountains, 40 miles away. At the foot of the hill, on which the Wood house stood, was a little lake, where mirrored trees lay still.

Resuming our stroll through the spacious lawn, he paused for a moment under the Spanish arch, half covered with woodbine, that rises at the rear of the house, and sounded a bell hanging there. It bears the inscription, "Cast 1623, Seville, Spain," and was a gift to James Wood from a sea captain who recovered it from the ruins of the San Juan Baptiste monastery. Its beautiful tone is attributed to the fact that it is made of one-quarter silver, the melted offerings of visitors to the monastery.

At the curve in the driveway he came to another halt and pointed to a column from the Giant's Causeway that once joined Ireland and Scotland, and now lies a hidden wonder at the bottom of the sea.

Turning to the rhododendrons in full bloom, that, tall as lilac trees, stood quietly in front of their background of pines, he said:

"I brought those from England 43 years ago."

Resuming the subject of the American Bible Society and its world-wide work, Mr. Wood remarked:

"It is interesting to note that China has 39 dialects to struggle with, while her neighbor, Japan, on her little volcanic island, has a universal language and no dialects whatever; and the Japanese are learning English more rapidly than any other people in the world. The circulation of the Bible last year in the Island Empire just doubled that of the year before.

"The earthquake wrought great havoc in the work of the American Bible Society, for prior to the disaster the City of Tokio printed more volumes of the Bible than any other city in the world, not excepting New York and London. The complete distribution of the Fukuien Printing Co., which was an institution in the Far East, caused a material loss of $300,000, but the loss of time that will be necessary to rehabilitate the work cannot be estimated.

All of the society's plates for its editions of Japanese Scriptures, certain of its Chinese Scriptures, most of its Siamese Scriptures, were simply a mass of molten copper. The Philippines suffered most, for the plates for the Scriptures in 12 different languages of the islands were utterly destroyed."

Referring to the language problem in the United States, Mr. Wood said:

"It takes 39 languages to supply the needs of the City of New York, and just as many to supply the City of Chicago, which goes to show the foreign-language population of these two cities is about the same.

"Up until a year ago all the printing and publishing of the Bible in the English language by the American Bible Society were done at its headquarters, Astor place and Eighth avenue, but it was found that it could be done better and more cheaply in the commercial printing houses. Contracts of a million or more copies of the Bible are let to large concerns, many of which are out in Indiana, where there are fewer trade unions to interrupt the progress of the work, than here in the East."

Bayreuth is the great printing center for Bibles in the language of Egypt, Arabia and Syria. Tokio is the center for Japanese, Siamese, Korean and the Philippine languages. The rest of Asia, outside of China, is supplied by the British and Foreign Bible Society. The printing is done in England, where you can get a better Bible for the money than any place in the world.

"The American Bible Society labors under great difficulties because it is not financed as well as the British and Foreign Bible Society," declared Mr. Wood. "They have large trust funds, the income from which is used to enable them to sell Bibles below cost, which they do in all European countries. The American Bible Society is able to sell only at

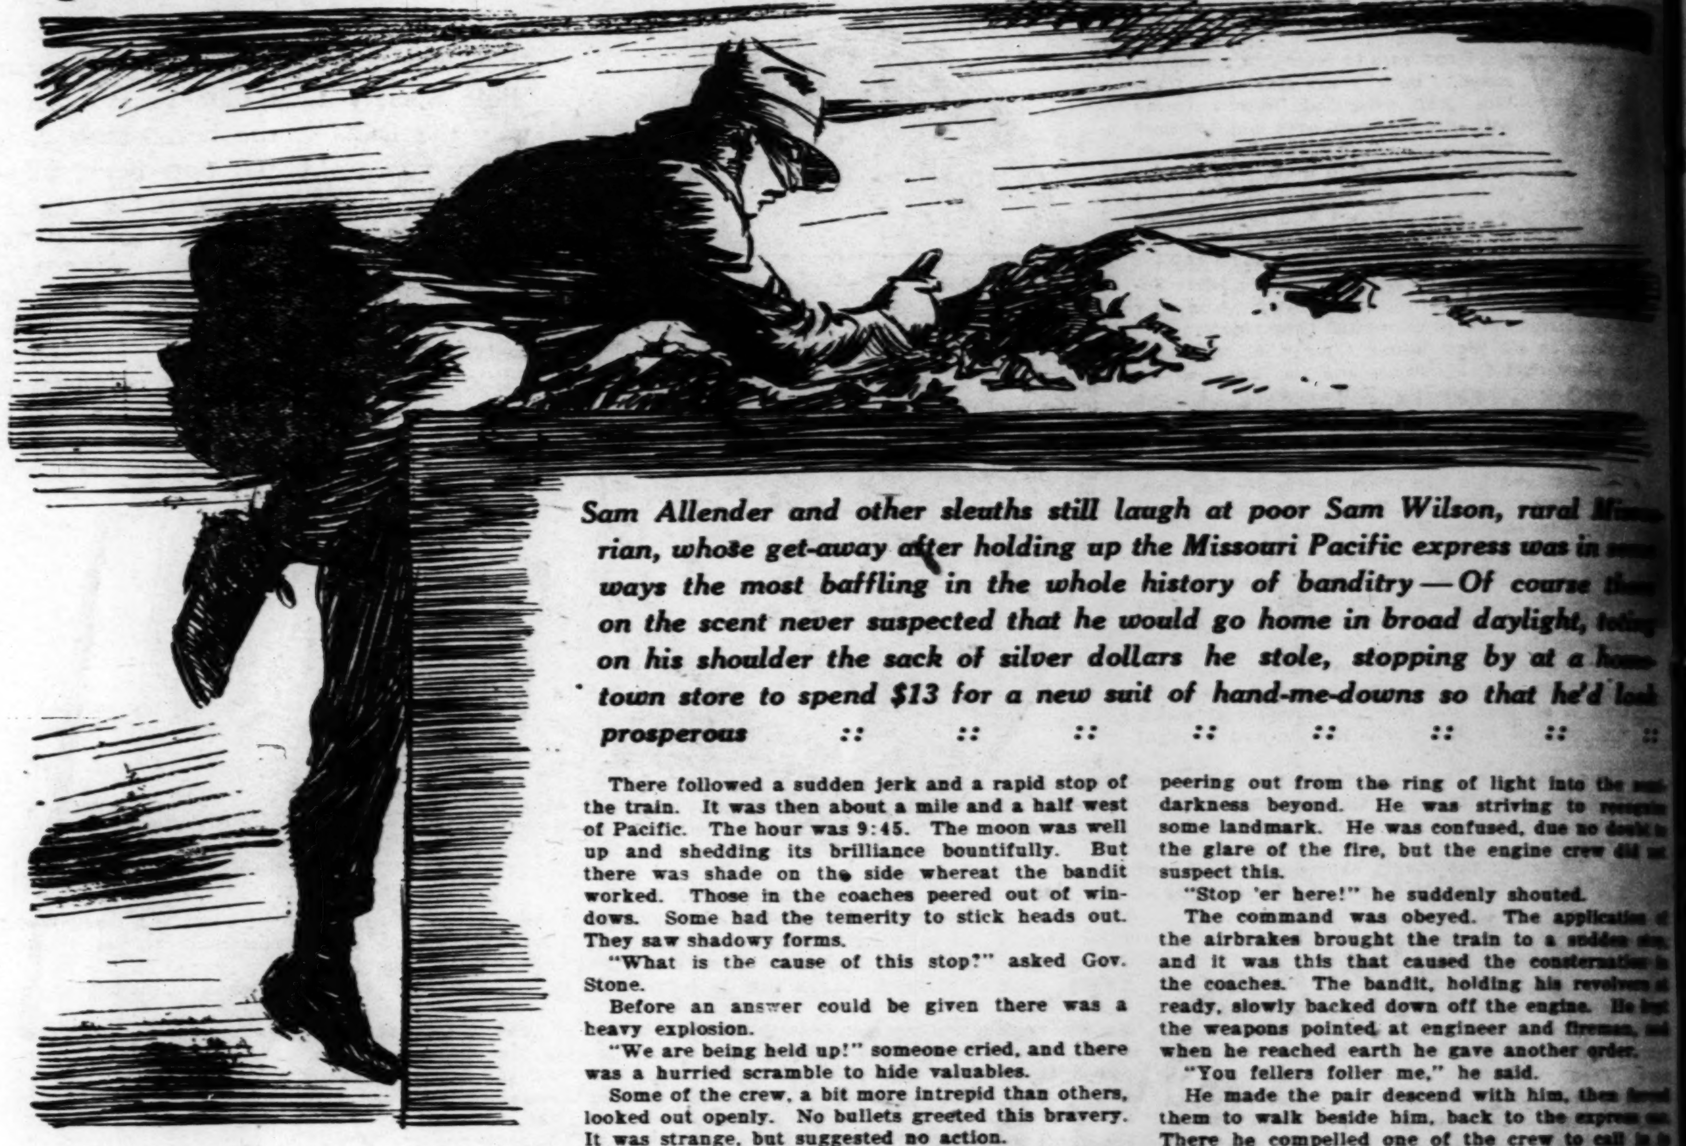
The Lone Train Robber Whose Actual Absenc



Sam Allender and other sleuths still laugh at poor Sam Wilson, rural Missourian, whose get-away after holding up the Missouri Pacific express was in some ways the most baffling in the whole history of banditry—Of course those on the scent never suspected that he would go home in broad daylight, toting on his shoulder the sack of silver dollars he stole, stopping by at a hometown store to spend $13 for a new suit of hand-me-downs so that he'd look prosperous :: :: :: :: :: :: :: ::

"The robber clambered up the rear end of the tender."

By KENNETH G. BELLAIRS.

MISSOURI PACIFIC passenger train No. 3 pulled out of Union Station in the City of St. Louis, on time, on the night of May 24, 1893. It was a beautiful night, with the moon rising clear and promising a pleasant journey across the State to Kansas City, on the western border. The train held a full complement of passengers. It carried some distinguished persons.

Gov. William Joel Stone and members of his staff had attended some State function and were going back to Jefferson City, the capital, midway across the State. Gov. Stone afterwards became United States Senator from Missouri. Included in the array of celebrities was State Treasurer Lon. V. Stephens, a future Governor. There were several other dignitaries and at least one railroad detective, Chief Special Agent Patrick M. Lally. The Governor's party sat in one of the rear sleepers. There was a five-hour ride before them, and all preferred to sit up and chat rather than retire to berths. Governor Stone was one of those who sat up.

The train bowled along without incident to Pacific, 34 miles out. It made its regular stop there. When it pulled out, a man surreptitiously clambered aboard, just behind the tender of the locomotive. Only one man observed him. That man was a tramp, beating his way to Kansas City. The tramp was stowed away nicely and was alarmed when the newcomer got on.

"Hello, pardner," laconically spoke the man who got on.

"Hello," answered the tramp.

That was all. Then the hobo was astonished to see the new boarder draw a handkerchief from his pocket and calmly proceed to fix it over head and face so that eyeholes, already prepared, and apertures for nose and mouth were in proper place.

"W-h-a-t the devil are you going to do?" asked the surprised tramp.

"Me? I'm a-goin' to hold up this train, I am," was the reply, followed by an instant display of two revolvers, a dramatic offering of one to the tramp, and a half-sincere, half-ludicrous suggestion: "Want to git in on it?"

"Hell, no!" answered the derelict. "I don't mind stealing a ride, but I ain't holdin' up no train."

"All right, pard," said the bandit, "you be the loser, because I'm a-goin' to hold 'er up and git a big haul, and all by myself, too."

The tramp shrugged his shoulders and watched the robber, mask adjusted, revolvers in hand, clamber up the rear end of the tender and disappear over the heap of coal.

The bandit was Samuel A. Wilson.

There followed a sudden jerk and a rapid stop of the train. It was then about a mile and a half west of Pacific. The hour was 9:45. The moon was well up and shedding its brilliance bountifully. But there was shade on the side whereat the bandit worked. Those in the coaches peered out of windows. Some had the temerity to stick heads out. They saw shadowy forms.

"What is the cause of this stop?" asked Gov. Stone.

Before an answer could be given there was a heavy explosion.

"We are being held up!" someone cried, and there was a hurried scramble to hide valuables.

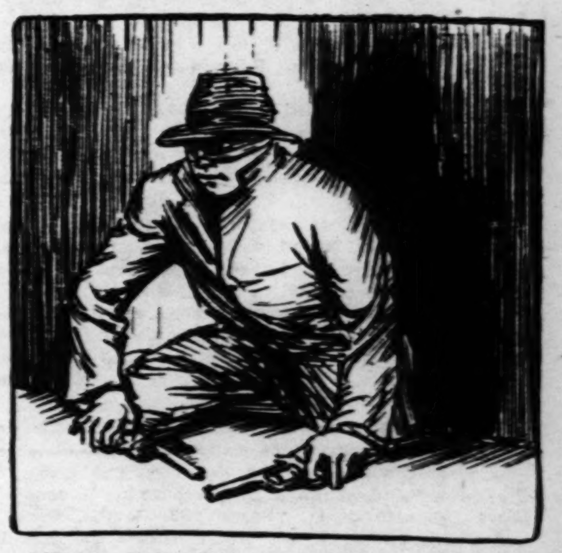
Some of the crew, a bit more intrepid than others, looked out openly. No bullets greeted this bravery. It was strange, but suggested no action.

Gov. Stone was calm. He eventually asked: "How many are there?" and the reply, from the Senegambian porter, given probably because it was a favorite figure with him, was: "About seven of 'em."

That reply was credited to the Governor himself, and he had to accept it with good grace until, forced by the mockery of the press of the country, he issued a statement, famous in itself, in which he placed the credit where it belonged. In that statement he said:

"I saw no train robbers. Did not want to see any train robbers. Never want to see any train robbers."

Meanwhile, stirring events had been going on forward. When the train pulled out of Pacific, the engineer and fireman; utterly unsuspicious, gazing ahead at the long stretch of track glittering in the moonlight, remarked to each other on the promise of a good run. They were startled when the masked figure of the robber slid down off the coal pile, a revolver in either hand, eyes glittering from behind the slits in the bandana, and determination apparent in every gesture.



"He went in head first, a revolver in each hand."

"When I tell you to stop, you stop 'er," was the command.

The bandit had covered engineer and fireman simultaneously. He showed no nervousness. The fireman had thrown the firebox open, and the glare of the fire lighted up the scene, providing a setting rivaling the best in motion photography. The robber stood there as plainly visible as though he were on the stage and a powerful searchlight was focused on him. The engine crew were in shadows. They might easily have turned the tables had they the arms or inclination.

Evidently this did not occur to the bandit, or else it did not concern him. He was master of the situation. He spent the few seconds that intervened peering out from the ring of light into the [illegible] darkness beyond. He was striving to recognize some landmark. He was confused, due no doubt to the glare of the fire, but the engine crew did not suspect this.

"Stop 'er here!" he suddenly shouted.

The command was obeyed. The application of the airbrakes brought the train to a sudden stop, and it was this that caused the consternation in the coaches. The bandit, holding his revolvers at ready, slowly backed down off the engine. He kept the weapons pointed at engineer and fireman, and when he reached earth he gave another order.

"You fellers foller me," he said.

He made the pair descend with him, then forced them to walk beside him, back to the express car. There he compelled one of the crew to call in to the messenger: "Open 'er up."

"Go to the devil!" was the reply.

"You tell that feller that if he don't open the door I'll open 'er for him," said the robber.

"Tell him to do so and be damned!" answered the courageous messenger.

As phlegmatically as though he were performing an everyday duty, and a tiresome job at that, the bandit reached into his coat pocket and drew forth a stick of dynamite already prepared with fuse and fulminating cap. To handle this he slipped one revolver into his pocket. This stick he placed on the sill of the car beside the door. He lighted the fuse with a match, which he coolly ignited on his hip, and then he backed away toward the locomotive.

The fireman and engineer sought to retreat to the fence girding the right-of-way. This was noted by the robber.

"None of that, fellers!" he called. "You follow me."

They obeyed. He did this, he said afterwards, to prevent their getting to cover and probably shooting at him.

They had scarcely reached a safe distance when the explosion came. It tore the express car door to pieces. Glass and fragments of wood were scattered all about. The detonation shocked the messenger. He did not know how many men he had to contend with, nor what was to follow. He took the safe avenue and leaped through the hole. When he landed on the ground, he beheld three men. It did not dawn on him, or anyone else on the train, that it was a dare-devil feat, engineered and carried out by one hair-brained individual. Like the engine crew, he quickly surrendered.

Even then Wilson's cupidity might have been his undoing, had there been one determined man, or any show of organized resistance—because as soon as he saw the doorway clear, and the messenger beside him, he rushed for the opening and crawled through it into the car. He went in head first, a revolver in each hand.

It was just at this time that the passengers and crew looked out, and the negro porter caught the glimpse of three forms on the ground and a pair of legs disappearing into the car. It was also at this moment that the special agent descended from one of the rear cars, on the opposite side of the train, and crept forward to the express car. He was [illegible] adequately armed and unable to give battle to a gang of train robbers. But detective instinct urged him to creep forth and do his utmost toward getting a good description of the marauders. He made mental pictures of the fireman, engineer, messenger and tramp, and a part description of the bandit, who was even then climbing into the car. The detective heard the man order:

"One of you fellers crawl in here with me," and saw the fireman obey. He never dreamed that just one man was doing it all. If he had, his fortune would have been made. He went back with his descriptions in his mind.

interior of the express car. Beside the safe he observed several sacks of silver coin. Each sack contained approximately $1200. The outlaw studied the situation for a few seconds. He tested the sacks with his foot, and then brusquely commanded the train hand to "Throw two of them out on the ground."

It was done. The sacks of specie fell with a jingle to the roadbed. Each sack weighed perhaps 60 pounds. Behind the mask the robber was heard to chuckle and mutter: "So far, so good." Then he jumped out, back on the ground, and as abruptly as the preceding order, said: "Put one of them on my shoulder."

Two of the trainmen hastily complied. The man meditated for a moment, moving the shoulder about, figuring the weight and whether he ought to take more. Then, mumbling to himself more than to the crew, he decided: "I guess that will be about enough." He backed from the group of rail workers to the fence at the edge of the right-of-way, slid between the rails, and quickly disappeared.

The train crew, after the surprise ended, threw back the discarded sack of silver coin, helped the messenger into his post, closed the car as best they could and the engineer and fireman resumed their stations. The train once more moved ahead and, tearing through the moonlit night, went on to the next regular stop. From this station there was sent to the St. Louis police this telegram:

"Missouri Pacific train No. 3, passenger, held up one mile from Pacific. Seven men in the robbery. Send officers."

It bore what purported to be the name of Gov. Stone.

William Desmond was then Chief of Detectives at St. Louis and Laurence Harrigan Chief of Police. They sent Detectives Samuel Allender and Dennis Viehle out to the scene. The Furlong Private Detective Agency sent Ben C. Applegate. These men, assisted by railroad detectives and county officers, began the hunt.

It may be mentioned here that Allender, then famous, has since gained repute in many notable cases. He became chief special agent of the Frisco lines, left that to become Chief of Detectives at St. Louis, and later resumed the post he now holds, that of chief special agent of the Frisco system. Applegate is still in the game of thief hunting. Viehle is dead. In the hunt for the outlaw, Special Agent Lally returned to the chase and aided materially in catching him. He, too, is dead.

The detectives had no trouble in taking off. Glass and splintered wood were scattered about where the robbery was done.

Directly from this spot, up across the right-of-way, over a wheat field, Allender followed a trail. This was the footprints of the fugitive and the path he had made through the ripening grain. It led to a fence that separated fields of wheat, and at a distance of perhaps 300 yards from the railroad tracks Allender made an astonishing discovery. It was a pile of silver dollars, nearly 300 of them. Allender stooped, scooped some of them up, and immediately understood what had happened.

As the bandit hurried through the field, at a half lope, the cord about the neck of the sack became loose and finally slipped away. It caused possibly one-fourth of the coins to roll out of the sack to the ground and naturally allowed the butt, or heavy end of the container, to slide from the shoulder of the fleeing man and fall to the ground also. The robber did not pause to pick up the loose coin or to seek the cord. But grasping the sack in a paroxysm of fear, utter fright following an exhibition of audacity second to none in history, he rushed away into the fields.

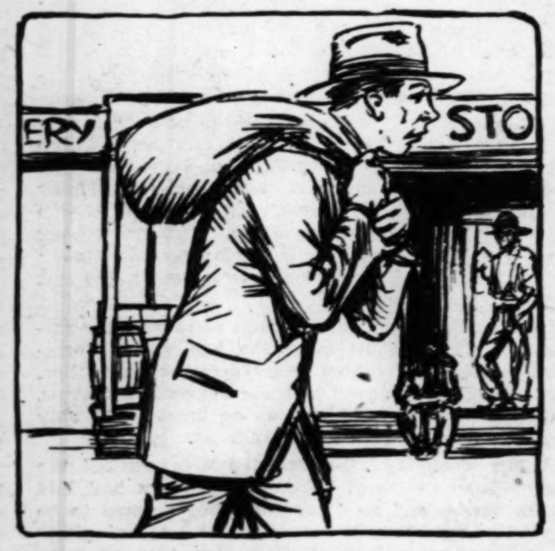
He reached one field several hundred rods further on. Then came recollection. Like a thunderbolt it hit him—his grip!

He had hidden a handbag in the weeds alongside the railroad tracks, at a spot he felt certain he could find without effort. It contained damning evidence, letters with his name and address, clothes and other articles which, if found by others, doomed him. He had foolishly refrained from getting rid of these. They were in the bag, and this was near the right-of-way, where train officials would be sure to find it. He paused. Wisdom urged him to return for the handbag.

There was an old strawstack in the field. He discerned it in the moonlight and crept to it. He burrowed in and hid until he heard the train pull away. Then, after an hour of terror, he secreted the sack and contents amidst the straw and, venturing forth, returned to the rails to hunt the telltale grip.

He was sure he had placed it where he had taken careful note, as a country-raised man, of every available landmark. He had spent two days, as will hereafter appear, selecting this spot, marking it as a woodsman would, noting every weed and post which would guide him when need required. And his peering out of the engine cab, from the light-flooded place into the outer semi-darkness, was due to his anxiety to locate at least one of the marks he had noted mentally.

I have often said this affair was humorous. It had tragedy as well. But the calamity was all for the outlaw, because, without realizing it, he had actually pulled the train up within a hundred feet of his bag and did not know it.



"He still carried the sack and what was left of the money."

Returning to the scene of his singular triumph, he began a fruitless search. He looked behind every weed, every shrub, almost every row of growing wheat. He studied hard to recall just one of the marks he had so carefully observed, but without success. Near dawn, clouds obscured the moon and a storm broke. He trudged through it to the strawstack and dug himself in once more. He slept through that day, and while he slept the hunters were within a stone's throw of him.

Wilson did not heed them. His foolish brain had but one thought: He must find and recover the bag, else liberty was destroyed. So he waited until darkness once more fell about the quiet countryside, and again he crept forth from his concealment and returned to the tracks. He devoted seven hours to the quest. He left no spot unsearched. This time he found the landmarks, but no handbag was there. His search had been useless. He realized that someone, undoubtedly railroad officers, had discovered the handbag and was in possession of that which would wreck him.

He gave way to utter despair. What was he to do?

The thought of home came to him. He concluded it was his only refuge, and, like any fool, he set out for it. He recovered the sack and what money remained, then set forth for Lebanon, 110 miles to the southwest of where he was, a trudge over mountainous country where he might find treacherous traps at every crossroad.

When Sam Allender found the silver heap, quite naturally he hailed his comrades. He waved and shouted: "Come over here! The path taken is plain. See what I have found!"

Just as vigorously Viehle and Lally waved at him, and as strenuously they called back: "Come over here! Look at what we have!"

In a very few minutes they had discovered the handbag which meant so much to Sam Wilson, and in quest of which he had spent hours. It was almost in plain view. The hunted man had walked round and round it.

Fate had played him scurvily. The trifle of miscalculation, always so essential to the minions of the law, and relentlessly disastrous to the criminal, had again worked in favor of society, and Wilson was as certain of punishment as though he were then in prison.

The detectives opened the bag. It contained two boxes, each half filled, one with blank, the other with leaden-bullet cartridges; two letters and some clothes. The letters betrayed Wilson. One was a service letter signed by the general auditor of the Frisco system, setting forth the record of Sam Wilson; the other was a letter of recommendation from the same source.

At that time the detectives were unaware of the fact that just one man had perpetrated the robbery. Lally, a keen sleuth, had asserted he saw at least four men. Passengers saw anywhere from four to seven. The telegram which bore the name of the highest executive in the State said there were seven. It was accepted at first as the official figure, and with the excellent descriptions furnished by Lally, Allender and his aides had visions of a calaboose filled with suspects and a rapid solution.

But at that moment two courses were imperative. One was a hunt along the direction discovered by reason of the pile of silver money, the other the broadcasting of a good description of the gang and offers of reward.

William M. Terry was Sheriff of Franklin County at that time. He and his men assisted the police. Some took the trail. Others began an inquiry into the identity of Samuel A. Wilson. Those who went on the man-hunt missed the hiding place of Wilson. In extenuation be it said that the heavy storm spoken of obliterated the trail of the thief. Wilson, hiding with his loot, heard the pursuit go by.

That night the real truth was discovered. The train repassed on the return trip to St. Louis. Allender boarded it, bent on getting a thorough description of the "robbers." Naturally, the same crew was in charge of the train. Allender saw the conductor.

"Robbers!" exclaimed the fare collector. "Robbers! There was only one robber."

"Quit your kidding," said Allender. "No one man could, or would, dare to try any such trick as this. There seems to have been at least five, perhaps seven. I have descriptions of four. These were obtained by a good detective. I want your help to get a perfect likeness."

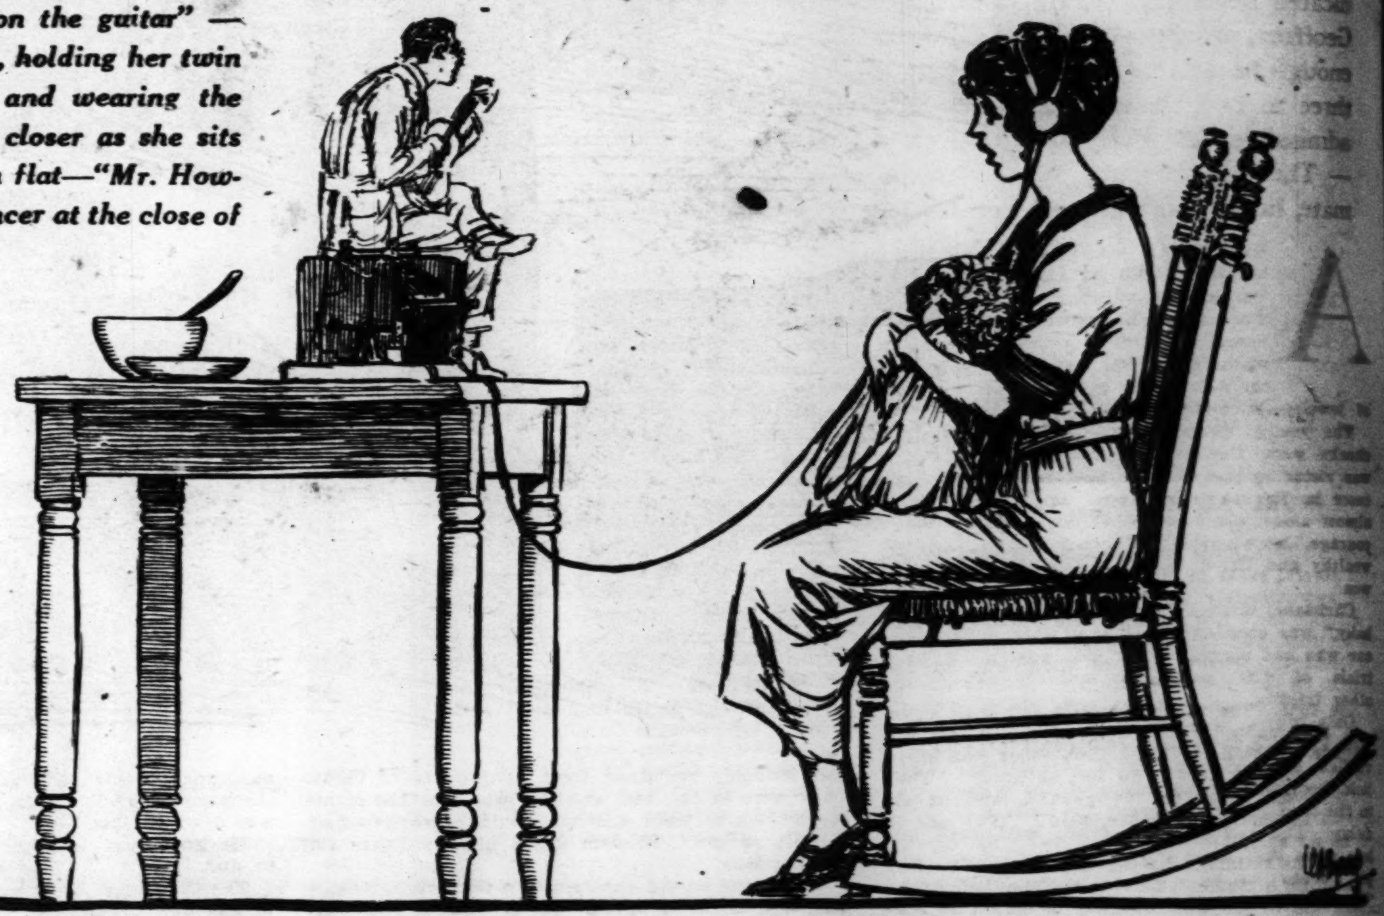
The Radio Restores a Missing Husband

"Mr. Walter Howard," announces Station W J Z, "now will play a series of Hawaiian melodies on the guitar" — Mrs. Walter Howard, holding her twin babies in her arms and wearing the head phones, listens closer as she sits in her bare two-room flat—"Mr. Howard," says the announcer at the close of the Hawaiian series, "will play again tomorrow night" — Mrs. Howard is at the studio the next night with an officer and a warrant—"I'll stay home now and take care of my family," the wandering minstrel promises the Judge ::



By ELSIE McCORMICK.

FOR perhaps the first time in its brief history, the radio has brought a wandering husband home. Ether waves bearing a cargo of sinuous Hawaiian melody flowed down the aerial into a tenement on Second avenue in New York and told Mrs. Caroline Howard that her long search for her husband was over at last. As soon as the rain clouds began sweeping by the cliff the lonely wife knew that the minstrel behind the steel strings was none other than the man who had wooed her with the same haunting music more than five years before.

Walter Howard, it happens, is a troubadour. This does not imply that he wears doublets and hose, or a hat with a green feather set at a 45-degree angle. He belongs to the brotherhood by right of a wandering foot and a hand skilled in plucking melodies out of taut metallic strings. He is one of the fraternity that would rather make a South Sea guitar produce the music of the warm waves on the coral reefs than be elected president of the Kiwanis Club.

When young Howard left Georgia several years ago, he decided after considerable reflection that a nautical career offered the best modern substitute for the life of the wandering minstrel. Therefore, he joined the United States Navy. For more than four years he sailed over the world, strumming his guitar through the seven seas and learning new melodies every time his ship poked a gray nose into another tropical harbor. He played the wistful music of the vanishing races of the Pacific; he learned to imitate the tinkle of the samisens in the teahouses of Kobe; and he caught the lilt of the Spanish melodies that are played beneath the balconies of Havana.

Though minstrels are notoriously averse to the chains of business or domesticity, they are by no means proof against falling in love. In fact, if all the records are to be believed, they are several degrees more susceptible than the butcher, the baker, or the candlestick maker.

It happened that about five years ago Walter Howard returned from his swing around the planet and was stationed for a time at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. One summer day, when he was riding into New York from Coney Island, he found the seat next to him occupied by a bobbed-haired, brown-eyed girl with a complexion that reminded him of the lotus buds of China. A rattling subway train is not usually considered a vehicle of romance; yet before it roared into Times Square Station, Caroline Purt and Walter Howard were already more than 50 per cent in love.

It was Walter's steel-stringed guitar that did most of his wooing for him. Whenever words became inadequate, he filled the little parlor with silver notes that turned it into a mimosa grove. Under the magic of his fingers, the jarring noise of the city became the lapping of moon-rimmed waves on the beach of a coral island.

Of course, Caroline Purt married him. His bank account was in only two figures and his immediate prospects consisted mostly of unsubstantial real estate in Spain; but, to the girl who had fallen under the lure of his steel-stringed guitar, all such practical notions seemed remote and unimportant.

At first the modern minstrel stood up well under the strains of domesticity. He secured his release from the navy and tried to live the life of a hard-working landlubber. At the beginning of the second year, however, the call of the far places began to be heard over the rattle of the Elevated and the coughs of yellow taxicabs. His wandering foot yearned for less trammeled exercise than the mere walking of twins up and down the little flat; his spells of desire for his guitar always coincided with the babies' hour for naps.

So one day Walter Howard did what hundreds of troubadours have done before him—he disappeared as completely as a stone dropped into the ocean. When the small amount of money he left was gone, young Mrs. Howard found herself with two baby girls to support and with nothing more tangible at hand than the memory of a dozen appealing melodies.

The three years that followed were hard ones for Mrs. Howard. She moved to a couple of tenement rooms on Second avenue, at the top of a 20-family building. Early every morning she carried the heavy babies down the long flight of stairs and took them to a day nursery in the neighborhood. Every evening she came, unutterably tired, to the creche and took the children home again. The intervening hours she spent bent over a sewing machine in an airless loft, running up monotonous seams in great stacks of heavy material.

Her emaciated pay envelope left no margin for recreation. The one diversion she had was a home-made radio set, presented by a sympathetic neighbor. Night after night she sat with her babies in her arms, listening to songs and gay dance music that only seemed to underscore her loneliness.

A few weeks ago the deserted wife reached the nadir of despondency. The shirt factory had laid off its hands, and no other workshop seemed to be in need of operators. Exhausted after a day of climbing miles of stairs to dusty lofts, Mrs. Howard gathered her twins in her arms and settled wearily to a brief respite before the radio.

The tired mother had almost fallen asleep when a smooth voice from WJZ announced a series of guitar selections by Walter Howard. To the woman in the battered rockingchair the name was as startling as the reverberation of an avalanche. The babies whimpered as their heads slipped from her shoulder and as her limp arms suddenly tightened around their bodies.

In that tiny space of time between the announcement and the music, Caroline Howard tried to fortify herself against hope.

"There are probably lots of Walter Howards," she thought. "Maybe it isn't"——

But in an instant the little tenement room was filled with the same silvery notes that had beat against her heart five years before. As soon as the invisible musician swung into the mellow tones of "Aloha Oe" Mrs. Howard knew that she had found her troubadour at last.

She listened with quickly drawn breath until the last note tinkled into silence. Then the suave voice of the announcer stated that Walter Howard would play guitar selections again on the following night.

During the sleepless hours that followed Mrs. Howard did a lot of remembering. She recalled the romantic, music-laden days of her courtship; and she recalled also the years of bitterness and worry, when bread and milk for her family were produced painfully from under the needle of a back-breaking sewing machine.

By the time the dawn came, these acid memories had won. When Walter Howard appeared at the WJZ studio the following evening, he was greeted by a deputation consisting of his wife, a warrant and an officer of the law.

This triangular surprise party seemed to distress the announcer in charge of the program even more than it did the pale young performer. Thousands and thousands of radio fans were gathered already around the loud and soft speakers, awaiting the moment when Walter Howard would move the South Sea Islands some 10,000 miles nearer home. There was no artist ready at the moment to take his place. The arrest would mean a span of silence for the waiting listeners-in.

When the situation was explained to the officer of the law he agreed to wait until Howard had played his selections. Thus the detective and the deserted wife stood just outside the broadcasting room while the soft melodies of Hawaii flowed into the microphone.

Howard knew that the wife he had left years before was waiting within earshot to have her revenge for his long period of neglect. In spite of his absence, he was not without love for her; the trouble was that, having been born under a wandering star, he had been won away by the lure of the open road. Anyhow, so the erring husband sought, later, to explain his conduct.

So Walter Howard played as he never had played before. The silent, invisible audience listened and dreamed of far-away horizons; they did not know that the performer had forgotten them completely and was playing to one woman on the other side of a curtain. By the time the selections were over, Caroline Howard was weeping. She wept as she accompanied her husband to the police station; she wept three days later in the Domestic Relations Court, when she begged the Judge to dismiss the case and set her wandering husband free. This the Judge did, on the young man's promise to support his family.

So the modern troubadour has gone back again to the flat, the pretty little twins and the routine of domesticity.

"Those years that seemed so long are at an end now," said Mrs. Howard. "He wanted to come back before, but he was afraid, because he didn't know how to explain. But hereafter we are going to be happy together and make up somehow for those years of separation."

However, the question of whether or not his errant foot has been stayed permanently is something that only the future can show. When a minstrel sings a roundelay under a young lady's window, the best thing she can do about it is to toss him a rose and then marry a steady, practical youth who doesn't know one note from another.

The "Dream Baby" Now in Line for the Peerage

Mrs. Christabel Russell's appeal to the House of Lords, in the divorce suit of the Hon. John Hugo Russell, results in victory for the wife, whose determination to be vindicated never had wavered in long contest — If little Geoffrey, an appealing figure in famous case, lives long enough he will be Lord Ampthill—The Law Lords, by three to two, decide that husband's testimony was inadmissible, and that lower court's verdict cannot stand — The "dream baby of an amazing marriage" legitimate, holds court of final resort :: :: ::

A HANDSOME young woman walked out of the House of Lords, in the huge Parliament buildings at London, the other day. Her costume of black was relieved only by a white biouse, and a white stripe on her black hat. Upon the left hand gleamed her only piece of jewelry—a wedding ring.

The young woman's head was held high, her cheeks were flushed and her eyes bright. She was victor in one of the most sensational divorce cases in England's history. For two years, and almost alone, she had pitted her woman's wit, her courage, her invincible determination, against a wealthy and titled family. And, at last, she had won.

Christabel Russell, mother of the famous "dream baby," was shepherded to a waiting automobile by one who had stayed at her side during all the four trials of the case—her mother—and by a few other friends.

Only when she was safely inside the car did Mrs. Russell's marvelous composure give way. Unruffled, she had faced cruel accusations. She had held her own against some of the wiliest lawyers in the land. She had borne the tedium of the law's delay. She had carried herself with such matchless poise that some people even called her "hard."

And on the day of triumph, when the automobile reached her house in Curzon street, she had to be lifted from the cushions and carried inside. Friends and employes crowded around Mrs. Russell, congratulating her, shaking her hands, kissing her, some of them laughing and some in tears.

—Keystone View Co.

The House of Lords is court of last resort in such cases as that of the Hon. John Hugo Russell, son and heir of Lord Ampthill, former Viceroy of India, for divorce. Five Law Lords had heard Mrs. Russell's appeal, and three of them—a bare majority of one—now decided that the decree of divorce given to Mr. Russell by a lower court could not stand.

Therefore, Mrs. Russell was no longer a divorced woman. Moreover, the decision of Lords Birkenhead, Finlay and Dunedin specifically rejected as inadmissible the husband's principal testimony in the case. Not only does Mrs. Russell regain her status as a married woman, but her honor is cleared and the legitimacy of the "dream baby" assured.

By virtue of the latest turn in this amazing case, little Geoffrey Russell must now be regarded as the future Lord Ampthill. It is true that Mr. Russell can apply for a new trial in the courts below. But he will have to present new evidence against the mother of the "dream baby" in order to get any comfort from the House of Lords.

Little Geoffrey, who still lacks a few months of being 3 years old, is known in England as "the dream baby of an amazing marriage."

The Hon. John Russell and his bride agreed, at the time of their marriage, that there should be no children of the union. It was the wish of the wife, to which the husband consented. The wedding occurred in October, 1918, when the son and heir of Lord Ampthill was 21 years old, and an officer in the submarine service.

Russell testified in court that, in following out this agreement, there was no consummation of the marriage, although the pair lived together from time to time and remained upon amicable terms. When the baby was born, in October of 1921, both Mr. and Mrs. Russell denied knowledge of any biological reason why the event should have happened at all.

But there the baby was, and not to be explained away. A little later, at the age of 9 months, Geoffrey was produced in the London Divorce Court as an exhibit. Husband and wife stuck to their first statements that Geoffrey was inexplicable. Russell testified that he had regretted giving his consent to the no-children agreement, and had tried to win Mrs. Russell around to his views in the matter, but without success. Now a baby had come, and he denied its paternity.

—World Wide Photos.

Little Geoffrey was popularly called "the dream baby" from a theory advanced by Mrs. Russell at the first trial of the divorce suit. Like the plaintiff, she denied any knowledge of intimate marital relations between the pair. But she thought it possible that her husband, when they were occupying separate rooms in the same house, might have walked in his sleep.

The husband and plaintiff denied that he ever walked in his sleep. If true, this completely disposed of the remarkable theory. Then the defense held that Russell was no more competent to tell whether he prowled about the house in slumber than he was to tell whether he snored. The testimony of medical experts was introduced to undermine the theory.

Other testimony, by physicians who had given professional care to Mrs. Russell in the June and August preceding Geoffrey's birth in October, served to deepen the mystery. This testimony tended to exonerate two men named by the husband as corespondents, and the "man unknown" who figured in accusations as the third corespondent. Also, the testimony of the experts tended to corroborate the belief of both the husband and wife that there had been no consummation of the marriage.

Certainly, evidence in the case showed conduct by Mrs. Russell which was indiscreet. Fond of amusement and especially devoted to dancing, she frequently had gone out for an evening's pleasure with the two men named as corespondents, and with others who led a rather bohemian life. These witnesses declared that Mr. Russell knew about these gayeties and voiced no objection.

Once, she spent the night in the apartment of a young bachelor with whom she had gone to a dance. When he escorted Mrs. Russell to her home, at 2 a. m., she found that she had no key. Repeated rings at the bell failed to bring response. And there was sickness at her mother's house, while she hated to disturb any of her women friends at such an hour. So she slept in the bedroom, and the bachelor slept on an improvised bed in the sitting room. The bachelor testified that in the morning he telephoned to Mr. Russell, who came over with some daytime apparel for his wife, and uttered no word of complaint or suspicion.

Another time, she went to Paris and occupied a hotel room on the same floor as that occupied by one of the corespondents. The latter testified that there was not the slightest attempt at concealment or secrecy about it, and that nothing improper occurred. Another corespondent told about an all-night journey by rail in which he and Mrs. Russell shared one sleeping compartment, due to the mistake of a hotel porter in making the reservations for them.

In all the testimony there was not one damaging admission, save as to situations which looked compromising, however innocent they may really have been. The husband was awarded his decree of divorce upon his own evidence regarding nonaccess to the wife. And it was largely upon the point of whether such evidence was admissible that the Law Lords have now set aside that decree.

What is the comment of the London press, now that Mrs. Russell's long struggle for her own rights and those of little Geoffrey has turned out so happily?

"Once again the glare of publicity is on this slim-figured woman with a fighting chin and the eyes of a poetess, who seems so weak and feminine, and yet is so amazingly strong," writes Franklyn Morris in the Sunday Herald. "Once again millions, who had half forgotten her during the long period the House of Lords appeal was

Papering the World to Make It Produ More Fo

"The Burbank of the Hawaiian Islands" makes various plants increase their yield by percentages ranging from 25 to 168, by spreading long strips of thick paper on the ground and permitting the stalks to grow up through perforations—This unique method keeps down the weeds and gives other first aids to growth — Fields are "papered" by machinery or by hand—The new idea in agriculture far beyond the experimental stage, in Florida and California as well as in Hawaii—Possibilities for increased crops are almost marvelous :: :: ::

By ROBERT H. MOULTON.

ONE of the most important discoveries ever made in agriculture has been developed in the Hawaiian Islands, in Florida and in California, until this year it is increasing the yield of food crops to which it has been applied from the nominal amount of 25 per cent to the almost unbelievable gain of 168 per cent. It is less than the truth to say that the average increase in these crops, due to this discovery, is 50 per cent, and the crops include such important ones as sugar cane, tomatoes, cabbage, pineapples, tobacco, strawberries, all the bush berries and potatoes. The increase is in size of the individual vegetables and fruits, in number of individuals produced per plant, in plant growth and in value of crop produced.

The discovery is that the laying down of a sheet of heavy paper, from one-thirty-second to one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness, so that it will extend a foot on either side of the growing plant, and the planting of the root, cutting, tuber, bulb or seed in a hole in that paper, increases the development of the resultant plant and its crop by more than half its average production without the paper.

The experiment was first tried nearly two years ago by C. F. Eckart of Honolulu, the Luther Burbank of the Hawaiian Islands, on a pineapple plantation. The result of his experiments was that last year the pineapple planters of those islands laid 4261 miles of paper, at a total cost of nearly $250,000, on their plantations.

Producers of sun-grown Sumatra tobacco in Florida began using paper in this manner in 1922, and found that it increased their yield from 40 to 55 per cent. Tomato producers in California tried and learned that their production grew on the average of 55 per cent and, in some favored localities, 168 per cent.

Strawberry growers in Louisiana and California produced from 25 to 75 per cent more berries, and noted an increase of 50 per cent in size of the berries, after they had papered their fields. Sugar planters in the Hawaiian Islands and in Louisiana also papered experimental parts of their fields, and were rewarded with increases of 40 per cent in quantity of cane, while higher sugar content was shown than in the cane grown without the paper.

Producers of blackberries, raspberries, loganberries and similar small fruits are experimenting this year with the paper in the warm interior valleys of California, and a small area devoted to this experiment early in 1923 gave indications that the increase in the yield would be approximately as great as that in the strawberries.

It is in the growth of pineapples—which form the second most valuable crop of the Hawaiian Islands, the first being sugar—that the greatest progress has been made; in some instances, the value of the pineapple crop has been increased by the papering ess by as much as $185 an acre, and $125 to $160 per acre are not uncommon.

value or its worthlessness, is as valuable as the development of a new fruit or a new grain, since it enables the same number of men, working on the same acreage, to increase the yield of their last crops from at least a quarter to a maximum of a half or more.

In dry, hot, interior valleys, where the low production of the vegetable and fruit crops is due to lack of moisture in the earth, and inability of the soil to retain such moisture as it may collect from irrigation or the infrequent rains, the great value of the new method of papering the fields lies in its retention of moisture in the soil.

The combination necessary for the maximum growth of a plant is one of heat and moisture, brought together in the proper proportion. This the paper shield between earth and sun seems to bring about; and, like the asbestos packing in a thermostat bottle, it acts as a protector against a too-ardent sun as well as against too-chilling winds and rains.

The paper used is one made by treating felt with asphalt, somewhat after the methods employed in making paper roofing, except that this paper is much thinner than roofing paper, though of as fine or finer texture so as to offer full protection from rain, dew and fogs. When it is desired to admit water, the paper is punched full of minute holes, no larger than pin holes, so that the rainfall or other moisture may be disseminated throughout the soil for several feet surrounding the plant. One laying of the paper is sufficient for about five years in pineapple fields, slightly less in sugar cane fields, and some three years in tomato, cabbage and small-crop fields, where the plants die at the end of each crop season. The cost of the paper and laying it averages $100 per acre, but it is believed, as better methods of making and putting down this paper are developed this figure will be reduced considerably. This, however, amounts to only $20 to $35 per year, while elimination of the expense of cultivation and weeding virtually balances this outlay.

The discovery that papering the world would make it produce more food for man led to the development of some interesting machinery for the laying of the paper over large areas. At first, the paper, of which some 50 weights and varieties were tested before the proper weight, composition and texture were found, was carried on a spindle between two men, and laid slowly, while two other men walked behind and tamped down the paper, putting little piles of earth along the edges to prevent the wind from blowing it away until the plants had gained sufficient growth to hold it down.

Now, however, a machine has been invented which mashes down the earth, grades the rows, lays the paper, beveling the edges into the soft soil, and, lastly, turns a light and narrow furrow of earth over the edges of the paper so that it is held firmly in place. The soil, of course, is broken into fine particles by thorough cultivation before the ridges are made for the rows and the paper laid on them, but that is the only cultivation required for the lifetime of the paper, varying from three to five years. For the planting of the pineapple cuttings, holes are punched about two feet apart and six inches from edge center of the paper, so that the two rows are two feet apart in the center, each strip of paper carrying two rows of plants. The space between the strips of paper is variable, ranging from three to five or six feet, some planters claiming that more space is needed in order to permit the pickers to pass between the rows.

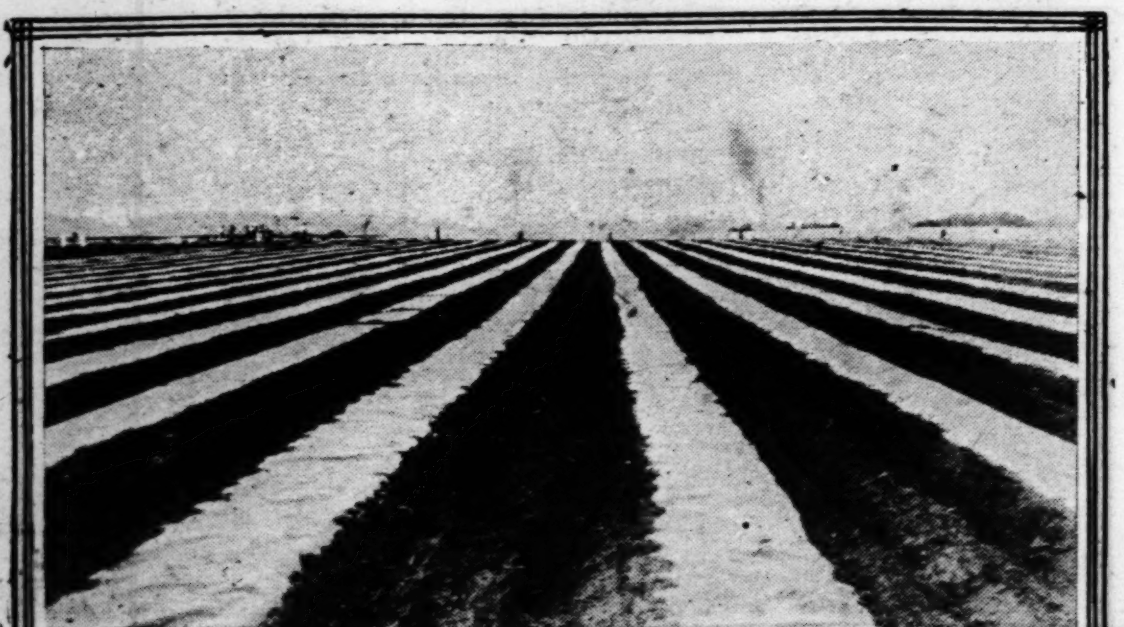
Some other plants, such as tomatoes, tobacco, potatoes and bush berries, require greater distance between plants in the rows, and for them usually three or three and one-half feet is allowed. For smaller vegetables, such as turnips, carrots, radishes and so on, only a few inches apart is sufficient, while cabbages are set out about one foot apart.

Experiments are now being conducted in California orchards on the use of the paper for the forcing, or increasing the growth, of young deciduous fruit trees, both before and after budding. Indications are that these experiments will prove that the equivalent of three years' ordinary growth can be forced into two years' actual time by the use of the paper, but definite figures have not been gathered on this. Grapes have shown increase in growth and production when the cuttings are set out in the paper.

The results of the use of the paper in the dry sections of California and on the hillsides of the Hawaiian Islands indicate that there are possibilities of soil rejuvenation in the use of the paper, and that farms which have been "worn out" or "cropped thin," may be revived and made productive again in a single season by the deep cultivation of the soil, light application of fertilizer and the growing of the vegetable and fruit crops through the paper. There is no medication and no mixture of fertilizer in the paper; in fact, the attention of Mr. Eckart is said to have been directed to the use of paper for this purpose by the placing of perforated newspapers on the ground surrounding young tomato plants, these individual plants having made greater growth than others around which no paper had been placed.

Development of the paper thereafter involved three factors: thickness, weight and the attainment of a degree of toughness which would permit of the paper remaining on the ground and serving its purpose for more than one season.

Air is admitted, of course, through the earth at the edges of the paper, as well as, to some extent, through the paper itself, and the roots so well protected that plants of which the roots are eaten, such as potatoes, turnips and carrots, grow virtually at the surface of the ground. For the harvesting of potatoes, the paper has to be lifted, but the other edible roots are merely pulled through the holes made for their planting and other seeds of the same varieties are planted in the same holes. The paper is particularly effective in collecting and retaining moisture for the plants in areas which now require irrigation to be productive.



A small section of the papered world, which bears crops ranging from 25 to 168 per cent greater in volume and value than the same section did before papering.

The Far Side of Thunderbolt

By Helen Topping Miller

DR. ENOS RUMLY climbed the three steep steps of his back porch wearily. He had been 13 hours on his feet, bent over a too-low bed, and his thighs ached and quivered, his gaunt body sagged.

In the kitchen Ella Joe Martin, Rumly's sister-in-law, had left a candle burning on top of the icebox. That was code for the assurance that there was warm food in the oven. Sitting on the kitchen table, he ate rapidly, dropping crumbs to a weird-eyed, coal-black kitten that leaped off the ironing board and solicited alms. It was then that he noted the low murmur of voices from the front of the house.

"And I ain't going out again tonight," he vowed to himself as he bolted the last fragment of dumpling.

He gathered up his coat and hat and the old black bag, and, with amazing lightness for so huge a frame, made for the back stairs, avoiding the board that squeaked. He had almost gained the door of the upper hall when a portly ghost in a blue-flannel wrapper came tiptoeing ponderously up the front way and confronted him.

"You got home?" greeted Ella Joe Martin, cheerfully and with disconcerting lung power. "Fred Susong's down there wanting to see you."

Rumly opened the door of his room and elbowed her in.

"I ain't wanting to see him," he grumbled. "What do you want to holler so everybody on this block can hear you for?"

"I ain't hollering. He's been waiting since 8 o'clock. He says the baby's choking worse every minute."

Rumly sat down on the bed. "Fred Susong allows he knows about everything," he declared. "Looks like he'd know how to stop his baby's choking."

Ella Joe frowned. "This ain't no time to hold grudges, Enos Rumly, when a child's maybe dying."

"I ain't holding grudges. I'm going to bed. They got doctors over to Parrotsville—good doctors. I've heard Fred Susong say how smart them doctors was. I'm wore out."

"Well, I'll just go down and tell Fred you're sick and can't come."

"Why didn't he go to Parrotsville in the first place?"

"You know well as I do why he didn't, Enos Rumly. The river's up over there and the ferry ain't running."

"Well, it'll be up out here to Thunderbolt directly, if he don't get started along pretty quick."

"I reckon it's a good thing you ain't going," assented Ella Joe with surprising meekness, "but it'll be sort of hard on Luella if anything should happen to that baby."

"Fred drive his own horse?" demanded Rumly.

"He came in his car. I laid your flannel nightshirt out 'cross the foot of your bed. It's going to turn cold toward morning."

"You can't get anywheres in a car, roads like these. What that young one needs is antitoxin, likely, and there ain't a shot to be had nearer than Parrotsville. I used the last I had on that young one of Owenses that was so bad."

Ella Joe turned to leave. "I don't reckon you locked the back door? You always forget it. You better leave that bag out here so I can clean the things up first thing in the morning."

"Looks like I ain't never going to get a chance to leave it anywhere! I don't know what in confoundation Fred come over here in a car for."

"Well, he said it wasn't raining hard when he started. What did Clemmy have—another girl?"

"Good thing she has girls. They's enough pesky men infesting this earth now! Voting against bridge bonds and raising sand about taxes for roads. Maybe when all Clemmy's girls can vote we'll get some decent roads in this county. Is that old hypodermic of mine boiled out?"

"It's in the bag, wrapped up in gauze. I never laid a finger on it after it come out of the water."

"Fred won't pay me for seven years. And then he'll want me to take it out in moldy corn or something. You can run the shoes right off your horse waiting on them Susongs, and there ain't no use to sue 'em, for they've got everything tied up in their wives' names and got their wives so browbeat they dassent put two spoonfuls of lard in the biscuit."

"Well, I didn't tell him for sure you'd go. I said you'd been out all day over to Weavers'. He said he'd wait anyway—he acts mighty worried—not peart and biggety like he usually is."

"Most any difference in Fred Susong is bound to be an improvement. I got to get on a thicker shirt and some dry socks. Reckon you can get the harness on Doxie and back her in the shafts?"

"I thought you was going to bed?"

"Well, confoundation, a man can't let a young one die, can he? Jest because all the Susongs are whittled off narrow and sharp to start with ain't no reason to kill 'em off young!"

"Why don't you go in Fred's car, then?"

"Uh-huh! And get mired up in the first ford and have to wade out. Old Doxie'll go where I tell her, and they ain't no danger of her getting water in her carburetor. You better put a mess of oats in a bag and put it under the buggy seat. I may have to stay all night if the river's bad, and I don't want to depend on no Susongs to feed my horse."

"Well, land knows the Susongs have got 10 times as much as we've got, Enos Rumly. Looks like it's little enough to do, to feed a horse."

"That's why they've got it—because they ain't wasted any of it feeding other people's horses!" Rumly ripped out his shoestrings, wearily. It was 10 miles across Thunderbolt, the wild, tumultuous river, to the Susong farm.

Ella Joe had supervised the rearing of the motherless little Luella, offering advice and home-brewed catmint tea to the two bewildered and ineffectual aunts. And Luella, growing up slim and sweet, with heavy, shaded eyes which, even in girlhood, glowed with the softly tired, maternal patience which denotes the God-made mother, had confided all her secrets to Rumly, pulling down his long, freckled ears to whisper into them—all her secrets except the one that she was going to marry Fred Susong. And in his wisdom Enos Rumly knew why she had not told him that.

The Susongs were not a popular family in the county.

They were the richest family, and the richest family is often the least popular, particularly when its wealth is not the result of progressive achievement, but of tight-fisted hoarding and sharp-eyed turning of bargains. The Susongs were stock buyers and traders; the Susong barns were well roofed because dampness ruins hay, which costs money; the Susong horses were always insolently sleek; the Susong men were well fed and full-blooded, riding to town on horseback every day—to save wear and tear on [illegible] tires.

Rumly had stayed away from the church when Luella Ives married Fred Susong. He had stayed away from the neighborhood above Thunderbolt—which was not a hard thing to do since the Susongs preferred the Parrotsville physicians who traded out a quarter of beef every year. He knew the sort of life Luella must have, mured in that old brick house, which Fred's grandfather had left to him. He knew the glad gentleness, the bright faith in humanity, which belonged to Luella—and even though he had sawed bones and lanced felons for 30-odd years, Rumly did not like to see things die—things like the light in Luella's eyes.

Fred Susong sat close to the baseburner in the front room. He was a red-faced young man, with stiff, curly, blond hair, pale, calculating eyes; his clothes a little tight for him. He jumped up.

"You ready, Doc?"

"Yeah, I'm ready. I'm going to drive my hoss. I ain't taking chances on the creeks in the flivver."

"All right, I'll ride with you. Can I stand my car in your barn? Might burn the coils out in the rain. It's my kid, Doc. He's got something the matter with his throat—seems to choke up and can't get his breath."

"You been letting Minnie Owens wash for you this week?"

"I reckon she did. She washes for us regular—mammy and all of us."

"Washes out her rent, don't she? I sent [illegible] Thames by to tell Luella last week that Minnie's kids were sick—not to have her in the house. Didn't she tell you."

"She did say something about it. But those folks are sick all the time—I never paid much attention."

"Anybody there with Luella?" Rumly hoisted his long frame into the buggy and took his bag from the hands of Ella Joe.

"Mammy came over about dark. They were the

"Uh-huh. Listen here, Ella Joe. You telephone up to Park's—up to Parrotsville—get his house, because the store'll be shut—tell him to send me down a dozen shots of diphtheria antitoxin first thing in the morning. Hear? Tell him to send 'em on the first train, and then you go down to the postoffice if I ain't back and get 'em."

Old Doxie, slanting her wise old head to the rain, found the driest part of the road and struck into a tireless, long-legged gait that sent the black, wet trees and the low, rain-beaten houses streaking rapidly to the rear. Rumly sat, sagged forward, his knees parted, his great hands holding the reins hanging down between them. Fred Susong sat silent upon the seat. Rumley regarded him sidelong.

The wind lashed at the buggy-top as they turned to the right into the road to Thunderbolt. Doxie flapped her tail irritably, but kept to the middle of the road. To the right they could hear the hollow shout of Turkey Creek as it tumbled off the rocks behind Furman's sawmill.

"Old Turkey's a-tearing," remarked Rumley as the wheels grated down on the gravel of the ford. "Git in, Dox—wet your fetlocks. Better pick up your feet, Fred; might wash over the sills."

Doxie stepped in undismayed by the dark writhe of the creek. The buggy sagged into a washed hole, tilted back for an instant, and then righted. Doggedly the old horse fought for footing, jerking the wheels over the slippery stones.

"Maybe some day this county'll wake up and vote the bridge bonds," Rumly said, as they lurched up the muddy ascent on the other side.

"Bridges cost money," returned Fred Susong. "Cheapest kind of a bridge costs ten or fifteen thousand dollars. Take a sight of taxes to pay for even one—and taxes are too high now."

"Reckon so," mused Rumly. "Reckon you voted against the bonds."

"I'll keep on voting against 'em. A man's better off now, in this country, if he don't own a thing. The land owner gets gouged every way he turns. It's roads and schools for a lot of skinnies that never did a thing for the country and never will."

"Guess that's so. Sending the skinnies to school may help some, of course. Getting good roads, so progressive people'll move in might help, too."

"We've got too many progressive people now," argued Fred. "All these loud shouters that have got ways figured out to spend other people's money—like that fellow that bought the paper down at Parrotsville. He's a sample—always yelping about the stockyards smelling bad—get so a man can't drive a herd of stock down to lead 'em after a while."

"Uh-huh. Reckon that's so. Get up, Dox; we've got four miles to go yet."

Fred Susong fell silent. He was patently uneasy, sitting forward on the seat as though he impelled old Doxie's thudding feet to move faster by his tense poise. Rumley looked at his profile in the gloom—blunt, reserved, a stubborn outline under the sag of his felt hat. "Ain't no meanness there, just wrongness," Rumly thought. "Reckon you think a sight of yourd boy, Fred?" he inquired.

"Well, every man wants a son if he's got anything to leave. This kid of mine ain't strong—he's mighty frail—takes after his mother. He's 4, and we ought to have had a couple more by this time. Looks like this little fellow gets sick every day or two, some reason or another. Luella don't have any luck raising him. Now, mammy—she had eight boys in 11 years and every one of us was husky as yearlings."

"Maybe the milk don't agree with him."

"He ain't been drinking milk. We only milk one cow, and it takes about all the milk to churn the butter. I put calves on all the rest of 'em because Luella complained about her arms aching every night. She never was learned to milk till I learned her. It ain't the milk. He's just puny and ain't got any constitution to start with."

The rain ceased to blow, and above the sharp yelp of the wind they could hear now the slow hollow voice of the river. Thunderbolt, always more or less untamable, was having a royal rampage.

"From the racket she's out of the banks," said Rumly. "Reckon old Milo'll get us across? Sounds like she was running pretty swift. Had a good highway and a bridge here now and you could drive your car home any weather."

"Had a bridge here I wouldn't have any car. I'd have to sell it to pay my taxes. Hey—Milo!" He raised his voice in the loud stock-driver's youp, as penetrating as the call of a wolf. Old Doxie squared herself at the edge of the stream. It swirled up to her fore calks, reaching a little higher at each eddy, till the old mare began to balk and sidle. Fred lifted his voice again, and from the other side of the river a hot spark of light winked. A yell answered, blurred by the wind and unintelligible.

"Milo's coming," Fred declared.

"I don't hear the cable."

"He's coming—the light's moving." But the light moved—not toward the river, but away from it. Manifestly Milo Flowers had not launched the ferry. Fred lifted another whoop. Another call, choked by the blow, came back faintly. Then the light moved, flickered and went out.

"Milo ain't coming," announced Rumly, calmly. "I figured the current was too swift. We'll have to cross on the railroad bridge and walk to your place. You wait here till I stand Doxie in Nahum Brent's shed."

The railroad bridge was a fearsome mode of passage, even by daylight. It leaped, spidery and frail, at tremendous height, over the reeling, rock-strangled bed of the river. There was no lengthwise plank, and the reach between the wooden crossties was so short that it lacked being a single stride and was too long for a man to compass two, so it was crossed in a sort of monotonous trot, with the water writhing dizzily below and only a precarious eight-inch width at the end of the rail, in case you disputed thoroughfare with a freight train.

Rumly set his great feet doggedly on every tie, swinging his old bag rhythmically, his derby hat clinging to his head by a miracle, his coat-tails flapping about his legs. Behind him Fred Susong was having a poor time. Like every other man who has lived half his life on horseback, he was awkward on foot.

"You comin' along all right?" the old doctor called back. "Good thing the railroad happened to build a bridge here, ain't it? We'd never seen the far side of Thunderbolt tonight."

At length they stood on the solid ground of the right of way, and slid down the gravely embankment to the road. The Susong place was a mile farther on, on a hill road which was scarcely more than a siding boulder-strewn track.

In the wide, rambling old house a single room was lighted. The shades were drawn and light leaked dimly from beneath—candle light.

"You burning candles, Fred?"

"We had a lot of tallow—Government squirt condemned a lot of steers on me and we had to work 'em up into something, so Luella made soap and candles. She—likes 'em. Saves filling lamps."

Rumly let a little picture dance for a minute before his eyes—a picture of Luella under a great rose-shaded light. He let the picture burn until he had tramped through the dark chill hall and into the wide, dim room, the door of which Fred Susong flung open. And then he called it back frantically, and cherished it, for this woman, sitting so patiently in a wooden rocker, her thin arms holding tight a long bundle, from which a fluff of blondish hair protruded, was somehow not Luella. It was Luella only as the quenched ember is the flame, as the pale, saddened light of dusk is the day, as the shadow is the woman.

She looked up apprehensively, and then, seeing Rumly, relief lightened her face.

"Oh—you came! I'm so glad. Sonny's sick. His little hands are burning up and he can't hardly get his breath."

"Why didn't you keep that kettle boiling?" asked Fred.

"I couldn't tend to it and him, too. Your mother had to go home—Carver came after her. He said your father was fretting for fear she wouldn't be there in time to tend the calves in the morning."

Rumly looked at Fred. "You'd better mend the fire. This room is cold. And bring a lamp—bring two lamps. And a teaspoon in a glass of water." He sat down by the bed. "When did he take sick?" he asked Luella. "A couple of days after Minnie Owens washed here, wasn't it?"

"It was yesterday he began to be drowsy and cross. He got sort of cold last night—his father rode him down the lane to fetch up some steers. He had fever last night, I know. Open your eyes, Sonny, and look at the doctor."

The child opened his eyes. They were soft-fringed eyes, like his mother's. In them, too, lay that half-hidden question which seemed to weigh down every look of Luella's. He clutched his mother's dress with thin fingers, pointed and transparent. There was nothing husky about him. He was a shadowy little alien in the clan of hard-riding, red-blooded Susongs.

"I've got to see his throat. Lay him on the bed, Luella. Straighten out, Sonny, and open your mouth wide. Give me that teaspoon, Fred—and you hold this flashlight."

Fred stretched himself across the bed from the rear, the springs creaking under his weight.

"Open your mouth," he commanded; "open it wide."

The child flinched from the white glare of the light. His baby features convulsed and Rumly saw fear in his eyes—and the beginning of something else—hate. And just then Fred Susong looked up and Rumly knew that Fred had seen, too—se dread and dislike in the eyes of his own son. He was suddenly sorry for Fred.

"You scared him," he said, as the child writhed to the other end of the pillow. "Open her up, Sonny—lemme see how many batty cakes you ate for supper. Lemme count now—got to count 'em with this spoon. Hie—one—two—three—steady now—that's all right." He bent the tiny tongue down swiftly, looked at the swollen throat and straightened himself sternly. "I expect it would have been better if you'd given Minnie Owens her rent this week, Fred," he said.

Fred stumbled up, the flashlight making a white moon on the wall, his young mouth grim.

"What you going to give him, Doc?"

"He needs antitoxin. And I ain't got a shot. Get some from Parrotsville in the morning—but he ought to have some right now. Wood getting scarce, Fred? Got to keep this little feller warm. You better fetch another load, come daylight. It's sleeting now or I'm getting deef. Wish I'd told Nahum Brent to give my hoss a mess of fodder in the morning. If the ice gets on the railroad bridge I'll have to board with you a spell."

Fred looked up quickly. Luella had gone into the kitchen.

"Is he bad, do you think, Doc?"

Rumly rubbed his long, bony chin. He looked at Fred keenly.

"This is one time," he said, "when I wish there was a bridge across Thunderbolt."

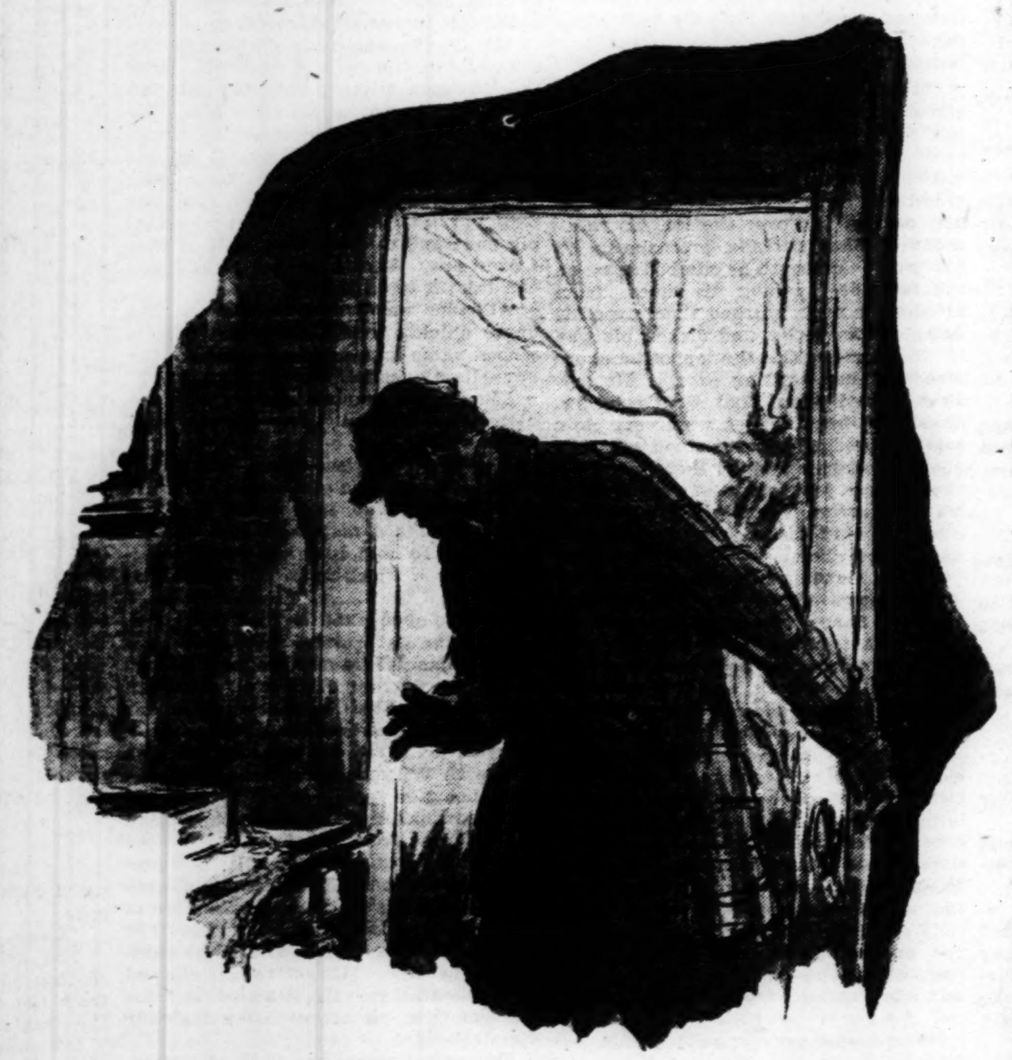
Dawn came cold. There was no comfort in the drab light that trickled through the sleety windows, slowly drenching in its cold flood the warmer familiar presence of the lamplight and the fire. In the grim grayness the sick child lay asleep, his eyes already shadowed and sunken, his chin a bit tremulous.

"I'd rather have any disease on earth to fight than diphtheria poison," remarked Rumly as they sat by the fire. Fred Susong sagged forward in his chair, whittling nervously at his nails: "It's so blamed tricky. You think you've got it beat—and then it's like a grass fire: it flares up in another place. Heart, maybe—or kidneys."

"That antitoxin fixes it generally, don't it?" inquired Fred, hopefully.

"No chance to get any," insisted Rumly. "No chance to cross that railroad bridge with all this ice on it." He regarded the lacquered trees standing sheeted outside, the yard coated over with black glass, with a tinkling crystal-coated bush thrust up here and there. "And if you got across a horse couldn't stand up unless he was roughshod. If you had a telephone, now, I could phone Ella Joe to send me out half a dozen shots, and Milo would figure some way to get it across, but, of course, you ain't got a phone"——

"We never had any wires put up—just expense for nothing, I figured. Long as I had to be in town every day, anyhow, there wasn't any use paying



"I tried it," he gasped, shamed and trembling. "I went on my hands and knees—and I couldn't make it."

The Far Side of Thunderbolt

for a phone, too. There ain't any line on this side of Thunderbolt."

"No, there ain't any—this side of Thunderbolt."

Fred Susong squirmed. The Susongs owned all the land on that side of Thunderbolt, and it may be that he was thinking at that moment—as was the old doctor—of the things which were not on that side of Thunderbolt. Not telephones, merely—other things. Roads. Power pumps. Curtained windows where flowers bloomed. Women smiling. Light and gladness. So many things were left behind when once old Milo Flowers' ferryboat had slid off the muddy shore into the outlaw, tumultuous river. Rumly was thinking of them now—thinking of the confused wrong of it. They didn't know—they were unaware, the Susongs—of the wrong of it.

Not one was cruel—not even old Nick, the elder, the harder, the most despised of the clan. He himself had seen the quick, bewildered hurt in Fred's eyes when his little son looked at him in terror. They didn't know.

"They got calluses," thought Rumly. "Calluses on their hearts and souls. Pare 'em deep enough and they're alive under. Pare 'em deep and you hit the quick."

Fred sat oblivious by the fire while Luella, her eyes tragic, wrapped herself in a shawl and went out to milk. For generations the Susong men had sat by fires while the Susong women went out to milk. And when Luella came staggering in with a great armful of wood Fred moved over and gave her room to lay it efficiently on the fire.

Rumly went to the bed and felt the child's hot little wrist. Luella came and stood by his side, her eyes dark wells of dread. "Is—is he worse?" she whispered.

"I wish I could give him some antitoxin," was all the answer Rumly had.

Fred jumped up. "I'm going across that bridge," he declared. "I can get to Parrotsville if I can get across that bridge."

Luella set her lips. "If the bonds had passed we'd have a bridge," she stormed; "we'd have a bridge to carry Sonny over."

"A toll bridge," returned Fred, badgered and flushing. "Cost me a quarter every time I went to town—and a dollar to drive a herd of steers over."

Luella was merciless. "Medicine costs money, too," she taunted. "You'd better stay here—and save it!"

Fred twisted his lips, bit back a retort, jammed on his hat and slammed out. Rumly patted his foot. So many fevers in this house that needed curing.

"That bridge is mighty slick," he mused. "Risky business—trying to get across."

But Luella's eyes were flinty. "He fought the bonds," she argued, holding her child tight. "They beat 'em—the Susongs. They've done it twice."

"Fred ain't bad," argued Rumly, gently. "He's just wrong-headed. You got to be patient."

Tragedy darkened her face. "I've been patient," she flamed. "I've been patient—and patience is no use! Oh, doctor—quick—he's choking again. He can't get his breath!"

An hour later Fred stumbled back into the room.

"I tried it," he gasped, shamed and trembling. "I went on my hands and knees—and I couldn't make it."

"You ought not to have tried it," remarked Luella, bitterly. "Why didn't you send me?"

Fred sank on the foot of the bed. "Oh, I tried," Fred cried. "I tried till it made me sick!" They saw his hands then, pared to the quick in spots, bleeding. "Is he worse, Doc?"

Rumly pursed his lips. "I wish he was better—but he ain't. If I had two shots of antitoxin he'd improve in a little while. Maybe I better go to town—I can get across that bridge, I reckon. High places don't make me dizzy like they do you, Fred. If Nahum Brent has got a mule that's shod I could get to town."

But Luella raised a cry. "No—you sha'n't leave him—you sha'n't. Suppose he chokes again—he is—— Oh, Fred, quick"——

It was his father who lifted the boy this time. It was his father who tilted back the little head with its softish curl of blond hair, which was the only Susong feature the child inherited. It was Fred Susong who said, in a tone amazingly gentle: "Open her up, Sonny—open her up, man!"

Rumly, working swiftly with cotton and iodine, bent his brow anxiously. He saw Luella's hand in Fred's under the corner of the blanket. He saw Luella's working face pressed against her husband's arm. He stood up.

"There ain't no other way but that. I got to wrap him up good and get him to town some way," he declared. "He's got to have treatment—and he's got to have it quick. If we wait for the ice to get off the bridge—or for somebody to go and come back again, I ain't saying what might happen. I'll get across the bridge with him some way—and I'll get him to town some way. Ella Joe can tend him—and you can come in as soon as Milo can get the ferry across."

"You can't carry him across that bridge. You've got to go on your hands and knees!"

Luella's tense face had brightened. "Fred, you got a calf across once—last spring, you remember—on the wire!"

"You can't send a sick baby across a river on a ferry wire!"

"He's got to go, Fred—don't you see he's got to go. It's the only way. You put the calf in a cotton basket and lashed it with trace chains."

Slowly, laboriously, Enos Rumly crept across the ice-coated railroad bridge. He had taken off his shoes and resined the soles of his socks and the palms of his mittens, and he made his way along the crossties like a staggering old simian, his coat trailing over the ice, his ridiculous old hat sticking precariously to his head. At length he climbed down on the far side, unslung his shoes from around his neck, worked them over his damp, sticky socks, and picked his way to the ferry. On the opposite shore stood a tense, waiting group. He saw Luella's red shawl and Fred's yellow, uncovered head. They were very close together and with them stood old Milo Flowers, and they stood there watching the strange journeying of Sonny as he traveled across Thunderbolt in a deep, strong basket lashed fast to the wire with trace chains.

Rumly moved cautiously down the icy bank, where the pulley creaked, and waited. Sonny was lying still, and the deep basket moved slowly and safely as old Milo wound in the wire. Near the shore it dipped a bit, and Rumly waded in over his shoe tops and dragged it out. The boy held up his arms out of his muffling of furs and blankets. Luella had pulled a thick cap over his head and tied a scarf over that, but his eyes blinked from beneath—soft-fringed eyes like Luella's. The old doctor shouldered the boy and waved an arm across the river. He saw Luella's hand waving, saw Fred holding her.

"Look here, Sonny," he said. "Let's you and me go to town and buy us a sack of peanuts and an all-day sucker and a red balloon—what d'y' say?"

• • • • •

"For lands' sake!" scolded Ella Joe Martin as Rumley struggled up the three steep back steps with Luella's child on his shoulder. "You must be crazy, fetching that sick baby out in cold air like this!"

"He ain't hurt—he's wrapped up good," defended Rumley. "Put him in a warm blanket and give him some hot milk. I got to go down and buy him a balloon—we had a bargain about that, Sonny and me."

"You going to give him antitoxin?" persisted Ella Joe. "I boiled that other hypodermic—it's wrapped up good in gauze."

"I don't reckon he needs any. He had a little touch of croup, but he's about over it. All he needs now is filling up. He likes blueberry jam and caraway cookies and wishbones and baked custards—he says he does."

"Enos Rumley, I thought this child was sick?"

"You don't expect a well-behaved little feller to stay sick forever, do you? Take off his things and tend to him before he gets to crying for his mother."

"But if he ain't real sick what on earth did you trapse him way over here for—away from Luella? She'll be worried to death."

Rumly sat down before the stove, his gaunt old body sagged forward, his absurd eyebrows bristled. The weird-eyed black kitten leaped to his knee, and Sonny peered from his wrappings and lisped hoarsely, "Ki'y Ki'y!"

"There's a sight of things that need curing," mused Rumly. "There's fevers that you can dose and there's chills that you can sweat out—and again there's cases where you got to cut and cut deep. I'm aiming to keep Sonny here two or three days while I cure up his folks. There ain't any telephones on the far side of Thunderbolt. And there's ice on the bridge and the river's running high. I hate to hurt Luella, but I got to hurt her a little speck to cure up what ails Fred. I got to cure him before his calluses get too deep. Best curse for selfishness is thinking hard about somebody else—thinking hard. I'm going to let Fred do some thinking three or four days while he's comforting Luella."

"They'll be over here before night," insisted Ella Joe. "Dodd's Weaver says the river's going down fast."

"The river's going down a little, but the ferry ain't going to be running. He and Milo Flowers have got that fixed. Milo wants him a job—tending toll bridge."

The Lone Train Robber Upset Detectives

"Just the same," answered the conductor, "only one man pulled this job."

As Allender was still doubtful, the conductor referred him to the engine crew. Fireman and engineer were as positive as the conductor. Allender was incredulous. It was an impossible feat, and he did not hesitate to let the crew know his belief.

"Mister," vehemently announced the engineer, 'I've got two good eyes, and this is what I saw: Just one man climbed down off that coal pile. Just one man made us get off. Only that one man made us go to the express car and the same one man made one of us order the messenger to open up.

"He is the same man who put the dynamite on the sill and set it off. Just the one man climbed into the car and made the fireman go in after him. He is the same man who made us throw out the sack of silver, put it on his shoulder, and the same man who walked away with it. Mister, that one man did it all, but he had two awful big guns and the wickedest pair of eyes I ever saw. That's the truth, and you can take it or leave it."

Allender was forced to believe. The chase quickly settled down for Wilson, whose name was in the handbag. The immediate question was: "Who is he?"

The Frisco employment records disclosed that Samuel Alfred Wilson, then 26 years old, had been a telegraph operator for the Frisco lines. He hailed from Lebanon, Laclede County, Mo. He was just half an inch under six feet tall. He was a man with just enough education to hold down the job of telegrapher at a "jerk-water" railroad station.

It developed that he had been discredited as an operator by reason of a shady financial transaction, and he had come into further disrepute because of an assault-and-battery charge. For this last he was out on bond. He was a married man, and his wife at that time was with Wilson's parents on the farm near Lebanon.

Wilson had singular ears. They stood straight out from the head. His nose was thin, sharp, aquiline. His lips protruded somewhat. His upper teeth were divided, and his mouth and chin were of that variety that might be described as "half-nothing." It indicated no character whatever. His entire face showed little mentality. He drawled in his conversation, his accent being typically countrified.

Wilson's history was that of a vainglorious fellow. He reveled in the little notoriety he received by reason of the affair that brought about his discharge. It was revealed that he boasted of what he could and would do. He wanted fame and money. Most criminals take refuge, when caught, in the plea that they "needed" money. There is a vast difference between "needing" and "wanting." Wilson craved money, and he intended getting it. It appeared that he had twice determined to rob Frisco passenger trains, but each proposal failed because his confederates weakened at the critical moment. It was then that Wilson declared himself the modern Robin Hood.

"To hell with cowards!" he bragged. "I am going to rob a train, and all by myself, too."

All this was quickly ascertained by Allender and his fellow detectives.

Immediately a reward of $500 was offered for Wilson's arrest. Word was sent to Lebanon, on the off chance that he would go there, few dreaming that he was such an utter idiot as he finally proved to be. It was true that he had "pulled a stunt" no other man had ever dared essay. Stage-coach robberies, with scarcely a remote possibility of resistance, were always committed by gangs. Missouri had been cursed by a plethora of train robberies. These had made the State infamous. In all these outrages, gangs of from four to a dozen participated. The James boys had left a trail of many robberies. The celebrated Hedgepeth-Slye gang, one of the smallest in numbers, had four desperate characters backing one another. They were all killers.

With the realization that one man only had committed the Pacific robbery the conclusion was reached that Wilson's character had undergone a drastic change, and that he was a shrewd, dangerous man, liable to slay. Hence caution in taking him was advised.

Not one in 10,000 dreamed he would go home. Yet such is the perfection of detective work that this slightest chance was looked after and Wilson's home "covered." Wilson himself was well known to railroad men in and about his native town and county. The reward, a sizable sum in those days, was enough to stimulate pursuit. Salisbury, Mo., his last known place of employment, was well guarded. Hundreds of men were soon hunting him.

And the object of all this was walking home, to his mind his only refuge. He walked at night. By day he hid in haymows, woods, anywhere that he could snatch a little sleep. He kept himself secreted in the daytime until he reached Lebanon. He got there at 4 o'clock, nine mornings after the robbery. He still carried the sack and what was left of the money.

The people of Lebanon were early risers. The first up that morning were surprised by the sight of Sam Wilson. He was unwashed, unshaved, a badly wanted, much-feared, but a very docile man.

"There he is!" the natives told one another, pointing to the man.

But Wilson was unperturbed. He wanted a suit of clothes. This had been one of the treats he had promised himself in planning the startling bit of outlawry. So he stood outside the general store in the then small town and waited for the proprietor to open up. He was the observed of all eyes. The people of Lebanon passed him and stared. Not one of them dared take a risk for the half-thousand dollars' reward. He seemed oblivious. When the store finally opened, he walked in. He put his sack of silver coin on the counter and addressed the tradesman.

"I want a suit of clothes," he said.

"How much do you want to pay?" inquired the merchant, who had recognized Sam and did not relish his presence.

"About $15," said Sam.

The culprit finally selected a suit costing $13. He took 13 silver dollars from the sack and handed them across the counter. Then he walked out, made a few minor purchases in other stores and, stepping out of town, trudged a mile to his father's home.

The Sheriff had been there beforehand. Wilson, pere, had told the officer that Sam was not at home. The Sheriff knew the elder Wilson to be a man of strict probity. He could take his word. It has even been asserted that he did not want the reward and told the father he could have it if he surrendered Sam. That may be. The fact is that the Sheriff told Mr. Wilson: "Sam is wanted for train robbery. If he comes home, will you let me know?"

The father's reply was: "I sure will, Sheriff."

When Sam walked into the home plot that morning he was the last man the elder Wilson expected to see. For a few minutes it unnerved the old gentleman. Half an hour later he kept his promise to the Sheriff.

Lebanon, meanwhile, was all agog. It was past all comprehension. Sam must be heavily armed. He must have turned terribly bad. No one wanted to take a chance, even though the reward was tempting. The father sent the news to the Sheriff over the telephone:

"Mr. Sheriff, Sam is here!"

"Is he a-goin' to stay?" asked the officer.

"I reckon so."

"Tell him I'll be right out."

The Sheriff hurried out. He asked the father, "Where is Sam?" and, receiving the answer, "Down by the barn, talking to his wife," went there.

ilson, "desperate train robber,"

"killer," the man whose arrest was desired by the entire State constabulary, was chatting with his wife. He and the peace officer knew each other. They exchanged greetings.

"Sam, I'll have to ask you to come along with me," the Sheriff said.

"All right, Sheriff. I'm ready," came the answer.

And that was all there was to it. Sam had spent very little of the money. The sack and what was left was handed to the officer, and Sam and the loot went to Lebanon. Later he, the money, his two revolvers, the handkerchief formed as a mask—all the evidence required to convict—were furnished by the prisoner himself, and with Wilson finally reached St. Louis.

Wilson pleaded guilty and was sentenced, June 30, 1893, to 15 years' imprisonment at Jefferson City. He served until Sept. 29, 1904, when he was released.

Allender at that time had left the St. Louis detective force and was with the Frisco system as its chief of secret service. One day, three weeks after his liberation, Wilson walked into Allender's office in St. Louis. A friendship had sprung up between the sleuth and the bandit. When the outcast needed a friend, he went to the man who had hunted him the hardest. He said he had been unable to find work. Would Allender help him to get a job?

Allender took him to the various Frisco offices in an effort to find him work and give him a chance to rehabilitate himself. There was no objection to his working for the railroad, provided he was placed where he would not have to handle money or be exposed to temptation. Allender learned that there was an opening for a telegraph operator at Sapulpa. That station was wired. It replied that a job was there, and if Wilson wanted it to send him along. A pass was obtained, a little fund subscribed, and Wilson sent on his way.

About five days afterward Allender had occasion to go to Lawton, 80 miles beyond Oklahoma City. He had to change trains at the latter city, and on the depot platform he bumped into Wilson. Allender, surprised, inquired what it meant.

"I got to Sapulpa a day too late," said Wilson. "Another fellow got the job. But there was a job at Chickasha, Ok., and they sent me there. They wanted a cashier. I watched them check the other fellow out, and I thought I would not be heavy enough to hold down the job."

"You fool!" said Allender. "You should not have let them send you. Don't you know that bond would be required of you, that the bonding company would look up your record, and that your past would be exposed? You cannot hold such a position of trust. You must take something that won't need a bond."

For the first time it dawned on Wilson that he was practically an outcast. He stared at Allender. He seemed staggered. Allender uttered some words of cheer. He told him to use the pass, to return to Sapulpa, that suitable work would certainly be found for him and that there was plenty of chance ahead.

Wilson was plainly dejected. He declined to take the train, saying he would remain in Oklahoma another day. He parted with Allender.

The latter finished his business and returned to his office in St. Louis. That afternoon Allender visited the office of Mr. Gaston, who was then in charge of a department, but had been an old telegrapher. The ticker was giving forth dots and dashes as Allender passed in.

"I met Sam Wilson at Oklahoma City yesterday," said Allender.

"Sam Wilson is dead," was the startling assertion from Gaston.

"Nonsense! I tell you I talked with him yesterday,' said Allender.

"Sam Wilson is dead," repeated Gaston.

"Bet you a new hat he is not!" offered Allender.

"You'd lose," said Gaston, "for that is what the keys are now giving out."

It was true. Gaston mechanically caught the message as it flashed over the wires at the moment that Allender entered. It set forth that Sam Wilson, train robber, had been killed by a freight train of the Frisco lines, near Jacksonville, Arkansas, Nov. 21, 1904. He was fully identified by the pass and papers in his possession. His body was claimed by his parents and taken to Lebanon, where it was laid away in the family plot in the little country cemetery.

Did Wilson, arrant fool, suddenly realizing that nevermore was he to have equal footing with his fellows, voluntarily pass out of existence? I wonder!

pending, are thinking about her, wondering about her, congratulating her, and some even still abusing and condemning her. * * *

"One of the many paradoxical things about this amazing woman, whose whole life and personality, as far as it is possible for friends to understand it, is a paradox, is that, living in occasional bursts of limelight with an air of nonchalance, she would infinitely prefer utter obscurity.

"The public is apt to mistake for hard cynicism what is only an attempt to be plucky.

" 'Christabel Russell—a fascinating woman and a wonderful fighter,' is the sort of remark one hears on all sides, 'but she is so hard.'

"Personally, I do not believe she is hard. She is cool, businesslike, capable and essentially modern. But the impression of hardness vanishes after a few minutes' talk. It is a kind of outer armor against a world that has not been too good to her.

"And if there is in reality a touch of hardness there, has there not been enough in her life to have caused it?

"One cannot think, now that the long, sordid, expensive, tragic business has, it is to be hoped, drawn to its close, that it has not left its mark on Christabel Russell, as it would leave its mark on any woman and, for that matter, on any man. Anyone who could go through such a protracted ordeal and not be affected by it would indeed be superhuman."

Many other women, says this writer, would have aged during the struggle—would have grown gray and developed lines about the mouth or wrinkles under the eyes. Yet Mrs. Russell, outwardly, is just the same as the girl whom the writer knew 10 years ago. And the latter remarks:

"Some people are at their best when their backs are against the wall. Others are at their worst. There is no doubt in which capacity Mrs. Russell has figured during the last few years. She has certainly tried to keep her end up with half the world and the whole of the Ampthill family against her, and she has succeeded in more than the legal sense."

The same writer notes that Mrs. Russell's early experiences in the hunting field, for she was born and bred a country girl, may have taught her "that the only way to negotiate difficult fences is with all the pluck one can muster." And for a final extract from the comment of Franklyn Morris, consider the summing up given as follows:

"Of the many false impressions that have floated round about Mrs. Russell, perhaps the one that causes her most annoyance is that just because she is fond of dancing and runs a fashion shop in Curzon street, Mayfair, she is a sort of London 'night bird,' who imagines that existence is bounded by theaters, restaurants, dances and late parties.

"She is certainly a regular attendant at the smart restaurants and dance clubs, and never looks so feminine and so attractive as when she is dancing. The hard expression vanishes from the mouth, and she is so obviously enjoying herself in a perfectly natural and legitimate fashion.

"But no 'night bird,' no flimsy and frivolous young woman with gayety as her sole god, could be the cool-headed woman of business running a large establishment and in her place to direct at an hour in the morning when the average social butterfly has not thought about her early cup of tea.

"No woman who thinks only of amusement could have the brains or the stamina to fight as Christabel Russell has fought, to pit her brains against those of brilliant opposing counsel, to keep ever hoping, planning, scheming in a way that has brought victory with it."

"Common law is common sense," writes James Douglas, well-known editor of the London Sunday Express. "The victory for Mrs. Russell is a triumph of common sense. There is no doubt that Lord Birkenhead was the decisive factor in the decision. Lord Finlay and Lord Dunedin were in favor of setting aside the decree granted by the Divorce Court. Lord Carson and Lord Sumner were in favor of confirming it. In effect, Lord Birkenhead had the casting vote, and he gave it unhesitatingly to Mrs. Russell.

"His judgment is a masterpiece of cogent reasoning. Unless the evidence given by the husband was in law receivable, there was no evidence of misconduct proper to go before the jury. Such evidence, he held, was not receivable. It ought not to have been allowed to go before the jury. Therefore, the verdict could not stand.

"In this case an indomitable woman fought the battle of womanhood, a fearless mother fought the battle of motherhood, a courageous wife fought the battle of wifehood. But if she had been beaten the consequences would have involved men as well as women, fathers as well as mothers, husbands as well as wives.

"For the evidence of a wife would have been receivable against her husband and her child. Any mother could have denied the paternity of her child, and if her evidence had convinced a Judge and jury the child could have been bastardized. Therefore, the decision of the House of Lords protects all three—mother, father and child."

Editor Douglas also holds that the decision "vindicates the new freedoms and liberties so hardly and so lately won by woman as a citizen. It places woman on the same plane as man in relation to conduct and deportment. It arms her with a charter of freedom as liberal as the charter of man. Independence and self-reliance are her privileges as well as ours."

The Earl of Birkenhead, in his judgment, cited a decision by the great Lord Mansfield, in 1777, to the effect that, under the law of England, the declaration of neither a father nor a mother can be admitted to question legitimacy of issue born after marriage.

But Mr. Russell, in his effort for divorce, testified that little Geoffrey was not his son, and under the circumstances he described, could not possibly be.

"This evidence, we are told, is admissible in divorce," said Lord Birkenhead. "Being therefore so received, it bastardizes the child. But if and when the child—as in this case he certainly will do—applies for his writ in this House and proceedings follow, the evidence will not be admissible and he will be pronounced legitimate.

"Equally, of course, if the child instituted proceedings tomorrow for a declaration of legitimacy we should be afforded the agreeable prospect of holding judicially in 1924 that the infant was illegitimate and in 1925 that he was legitimate.

"Nothing but absolute necessity founded upon decisions binding upon me would drive me to a conclusion so ludicrous and incongruous. I find here no such necessity."

So, it looks as though "the dream baby" and his mother have passed nearly out of a very evil dream, and that a far happier morning is about to dawn for them. If little Geoffrey survives both his grandfather and his father he himself will be Lord Ampthill and sit in the same House of Lords which has just brought about such a change in the baby's prospects.

Mysteries of the Unexplored Upper Air

This charged atmosphere of nitrogen dust, extending above 56 miles, should be a fairly good conductor of electricity, at least for radio waves, much better in fact than the surface of the earth.

There is interesting confirmation of this in the recent work of Drs. J. H. Dellinger, H. L. Whittemore and S. Kruse of the United States Bureau of Standards, who conclude, from tests carried out in collaboration with a number of amateur radio operators, located in various parts of the United States, that the great distance for night transmission of radio signals and broadcasting is due to the electric waves traveling along the bottom of this conducting layer, which acts more or less like a metallic ceiling.

When daylight comes the air below this layer becomes temporarily electrically charged by action of the sun's rays, preventing the electric waves from reaching this ceiling, and confining them to the poorer conducting earth or sea surface. That is why the daylight range of radio is small. The Bureau of Standards scientists even explain the fading of radio signals as being due to irregularities in this reflecting, or heaviside, surface.

But the idea of a fountain of charged nitrogen dust in the extreme upper air may be extended even further. These charged particles of nitrogen, as they pass upward, will tend to travel along the lines of the earth's magnetic field, and hence in both the Northern and Southern hemispheres will travel toward the magnetic equator. According to Prof. Vegard, they pile up to a height of perhaps 4000 miles, being visible at night at places near the equator as the Zodiacal Light.

The electrostatic repulsion which forces the nitrogen dust upward is, however, estimated to be sufficiently strong to send the nitrogen entirely off the earth, and this would happen continuously if it were not for electrons, or minute negative charges of electricity, which auroral investigations show must be emitted continually from the sun, and which must form a shielding ring and prevent nitrogen from leaving the earth. Hence the nitrogen rises up to this ring, becomes discharged and drops back, to be charged and forced upward again.

Thus the upper atmosphere, far from being a region in which nothing ever happens, is, even in the light of our present rather meager knowledge of this subject, the place where the long-distance radio waves travel; and is, further, a place where is held a balance for the forces which mean life or death on this planet.

The greater part of this region is beyond the reach of both the airplane and the balloon, and the exploration of this part of the atmosphere is but one of the tremendously interesting applications of the new rocket method.

WE DO NOT SEE THE SUN.

THAT the real sun is entirely invisible to us is the necessary conclusion from some recent work of Doctors St. John and Anderson of Mount Wilson Observatory. The actual scientific fact discovered is that the atmospheric pressure in the part of the sun where the light that we see is being produced is very low indeed, far lower than the pressure in the earth's atmosphere even at the highest point ever reached by airplanes or balloons. It follows that the part of the sun that we see is only the uppermost layer of the atmosphere that surrounds the real sun. These upper layers, thin and tenuous as they are, must be very hot. They shine like the gas in a burning flame. This is what makes sunlight, and it acts, too, to prevent our seeing the deeper—and probably still hotter—layers below:

UNCLE SAM'S GOOD LUCK

It's Fun Learning Cartooning

This New Easy Way

IT'S all like a fascinating game—this new home-study method of learning cartooning. You start with the basic principles of cartoon-making. Then you learn the little tricks of originating cartoon-ideas, the secrets of action, expression and exaggeration. You progress rapidly through serious cartooning, comics, caricaturing, sport and animated cartooning, until almost before you realize it you are drawing striking cartoons that SELL. Many students of this method have sold enough work when taking their courses to pay for them many times over!

Over $100 a Week

Learn cartooning this easy way. Never has the demand for cartoons been so great. Today magazines, newspapers, advertisers and movies use them by the thousands. No matter how poorly you draw now, you can quickly qualify for one of the attractive positions in this fast-growing business.

Just think of earning $3,000 to $20,000 a year for this work that is play. Successful cartoonists often get $25 to over $100 for single cartoons. Then there is the joy of the work itself—the thrill of seeing your own cartoon-ideas in print.

"Nerves" a Mental Disorder, Says King's Physician

EVERYBODY suffers from mental disorder at one time or another, and one manifestation of it is what we call "nerves." So declared Dr. E. Farquhar Buzzard, Physician Extraordinary to the King, at the international conference of the People's League of Health, in session at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley.

Dr. Buzzard said it had become the fashion for people to discuss their bodily ailments, or those of relatives and friends, without restraint as to time or place. But at any reference to mental ailments there is only silence or whispered comment.

Physicians, said Dr. Buzzard, must make everyone recognize that when a person suffers from "nerves," he or she suffers from a mental disorder. All persons suffer now and then from mental disorders. When one is tired and irritable, and when one makes mountains out of molehills, the disorder is mental, and not nervous, according to Dr. Buzzard.

"Nerves" is a term invented for our deception, because while we do not shrink from talking about our stomachs, we draw the line at talking about our minds—a remark which drew laughter from Dr. Buzzard's audience. No doubt, he explained, this disinclination arises from the suggestion of insanity, and from the prevailing idea that insanity is some dire condition which comes as a bolt from the blue, without cause or reason.

So long as this erroneous opinion exists, the speaker insisted, people beginning to suffer from ill-health will refuse to acknowledge, even to themselves, its mental origin.

"If," declared Dr. Buzzard, "the prejudice about the use of the word 'mental' were destroyed, and the employment of the word 'nerves' abolished in the next 10 years, then the biggest step in the promotion of mental hygiene would have been taken, and this alone would mark the period as one of the greatest epochs in the advance of medicine and in the promotion of health and happiness."

Why a mental disorder which entails far more suffering than most physical disorders should be labeled as "nothing the matter" or ascribed to the patient's imagination would be difficult to understand, he continued, except that, in popular estimation, all disease is of gross materialistic origin.

Improvement in the mental health of the community must be the work largely of medical men and women, said Dr. Buzzard in conclusion, but they will be hampered at every turn until the public is educated to a knowledge of certain fundamental principles, and has discarded some preconceived notions of what is meant by mental health and mental disorders.

Strange Photographs Produced by Oils

THAT certain kinds of oil can affect photographic plates, producing shadow pictures much as radium does, was one of the facts reported to the last meeting of the American Chemical Society by Walter F. Baughman and G. B. Jamieson. Some oil is put in a shallow dish and the photographic plate is placed above it, all being in absolute darkness. After some hours a design will be found on the plate, reproducing, for example, a design cut out of paper and placed underneath the plate, between it and the oil.

The effect on the plate is apparently the same as would be caused by light or by the rays given off from radium. So far as known the oils do not give off light, nor are they known to be radioactive. Nevertheless some kind of rays must emanate from the oil substance and pass upward to the photographic plate. What these rays are is a problem that interests the scientists very much.

A still deeper mystery is disclosed by the effect of previous exposure of the oil to light. Vegetable oils, like olive oil or cottonseed oil, do not produce these mysterious photographs on the plate. At least they do not do so when the oils have been pressed freshly from the seeds. But if these same oils are exposed for a while to sunlight they acquire the photographic power, the same as possessed by other oils.

The exposure of the vegetable oils to sunlight evidently makes them ray-producing. It has been suggested that this mysterious ability to produce rays may be a hitherto unknown variety of radioactivity possessed by matter in general, and not confined to radium.

Uncle Sam Has a Monopoly in Helium Gas

THE valuable helium gas, used in filling great rigid airships like the Shenandoah, is virtually an American monopoly, said Dr. R. B. Moore of New York City, addressing a recent meeting of the American Chemical Society. In certain parts of the United States the natural gas secured from wells contains as much as one and one-half per cent of helium. Nowhere else in the world, so far as now known, does helium occur in so large a quantity as this.

The possession of this natural asset may prove, Dr. Moore thinks, of tremendous value in case of war. All the great disasters with rigid gas-filled ships—as, for example, the recent loss of the French ship, the Dixmude—have either been due to fire or have been complicated and made worse by fire. So long as hydrogen gas is used for filling the gas bags of such ships fire is a serious danger. And helium is the only known or probable substitute for hydrogen.

The helium fields of the United States will supply enough helium, the doctor believes, to keep as many as a hundred great airships in the air for many years. Possibly a long experience with helium-filled ships will enable the development of safety devices permitting the use of hydrogen thereafter. But until such devices have been perfected the only safety for such craft lies in the use of the nonexplosive gas that is—fortunately for us—the exclusive property of the United States.

The World's One Big Best-Seller

cost, except when they give them away outright, and consequently the British and Foreign Bible Society constantly undersells us, to our great embarrassment, because people find they can buy better Bibles for less money in England and the Continent than in America.

"The American Bible Society," explained Mr. Wood, "gets its money from three great sources: from the incomes of bequests, of which they have some $3,000,000 from Protestant churches, which included us on their yearly budget, the largest amount from this source coming from the Methodist Episcopal Church; gifts of private individuals; from persons who send their money to the society on the annuity plan, receiving a higher percentage of interest during their life than could possibly be gotten from any other quarter, and leaving their money to be used for the work of the society when they have finished with it, and from the state and county Bible societies in the United States, the largest of these being in Massachusetts."

"I have very good reason to believe," he said, as we descended the oaken stairs leading down from the museum, "that the Bible used by Abraham Lincoln is one of the original 20,000 volumes imported from Holland when the Colonies were at war with England.

"And, by the way," he added, in closing, "the world circulation of the Bible society increased last year 75 per cent, and the strange part of it is that the American Bible Society did not have any more money than it had the year before to promote this circulation. The desire for the Bible was so strong that more books were sold and fewer given away."

EAT PLENTY OF TOMATOES, ADVISES NUTRITION EXPERT

BECAUSE the tomato comes under all three classes of vitamine-bearing foods, physicians all over the country are now advocating the use of tomato juice in place of orange juice in all cases of infant feeding, writes G. O. Luros, nutritional chemist of New York in the Garden Magazine.

Tomato juice not only contains almost as much vitamine C as orange juice, but it also contains as much as vitamine B, and a generous amount of vitamine A, practically absent from orange juice.

Also, the nursing mother will do well to include generous amounts of tomato in her diet, for the increased amount of vitamines in her diet not only tends to increase the amount in her milk for her baby, but also increases her supply of milk.

There is no danger of overloading the system with vitamines. On the contrary, and this is especially so with babies and growing children, it has been found that the greater amount of vitamines the child consumes in his diet, the greater will be his development.

Some of you may come forth with the idea that the milk, butter and eggs we eat will give us sufficient vitamine A. These foods will serve you admirably in the summer time, when the cows and hens have access to plenty of green pasture, but don't depend too strongly on them in the winter time.

Also, what do you know about the feed of the hen that lays your eggs? Because of the general lower vitamine content of the feed of these cows and hens during the important winter months, just when we need an increased amount of vitamine A to guard us from colds, the dairy products fall down on the job.

Here the tomato accommodates us very nicely, having as much vitamine A in winter as in summer. But, again you may raise the objection that you cannot get fresh tomatoes all the year around, unless you live in the city and have a large enough purse to pay the high price tomatoes command out of season.

Vitamines A and B are not appreciably affected by ordinary cooking methods, with the exception of frying, provided the vegetable liquor is saved. Since we have found, by experiment, that tomatoes commercially canned are much richer in vitamines than those home canned without pressure, the housewife is foolish to waste her time in canning tomatoes, unless she has a pressure cooker.

Another advantage that the tomato holds is that it is eaten whole. Even the most inexperienced and careless housewife knows better than to drain tomatoes of their liquor after they have been cooked, for she knows that is impossible. One of the worst habits in so many of our American homes is that of draining and parboiling our vegetables. Down the sink so many cooks pour that vitally important vegetable liquor, which contains from 36 to 70 per cent of our vitamines as well as the highly important mineral salts.

No wonder most of us are bothered with indigestion, poor teeth and constipation, as well as the more serious diabetes, when we so carelessly throw away nature's safeguards for our health.

Whenever you can, eat tomatoes raw and eat them abundantly, for in the raw state we know they yield vitamines in their most potent form. Because of the steadily increasing mortality due to cancer and diabetes, scientists are urging the eating of more raw food. Get back to nature! It is a noteworthy fact that no case of cancer has as yet been discovered among the savage tribes. The finger seems to point to the large amount of cooked, drained and highly, though detrimentally, refined foods with which we deck our tables.

Unfortunately, an insufficient amount of vitamines does not, like a dose of poison, manifest itself at once in our lives. It often takes years before it shows up, gradually undermining the digestive system and penetrating to the nervous system and every part of the body. Feed your children right is the slogan now, so they won't be a prey to all the avoidable grown-up diseases that will attack them later in life, as well as the disturbances that arise all along the years because care was not taken in their feeding from infancy on up.

Although scientists are as yet in the dark as to the exact chemical nature of these highly important vitamines, we do know about their presence in foods; the effect of heat, storage and freezing upon them; and the disturbances in the body, caused by a lack or insufficient amount of them in the diet.

The lack of vitamine A in the diet produces a serious eye disease called zerophthalmia, very rare in this country. An insufficient amount, however, in the diet renders one very susceptible to colds and their complications, and has been found to be a most serious factor in dental caries or decay of teeth.

In respect to vitamine B, the first one to be discovered, we find its absence in the diet produces a disease of the nervous system, called beri-beri, uncommon in this country, fortunately, but prevalent among white-rice-eating Orientals. Nevertheless, an insufficient amount of this vitamine tends towards lung infections, malnutrition and general digestive disturbances.

A lack of vitamine C produces scurvy, while an insufficient amount produces digestive disturbances and also has a serious effect on the liver and teeth.

Studying Epidemics Among Communities of Mice

A NEW way of investigating the way that epidemics of disease spread and die out and recur was described by Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institution at the recent meeting of the National Academy of Sciences. Special "mouse villages" are established, a large number of mice living together in these villages under conditions that approach, so far as mutual association is concerned, the conditions in a small town inhabited by human beings.

Some mouse disease is then introduced into the "village," just as influenza, for example, might be introduced into a human community by the arrival of some person suffering from the disease. The mouse disease spreads among the mice just as the influenza would spread among the humans.

The scientists watch the spread of the disease. Then they watch it die out again. They determine the number of mice that fall ill on each day and the percentages that recover. So they secure almost as much information about the fundamental characteristics of spreading epidemic diseases as could be obtained by studying a human epidemic.

There is the added advantage in the "mouse village" work that the epidemic can be allowed to run its natural course, just as human diseases used to do before man knew how to control them. With real human epidemics this cannot be done, no matter how valuable it might be for science. When human disease breaks out the first effort of the doctors is to stop the epidemic.

And this, of course, is the real object behind the work on the mouse villages. If we can learn the full character of epidemic diseases—all about how they spread and continue—we will be able, Dr. Flexner believes, to prevent and stop them even more successfully than we do now.

MIRAGES WITH RADIO WAVES.

THE mirages that occasionally deceive travelers in deserts or in the Arctic are caused by the rays of light being sent by different layers of air, so that the sky, for example, is reflected from air near the ground and looks like a lake. Now Prof. Guinchant of Bordeaux, France, has suggested that radio waves are bent in the same way and that this accounts for some of the cases of remarkably-long-distance reception that have puzzled the radio engineers. It is probable, also, that this bending of radio waves in the air may help to explain the "fading" and "swinging" of radio signals.

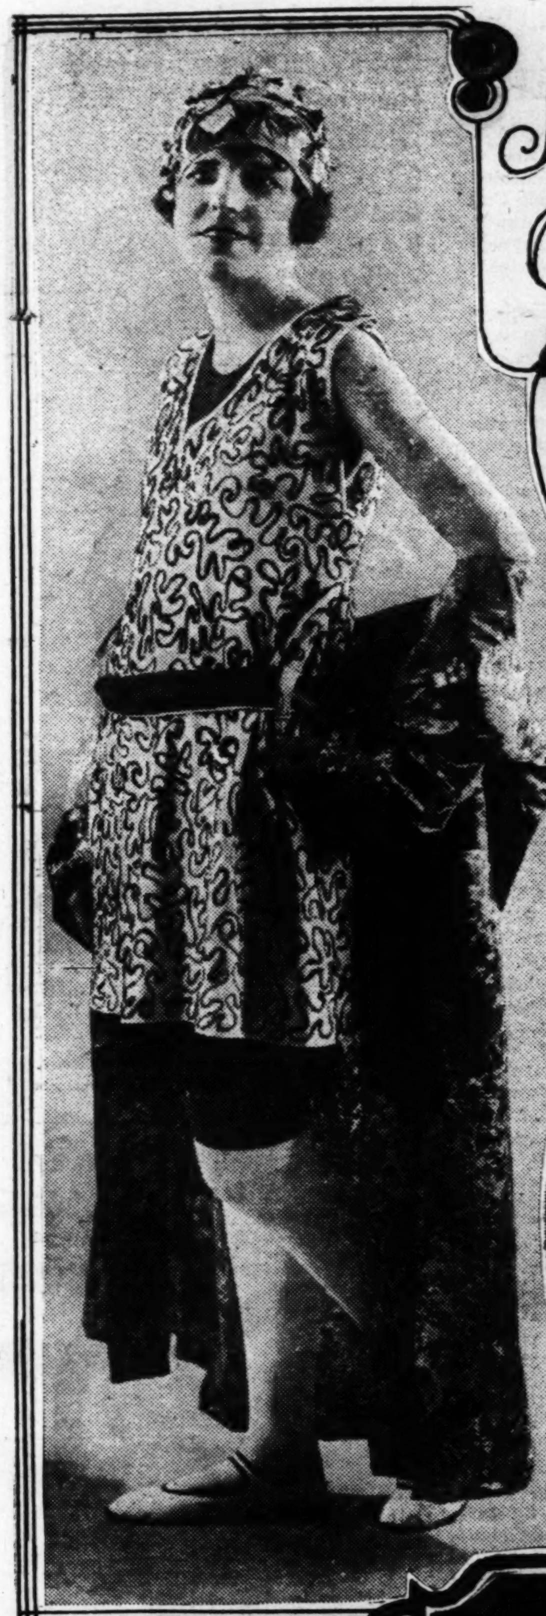
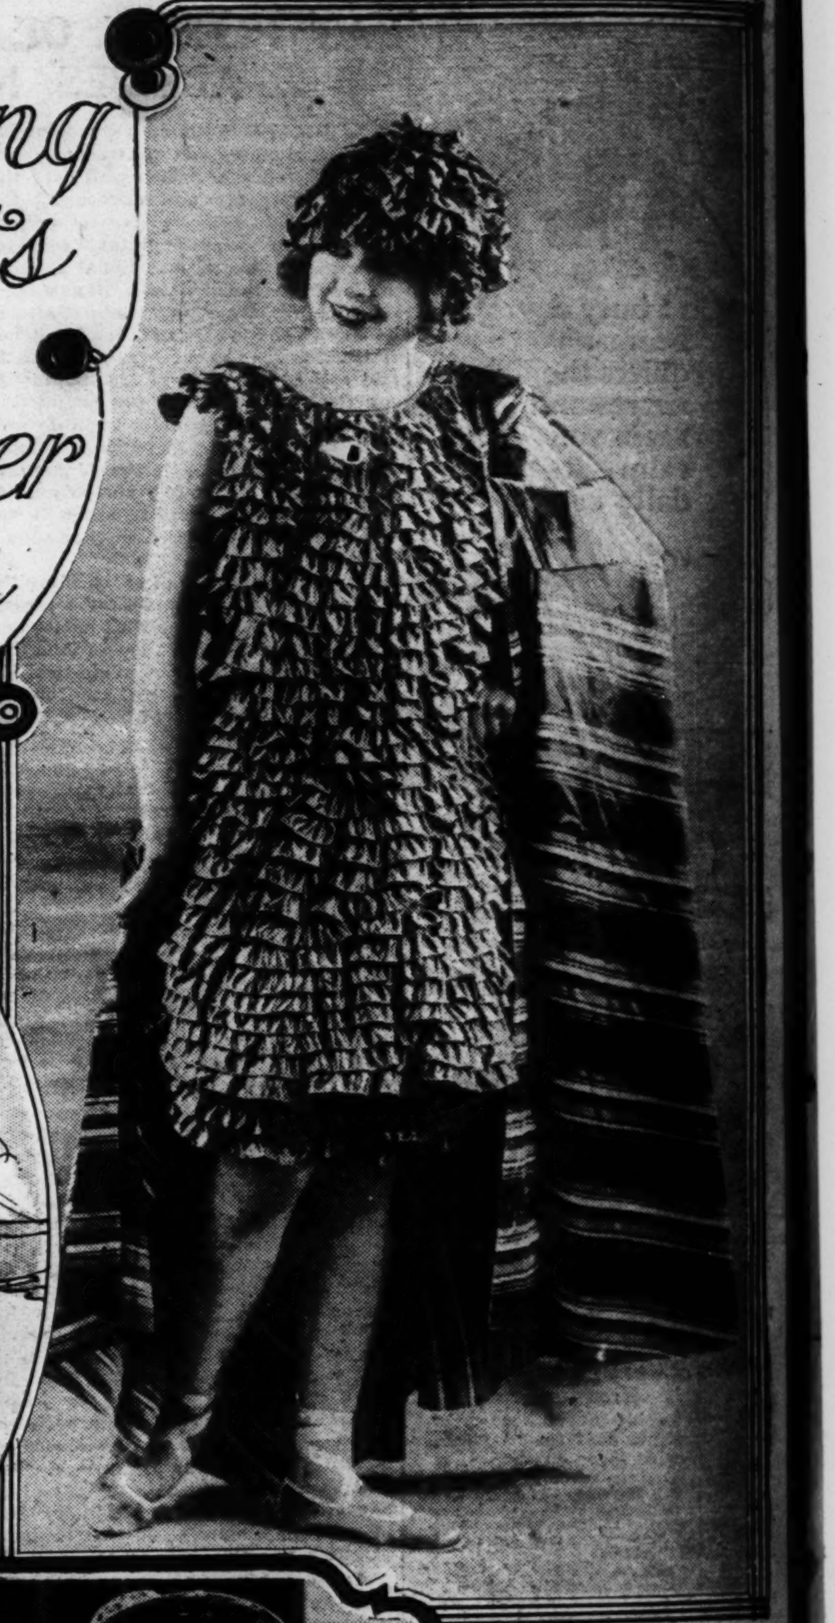
Stunning Outfits for Summer Girls

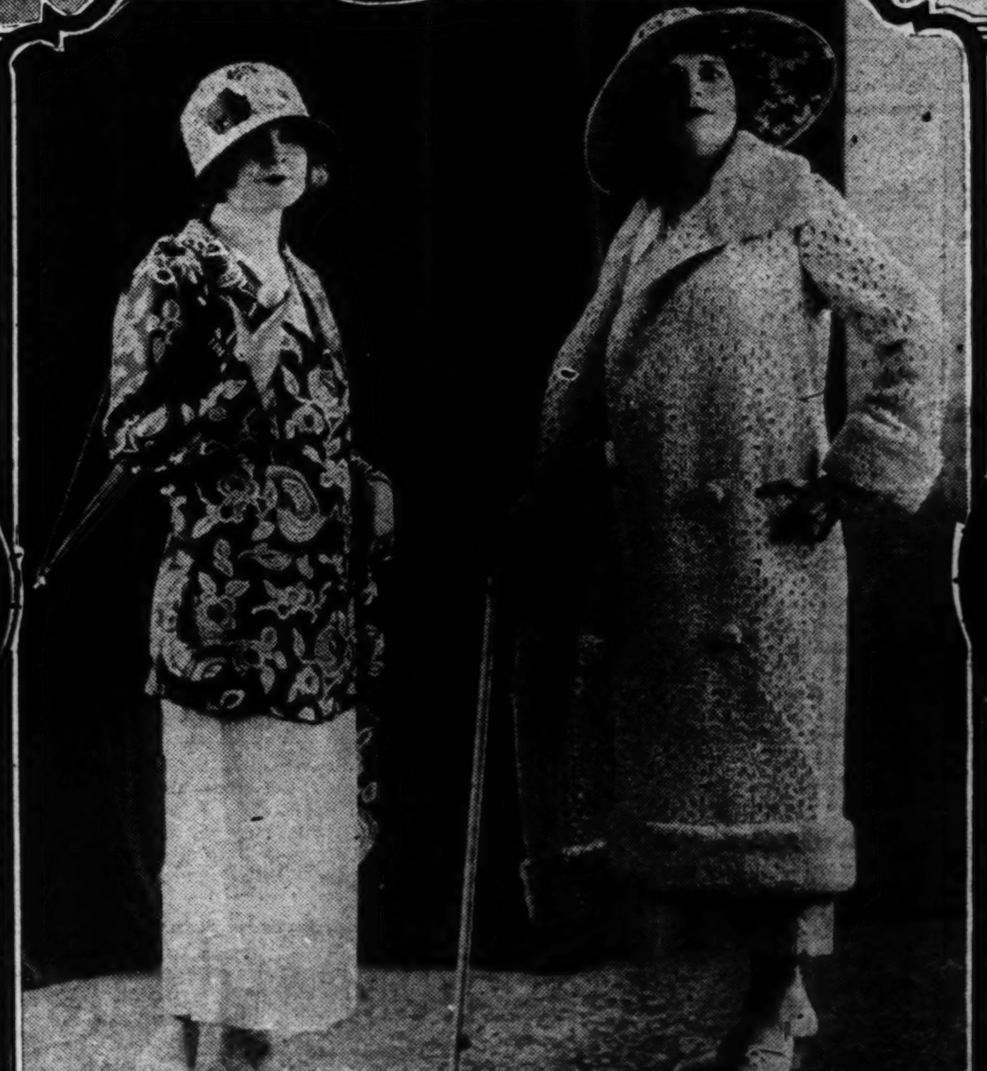


(All photographs (C) Marshall Field & Co., from Underwood & Underwood.)



Tangerine embroidery on white knitted silk, with a tangerine "Annette Kellerman" and belt, make this bathing suit unusual. The rubberized satin beach coat in gay colors is the newest idea in beach wraps.

A new fad in beach costumes is the multi-ruffled suit. This one is of king's blue satin, with cap to match, and is worn with a rubberized cape in brilliant Roman stripes.



This three-piece suit comprises a simple white silk pleated frock, with collar and cuffs to match the jacket, which makes a striking contrast with its gay red, blue and green figures on black. The white buckle slippers and the novelty parasol carried by a cord over the shoulder help to complete the outfit.

This is a white wool coat with open eyelets, trimmed with clipped lamb's wool instead of fur. The picture hat is green with white and colored braid, and the swagger stick is white.
